U.S. Body Rejects 15 Motions to Ban Gas From Canada

Refuses to Dismiss Move For Natural Gas Pipeline

His Critics Talk Wicked Nonsence Says Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower fired back today at his Democratic critics, some of them of talking "wicked nonsense" and "political bunk" in the presidential campaign.

Eisenhower's strongly worded address, prepared for delivery at a luncheon in Cleveland and made available to the press here in advance, did not mention opponent Adlai Stevenson by name, but he hit at Stevenson's charges of scare and farm issue, cost of living, labor and several other campaign topics.

Stevenson, meanwhile, disclosed plans for extensive campaigning "comparative hearing" would not be in keeping with the public interest and past practices, nor would such action accord with political realities of the present day.

The dismissal motions were filed in Washington by the U.S. after Hall had heard evidence on the applications from Feb. 14 to June 19.

Midwestern is seeking authority to build a 1,500-mile pipeline system extending some 2,000 miles from a connection with Tennessee Gas Transmission Co., and Trans-Canada, to a point on the U.S.-Canadian border.

HALF FROM CANADA

The company would receive half its gas supply, or 204,000,000 cubic feet daily, at the Canadian border from Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. and the other half from Tennessee at the Portland connection.

Tennessee proposes to sell the 204,000,000 cubic feet daily to Midwestern and also seeks authority to sell 200,000,000 cubic feet daily to Trans-Canada near Niagara Falls, N.Y. This sale would be on a short-term basis for conversion of the Montreal area to natural gas pending completion of the Trans-Canada's System across Canada.

Hall said the communities seeking the dismissal on grounds that Midwestern would not provide areas served by existing pipelines "should not and cannot deny the existence of a public necessity for natural gas in the midwest in excess of the Midwestern proposed application system capacity . . . Nor is there any suggestion that the demands for gas in the Natural Gas Act will be met adequately from other sources substantially in years to come."

Somoza's Body Brought Back From Panama

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP)— The bullet-pierced body of President Luis Somoza was flown back to Managua brought back from Panama Sunday for two days of solemn funeral honors and burial in a national tomb.

A 'U.S. Air Force DC-4 brought the body from the Canal Zone where doctors tried vainly for a week to save the young man who ruled this country for 20 years. An assembly's bullets brought him down Sept. 21 at a celebration in the Nicaraguan provincial city of Leon. The assassin was shot dead.

Somoza's son Lido, who succeeds to the presidency, was met at the airport as he emerged his widowed mother.

The funeral cortege from the airport to Managua's cathedral was slowed by the thousands of mourners who crowded the seven-mile route. Into the city the 500-piece orchestra played a funeral march as the casket was placed on a catafalque in the cathedral nave.

DELEGATES MEET FOR CANAL USERS' PARLEY IN LONDON

Unimpeded Passage Through Suez Asked

LONDON (AP)—Diplomats of 18 countries met in London today to set up the Suez Canal Users Association (SCUA) to work for unimpeded passage of their ships through the nationalized Middle East waterway.

The third gathering of maritime powers in historic Lancaster House began to create an organization capable of making day-to-day working arrangements with Egypt, pending a final Suez settlement.

While the ambassadors and their aides wrestle with details of organizing SCUA, foreign ministers of Egypt, Russia, Britain and France meet tonight at the New York for the United Nations Security Council debate Friday on Egypt's nationalization of the canal.

Some Britons feel State Secretary Dulles of United States has not backed the United Kingdom strongly enough in its demand for international control of the Suez. The London Observer says Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd will attempt to use American television and radio to sway U.S. public opinion to the support of British view, even though he knows he has the undivided attention with the presidential election campaign.

Egypt's Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi left Sunday night for Paris "and the Soviet Union" official session after a final conference with President Nasser, giving no indication that Egypt is willing to her previous rejection of international control of the canal. Fawzi heads an eight-man delegation.

SECOND MAJOR MEETING

The 18 countries represented in London are those who backed the original plan of Britain, the U.S. France and Russia. The first Suez conference in August for an international plan to take over the canal. Nasser rejected the proposal. Then at a second Soez conference here in September, the 18 formed the new SCUA.

The first proposed, Scua would have run its members' ships through the canal with its own pilots. Members would have paid canal tolls to SCUA, which would have guaranteed Egypt her share of the canal. If Egypt did not agree, Israeli ships would be denied canal shipping routes around Africa—a step some took to imply a boycott of the canal.

But most of these teeth were pulled at last month's conference and the association was reduced to a group which would offer assistance to Nasser's regime in managing the canal if they got into trouble and to plan for possible future action in the Suez dispute.

The meeting is expected to last two days. Participating are those of Britain, the U.S., France, Australia, New Zealand, West Germany, the Netherlands, Portugal, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Turkey, Italy, Greece, Ethiopia, Japan and Pakistan.

LIBERALS TO MEET

MONTREAL (CP)—Supporters of the Liberal party in Quebec province will meet here Oct. 19 and 20 to discuss the "future of the Liberal party in Quebec." It will be the first meeting since the Liberals suffered a resounding defeat in the June provincial election, taking to only 20 seats in the 93-member legislature.

Dislike of Princess for Motorbikes Left Police Unable to Control Mob

PORT LOUIS, Mauritius (CP)—Princess Margaret today drove 15 miles through a thickly wooded country along narrow twisting roads to begin the second of her brief visit to this island in the Indian Ocean.

Crowds greeted her at the Pamplemousses botanical gardens, once one of the finest in the world, where she planted a flowering tropical tree known as "queen flower."

Later she inspected a sugar mill at Mon Loisir and attended party before leaving tonight on the royal yacht Britannia for Zanzibar, next stop on her East African tour.

She released Sunday afternoon with a pleasure lunch and swimming and sunbathing in a sheltered lagoon, between an official round of morning and evening engagements.

Meanwhile, police contended that Princess Margaret's refusal to allow motorcycle escorts was largely to blame for the unruliness of the crowds which greeted her on her arrival Saturday.

"We bought nine new motor cycles especially for the royal visit," said one police official. "Then word came from Buckingham Palace that the princess has a motorcycles. Apparently the princess objects to their noise."

Margaret's wishes were shown by her rough handling when she landed the island Saturday and the island governor was "scared stiff," police added.

She was greeted by a crush of cheering people who broke down police barriers to touch her car for good luck. About 5,000 flagwaving islanders broke down bamboo steel barrier rails and battled with police to approach when she stepped ashore.

Is Stalinism Being Revived? Pearson Foresaw Possibility

OTTAWA (CP) — Is Stalinism being revived in Russia?

This grim possibility, with all its ramifications for the world, appears raised by the current meetings of Nikita Khrushchev, Communist party secretary, and Marshal Tito, president of Communist Yugoslavia.

The revival-of-Stalinism possibility was foreseen two months ago by External Affairs Minister Pearson when he told the Commons: "There exists a threat [to Russia] and their results, both at home and among the satellite communities, may frighten the new rulers who may try to reverse the trend, and out of this effort a new Stalin . . . may arise. . . ."

Thus officials are guarding very close attention to the Khrushchev-Tito meetings as perhaps denoting a split in Moscow's so-called collective leadership"—a split over the sovereignty of Russia's tight grip on the Communist satellites and Russia's contacts with the Western world.

Prime Minister St. Laurent told the Commons July 4 that "any changes taking place in the Soviet government and its attitudes and policies might have more than merely a feigned or superficial significance.

Seven days after this speech, the Canadian government expelled from Canada G. P. Popov, second secretary at the Russian embassy here, for trying to obtain information on the new CF-105 supersonic jet fighter from an RCAF civilian employee.

Mr. St. Laurent at his press conference Friday said it was on his responsibility that the Popov affair was not made public at the time and that he did not want to create an international incident out of it.

In other words, if new opportunities were being presented for better relations with Russia, Canada was not going to be the first to give a hand in damaging these chances.

Officials say that, if the new Soviet regime is ousted and replaced by the Stalinist old guard group included former foreign minister Molotov — Russia might revert to Stalin's rigid policies and the possibility of the cold war of Stalin's days would be revived.

Hungary's Premier, Bulganin Join Tito and Khrushchev

Premier Bulganin and Hungary's Erno Gerge appeared Sunday at the Yalta Black Sea resort by Moscow radio as a vacation companion for Tito, who is viewed as a crucial phase in a Kremlin power struggle.

Diplomats in London believe Khrushchev has enlisted Tito's support for his destalinization campaign—a campaign informed sources say has embroiled the Soviet Communist boss in a bitter struggle with Old Bolsheviks in the Kremlin.

Two veteran Stalinists—former foreign minister V. M. Molotov and Deputy Premier Lazar Kaganovich—are said to feel Khrushchev's switch to more liberal brand of communism has weakened Moscow's control of the satellites.

Tito himself was reported dissatisfied over a letter Soviet leaders were said to have sent the satellites, warning against any attempt pousing too heartily Tito's avowed independence from Moscow.

Should Soviet-Yugoslav relations go sour again, Tito's government stands to lose more than $500,000,000 in Communist credits and grants. Since relations with Tito began improving three years ago, Soviet bloc has borrowed by Yugoslavs with economic benefits to Communist China has declined. Insipred boycott against Belgrade.

The uncertain status of Soviet-Yugoslav relations has caused intense interest in the West. James E. Riddleberger, U.S. Senate ambassador to Belgrade, returned to the Yugoslav capital Sunday after a three-month vacation at home, and is expected to ask Tito for his views on the Yalta talks when he gets back from the Crimea.

The whole question of continued U.S. aid to Yugoslavia is under fire in Washington. State Secretary Dulles is reported to have told the Yugoslav government that a full return to the Soviet camp would cut off American help to Belgrade.

Western informants believe Khrushchev invited Gerge to the Yalta talks to try to erase old friction between Yugoslavia and Hungary. Gerge was ousted in the premiership last July apparently as a sop to the Yugoslav president, as he replaced Stalinist Rakosi, a pro-Stalinist.

Western reporters have been barred from covering the Yalta talks and the Soviet press has given little hint as to what is going on.

France Agrees to Turn Over Rich Saar Valley to Germany

BONN (AP)—Conclusion of the French-West German agreement to return the rich Saar Valley to Germany has been hailed by both governments and the Europeans themselves as the first step toward real European unity.

The agreement was hammered out finally here Saturday after 12 hours of hard bargaining between Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and Premier Guy Mollet of France. Jan. 1 as target for shifting back the 991 square - mile industrial basin taken by France from Germany in 1945.

"Germany and France are now prepared to walk hand in hand in working for European integration," Adenauer said Saturday after agreement was announced.

"With the basic problem behind us we can go ahead faster with European integration," Mollet declared.

The agreement calls for political integration of the Saar with Germany. France will retain dimming economic rights until 1960.

The arrangement replaces an 1953 "said" pact which provided France to "Europeanize" the Saar. This was shattered by the Saarlanders in a plebiscite last October, when -they voted in effect for union with Germany.

The agreement is expected to receive parliamentary approval despite in Germany on the eve of next year's national elections.

The agreement also spelled good news for the French, since it calls for converting the Moselle River into an international canal—long a French hope. A program to widen and deepen the river will provide French steel manufacturers with cheaper barge transport for coal and coke from the German Ruhr, and for finished products for export to Germany and the world market.

X-15 Will Be Successor to Research Plane

WASHINGTON (AP)—The successor to the lost X-2 research rocket plane probably will be a fantastic aircraft designed to fly several thousand miles an hour at unprecedented height.

The latest manned project, the X-15, already was well under way when the X-2 crashed Sept. 27 and killed Capt. Milburn G. Apt.

The second and last of the Bell X-2 planes crashed on Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., killing its pilot. Earlier this year the X-2 had flown at more than 2,000 mph and than any plane—126,000 feet high.

The X-2 was designed to test the amazing performance, especially for an aircraft designed 10 years ago.

But the government's air design engineers already have what has appeared as a successor to the former rocket barrier, which now is really existed. The X-1 flights dispelled the idea that the shock and turbulence developed as a plane moved past the speed of sound would result in a definite "barrier."

The thermal barrier is a more definitive, tangible point. It is based on eat developed by friction from air.

CONSERVATIVES PREPARE PLANS TO SELECT LEADER

House, Senate Members Meet in Party Caucus

OTTAWA (CP) — Prospective contestants for the national leadership of the Progressive Conservative party were busily feeling out their personal strength today as Commons members and senators meet in party caucus to prepare plans for election of a successor to Hon. George Drew.

The caucus, first convoked in some Conservative quarters that Ontario's Premier Leslie Frost might be considered a likely successor to the ailing Mr. Drew has faded with the premier's statement that he is not a candidate.

That has thrown the field wide open, but it is still too early to say many narrow to such men as John Diefenbaker, 61-year-old Saskatchewan lawyer, and George Hees, 46-year-old Toronto businessman.

Mr. Diefenbaker, member for Prince Albert in Saskatchewan, is a veteran campaigner. A member of the Commons since 1940, he was unsuccessful in two previous bids for the leadership.

Mr. Hees, representing Toronto Northeast riding, has been an MP since 1950. He served a two-year term as national president of the National Progressive Conservative Association in 1954-55.

NO NO SIGN

Candidates have yet to declare themselves. They may give no indication before the party caucus and Tuesday's meeting of the association's 70-man national executive.

But hotel corridors are buzzing with speculation about the talk that is of a fight between Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Hees.

Officially, the caucus and national executive have been called to formally accept the resignation of Mr. Drew, now convalescing at his home in Washington. Senator Earl Rowe as acting leader pending the choice of a new chieftain at the convention, probably to take place early in December.

The convention locale also is to be decided. The last one was in Ottawa in 1948. The four previous conventions were held between the East and West and Western members have been pressing for a third meet at Winnipeg. Members from the central provinces favor Ottawa or Montreal, to be near the party's French - speaking element. Mr. Drew and Miss Sybil Bennett, member for Halton.

ROWE NOT CANDIDATE

Though Mr. Rowe will likely direct the party until convention time, there is no indication that he will contest the leadership. Conservative, a Conservative cabinet minister in 1948, he will be a candidate for the leadership.

However, there have been reports of these other possible candidates: Donald Fleming, MP for Toronto Eglinton; Davie Fulton, 40, member for Kamloops, B.C.; Dana Wilgress, president of the University of Toronto; and former Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa.

Between 1,300 and 1,400 delegates are expected at the leadership convention, estimated to cost the party treasury about $75,000.

Huge RAF Vulcan Four-Jet Bomber Crashes, 4 Killed

Coming in for Landing At London After First Test

LONDON (CP)—Britain's latest jet atomic bomber, the swept-wing four-jet Vulcan, crashed in flames at London airport today in what was to have been a triumphal return from its first overseas test.

Surviving the crash was the chief of the bomber command, Air Marshal Sir Harry Broadhurst, and the chief of staff, Air Vice-Marshal Sqdn. Ldr. Donald Howard. Four others, including a civilian air ministry official, were killed.

The civilian official was identified as Frederick Bassett, technical service representative for the A. V. Roe Aircraft Co.

As it appeared through the mist over the airport at the end of a 26,000 mile round-trip flight to Australia a small explosion was heard and smoke billowed from the plane.

TREMENDOUS BLAST

The jet seemed to lurch upward about 100 feet, then plunged in a mass of smoke and flame.

An airline official said it bounced as it hit the ground and there was then a tremendous explosion that shook the airport terminal.

Howard, apparently unhurt, except for a bruised face, wordlessly embraced his wife at the airport lounge while out on the runway firemen fought to extinguish the roaring flames. Broadhurst, with an injured foot, was taken to hospital.

Also in the lounge were Lady Broadhurst, 30, and their daughter, Broadhurst, 31, had acted as co-pilot on the flight, the first overseas trip for the Vulcan since it came into service with bomber command last April.

FOUR-JET POWER

The Vulcan, powered by four Rolls-Royce Olympus engines, is Boscombe Down, England, Sept. 9 and flew to Melbourne, Australia, with only two stops — Aden and Singapore.

Air Vice Marshal Broadhurst as guest of the Australian government for air force ceremonies marking

The Vulcan, manufactured by A. V. Roe and Co., Ltd., was the first jet-bomber to employ the delta wing. It is one of Britain's three "V" bombers, all capable of carrying atomic bombs. The others are the Valiant and Victor.

TWO EXPLOSIONS

Eyewitnesses said the plane was coming in "very low when suddenly there were two short, sharp bangs.

"Two objects shot out of the plane. The first seemed to burst in a very sharp angle and then dived straight into the ground and exploded in a sheet of flame.

Wreckage littered the runway for more than 100 yards.

British Lift Nicosia Curfew For Two Hours

NICOSIA (AP)—British authorities lifted a severe curfew on Nicosia's Greek quarter for two hours today to enable residents to obtain food and water.

The original plan to allow inhabitants to leave their homes for an hour only was amended when it became evident that many would be unable to get supplies in time.

A number of Greek Cypriots complained that the curfew is causing severe hardship. It restricts them to remain indoors day and night.

SINGLE INCIDENT

Many residents who live in houses without running water crowded at public water taps to fill up jugs and tins with a supply of well-used water. A shortage of milk as well as bread was also felt in the curfewed area. One man was arrested in a coffee house with police but otherwise no incidents were reported during the temporary lifting of the curfew.

Elsewhere on the island all appeared quiet.

Schools, banks, offices and shops have been closed since the big drastic curfew, now in its fourth day. It was imposed Friday after two British police sergeants were shot to death and a third wounded by terrorist gunmen in Nicosia's Ledra Street—known as "murder alley" because of repeated extremist violence.

The slayings climaxed the worst week of shooting and bombing since the extremist underground campaign of anti-British campaign 18 months ago.

Contributed to Fire

TORONTO (CP)—Firemen said a short circuit in a Christmas tree outfit bulled to a fire which destroyed a home in nearby Cooksville Sunday night with a loss of $20,000.

Mr. and Mrs. David Rigden and their three-month-old daughter retired from a visit to find their rented home in ruins. Firemen said the blaze started in a fireplace was whipped out of control by a 40-mile an hour wind that whistled a window. The house and contents were uninsured.

Terminal CNRAA Host At Autumn Meeting in City

A review of past activities and plans for the future climaxed by a dinner featured the autumn meeting of the Canadian National Railways Athletic Association held here on Saturday.

President George F. Foster and his executive of the Belleville terminal of the CNRAA were hosts to delegates from Quebec, Montreal, London, Kingston, Hamilton, Sarnia and other terminal centres.

Several visiting delegates spoke briefly during the after - dinner "speech session". President Foster warmly welcomed the delegates and reviewed briefly the history of the Belleville terminal since its inception some eight years ago.

Norman Thompson, chief clerk of the Belleville division, in terms of the local organization a "dynamo of energy". He recalled the first recreational activities in the terminal back in the twenties when a railway baseball team was the Ontario titles. He warmly commended the organization here for its activities in providing a playground for the children thus keeping them off the streets.

WARM SPOT FOR CITY

William Redmond, Montreal association president said he had a warm spot in his heart for Belleville having resided here several years ago. "I should have" he said, "married a Belleville girl."

Past president of the CNRAA Council George Clements of London, said he would take back warm memories of the fine hospitality accorded him in Belleville. He urged all terminals to renew their activities in co-operational work and "make the council the thing we planned it to be."

Harold Alexander of the Montreal terminal suggested the formation of camera groups within the council and an exchange of prints and films. "It would get us closer together," he said.

Several members of the Belleville terminal spoke briefly. These included Al. Meagher, J. J. Robertson, Lionel Tobin, Hugh McKee, Hank Rondeau, Bill Parry, and others.

Mr. Thompson represented divisional superintendent, A. R. Wilson, who was unable to be present.

Robert J. Shaw, CNR Brakeman, Instantly Killed

Robert J. Shaw, 30, Belleville, C.N.R. brakeman, was fatally injured Saturday night when he stepped off the side of a railway trestle over Duffin's Creek at Pickering and fell 45 feet to the creek bank.

The young Belleville brakeman died of internal injuries before he could be removed to hospital.

It was reported the freight had stopped at Pickering to pick up cars. Shaw stepped out of his caboose in the foggy darkness and instead of finding the railway embankment stepped off the side of the trestle and fell to his death.

A brakeman in the Belleville yards since last spring, Robert had accepted the road trip Saturday afternoon when the local terminal crew was short on crew members. It was his second road trip. Previously he was a fireman. His train left Belleville about four o'clock.

Eldest of 13 children, Robert was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Shaw, Belleville. He was born in Belleville but moved to Oshawa with his parents a number of years before moving back to this city about four years ago.

Ironically Mr. Shaw had worked on the bridge which cost his son's life. At the time he had told railway officials there should be a railing on the trestle but no action was taken.

A member of Calvary Temple, he is survived by his parents, seven brothers, Cecil, Gerald, Leslie, Larry, Barry, Ronald and Wayne, and four sisters, Florence, Edith, Bonnie and Barbara, all at home.

Car Hits Dog, Upsets in Ditch, Two Injured

Thrown out of control when it struck and killed a dog which was crossing the road, a car driven by Charles Burt, 31, Chalmer Blvd., overturned in the highway and overturned in the ditch along the Marysville Flats Sunday night.

Two occupants of the car, Mr. Burt and a passenger, Mrs. Marvin Jarvis, 40, of the same address, were taken to Belleville General Hospital via the local ambulance. Mrs. Jarvis had to be pried from the overturned car.

On the morning Mr. Burtt was said to be resting comfortably, while Mrs. Jarvis complained of her chest hurting and had scratches and bruises about the head treated by Dr. Ken Douglas.

Mr. Burt told police that he was startled when a dog darted across the highway in front of him. As the car struck the dog he lost control and his car turned end over end into the ditch coming to rest facing the opposite direction.

Provincial Constable E. L. Graves investigated.

Active Participation in Club Work Stressed by Speaker

Relationships are weak when there is no common ground of understanding. This thought was presented to Y's Men's delegation at its banquet yesterday when Charles A. Linkletter addressed the gathering, choosing for his topic, "Strength Through Understanding" the theme of this year's Older Boys' Conference of Y's Men.

Mr. Linkletter, a resident of Summerside, P.E.I., is personality director of Y's Men's International Director of Young Adult Work. During the ten years he has been a member of this organization, Mr. Linkletter has been active in various capacities.

"There are a number of types of strength and there are different connotations of the word "understanding," he stated. "All are valid and significant." Mentioning the relationship of one person with another, he said each one's understanding for the other "creates and engenders a strength of love, affection and consideration. An outgrowth of this strengthening through study of understanding may be harmony, pleasure and pride in the association and friendship of family life is dependent upon this understanding. Y's Men's clubs have a big opening in the importance of understanding to such things as promoting international good will.

LOOK AFTER NEW MEMBERS

Mr. Linkletter then turned to the problem of introducing new members into the clubs. The old members must make the new ones welcome. "Very soon after a new member joins your club," he said, "the membership service committee working to properly indoctrinate the new member will wait six months until you have a group. The good member will remember it's well worth your trouble." He added that this type of work will also contribute for the further development of members of longer standing. "It is for a group to give new members jobs to do as soon as possible," he said, "its the greatest nourishment for a spontaneous life. Idleness soon wastes into weakness, both in the members and in the clubs. . . . Show me a strong, energetic Y's Men's Club and I will show you I can show you an active Y's Menettes club and show me a Menettes club worthy of understanding Y's Menette wives giving their own personalities opportunity to develop facets, and understanding abounding."

FACTUAL PUBLICITY NEEDED

According to Mr. Linkletter, one of the weakest points in Y's Men's organization is its lack of good, factual publicity on its activities. "The old saying 'it pays to advertise'," he remarked, "is as true in the Y's Men's Movement as it is in business." He mentioned that the clubs should submit reports of their activities and activity plans to the local radio stations and newspapers. The public should be educated as to what the organization stands for.

He pointed out that the strength of the individual clubs can be increased by the understanding of what other clubs in the region are doing, what their problems are doing, what their problems are, and what they are striving for. "You see," he explained, "it is in a strength through understanding that we are here discussing, encouraging and attempting to reach higher heights built on a firm foundation. This is the answer to why we have regional conventions: to strengthen our movement by becoming more full conversant with the problems and ideals of our movement so that we may become more enthusiastic and dedicated Y's Men and more able to serve the YMCA."

The speaker discussed the importance of executive work. He reminded his audience that Y's Men started in Belleville and grew into Canada, and finally spread to the four corners of the earth. He stressed the importance of having members support the work done by the regional executive officers who devote a great deal of time and energy in promoting new clubs.

In closing, Mr. Linkletter read the benediction that was given by

CNR Engine Strikes Vehicle, Driver Escapes

Failing to see the approaching train as he neared the track in the fog, William Watt, 21, of the Gilead Farm District, escaped injury early Sunday morning by jumping as his car was struck squarely in the auto at a private crossing east of the city.

Damage to the car as the engine struck the vehicle was estimated at approximately $800.

Mr. Wall had been taking a friend to his home east of the city was proceeding north on a private driveway when in the fog he failed to see the approaching train.

Then the car stalled on the tracks and Mr. Watt was just able to jump clear before the engine struck.

Provincial Constable A. Cockburn investigated.

Three Hunters Kill Eighteen On First Day

Plenty of shotgun roared in and over the duck haunts over the weekend but the general consensus was that the bag did not average up to more of a year ago.

The season opened-at noon Saturday, an experiment of the Department of Lands and Forests — and this fact may have had something to do with the light bags.

The best shot reported today was Dr. Tweedy, Rollin, who got 7 blacks and the rest blue teal. They were shot by a trio of city hunters in a marshy haunt off the Bay of Quinte.

Police constable Bob Hall bagged three teal and a wood duck in an early morning shoot today along the Bay of Quinte where two other unidentified hunters bagged eight. Game and Fishery officials are busy checking the duck-kill and were not available this morning for a general report of the hunting situation.

If the founder of the Y's Men's movement, Judge Paul William Alexander, at the final banquet with which the Paris Y's Men's conference closed its sessions last night. This blessing asked God to help the Y's Men's clubs throughout the world that they "may actually live those universally revered and respected precepts and principles voiced by Jesus of Nazareth."

IN MEMORIAM

SARGENT. — In loving memory of my dear wife, Hilda, who passed away October 3rd, 1935.

What would we give her hand to hold,
Her patient face to see,
Her head to rest, close to her breast,
As in the days of old.
And could we meet that dear one sweet
Just for a moment more,
In Heaven, that happy life,
Ever remembered by husband and family.

HAIGHT. — In fond and loving memory of Joseph Haight, who died in Sidney, Oct. 3rd, 1935.

From our hearts
—Sadly missed by Mother and Dad.

In our home she is family

Those who loved her in life
Still love her in death just the same.
Still lovingly remembered and cherished by sons Stanley and Gerald; loved by son Dad, daughters-in-law James, Franklin, Elizabeth and Catherine, grandchildren Thomas, Lawrence, Franklin, Eileen and Jane, Evelyn, Ella and Audrey.

Last Fuehrer Of Nazi Germany Out of Prison

BERLIN (AP)—Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz came out of Spandau war crimes prison today and dodged all questions as to whether he would seek a new political role in a resurgent Germany.

Doenitz, who took over from Hitler in the last day of the war, told a press conference:

"Such a man as I can have only one task: To remain silent and to feel his way back into the world and to form his opinion of problems, of all the problems, for there is no isolated problem."

Neo-Nazi splinter groups in Germany have clamored for Doenitz to lead a new right-wing movement, but he made no reference to that in replying to questions from reporters about his own political future.

Doenitz, who was released at midnight after completing a 10-year sentence imposed by the Allied war crimes tribunal at Nuremberg, looked like a tired and nervous man who wanted only peace rather than the rough-and-tumble of politics.

SENTENCE COMPLETED

He was the first of seven major Nazis convicted of war crimes to complete his sentence. Two were released because of ill health, although sentenced to longer terms.

Now 65 and suffering from high blood pressure, Doenitz told his jailer that he wants only to end his days in peace.

Doenitz, who commanded the submarine packs that sank millions of tons of Allied shipping in the war, took over as chief of the government after Hitler committed suicide in a Berlin bunker. He negotiated Germany's surrender.

Doenitz was acquitted at the Nuernberg trials of conspiracy to wage aggressive war, but was convicted of crimes against peace and of war crimes. An Allied prosecutor charged that he instructed "his pack of submarine killers to conduct warfare at sea with the illegal ferocity of the jungle."

The leading Nazis still in Spandau are Rudolf Hess, 57, former deputy fuehrer, and Walther Funk, former economics minister, both sentenced for life; Baldur von Schirach, 49, former Reich youth leader, and Albert Speer, 51, former munitions minister, sentenced to 20 years.

West German police manhandled several reporters attempting to cover Doenitz' release at a cordon of about 100 armed police in front of the prison prevented photographers from taking pictures and reporters from following Doenitz. The press conference was called this morning.

PUC Employee Suffers Burns In Explosion

TRENTON (Special) — Suffering flash burns about his face, hands, arms and body, when an explosion occurred at a sub-station control room, Norman Lemoney, 68, veteran employee of the Trenton Public Utilities Commission is in Trenton Memorial Hospital in serious condition.

Mr. Campney was in the sub-station building when suddenly there was an explosion with Mr. Campney being blown into the air and landing in a crumpled heap on the ground.

Lloyd Worral and his brother-in-law, Dick Cherrier of Montreal, were driving past and saw the explosion and resulting flash. They called a doctor, the police and an ambulance.

Mr. Campney was taken to hospital in an unconscious condition. This morning hospital officials stated he had regained consciousness.

Bert Atkinson, utilities commissioner, said there was 6,600 volts at the transformer which would have caused enough flash "to fry a man."

Over 600 Have Registered For Evening Classes at BCI

Over 600 people registered last week for Evening Classes at the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational school. The number registering for welding was so great that both classes are full and a waiting list has been set up. Considerable interest has been shown this year in French conversation. This class will meet on Wednesday evenings and new registrations will still be accepted as usual.

As usual, typewriting is one of the most popular courses, with 138 enrolled in the various classes so far. There is room for a few more people in the advanced class, and also in the Monday and Wednesday elementary class. Other courses will begin either this evening or Tuesday evening in elementary auto mechanics, building construction, drafting, electronics, machine shop, stationary engineering (second class), V.L.A. building construction, woodworking, bookkeeping, shorthand sewing, third year advanced technical, crafts, drawing and painting and English for new Canadians.

Registration was low in a number of courses including one for auto mechanics, bricklaying, electricity, stationary engineering (third and fourth class) and first year advanced technical. These courses will not be offered unless more people register for them by Tuesday night.

Some interest has been shown in various academic subjects, but in each of these, with the possible exception of Grade 13 mathematics, the demand has not been great enough to justify the organization of a class. An attempt will be made on Tuesday night to organize a course in Grade 13 mathematics, probably geometry and anyone interested is asked to attend.

There will be no classes this year in plumbing, cooking or public speaking because of insufficient registration. Refunds may be obtained any evening at the school by those who have paid fees for the course in public speaking.

George Brooks Lands Lunge Close to 40 Pounds in Moira

George Brooks, 15 Montgomery Boulevard, is wondering just how much a 39½ pound muskie would be hauled it, dripping wet, from the Moira River Saturday. Twice weighed hours later, after it had dried out, it tipped the scales at 38½ pounds and 36½ pounds, so that when it was in fighting trim batting Mr. Brooks for 45 minutes, it probably weighed close to 40 pounds. It was 51 inches long with a girth of 25 inches.

The lunge was one of two which Mr. Brooks and a friend, Jack Aitcheson, caught in the Moira below O'Brien's bridge. The other, just over the 28-inch legal limit, weighed eight pounds, a nice fish except when compared to the monster caught earlier.

Another week-end fisherman who can testify that there are big lunge in Moira is E. Pope of Smithfield. Fishing just below the village, he hooked and landed a 25-lb. lunge, ominarily a headline — maker but this weekend outclassed by Mr. Brooks' leviathan.

The lunker lunge which decided to give up its life to Mr. Brooks' was caught on a 6-inch spoon lure. When the fish struck the two men had to start the outboard motor to play the lunge until it became exhausted—that was 45 minutes after it struck.

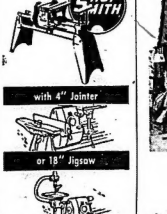
Taken to C. A. Platt's store in Stirling the monster weighed in at 38½ pounds at 5 p.m. Later Mr. J. C. Black weighed it in his Belleville store and Mr. Brooks and found it to tip the scales at 36½ pounds. There is every possibility that the muskie weighed close to 40 pounds when it was first hauled out of the Moira.

If monsters of this size lurk in the Moira it might be handy for fishermen to lug along a fair-sized club for self-protection should they fall into the water. Or, if the old story about muskies surfacing in the fall to spit out their teeth is true, the club might be employed to save wear and tear on standard fishing gear.

Fur Harvest In Tweed Region Quarter Million

The amount of fur harvested in the Tweed District during the 1955-56 trapping season is as follows—beaver, 9216; fisher, 27; fox, 157; mink 2,052; muskrat, 54,761; otter, 135; raccoon 552; squirrel, 252; weasel, 651; wolf, 37.

The revenue from the fur harvest was approximately $226,000. Muskrats alone brought in a revenue of approximately $68,451 for a total of 54,761 rats. This figure is slightly larger than half the 1954-55 take.



The Tweed district has been the second largest producer of muskrats in the province. However, adverse weather was blamed for the decrease in the past season. Extensive fall trapping may be necessary to safeguard against further occurrence of loss to the trappers.

High School Students Attend Y.F.C. Rally

On Saturday night the kick-off rally for the current Youth for Christ season was held in the Masonic Temple.

A healthy crowd, including over 50 high school students, was on hand to view the premiere showing in the city of the widely advertised gospel film "Seventeen."

Greetings were extended by the area director, Mr. Jim Blackwood, and the song service was directed by Mr. Ernie Belch.

Mr. Blackwood announced the services this week with guest speaker, Mr. Wes Arrum, to be held at 4.15 p.m. each afternoon in the YMCA and nightly at 8 p.m. in the Queen Alexandra school.

Mr. Arrum, an accomplished pianist from Buffalo, N.Y., presented a medley of hymns and later accompanied Mr. Carl Green who sang "Why Do I Sing About Jesus?"

The film, "Seventeen," pictured against a typical high school background, is the story of football thrills and romance, but demonstrating the impact that only the power of the gospel of Jesus Christ can make on the hungry hearts of present-day teen-agers.

The picture vividly proves to teen-agers that there is a Christ to believe in to help with problems and secure guidance for the future, and to meet the challenge to share our salvation with others.

At the conclusion an invitation was extended to young people who wished to accept Christ, the Rev. J. S. A. Spearman dismissed with prayer.

With a party of 300 searchers working against the fast approaching darkness, a three-year-old Corbyville girl was found unharmed early Saturday evening after being lost for over seven hours.

Janice Ritz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Ritz, was found three-quarters of a mile north of her father's barn and close to the edge of a bush. Although badly scared and crying, the little girl suffered no other ill effects from her experience.

A German Shepherd dog owned by Mr. and Mrs. Douglas McPherson of nearby Halloway was credited with an assist in finding the little girl. Offered the little girl's coat to obtain the scent, the dog led searchers to the little girl in less than three-quarters of an hour.

First to reach the crying girl at the edge of the bush was Wilfred Polmateer, of R.R. 6, Belleville. At least ten provincial police, assisted by well over 200 neighbors and Belleville residents, brought out by a radio broadcast, took part in the search.

The little girl was missed by the family about 11 o'clock Saturday morning. With her pet puppy, "Skipper," she had apparently gone back the lane on her father's farm for a walk.

The day was warm and 100 yards from the barn she doffed her coat leaving it in the laneway where it was found by the searchers. The little girl continued her walk and eventually could not find her way home.

"Skipper" was still at her side when found.

"I can't understand it," the girl's mother said today. "It's the first time she ever went away like that."

TWO VIEWS OF THE CCF

The September issue of "Canadian Transport," official organ of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees and Other Transport Workers, contains an editorial on the CCF entitled "Point of No Return."

The tone of the editorial is certainly not unfriendly to the CCF, which it says "rises to consistently for Labor's rights." This makes all the more interesting the editorial's contention that "it is probably safe to say that if the CCF does not achieve an improvement in its fortunes within the next ten years it will pass into oblivion."

The editorial takes issue with the interpretation placed by many newspapers on the new declaration of the CCF party's principles adopted at a recent convention in Winnipeg. The newspapers, it argues, were incorrect in interpreting this declaration as a "swing to the right," not because the new declaration is not to the right of the Regina Manifesto, issued when the CCF party was formed in 1933, but because this "swing to the right" has been going on progressively "since before the war."

The real point of the new declaration, argues this editorial, is that "for the CCF, the point of no return has been reached. It cannot return to the precepts of the Regina Manifesto. That is why it cannot view itself as a party with a mission to educate. Its reason for being is now, as it always has been with our other political parties, the attainment of power."

This is a significant statement. A party with a mission to educate is not so much concerned with the results of today's balloting as with the groundwork laid for the future. That this approach was consistently stressed by many of the founders of the CCF is certainly true. What they sought was not an immediate term in office, but eventual government control. "Then in office, but eventual government control. "Then in office, but eventually the principles of a factious lover might change, but the principles of a socialist economy would be followed much the same way that the principles of free enterprise are followed today regardless of which Liberal or Progressive Conservative regimes hold office.

If, as "Canadian Transport" suggests, this "mission to educate" has now been abandoned, it is certainly not because the goal originally set for this mission has been achieved. If the CCF is now a party whose reason for being is the attainment of power, it is because it has interpreted that objective very far from time to time, in keeping with the current political situation.

Strangely enough, that is exactly the interpretation placed on the situation by the September issue of "News Letter," the publication of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce which says that statements in the Winnipeg declaration that the party believes "that a moral and democratic society is directed to human needs and the enrichment of human life cannot be guaranteed under a predominantly capitalist system" and that "private profit and private property must be subordinated to social planning" are "pretty broad planks in the platform and can mean whatever the party leaders or disciples want them to mean."

ST LAURENT MAKES SENSE

Prime Minister St. Laurent has accepted responsibility for the 72-day silence which followed the government's order that a Russian diplomat, Gennadi Popov, leave Canada.

The Prime Minister said, in the words of The Canadian Press, "there was some feeling that the manner in which Popov tried to get information could not be approved by the government."

This statement will surprise no one and the feeling was apparently shared by the Prime Minister, else why would Popov have been requested to leave the country?

Mr. St. Laurent then added that he did not consider the incident alarming.

This statement is somewhat surprising, but it makes as much good sense as the government's disapproval of Popov's action. As the Prime Minister pointed out, governments are always trying to get information about other governments. He might have added that, if spying is a reprehensible practice, few nations are in a position to throw the first stone.

The alarming feature about the disclosures of Igor Gouzenko was not that the Russians had sought to obtain atomic information, but the extent of their success. Those who deserved our contempt were not so much the Russian spies as the Canadians who enabled them. The Russians were serving their country; the Canadians were betraying theirs. In the Popov case the Canadian involved gave no information to the Russians but reserved all his revelations for the RCMP. He did not betray his country he protected it. He may have been indiscreet, therefore a poor security risk, but he was loyal. What is alarming about that?

The Russian practice of making their embassies the headquarters of their spy rings certainly infringes on the commonly accepted rules of the game, certainly violates the spirit of diplomacy and may make it imperative that some consideration be given to the possibility of altering the rules governing diplomatic immunity. But, if we are realistic, we shall not be amazed by this newest development, nor shall we regard espionage as the exclusive reserve of the Russians. The western nations probably have a few spies operating in Russia, too.

Henceforth as auntie I'll be known.

"Before today I've never asked
In just what ways an aunt is tasked.
And how by doing various deeds
An aunt from day to day succeeds?

"My wiser friends, who aunts have been,
Tell me that I must stay serene,
And when a family trouble starts
Must always take the children's parts.

"This I learn, although alone,
To love the youngsters as my own,
And for them hasten out to buy
What parents, think they must deny.

To spoil the children I will try."

On Ike, Drew and Doctors

Ottawa Journal

In the light of Mr. George Drew's decision to retire from the leadership of his party, a decision taken on the advice of the medical profession, an article in the August print of the Atlantic Monthly captioned "Doctors and Politics" his peculiar interest.

The Atlantic piece is by Dr. David D. Rutstein, an eminent specialist who heads the department of Preventive Medicine at the Harvard Medical School and serves on the Expert Advisory Panel on Chronic Degenerative Diseases for the World Health Organization. In connection with accusation, by implication at any rate, that the physicians attending President Eisenhower in the two successive illnesses did not support by adequate medical evidence their contention that he was medically fit to run again for the presidency—that, in short, their verdict may have had more to do with politics than with medicine.

Following Mr. Eisenhower's recovery from coronary thrombosis the public learned that President Eisenhower's recovery from his coronary occlusion are at variance with the published scientific information in the medical literature, and that no other data were presented to justify the optimistic conclusions. . . .

But it is when he comes to the statement of Mr. Eisenhower's physicians that Dr. Rutstein after they had operated on him for "regional ileitis" that Dr. Drew did not have his Canadian physicians discriminatingly severe. Thus:

"The President appeared at that time by the President's physicians was not ileitis, but a simple spasm and their interpretation. They apparently were perfectly satisfied that the only immediate late effects of the operation were spasm, and on this statement assured the country that the President's health was good in the face of his preparing from carrying out his previous plans.

"At the same time did they give any indication that ileitis is a chronic disease with a rate of recurrence varying between one third and two thirds of those on whom operation is performed. . . .

But a more disturbing thing was to come. When the President's physicians faced statements of other physicians throughout the land that ileitis is a chronic disease, that recurrence is a likely possibility, and that there might be recurrent periods of disability, the man who put the final answer was Mr. Hagerty. "The President's physician," he announced, "has no intention of engaging in controversy with other doctors basic, in part or personal knowledge of the case."

Why the physicians did not speak for themselves but let Mr. Hagerty do it for them may be anybody's guess. But the guess could reasonably be influenced by the reported statement of a somewhat notorious Republican Senator: "We'll run him if we have to stuff him."

* * *

Dr. Rutstein concludes:

"Once having presented the medical facts and their interpretations, if the physicians do not respond on this point he then ceases to be an expert. He becomes just an ordinary citizen subject to political influences in a field in which he has only expert qualifications . . . Political judgments by physicians have as little merit as medical judgments in the question as the ability of a candidate to run for office.

But surely there was more in President Eisenhower's case than a matter of physicians not properly giving "political judgments." Was there not as well the question of the responsibility which Mr. Eisenhower and his political associates should have felt for the nation—of their realization of possible disaster to the world through the election of a Chief Executive who might not find it possible to perform his vital role?

* * *

Mr. George Drew, stricken by illness and facing the problem confronted by Mr. Eisenhower, even though in his case there had the benefit of a physician, Dr. Ray Farquharson, who had made his fortune in his specialty as high as his fame in his profession. Yet Mr. Drew did not have the Dr. Farquharson's advice; no one could compel him to accept it. He could ignore him—to retire.

And Mr. Drew's whole inclination, we must believe, was to stay in harness. He had been warned of the risk, but was a public man who would not shrink from falling on the field; he had taken such risks before.

It is magnificently to his credit that faced with that alternative, he took the decision that was the hardest, the one that he himself called "heartbreaking." Heartbreaking though it might be, the going of his leadership were preferable to become prime minister of his country, he would put his party and nation first, withdraw from a course that might injure both.

Morse Operator Vanishing

By Don Price In the Vancouver Herald

A romantic figure of the railroads — the Morse operator with his green eyeshade — disappears this month from the British Columbia railroad scene. Next month the Canadian National will have installed the teleprinter system throughout the province. And by 1961 the man with the Morse key will have gone forever from the railroads of Canada.

Most of the despatchers will be the last to go. They're the men who has been in the background all his life will have to learn to type on a machine. Yet the Morse operator played a vital and often dramatic role in the early history of the railroads. He was the figure behind the scenes who controlled the destinies over-ones, thousands of miles of track.

* * *

The despatcher was usually seen in a small office, with a big oval wood-burning stove and a coffee pot, a desk with two Morse keys mounted on it and also with by wrist movement and the other moved from side to side and was known as the "bug"), carbon paper and pencils, and a telephone. Sometimes the despatcher may have brought himself to a typewriter, and if he is young enough today, he probably has a typewriter will be of great assistance to him to adapt himself to the new system of teleprinters.

In the old days the prospective operator joined the railway as a messenger boy (in 1910, for $2 a week) and progressed until he had the responsibility of helping in the smooth functioning of one of the larger yards at Montreal or Toronto.

* * *

He would almost certainly spend some time in the "woods," where he would sometimes work for 72 hours at a stretch.

During some of the worst weather experienced in this country the operator would have to leave his small but warm and cozy room to take a trip with the wrecking crews to a washout or rock fall where he would connect his wires for transmission and send out any required messages to speed up the repair jobs.

It is a strange fact that for an occupation that is fast being taken over by automation it is the one branch of the railways that has produced more administrators than any other. In this day these "top brass" still have, and use, the Morse key that it installed in their offices in the main railway stations.

In spite of the new inventions the railways still find it the best policy to train despatchers in the art of the Morse key and intend carrying on with this policy until further notice.

* * *

Speed and reception with accuracy were and are the qualities of good despatchers and in most accomplishments one sees at one time a class of operator who was proficient at all these things but just could not excel in one place long.

He was known as a "boomer" and he would stay in one spot long enough to gather his wages and then be on the move. It is a result these "boomers" probably knew more about Canada than almost many people and in their own way were pioneers.

Since September 13, 1846, when the first Morse message was sent for the railways over the wires from Toronto City Hall to Hamilton and St. Catharines, the telegraph system has expanded until today there are 2,800 miles of line. These wires send up to 31 messages an hour.

* * *

There is a story of how a murderer was caught in Canada by use of telegraphy. The best story of the Morse "bug" comes from Montreal to Vancouver, from there it was sent to Australia. It went next to India and United Kingdom, London sent it to Halifax, and from there it sped to Glacier. The total time taken for the round the world trip was half an hour.

It is events like these and the safety of travel on the Canadian railways that help us to remember with gratitude the role of the Morse operator despatcher. May he adapt himself to the new means of communication.

"Can't you do a little better than just getting him back to normal, Dr. Lewis?"

Success Ruins Socialists

Atlanta Constitution

The Socialist party, once a vigorous and most articulate part of the U.S. political scene, produces a total of 2,000 people as presidential candidate this year. It may even haul down its flag and disappear.

Oddly, success ruined the party. Its ideas, which were many, were adopted and made into law by successive Democratic and Republican administrations.

The demise of militant socialism is a tribute to the American way of doing things and a proof of the soundness of evolutionary over revolution. Its aims accomplished by reason and not violence, there no longer is any real reason for the party's existence.

Here's Query For Prefabricators

Brockville Recorder and Times

We cannot say that we were too impressed with one particular point of criticism leveled at the University Professor A. R. M. Lower at the Canadian Press, in his brief to the Royal Commission on broadcasting, namely that the Canadian Press fails to cover international news from a distinctively Canadian viewpoint.

Well, if such type of coverage was desirecbie (highly doubtful) it is in any case quite impossible. Even including Lower himself, is prepared to define a "distinctively Canadian viewpoint"?

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SORROW

We are all placed upon a common plane when sorrow comes our way. Emotionally we seem so lost and helpless. Emerson says that at such a time we are as children again.

We know how in humility, apparently helpless, but dependent nature that are like golden cords, uniting us all in a universal kinship of love, and surrendering ourselves to the kindness and comfort of the Father in Heaven.

In the midst of our loss we are alone with all our remembrances of love and devotion on the part of the one who has left us. We surrender our faith and ask for its enlargement that we may honor up and with a courageous heart brave our way back to our normal ways, knowing that shall be given comfort and light ahead.

To each of us, in the midst of sorrow, must come the silent voice, whisper, from the infinite, telling us to carry on and put our faith in the larger plan that God always has for the least of us. We have those precious memories to give us comfort through the dark days, and when loneliness is most felt.

Every time we lose a friend or dear one there comes a little, and leave our beloved to share the mystery of eternity, alone. We do not always clear to any of us, but constant study reveals all that those precious words know. Surely death upon this earth cannot end all.

So many of my friends of late have slipped silently away into experience the greatest adventure. In each case I have wondered why they couldn't have stayed by for a little longer time. But there has been no reply to my questioning. Perhaps love has the key!

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

The Nails and Nutrition

There's no doubt that a young skin or complexion may be improved by external application of soap or solvent or that the skin may be beautified and improved by external application of a non-drying skin oil, freshly made cold cream, or well diluted lanolin.

Not only the skin and complexion, but the fingers, or hands indicate the individual's health but the nails, too, indicate the state of health and nutrition.

The professor of dermatology conducted the class on a ward walk, inspecting patients' hands. Now and then he would say: This patient had a serious illness or injury about ten weeks ago," and we were all astonished to find the professor's deduction confirmed in the patient's history or by the patient himself nodding. "That's right — I had pleurisy." The professor explained that it takes three to four months to grow a nail, and any acute illness or injury that confined a person to bed interrupts or retards the growth, in consequence of which a transverse line or groove or slight depression results in the nail. This kind of reverse depression is about the middle of the nail the illness or injury was probably two months ago.

Elementary, my Dear Watson.

We know now what nobody knew in the professor's time, and though I imagine the professor suspected it, namely, that every growing cell, young or mature, adult, and especially every elderly person must bet every day at least as much calcium (lime) as is contained in 1 1-2 pints, three full glasses of milk; and if one does not get this minimum daily requirement of calcium, the impoverished blood and tissues deficiency inevitably occur, although these manifestations are commonly ascribed to other causes than calcium deficiency. We know that the body's calcium reserve is rapidly depleted when a person is confined to bed or unable to get a reasonable amount of daily exercise.

Modern chemical analysis show that the body, the bones, the joints, the muscles, the nerves, the heart, the skin, arteries, the glands, the teeth, the gums, the eyes, the nails, every cell, tissue, organ in the body of a vigorous, healthy, functionally efficient individual contains a full quota of calcium, and if this calcium level falls below the normal the individual inevitably feels, looks and is older, weaker, or more feeble than he or she should be.

I say to you the simplest way to supplement your regular diet with a suitable daily ration of calcium, cheese, eggs, milk, vitamin D, and chlorella.

From years of clinical observation and from the results received from many followers, I'm satisfied that these natural foods and three vitamins are precisely what most Americans need to regain or maintain health, save young folks from growing prematurely old, to keep skin, complexion, hair and nails well nourished.

Please remember this is nutrition, not medicine.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

LEARNING TO PRAY

Prayer is an acquired art. There are people who pray more easily than others, but the fact still remains that prayer is an art which people have to learn to pray. And the learning process is not easy.

Jesus was a great teacher but his disciples did not say, "Lord, teach us to heal." He was a great preacher and his apostles would be called upon to preach throughout the world, yet they did not say to him, "Lord, teach us to preach." What they did say was, "Lord, teach us to pray."

And He taught them in what we have come to know as the Lord's Prayer. The first petitions deal with spiritual matters, particularly having to do with the glory of God. Then they deal with daily bread, forgiveness, and protection against temptation.

The so-called Lord's Prayer is not so much a prayer as a guide to outline of what every prayer should be. It calls our attention to the fact that all our praying should begin with ascriptions of praise to God and the hallowing of our desire that His name be glorified. After that—and only after that—come our petitions to do with our needs and our relationships to others.

Then bread—physical. Forgiveness—social. Deliverance from temptation—spiritual.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

To reach the bus stop along the street from my house, you can proceed in two clear cut fashions. You can either hurry along, glancing back over your shoulder, and you have an average of two and nine-tenths minutes to wait for it at the stop. But if you walk calmly, saying to heck with it, it makes no never mind to you are forty-two yards from the bus stop; and you miss it.

This explains why ninety-nine and forty-four one hundredths of us always arrive at the bus stop at full speed, glancing anxiously over our shoulders, but not at all interested in errors in clocks and watches as well as slip-ups in bus schedules. There is a very negligible fraction of us have only two and one-tenths minutes to wait.

Personally, have chosen to join the negligible fraction. Despite the fact that it is very long, I enjoy to walk along saying to heck with it, and wait at the bus stop seven minutes, rain or sleet. For the price of a large cheap umbrella, I can feel superior to surveys, even home-made ones.

Ford, Chrysler Name Features Of 1957 Models

DETROIT (CP)—Longer, lower and wider design changes in two major automobile lines were announced today in advance of dealer showings of the new 1957 models.

Chrysler Corp. said its changes are the most sweeping in Chrysler history, with some models four and five inches lower than their 1956 counterparts.

Ford Motor Co., which already has announced spending $200,000,000 to develop its Ford - division 1957 cars, made public that its styling changes include wide, hooded headlights, forward-slanting grilles, windshields wrapping farther around the sides and rear fender fins slanting outward to emphasize the contoured sides. (At Windsor, it was announced Sunday that the 1957 Meteor will be unveiled across Canada on Wednesday.)

The 1957 Fords will be longer and lower, and for the first time Ford-division cars will be produced in two sizes, named Custom and Fairlane.

DUAL HEADLIGHTS

Chrysler's changes include a new suspension system, deep-cycle steering wheels, emphasizes tail fins and dual-type headlights.

The new suspension, which Chrysler calls "torsion-aire," combines torsion-bar springing in the front, with ball joints for steering ease, "anti-dip" mounting, longer rear springs set farther apart for greater stability and low-pressure tires said to eliminate road noise and vibration.

A vital part of the system also is complete rubber isolation between wheels and frame to deaden shock and vibration. All lines will use 14-inch wheels with wider tires. "Torsion-aire" is said to bar "bosediving" when brakes are applied severely and to provide a flat, stable cornering.

Dual headlights will be offered by Chrysler and by Ford except where legislation permits their use. Some makes will have aluminum grills, larger windshields and more glass area.

B of M Wins Award for Ads

MONTREAL— First place in Canadian bank advertising has again been won by the Bank of Montreal in the "Bank Ad-views" continuing study of financial advertising in North America during the past 12 months.

The B of M has won top rating for Canada in all but one of the last 11 years, and in two years—1946 and 1954—it ranked first for the continent, receiving the So-rates High Award for North America.

The "Bank Ad-views" award the B of M for 1956 is in line with a recent survey of Canadian transportation advertising covering a wide variety of national advertisers in which the B of M's message led all other advertisements with a public readership of 62 per cent.

HIGH READERSHIP

This survey was the fifth in a series of studies undertaken by the Canadian Advertising Research Foundation over the past eight years, with the B of M previously rated third, fourth, second and first respectively.

Another award from the U.S. for the B of M is the "merit award" from the Financial World, of New York, "for distinguished achievement in annual reporting for six consecutive years and in recognition of the excellence of its 1955 annual report to shareholders."

This citation states that the B of M's financial statement was judged as among the most modern from the standpoint of content, typography and format of the 5,000 annual reports examined during 1956.

Nasser Has 'Nerves of Steel' And Most Reliable Weapon In Conflict Over Suez Canal

By WILTON WYNN

CAIRO (AP) — A black veil weighted with silver coins and jewelry hid the old shepherd woman's face but her eyes must have shone as she looked across the stretch of water toward Suez and lifted a scrawny hand to court the ships that passed.

When the 18th and last ship of the convoy had passed in the Suez Canal the old woman cried out:

"Long live Gamal Abdel Nasser!"

While her black goats nibbled at cactus and desert shrubs on the canal bank the old woman in black was enjoying the sight of a multi-million-dollar property that she now called her own. Thanks to Gamal Abdel Nasser the Suez Canal now belonged to Egypt.

On the bridges of ships that passed, Egyptian pilots gripped the wheels as they worked 12 hour shifts.

WORK FOR NASSER

"Navigation must not stop," they said. "We will keep it going for Gamal."

To Egyptians today the phrase "the ships must go through the canal" symbolizes a great national venture to prove to the world that Egyptians can operate a technical enterprise.

On the same afternoon the old woman counted the ships, the 36-year-old man who had taken over the canal for the Egyptians showed up at a movie in Alexandria with his wife and five children.

The big man and his family were walking down the aisle to their seats before they were recognized. A spontaneous shout ("Vaish Gamal!" — Hi there Gamal) split the air.

It was several minutes before the crowd was stilled and the president of Egypt could settle down to watch the screen.

Ever since he nationalized the Suez Canal Company July 26, Nasser has travelled to Alexandria to relax with his family each time a new crisis developed.

But once the crisis breaks, Egypt's strong man is back in the saddle, working 20 hours daily, seeking advice and information from all quarters and finally making the big decision himself.

NERVES OF STEEL

Egyptians say Nasser has "nerves of steel," and that these represent their most reliable weapon in the conflict over the Suez Canal. They say Nasser's nerves brought him a victory over King Farouk, helped him through the sharp bargaining that led to the evacuation of the British Army from the Suez Canal base, helped him through the long political struggle to victory over his popular army rival, Maj.-Gen. Mohamed Naguib, and brought him through the bitter border troubles with Israel last winter.

It was after he entered the army as lieutenant that Nasser perfected his role as a conspirator. While fighting on the Gaza front during the Palestine war of 1948 Nasser oiled together that clique of officers known as the Free Officers Movement which later overthrew King Farouk.

Nasser kept himself in the background of the revolution, emphasized collective leadership and stressed the movement rather than personalities. It was long after the revolution before even close comrades knew Gamal was indisputable leader of their movement

BEHIND THE SCENES

Nasser set up Naguib as front man fi.: the revolution and continued working from behind the scenes. A dozen of Nasser's fellow officers formed a "revolution command council" which ostensibly held supreme power in the country. Within this framework Nasser controlled the country. In time the front man system broke down and the revolution council proved too clumsy for effective government. A chain of circumstances brought Nasser to the centre of the stage — climaxed by his election to the presidency last June.

In spite of all his efforts to the contrary, Nasser had made many enemies in his climb to power. The public generally could not forgive him for ousting the popular Naguib. He had broken the Moslem Brotherhood and the Wafd, two former parties, and was generally hated by their membership. The landlord and merchant classes were against him. Intellectuals and student groups complained that he curbed their freedom. Communists called him a "tool of Western imperialism."

On top of it all, Nasser lacked the personal warmth to charm crowds. He is a clumsy speaker and suffers from stage fright. Although a big man (6 feet, 200 pounds) possessing endless courage, he quails at having to face crowds.

"When he tries to wave at a crowd, he looks like a department store statue," a friend once complained.

In personal contacts, Nasser is a different man. He has an uncanny ability to draw out a person he meets, to pick his brains without seeming to. He speaks English with a heavy accent and does it with a warm sincerity that rarely fails to charm. Although dark in complexion, Nasser has green eyes that give him an uncanny look.

In conversation, he sometimes breaks into a shrill laugh and narrows his eyes to slits in a way that makes him look like a man of some demon.

"If Nasser could talk individually to every person in the world for five minutes a week, he would win over us all," a Western diplomat once said.

There are some observers who fear this victory in the canal issue may mean Nasser's undoing, however. They fear the public response to the Suez Canal nationalization may encourage Nasser to take rash ventures until he ruins his country and himself.

Get full value and bloom from bulbs by proper planning: 1. At right depth — 3 times diameter for large bulbs, 4 times for small. Generally, a little deeper in sandy soil, a bit shallower in heavy. 2. By digging several inches deeper than planting depth and sprinkling teaspoon complete fertilizer for each bulb. Add soil and layer of sand to planting depth. 3. By setting bulb firmly to avoid air pockets. Then fill in hole with soil and water well.

Segregationists Step Up Fight In Two States

WASHINGTON (AP) —Segregationists rallied during the weekend for a stepped-up fight against ending school segregation in Tennessee and Kentucky while courts in Texas and Washington prepared to consider problems developing from attempts to mix the races in American public schools.

Asa (Ace) Carter, Alabama White Citizens' Council leader, told about 300 persons, near Knoxville, Tenn., Sunday that when every legal step has been taken to stop integration, citizens should "take it in your own hands."

At Henderson, Ky., James Dumas, secretary-treasurer of the Kentucky White Citizens' Council, urged a Saturday night meeting of the Henderson council to "beware of those who say there is little we can do—we can fight this issue through and win it."

He spoke after chairman Raybum Sugg and co-chairman Rudy Weaver resigned from the local council in protest against the group's decision to continue the week-long boycott of the Weaverton, Ky., elementary school.

The decision was taken despite a warning from the Kentucky attorney-general that persons or organizations trying to further the boycott might be subject to penalties under state conspiracy statutes. Five Negroes are attending classes at Weaverton. After the boycott began the enrolment of 819 dropped as much as three-fourths at one time.

In Washington, the United States Supreme Court prepared to open a new term today with a number of segregation cases already on file. Three appeals were sent in during the summer recess in connection with the high tribunal's decision to end enforced segregation of pupils "with all deliberate speed." Others are expected to arrive during the next few months.

Domestic and International Issues Lining Up for Next House Session Early in Jan.

By JOHN E. BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — A formidable array of domestic and international issues are lining up for the next session of Parliament, expected to open in the second week of January.

They range from Russia's latest attempt at spying in this country to Canada's growing foreign trade deficit, particularly with the United States.

But Commons members won't be able to debate these and other issues at great length if Prime Minister St. Laurent decides to call a general election next June. He hinted strongly last week that this is his present intention.

An election next June 19 or 17 would mean there would have to be a short session of Parliament, ending late in March or early in April. At least two months are necessary for campaigning and setting the country's election machinery in motion.

TIME AT PREMIUM

Time would be at a premium at a session lasting only about three months. The extended debates of last session, which lasted from Jan. 10 to Aug. 14—three days short of the 1903 record of 125 sitting days — appear unlikely.

Besides debating domestic and international issues which have developed since Parliament prorogued, members must allocate enough time for government business—legislation, the budget and the estimates of government departments.

In addition, spokesmen for all parties will want some time to set the stage for the election, to place themselves in the best possible light to face the electors.

One of the most important debates likely will be on last week's disclosure that Gennadi Popov, second secretary at the Russian Embassy, had been expelled from Canada for attempted espionage.

Opposition parties likely will ask for a complete government statement on the affair and for an explanation of why the government waited 72 days before announcing Popov's expulsion.

Family of Four Left Homeless As House Burns

PICTON — Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lott and two children were left homeless when fire destroyed their farm home on Spring St., about six o'clock Sunday night. All the contents of the one-storey structure were lost as the building was quickly enveloped in flames.

Mr. Lott noticed the fire when he went for a pail of water. The cause is not known.

The fire department responded to the call. No other buildings were endangered though a strong breeze was blowing at the time.

Weddings

TWIDDY—RAMSAY

St. John's Anglican church, Madoc, was the scene of a quiet but pretty wedding on a recent Saturday evening, at seven p.m., when Barbara Leona, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ramsay, became the bride of Calvin Ross, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Twiddy. The Rev. N. J. Glover officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a street-length dress of silk cotton with pleated skirt and matching bolero, matching hat and shoes of white shantung, and carried a nosegay of American Beauty rosebuds.

Miss Annabelle Ramsay was her sister's bridesmaid, gowned in a street-length dress of pink silk in similar material with matching hat and gloves. She carried a nosegay of red rosebuds.

Mr. Keith Twiddy supported the groom.

For a honeymoon to Ottawa and other eastern points, the bride changed to a suit of navy gabardine with white accessories. They will reside at Ivanhoe.

McINROY—BOLTE

A profusion of pink and white gladioli adorned the altar and white bows decorated the guest pews in Christ Anglican Church, Belleville, at 2 p.m. Saturday, September 15 when Miss Louise Bolte, Stirling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Herbert Bolte, exchanged vows with Gordon Peter McInroy, Moira, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Durwin McInroy. Officiating at the ceremony was the Rev. E. F. Smith.

Six choir boys sang "O Perfect Love," before the wedding and "The Lord's Prayer" during the signing of the register. Organ music was supplied by J. B. Herman.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of nylon net over bridal satin featuring panels of French lace on the bouffant skirt, with a French lace jacket. Her juliet cap, encrusted with pearls, held her finger-tip veil. She carried a cascade of American Beauty roses.

Miss June Sleeper, Stirling, was maid of honor, wearing a ballerina-length mauve nylon dress with bouffant skirt and draped bodice, with a feather headdress and flowers. Miss Virginia Varty, Toronto, and Miss Dianne McInroy, Moira, were bridesmaids. Miss Varty was gowned in a dress identical to that of the maid of honor, only in yellow. Miss McInroy was dressed in an ankle-length gown of yellow net, with matching headdress and flowers.

For the reception in Club Cedars, the bride's table was centred with a wedding cake and white candles, decorated with gladioli. The table was covered with a white damask cloth. The bride's mother, wearing a black and white dress with a corsage of red roses, received guests. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who was attired in a navy and white dress with corsage of red roses.

For the wedding trip to Sault Ste. Marie, Windsor, the state of Michigan and Niagara Falls, the bride chose a charcoal grey suit with pink and black accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Guests were present from Toronto, Gananoque, Port Colborne, Smiths Falls, Marmora, Stirling, West Huntingdon, Tweed and Frankford.

Prior to her marriage the bride was honored at a shower given in the home of her maid of honor, Miss June Sleeper, where approximately 25 girls came to present her with a tri-light lamp and a box of pantry articles. The staff of the Belleville city hall, where she is employed, presented her with an electric clock. The staff of the Belleville Public Works Department, where the bridegroom is employed, presented him with an electric pop-up toaster.

ELZINGA—KILBURN

Holy Trinity church, Shannonville, was the scene of a lovely autumn wedding on Saturday, September 15, at 2:00 p.m., when Ruth Irene Kilburn, of Wayside Inn, Shannonville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kilburn, became the bride of Simon Elzinga, son of Mr. and Mrs. Etzen Elzinga of Trenton. The Rev. L. Arthur Page, Belleville, officiated before a background of pink and white gladioli interspersed with ferns.

Mrs. J. B. Herdman of Belleville, rendered the wedding music, and accompanied the choir of two soloists, who sang, "O Perfect Love", and "The Lord is My Shepherd."

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Arthur Kilburn, the bride was radiant in her bridal gown of white Chantilly lace over taffeta fashioned with fitted bodice having a Sweetheart neckline outlined with a nylon shawl collar accented by seed pearls. The long, sheath-like sleeves were illusion-pointed over the wrists, and the floor-length skirt of Chantilly lace featured inserts of nylon net, with seed pearls bordering the hem. She wore a halo type headdress and fingertip veil highlighted with embroidered motifs. Her flowers were Sweetheart roses in cascade style with rose-knotted streamers.

Miss Barbara Helm of Belleville, cousin of the bride, attended as maid of honor, attired in shrimp colored nylon over taffeta with shirred bodice and capelike sleeves, matching headdress and gloves. She carried a nosegay of 'mums in shades of yellow and bronze.

Miss Ann Thomas of Bowmanville, also cousin of the bride, as bridesmaid, was gowned similarly to the maid of honor, and carried a similar nosegay of 'mums.

The junior bridesmaid, Miss Ida Elzinga of Trenton, sister of the bridegroom, was gowned in turquoise nylon over taffeta fashioned on corresponding lines to those of the other attendants, with similar nosegay of 'mums.

Edward Cole of Trenton, attended the bridegroom, and Mr. Ewart Lake and Ronald Loader, both of Trenton, were ushers.

The reception for 110 guests was held at the home of the bride, which was beautifully decorated with pink and white gladioli for the occasion. The bride's mother received, wearing a navy dress with navy accessories, and corsage of white carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a pale green flowered crepe with white accessories, and corsage of white carnations.

The bride's table was prettily appointed with Chinese linen, centred by a three-tier wedding cake flanked by white candles and the nuptial bouquets.

Those who served included—Dianne Simpson, Marilyn Wood, Donna Grey, all of Belleville; Gayle Thomas of Bowmanville; Marlene Grey and Nancy Hogan both of Kingston.

For travelling to Niagara Falls the bride chose a beige suit with yellow and rust-colored accessories, and yellow rose corsage. Mr. and Mrs. Elzinga are residing in Trenton.

The bride's gift to her attendants, pearls and matching earrings to her bridegroom, a pearl and the bridegroom's gifts to his attendant and ushers, ties and cuff links; and to the soloist a brooch.

Previous to her marriage the bride was entertained at showers in her honor: a cup and saucer shower at the home of Mrs. Fanshaw, Kingston; a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Garvin, by the staff of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, and at a kitchen shower given by Mr. Fred Lake and Mrs. T. Patrick, of Trenton.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HOW MUCH DO YOU REALLY WANT TO SOLVE THIS PROBLEM?

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'm 28 years old and my husband is 31. We've been married seven years and have no children, partly due to a physical condition of my husband.

This problem has been a factor since the first day of our marriage and has led to a personality maladjustment on his part in that he uses baseless to make up for his trouble. He has an excellent position, gives me anything I desire and when not boozing is generally a personable individual.

I've tried every way possible to help him, but with no results. Do you feel that adopting a child might minimize the problem or would you recommend divorce, since he has often said he would have been better off if he had never married and would never do so again? I'm thinking seriously of divorce, since the love I once had for him has changed to pity. However, at 28, my chances of finding happiness in another marriage may be quite slim. My husband feels, however, that a child would solve our problems.

We are now separated, and I have only a short time in which to decide on action. We have discussed adoption with the Family Service organization, but they won't recommend it until our own problem is solved.—Confused.

Dear Confused:

It's certainly no wonder that you've chosen this pessimism, for you must indeed be completely baffled by this very difficult, complicated and heart breaking problem.

It's possible, of course, that to adopt as child might make the situation better, but I'm entirely in agreement with the Family Service organization that the underlying personality maladjustment your husband has, as a result of his trouble, would still be there unless he had been wiped out of it in advance of any adoption.

Then there is your own attitude toward him to consider, too. You say that unless there was hope that this attitude of yours could be adjusted so that you sincerely wanted to go on living with your husband, adopting a child wouldn't help.

Finally, there is the best interest of the child to think about, and unless it could be brought into a home where there was harmony and love between its foster parents, its future wouldn't be a very bright one. In fact, there would be real danger of personality damage occurring to the child. That, of course, is the reason why the Family Service organization would not go along with you at the present time on the adoption matter.

If you really do sincerely want to make an effort to remodel your marriage along happier lines before deciding to divorce your husband, then I think the immediate thing to do would be to consult a marriage counsellor in your area. If your husband would either go along with you, or by himself, so that you could discuss the problem together with the marriage counsellor, it would definitely heighten the chances of working out a solution.

Frankly, I don't believe that to go on struggling by yourself, as you've been doing so long, offers any real hope. I think that both of you need help and guidance in finding a new approach to your whole relationship, and this can be arrived at only by consulting an expert in these matters.

If your husband won't agree to talk with a marriage counsellor, go yourself anyway and see what his advice would be. If you don't know the name of any such expert in your vicinity, write a letter to the American Association of Marriage Counsellors, 563 Park Avenue, New York 21, New York. In reply to your letter you'll be sent the names of any marriage counsellors near you and you can then make your own choice.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

TODAY'S HINT. . . MAKE YOUR MANNERS

Manners are made, not born. You, you yourself, must choose the material and the pattern of your courtesy-attitude. Then you add becoming accessories . . . the graces and amenities of life. Perfect ensemble!

QUESTIONS FROM THE BRIDE'S MOTHER:

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am the mother of the bride-to-be. With whom do I ride to the church, preceding the ceremony? I believe with a couple of the bridesmaids. Am I right about this?

2. Following the ceremony, after I have wished my daughter happiness, please tell me just the proper thing to say to the groom?

—Many thanks

The bride's mother drives in the first car leaving her house for the church, usually alone, or if she chooses, she may plan to take two bridesmaids in her car. You should not take more than two bridesmaids with you, for you must reserve room for your husband in this car, driving from the church to the place of the reception.

2. I hope you're so happy about your daughter's choice of a husband that you can say something heartily enthusiastic to him! For example, "I'm so very happy this day dear Jim, and so proud of Joan's wonderful bridegroom. You're a perfect couple, and I'm sure you'll have a perfect life together! Or you may wish to say something like this, "My love to you, dear Jim, on this great day, and may every happiness be yours." Or, "The best of all good wishes to you, Jim, and dearest love from all of us." What the bride's mother says to her daughter's bridegroom is such a personal idea that actually only she can choose the words.

BRIDE ATTENDANTS PAY FOR THEIR OWN COSTUMES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

No. Although the bride-to-be pays every detail of the maid of honor's or the bridesmaids' costumes. The only item a bridal attendant doesn't pay for is the flowers she wears or carries . . . these are provided by the bride's family.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

WHEN YOU BUY A HAT—TAKE HUBBY ALONG

Because he always visualizes you as the pretty girl he married, he knows what hats are most becoming to you.

Just because the salesgirl has convinced you that your new fall hat is "tres chic," don't be miffed when your husband says: "I don't like it."

And don't brush off his judgment with mere man's lack of style-sense. True, he may not know the difference between a $50 chapeau and a $2 hat or between a toque and a cloche but he does know what looks well on you, and if he says he doesn't like that stunning new creation the chances are, 99 out of 100, it just isn't becoming to you.

Remember, your husband visualizes you always as the girl he fell in love with—the prettiest girl in the world to him. He likes to keep that dream picture of you in his mind and, when you wear something that detracts from that picture, he may not know just what is wrong but he knows something is not right and he doesn't like it.

If, for instance, you wore small hats when he was courting you, the chances are small hats are more becoming to you and your husband is right when he reacts violently against that stylish large basket-basket that cuts off most of your eyes and half your nose. Also, he may consider your eyes or your nose your prettiest features, and wants to see them.

Wives may be annoyed when husbands fall to burst into admiring raves over the out-sized numbers they bring home, but ask the milliners! They give husbands full credit for knowing their wives' hats.

A Prize Pie to Try

By Mary Moore

A carload of four students and unmounted suitcases and books left our house last night on a back-to-school trip.

After kissing them goodbye and wishing I were young again, I went back into the house and heaved a sigh of relief.

Nobody would ever make the mistake of calling Pete smobstruslives. When he's in a house you know it. He's not one to sit back in a corner. He eats, mows the lawn, plays the piano, buys new furniture, paints the living-room, minimizes the gas, cleans the basement, flies everything on top of my desk—all the time.

So I'm relieved this morning to be calm and quiet and belong to myself. (That will last for about one day—until I look into his empty room—neat and still.)

I've been wanting to give you a prize pie ever since last April and it has taken until now for me to get around to it. On Thursday of this week you will see a Thanksgiving Dinner menu here with a mince pie in it. But I'm thinking that if I give you a chance to try it early in the week this Lemon Ambrosia Pie just may be the dessert you will serve next Monday for Thanksgiving Dinner.

Everybody ready for a new lemon pie?

LEMON AMBROSIA PIE

The first little job you have to do is to chop finely 1 box or can of shredded cocoanut, then spread it out on a baking sheet and toast at 300 deg. Fahr. until golden—about 20 minutes. You will use part of this in the pastry and part as a garnish for the top.

CRUST:

Sift 1 cup all-purpose flour and 1-2 teaspoon salt together. Cut in 1-3 cup shortening, add 1-2 cup toasted cocoanut. Work in 3 tablespoons milk with a fork. Roll out pastry between sheets of waxed paper. Fit into 9-inch pie plate with neat fluted edges; prick crust and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for about 10 to 12 minutes or until tinged with gold. Cool.

NEW LEMON FILLING:

Six tablespoons cornstarch, 1 1-3 cups sugar, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 1-2 cups hot water, 2 egg yolks; beaten, 2 tablespoons butter, 1-3 cup lemon juice, 1 teaspoon each grated lemon rind and vanilla, 1 tablespoon gelatin, 1-4 cup cold water, 1 cup light cream, 2 egg whites stiffly beaten. Mix cornstarch, sugar and salt in saucepan. Pour in hot water and cook over direct heat, stirring, for 6 to 8 minutes. Remove from heat and stir 1-3 cup hot mixture into beaten yolks, then pour back into pan. Cook stirring over low heat for three minutes. Remove and add butter, lemon juice, rind and vanilla. Mix. Take out 1 cup of this filling and set aside. To remaining filling, add the gelatin soaked in cold water five minutes. Stir until gelatin is dissolved; stir in cream. Cool when mixture begins to congeal fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into cooled crust. Chill until set. Spread remaining filling in a circle around outside edge of pie. Decorate it with two rings of toasted cocoanut.

SCORNS EGYPT'S FLAIR

MONTREAL (CCC)—The mayor of Jerusalem, commenting Monday night on the 24 Canadian jets ordered by Israel, said "two dozen fishes jets in our hands are worth 72 MiGs in the hands of the Egyptians." Gershon Agron, who is also editor and publisher of the Jerusalem Post, told interviewers: "Our reports indicate that every time an Egyptian goes up in a jet, either something happens to the jet or to the Egyptian."

Ottawa Riders Wallop Argos Larks Squeeze Past Tigers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Only one thing appears certain in this crazy, mixed-up Big Four professional football business. All clubs should finish the season with money in the bank, a most unusual situation.

The scoreboard jottings assure us. Take last Saturday, for instance.

Dopesters had it figured that Edmonton would trounce Tiger-Cats right out of Hamilton's Civic Stadium and Ottawa Argonauts would slap down those saucy Rough Riders at Ottawa. The ails needed a late-game sensational touchdown pass catch by Hal Patterson to get out of the premises with a 44-43 decision and Riders outplayed the once-proud Toronto club 42-6.

An all-time record crowd of 18,791 at Ottawa saw the surging Riders win their third straight victory and 18,620 witnessed the Civic Stadium battle, the most spine-tingling Big Four game since the Toronto - Montreal playoff battle in 1953. The lead changed hands eight times and Patterson's catch could have been the start of been a startling upset into a heart-breaking defeat.

SCORING RECORD

Helped along by the new value of the touchdown, six points compared with the then current five, the total of 87 points in the Hamilton game broke the record for the highest scoring game in modern Big Four history. The previous high of 79 was set just three weeks when Argos walloped the Als 51-28.

Rough Riders also got into the act. Their 43-point score was the highest for an Ottawa team since at least 1930. It also was the first time since 1949 Ottawa has won three straight games.

An individual record also went by the boards. Patterson caught 11 passes for 338 yards, smashing his own record of 232 yards gained on passing.

The results straightened out the somewhat slightly-jammed standings and had fans liking their chances in the Ottawa - Toronto Thanksgiving weekend home-and-home battles. Ottawa and Toronto-Hamilton games. The Als are in front with 12 points, followed by Ottawa with eight and Argonauts and Tiger-Cats are in a third-place deadlock with six each.

ATTENDANCE HIGH

Attendance records have been broken at Ottawa and Hamilton so far this season and Argonauts and the Als have consistently drawn more than 20,000 a game.

Saturday's wild-scoring game in Hamilton, in which each team scored six touchdowns, is one long remembered by TiCat fans. And Patterson's catch with less than three minutes remaining at first with Hamilton ahead 43-37 was the heartbreaking for the Argonauts who were supposed to be discouraged following a 56-6 licking the Als gave Jim Trimble's club just a week previously.

TiCat Quarterback Bobby Wirkowski throwing three touchdown passes and Tony Curcillo from Chicago Cardinals, last-minute replacement for the departed Ronnie Knox, throwing one, were all set to score the upset of the season until the Patterson play.

It happened after quarter Sam Etcheverry of the Als wiggled out of the arms of several TiCat linemen at the Hamilton 40-yard line and let go with a desperation pass. Patterson, surrounded by Jim Dekker and Tex Robinson, leaped high in the air to nab the ball and tie the score at 43-43. Bill Bewley, who earlier converted four touchdowns, calmly kicked his fifth for the game-winning point.

HOT-POTATO RELAY

Earlier in the quarter Patterson went over the Hamilton line on a lateral from Bewley who threw to him after taking a pass from Etcheverry at the Hamilton 50. Etcheverry also tossed a 10-yard touchdown pass to Joey Pal to open the fourth-quarter scoring.

Other Montreal touchdowns were scored by Bob Patzal on a 19-yard rumble play, Bewley on a 31-yard plunge and Pat Abbruzzi who bullowed his way down the middle for 17 yards. Johnny Blatcher scored a safety touch and Tex Coulter kicked a single.

Wirkowski tossed two touchdown passes to Robinson and another to Hal Waggoner. Curcillo's 24-yd pass went to Davey West in the fourth quarter and the import followed with a seven-yard touch around the end for a major. Cookie Gilchrist scored Tiger-Cats' other six-potter on a 76-yard run.

OTTAWA LINE SHINES

Ottawa's victory was the second straight over Argos and it was Hamilton's on an all-round effort with quarter Hal Ledyard and Bobby Simpson taking the leading offensive roles. The Ottawa line gave Ledyard good protection and the hard-charging front wall gave Toronto quarter Angie Calliffa a big rush.

Ledyard threw three touchdown passes, two to Simpson. End Tom Adams took Ledyard's third touchdown pass while Don St. John picked up two along the ground and Tirrel Burton one.

Bud Korchak converted four of the six touchdowns, Avatus Stone kicked a single and Ted Smale scored a safety touch.

Calliffa threw a touchdown pass to Al Romine, O. K. Ferguson and Bobby Kunz each scored one on cracks through the line. Joe Falls kicked the three converts and Bucky Curtis added a single.

Simpson was the target for most of Ledyard's passes and the nifty end made almost impossible catches.

Many New Features Offered on 1957 Meteor

The all-new, 1957 Meteor will be unveiled Wednesday at Mercury-Lincoln-Meteor dealer showrooms across Canada, it was announced today by P. R. Gillis, general manager, Mercury-Lincoln-Meteor Division, Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited.

The 1957 Meteor line will offer the motoring public 24 models in five outstanding series. According to Mr. Gillis, these are the lowest, longest and most powerful Meteor cars since Meteor was first introduced as a distinctively Canadian car.

"For the first time we will be offering the Meteor in two separate body sizes and wheelbases," said Mr. Gillis. "There will be a choice of three V-8 engines in a wide horsepower range, as well as Ford of Canada's new, performance proven six cylinder engine."

From ground to roof-top, 1957 Meteors will stand just 4 feet 8 inches high—the lowest cars in Meteor history.

They will be available in five series: The Rideau 500 and Rideau with 118-inch wheelbase; the Niagara 300 and Niagara with 118-inch wheelbase, and a complete series of station wagons.

For 1957, a special high performance V-8 engine is available as an optional power plant on all Meteor cars in Rideau 500, Rideau and Niagara 300 series. The engine, called the Special, develops 245 horsepower, and is equipped with a four-barrel low silhouette carburetor.

Standard engine for the Rideau and station wagon series is the special 200 horsepower V-8. A 190 horsepower V-8 is standard for the Niagara and Niagara 300 series.

In addition, the 144 h.p. Thrifty Six is available on Niagara, Niagara 300 and some station wagons. The special engine is available only with Merc-O-Matic transmission. All other engines can be ordered with standard transmission, Touch-O-Matic over-drive or Merc-O-Matic transmission.

Safety seat belts and safety-cushioned instrument panel and sun visors are available as optional equipment at a very nominal extra cost, and the safety rear view mirror has been continued.

Anglers, Hunters Want Province Only Issuer

Hamilton (CP)—Zone 6 of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters said Saturday the Ontario government should be the only issuer of hunting licences in the province.

In two resolutions, the zone members called upon the provincial government to amend its laws to prohibit sale of a second licence by some municipalities for pheasant, rabbit and fox hunting.

The federation proposed that the government distribute the money raised by the sale of a provincial licence to municipalities having conservation programs.

H. V. Sutton of Hamilton, secretary-manager of the federation, said originally money collected was to reimburse farmers for damage caused by hunters. He said there is only one known instance of a farmer getting any money.

Speakers criticized unmarked township boundaries, saying hunters can cross from one township to another without realizing it. "Trigger-happy bums and sound-shooters" on privately - owned lands were also under fire from the floor.

RAPS COMMITTEE

Mr. Sutton asked that the lands and forests' water resources committee "get down to business and clean up pollution instead of giving us the same run-around we got from the department of health and that political interference be kept to a minimum."

Walter Wilson of Waterloo, zone chairman, said the committee is doing an excellent job.

J. J. Girling of Hamilton was elected zone chairman for 1957 and Ron Richardson of Waterloo vice-chairman.

BLUES BEAT BRUINS

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—Defenceman Bill Gadsby scored three minutes before the final bell Saturday to give New York Rangers a 4-3 National League exhibition win over Boston Bruins.

Point Anne Defeats Toronto Wins OASA Industrial Title

By GARRY ALEXANDER

The Point Anne Cementmen captured the OASA Industrial provincial championship for the second time in as many years in Peterborough Saturday by downing Toronto Roe Aircraft 5-1 in the series' third game.

Sam Mulholland's three - run homer and the four-hit hurling of veteran Pat Maracle were the chief factors in the Cementmen's victory. The clubs had earlier split the first two games.

Mulholland smashed a towering blast over the right-centre field fence, chasing two mates home ahead of him, to break up a 1-1 deadlock in the sixth. Point Anne had taken an early 1-0 lead but Toronto tied it in the fifth.

Pat Maracle hurled beautiful ball to gain the victory. He scattered four safeties, one each in the first, third, fifth and seventh frames. He's whiffed seven while walking two and hitting another.

Point Anne's other hurler Maracle's hid for a shutout in the fifth. Roy Foster was hit by a pitch and promptly stole second base. Catcher John Brooks followed with a single to drive the centre to tie the score at 1-1.

Hank Peterson worked the distance for Roes, tagged for nine assorted hits including the homer, two triples and a double. He fired third strikes by 14 batters however while issuing seven free tickets.

Point Anne loaded the sacks in the first with one out but failed to score. They opened the scoring with one in the second when Maracle tripled off the fence. He scored after Bert Whalen fouled out to right field.

The Pointers left eight men stranded in the early frames but the homer decided the issue. Mort Bradshaw started the rally with a triple to deep centre and Whalen drew a pass with one out. Peterson fanned the next two batters after Mulholland's blast.

Pete Green singled, took second when Gilmour walked and scored later on Maracle's infield out to complete the scoring.

Doug Hull played exceptionally well at shortstop for the winners, knocking down Kennedy's screaming smash and throwing him out at first to climax his efforts.

Mort Bradshaw had a triple and single while Doug Hull double'd and singled to lead the victor's attack. Maracle tripled with singles going to Pat Gilmour, Bobby Hunter, who played well at first base, and Pete Green.

Wally Wozniak and Malcolm Campbell had doubles for Toronto with one-baggers going to Brooks and Foster.

THREE TITLES

Three Ontario diamond championships rest in the city and district after Saturday's baseball and softball curtains had fallen on the playdown scene.

The shining gem in the city's crown was the all-round fine performance of Art Wright's juvenile baseballers, who dug up all their sometimes dormant capabilities and whitewaped the Sarnia youngsters in a doubleheader to bring the first juvenile crown to Belleville.

The youngsters played championship ball and thoroughly deserved their twin wins and the crown. They backed up fine hurling with outstanding clouting while their defensive play left nothing to be desired. They are worthy champions. The city should be proud of these youngsters and their hard-working coach, Art Wright.

And the championship hunting is fluttering, too, in the Point Anne section. For the second time in a row the Ox Pointers annexed the OASA industrial intermediate title and the Canada Cement Company trophy. They trounced the powerful Toronto A. V. Roe squad in Peterborough 6-1 and again demonstrated they are a chips-down team.

Like the baseball younkers the Pointers had superlative hurling with the ageless Pat Maracle climaxing a brilliant season with a fine title-taking effort. His mates' bludgeons worked effectively, too, and gave the swarthy hurler the offensive effort he needed.

The third district championship went to the Wellington OBA Class "C" peewee baseballers. These youngsters who have played sensationally all season climaxed their first quest for the Ontario title by defeating the smart, young Wheatley, Ontario, squad on Saturday to take the crown in straight victories. They broke a two-all tie in the seventh and last inning on the Wheatley diamond to win the game and title by a 3-2 score.

And the loyal burghers of the lakeside village greeted their homecoming champions in fitting style. They met the young victors at Trenton and headed by a police escort accompanied them home. A short distance from the village the players were met by the village fire department in all its red regalia and the proud kids rode home triumphantly aboard the equipment to the accompaniment of cheers from the populace and the shrieking of vehicular horns.

Meanwhile, the Booth's TV softball peewees took a step further toward the OASA peewee title by defeating Simcoe in the first game of their best-of-three championship series. The Booth crew is in Peterborough Saturday with one win later under their belt and Coach Lee Calhane is confident they will bring home the chocolate bacon. They, like the juvenies, came up with a concerted effort and are fine softball representatives of the city.

Another title hovering over the district is the OASA intermediate "B" crown with the Frankford Merchants having a stranglehold on the semi-finals. They defeated Jarvis in the first game on the home diamond and tonight could decide the issue when the Merchants next play on the foeman field.

The only cloud in the championship sky as far as Belleville was concerned was the 4-1 defeat of the Y's Men's baseball bantams by the powerful Chatham kids. They fought a fine young battle but were named victims when two-hitted them and struck out fourteen. The Y's Men can and will play better baseball and they'll have their backs to the wall on Saturday when they play the second game in Chatham.

Riders Twist BC Lions' Tail Blue Bombers Blast Stamps

The rich got richer and the other poor got a thrashing in the first two games of the Western Interprovincial Football Union's four-game weekend. When the results were posted, daylight showed for the first time this season between each position in the standings.

Saskatchewan Roughriders retained second place by two points with a 46-28 victory Saturday afternoon over British Columbia Lions at Regina. Winnipeg Blue Bombers broke a third-place tie by whipping the last-place Stamp eaters 37-14 at Calgary to move two points ahead of B.C.

Tonight, Riders are at Edmonton against the league-leading Eskimos, and a Saskatchewan victory would tie the two clubs for first place. Lions are at Winnipeg, where B.C. can get back on an even footing with Bombers by winning. B.C. and Saskatchewan losses would result in a Bomber-Rider second-place stalemate.

LINEUPS SHIFTED

With the final deadline for import player changes two weeks away, everybody made additions and deletions Saturday night.

Saskatchewan, with new tackle Wullie Lee from Chicago Bears replacing injured Martin Ruby, scored six converted touchdowns in three quarters be'ore 14,000 Regina fans.

Lions dressed end Bob Hantis from San Francisco 'Gers to replace injured Normie Lodzin, and tackle Fred Robinson from Cleveland Browns but still couldn't make the grade.

Ken Carpenter scored three touchdowns for Saskatchewan, two on 11- and 55-yard passing plays with quarterback Frank Tripucka and one on a plunge. Tripucka passed 40 yards to Larry Isbell for another touchdown; Alex Bravo raced 98 yards for another, and Bobby Marlow's five-yard drive for centre brought the Oshawa, Saturday, at the Ca... plonship and ing in a time minutes and 21.5

Clean-Sweep Pesky Pirates As Cards Trump Milwaukee In Sensational Loop Climax

A year older, a lot wearier, but still with the knack of winning the big ones, Brooklyn Dodgers are champions of the National League today.

It took them right up until the last day of the season to prove it though. Until two days ago, before the windup, they had been counted out.

Last Friday they were a game behind Milwaukee Braves. Each had three to go and the Brooks no longer were masters of their own destiny. They needed help from St. Louis Cardinals, who were playing Milwaukee in the final three-game set.

Not only that, they had to win their last three against Pittsburgh. The Cards came through, winning two out of three from the Braves. That was all the Brooks needed. They clubbed the Pirates three times, including Sunday's 8-6 conquest, for a one-game advantage at the end.

BRAGAN COMPLIMENTARY

Pittsburgh manager Bobby Bragan made, perhaps, the most illuminating post-game crack on the Dodgers' victory after it was all over.

"Brooklyn won it the hard way," he said. "They deserved to win. Milwaukee had the game given it up. They didn't deserve the pennant."

The Braves, who finally licked the Cardinals, 5-3, when it was too late, knew it too. There will be no extra game this time.

The pressure actually was off the Dodgers Sunday because they could do no "worse" than tie. They lost and Milwaukee won. But the victory didn't come easy. Ace pitcher Don Newcombe couldn't protect a five-run lead and had to be taken out in the eighth inning.

Left little Don Bessent rescued him and saved the game. The Brooks hit five home runs—two each by Duke Snider and Sandy Amoros and one by Jackie Robinson — needed them all. Snider's second was his 43rd of the season and set a record for Newcombe. But they couldn't get any further.

BRAVES KNEW FUTILITY

Lew Burdette and Ray Crone pitched the Beaves to their victory over the Cardinals' ballhawks through the game, the Brooklyn score was posted and that took all the meaning out of it. Eddie Mathews hit a home run for the Braves, and Hank Aaron got his 200th hit of the season.

"I will be resting for the Dodgers in the world series," said the Braves' No. 1 pitcher, Warren Spahn, who lost Saturday's game. "They rated the pennant."

Robin Roberts, Philadelphia ace, failed in his quest for his seventh consecutive 20-game winning season. The Giants beat him 8-3 in the first game of a doubleheader, but the Phillies won the nightcap 5-2. In that game, Red Schoendienst, New York second-sacker, got his 2,000th hit of his career.

Cincinnati turned back Chicago Cubs 4-2, and finished the year just two games out of first place.

Mickey Mantle, sensational New York Yankee outfielder, became the first major league player since 1947 to win the triple batting crown as the American League schedule was closed out Sunday.

Mantle appeared only as a pinch hitter in the ninth inning Sunday as the Yankees lost to Boston Red Sox 7-4 in 10 innings, but he did it in a run with a ground-out. That gave him a batting average of .353 on 130 runs batted in and 52 homers.

Ted Williams of the Red Sox, who turned the triple-crown trick in 1947, finished this year with a .345 average. He walked the first time up Sunday, then retired.

UNHAPPY RECORD

Washington Senators set a record in reverse, finishing the season with 877 strikeouts. The Senators lost twice Sunday to Baltimore, 4-3 and 6-3. Thirteen Senators fanned in the second game. The previous team mark for strikeouts was 863 set by St. Louis Browns 42 years ago.

Billy Hoeft won his 20th game as the Tigers downed Cleveland Indians 8-4. Bob Feller went the route in what may have been the last appearance in an Indian uniform.

Hoeft was one of six 20-game winners in the American this year. The others were Early Wynn and Herb Score of Cleveland, and Jim Perry of Cleveland.

Irvin Resigns as Hawk Coach After 26 Years NHL Mentor

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Dick Irvin has guided his last team into National Hockey League battle.

Irvin, who spent the last 26 of his 64 years building up a spectacular record as an NHL coach, bowed to failing health and resigned Saturday as pilot of Chicago Black Hawks.

Only times since 1930, when he started his coaching career with Hawks, have Irvin-guided teams finished out of the playoffs. He directed four Stanley Cup champions, Toronto Maple Leafs in 1931-32, and Montreal Canadiens in 1943-44, 1945-46, and 1953-54.

The veteran gabber, who moved back to Chicago last year from a pleasant post with the powerful Canadiens, spent three weeks in a Montreal hospital before the start of the current training grind. He finally reported here in the hope he was well recovered.

IVAN TEMPORARY COACH

Irvin was born in Hamilton in 1892, and started as a player with Portland of the Pacific Coast League in 1915-16.

After two years in the Canadian Army, he spent seven seasons with Regina Vics, returning to Portland in 1923. From 1925 to 1929 he was a forward with Black Hawks. The next year he took over as Chicago coach.

Irvin coached Leafs from 1931 to 1940, then started a 15-year reign in Montreal Forum.

Irvin said the decision to give up active duties in the NHL was the toughest of his life.

Irvin's failing health was first noticed toward the end of the 1954-55 season when he appeared pale and weak.

Juveniles Whip Sarnia To Win First Ontario Baseball Championship

Take Both Ends of Twin Bill By Scores of 6-4 and 15-4 With Fine All-Round Effort

Defeating Sarnia in both ends of a doubleheader, Art Wright's Belleville juveniles won the Ontario Baseball Association juvenile "A" championship at the Fair Grounds here Saturday.

The clubbers scored one run with a brilliant all-round performance to win the title after spotting the Sarnia youngsters the first game of the best-of-three series.

Trio Starring by Lee St. Denis and Gerald Hill backed by heavy clouting led by Bobby Hull, sparked the twin victories. The scores were 13-6 and 6-4.

BELLEVILLE 15 — Sarnia 4

A valiant lineup exploded in the eighth inning put the game on ice for the Wright youngsters in the first game after they had gained a 5-4 lead in what was a close battle.

Led By Bobby Hull and Bob Wannamaker who each hit a three-run single in two times at bat and triples by Charlie Elkington and Herb Foster, Belleville's attack punched out ten clouts for as many runs to back away the victory.

They had scored singles in the previous five innings on some neat pitchin shooting while Hull had reached striking distance with singles in the second and seventh and a pair in the fifth.

The juveniles slammed out six runs when over the eight-inning route off a pair of Sarnia hurlers.

Bobby Hull got the show off with a homer, triple and single with Ross Wheatley getting the 7 singles. Kingston and Foster lashed out triples while Gordie St. Louis hit a triple and single. Bob Wannamaker had a homer and single with Ab Hewitt contributing a pair of singles. Craig also hit safely.

Leo St. Denis went the route for the winners allowing only six hits in ball while striking out nine and walking six.

Perry started on the mound for Sarnia and gave up eight runs off as many hits and six innings. Art Wolsey relieved him and the Belleville youngsters took to his offerings baby to candy. They blasted his offerings for seven hits for seven runs in the nine innings he worked. Neither Sarnia pitcher was credited with a strikeout while only one Belleville batter drew a walk.

Down 3-1 in the third innings, Sarnia whiffed on the first and third the count when Haddon blasted a two-run homer in the fifth. Belleville took a run lead in the next innings while holding Sarnia scoreless and the roof fell in.

Besides Haddon's homer, Kerwin had two doubles for the visitors with Wolsey, McPhedran, Brandon and Park getting singles.

BELLEVILLE 6 — SARNIA 4

The juvenile repeated their single-hitting exploits in the second game but this time it was milder. They took advantage of the three batters-in hails with a pair of clouts to cover over five runs, in the third barely sufficient to grab the victory.

Walmsley and Foster drew consecutive walks and Kingston loaded the sacks after he was hit by a pitched ball. Bobby Hull smashed out a three-run single, scoring when Don McPhail, the Sarnia hurler, passed a pitch. St. Denis walked and galloped home on Bob Wannamaker's double.

McPhail held down the first blow over the rest of the route. The pitcher, except for this, had limited fine baseball whiffing seventeen but walking nine.

The Sarnians got the other run in the seventh when, Hull, who walked scored on a Sarnia error after being advanced around the sacks by St. Denis' single.

Down 3-0 in the third, Sarnia came back with a single in that innings off Perry's single and Dark's double. They went scoreless until the eighth when they threatened with a pair of runs off Dark's triple and singles by McPhail and McPhedran.

Attendance Up; American Down

NEW YORK (AP)—A down-to-the wire pennant race boosted National League attendance to its highest total in six seasons, but the over-all major league figure underwent a slight decline in 1956.

The major leagues drew the 2,000,000 mark for the third straight year and three other clubs exceeding 1,000,000. But National League drew 8,052,987 fans. This was an increase by 1,078,575 over last season and surpassed the total of 8,200,439 in 1950.

Milwaukee clicked its turnstiles to the tune of 2,046,331 spectators and Brooklyn, Cincinnati and St. Louis also bettered the million mark.

The majors attracted 18,541,142 patrons, a decrease of 78,221 from last year's total of 18,617,363. The American League drew 7,288,175—some 1,054,796 less than last season—to account for the major dip.

Despite the drop, five American League clubs topped the million figure with the New York Yankees leading with 1,491,544. Other clubs to better the million mark were Boston, Detroit, Kansas City and Chicago.

Nashua Beaten In Rich Stakes

Mister Gus galloped home 3½ lengths ahead of Nashua and jockey Arcaro in the $80,000 Woodward Stakes and Canadian-owned Mister Jive captured the $35,000 Cowdin Stakes for two-year-olds with Arcaro's friend Hahn Booth.

The crowd of 34,000 had sent Nashua away as the 2-to-10 favorite and the big Hairan was 9 to 10 on his record of five straight successes.

Mister Gus took charge after Hasbrouck and Arcaro had brought it out for a mile in the 1¼-mile event. Jet Action finished half a length behind Nashua.

Mister Jive, owned by John L. Rutherford of Toronto, made the lead high in the stretch and charged to a four-length win over Amarullah. Nashua was third in the 6½-furlong event.

Chicago Bears Claw Browns Giants Win

NEW YORK (AP) — Cleveland Browns are in trouble; Chicago Bears may be a disappointment, and the traditional powerhouses can forget about the usual patsies.

These are the indications after the first weekend of action in the National Football League.

Cleveland, defending league champion, was upended 9-7 Sunday by Chicago Cardinals, fourth-place eastern conference finisher last season. The Bears, tabbed by many to go all the way this year, bowed to Baltimore Colts 28-21 under the pin-point passing of sophomore quarterback George Shaw.

New York Giants, with Mel Triplett scoring three times, led all the way to beat San Francisco Forty-Niners 30-21. The resurgent Detroit Lions downed Los Angeles Rams 20-16. Los Angeles Rams romped over Philadelphia Eagles 37-7, and Lynn Chandnois, with three touchdowns, scored kickoff return, led Pittsburgh Steelers to a 30-13 victory over Washington Redskins.

The Browns could not stop Pat Summerall's field goals as he booted three-pointers from 12, 16 and nine yards out.

Maybe They'll Hatch Birdies

FORT ERIE (CP) — Norm Plato got into the act Sunday on his tee shot on the seventh hole of the Rio Vista Golf Club Sunday, but scored a birdie anyway.

Plato and his companions spent 10 minutes looking for the ball after he knocked it into the bushes. One saw a bird's nest seven feet above ground and the young on it look.

There nestled the ball, beside another.

WELLINGTON (Special) — Behind the five-hit pitching of Gary Burr, Wellington defeated Wheatley on Saturday to win the OBA Class "C" peewee championship. The score was 3-2.

The newly-crowned champions won the first game here a week ago by a 5-4 count taking the best-of-three finals series in straight victories to bring home their first peewee title.

Fine fielding and timely hitting backed Burr in his mound victory. His best effort came in the final innings when with the lead and winning run on base, he retired the side to clinch the victory and championship.

It was Wellington's second Ontario minor baseball championship in three years, also the second to be won in the county and district.

Burr struck out six and walked one and was never in serious trouble. He lashed out a run-scoring triple to help his own cause.

Wellington grabbed an early lead scoring two runs in the first innings. McNeill and Greenfield bunted safely but the latter was forced. Clint Story sacrificed them to second on the play with both runners scoring on Guernsey's long fly.

They added another in the fifth after Greenfield and Story reached retired. Guernsey smashed out a long triple and was followed until scoring the runner.

Wheatley broke the ice in the third when a single by Brackenbury, an infield out and a long fly by Gerrard scored one.

Back-to-back triples by Thompson and Gerrard scored the second Wheatley run in the sixth. They had runners on second and third in the seventh but Burr settled down to retire the side.

Paul Heidt, Wheatley hurler went the route and was touched for nine safeties. He struck out nine and walked one.

Bob Guernsey topped the winners with a pair of hits, a double and single with Burr having a triple. Don McNeill was good for two singles with Larry Greenfield and Carl Stacey getting singles.

Wrestling Holds Top Audience Rating Among U.K. TV Shows

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

NEW YORK (AP) — British commercial television is celebrating its first birthday and to the surprise of everyone, except the chaps down at the pub, wrestling holds the top audience rating.

More television tune in each week to the grunts and groans of the British bicep brigade than ever saw Sir Laurence Beecham conduct or hear Gracie Fields sing.

If British wrestling goes the way of its American counterpart, the Old Vic Company and Sir Abbey Flayves will have to look to their laurels for showmanship in part and parcel of the success of these barrel - chested behemoths.

American audiences patronized and encouraged the idiosyncrasies of Gorgeous George, Chief Don Eagle and other musclebound exhibitionists, who spiced their acts with elaborate war dances, bathrobe-folding routines and perfume squirtings.

HAVE A GO

One can imagine the Lancashire Lout or the Twickenham Terror springing through the ropes of a British ring with tightly furled umbrella, bowler hat and old school tie, eager to do battle with Lord Haw - Haw or the Mad Mauler of the Moors, awesome in an Elizabethan doublet and skirt proof hose.

Excitement grips all English hearts as the fog lifts from the television set and the lads have a go at it.

But perhaps wrestling is just a phase that British commercial television is passing through, a sort of coaxial Cenozoic Age that Americans had to weather before advancing to the age of the late, late, late movie and the high-priced quiz show.

If this be so, British television programs have several cultural milestones to pass before they can offer the Bank of England as a jackpot for naming, in chronological order, the keepers of the Privy Seal in the reign of the Plantagenet kings.

First in the evolutionary scheme of things comes the era of the gadget commercial — gibbering pitchmen demonstrating a collapsible cutter, jiffy jitney coin purse or an aluminum cricket wicket.

PUNCTUATED LITANY

An old movie—perhaps a British one under reverse Iron Curtain—can be used to punctuate the litany of the gadgeteers, with the rule seeming to be two minutes of movie for each five minutes of commercial.

If any unsmashed sets remain in the kingdom by this time, British commercial television can advance to the era of the midnight science participation show, starring a tired comedian with tired jokes.

From here on in, it's all clear sailing into the modern era. A vaudeville show, several westerns, asserted soap operas — live or canned — and a few spectacular duds and a band leader who can count to three should bring British commercial television right up to date.

SERIES UMPIRES

NEW YORK (AP)—Babe Pinelli, veteran National League umpire, will be behind the plate calling balls and strikes when the world series begins, Ford C. Frick commissioner of baseball, said Friday. Dusty Boggess and Tom Gorman are the other National League umpires assigned. Hank Soar, Larry Napp and Ed Runge are the American Leaguers selected.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Simplicity and accuracy in bridge is what the game needs. When such policies are proposed, what happens? Comparisons are made with what the great masters of play approve or disapprove.

Thus, these masters carve a strong influence into the habits of 50 million players. So, their operations and results in actual competition are important.

For this reason I have been reporting to you what the masters have done in the winter nationals. Here is deal number 23:

	NORTH
	♥K 5 3
	♦9 8 4 3
	♣7 5 2
WEST		EAST
♠A 6		♠K 7 4
♥J 10 9		♥8 7 6 4
♦J 10 7		♦Q 6 2
♣A Q 10 9 8		♣K 6 4
	SOUTH
	♠Q 10 9 8 5 3
	♥A K 2
	♣3

Notice that south has a simple count of seven tricks; five for the high cards and two for the shorts in clubs. North has two tricks; the one high card and the one short in spades.

With nine tricks, players of their ability should know there is no game and should buy the contract for nothing more than 90 points. Nor should they sell out, for less than this will pay.

In competition, their opponents should know enough not to take a loss of more than three spades. So, look at the records of the results in this particular case.

Of the 48 tables, 20 did something wrong. This means that only 60 per cent did the right thing. Is this enough to prove them good?

Even dub opponents should take two spades, a diamond, and a club. But four reached four spades and one was permitted to make it. One was doubled at two spades; another at three.

Some tables in one or two or three spades were permitted to take ten tricks. Nine east and west vulnerable pairs defended with three hearts or two clubs or two clubs or two no-trump. They lost too much.

Maybe I am too hard on these greatest master players of our age. But they are harder on the millions who should be encouraged to learn easier and safer and more understandable bridge.

IT'S TRUE! By Wiley Padan

"Somebody Up There Likes Me" — Paul NEWMAN won the role of Rocky Graziano in his screen debut after an eight-months search in which 40 top Tinsel Lads and Lassies were tested for the prominent Hollywood and Broadway actors were tested for the part.

Pier ANGELI has made seven motion pictures in seven different countries, and has crossed the Atlantic by plane and ship a total of 22 times!

Sal MINEO couldn't believe he was a celebrity even when he won an "Oscar" nomination. He was finally convinced after he was mobbed by a teenage autograph hunters during filming of New York City location scenes for "Somebody Up There Likes Me."

AT THE BELLE — "Somebody Up There Likes Me" — Belleville's inspired story that makes Paul Newman "On the Waterfront", "Blackboard Jungle", and "I'll Cry Tomorrow", seem mild.

Little Benny's Notebook

I went to the market with ma and she put a cent in the waying machine to see if her wait was any less, which it wasn't, being the same, and ma looked at her fortune on the back of the card on account of believing in fortunes, and she said, Well that's good news, at least.

G, what's it say, ma? I said, and she said, It says I will soon cross a large body of water. My, maybe your father will have to go to Europe on bizzness, including Pa is. Goodness knows the Atlantic Ocean is a large body of water, she said.

But jimminies, ma, even if pop does, that dont say you will too, I said, and ma said, Well, it it's very important and he refuses to go alone, the company will have to let him take me.

Oh boy, and if you refuse to go just with pop, they'll have to let you take me, I said, and ma said, We could always send pop to your Ant Fanny's for a munth.

Aw no, ma, I want to go to Europe too, I said. So will you promise to refuse, ma? I said, and she said, We'll see.

Which just then we started to cross the street, and ma stepped in a puddle on account of not looking, and she said, Oh dear, my head was in the clouds.

Aw heck, ma, that's a darn shame, I said. That's the worst thing that could of happened, I said, and ma said, Oh, it wasn't as bad as all that, I guess I'll survive a little mud on my shoe.

Aw, who cares about that? I said. But G roozalem, ma, that was a pritty big puddle for its size, so you just crossed the large body of water, so now nobody will get to go to Europe, and you not even pop. I said, and ma said, Oh well, I guess we'll all survive that, too. Which we probably will.

Paul Clemens Gets $8,000 For Full-Length Canvas

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Jim Crowley's most successful artist—the honest-to-goodness brush and palette kind—is a soft-spoken, unattached man named Paul Clemens.

His delicate touch with soft, moonlike colors has made him one of the leading American portraitists, and his canvas hang in New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art and other noted galleries. The fact that he has painted dozens of top movie actresses is a glamorous, but incidental, factor in his career.

Clemens' favorite subject is Eleanor Parker, who is also his wife. When you visit their luxurious house you find Eleanor all over the place—on the walls.

There's a head portrait over the mantel, a study of the back of her head, a languorous full-length pose, a scene of her singing back to a recording for her operatic role in Interrupted Melody.

"I guess I have painted her six or eight times on finished works, and I have thrown away many other sketches and canvases," he said.

As you can judge from such commissions, he is no starver in a garret. He charges from $500 for a small head portrait to $8,000 for a full-length canvas.

He came to California in 1941 and has been doing a good business ever since—so much so that he tries to hold down the commission volume to devote himself to non-portrait subjects.

"Oddly enough, I find movie stars among the best subjects," he said. "They are accustomed to posing for periods of time, they are generally handsome subjects and they appreciate getting individuality into a portrait after the endless retouching of photographs they are faced with.

Strangely, he has had no commissions as do male stars. "They seem to think that's for women and children," he observed. "Or maybe they think it's immodest."

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Tuesday, Oct. 2, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Don't be caught unprepared. A well-planned program is half the battle. This day is conducive to determined, energetic effort. Do not be discouraged by past inadequacies; rather try the harder.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Take time to review before making innovations or departing from the routine. The outlook is pleasant if you are moving along a sound course and using your fine assets as you should.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Day-dreaming may be fun but it is most unproductive. Do not be misled by false illusions, schemers. Your normal routine, executed with finesse and dispatch, should bring benefits.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Taper off if you have been overtaxing yourself: Initiation of new methods could further your objectives. Take temporary disappointments or setbacks in stride.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — A plan-as-you-go schedule may be the easiest but it is a far cry from what you are capable of if you really try! Don't be the victim of an unsatisfactory performance. Give your best.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — You can, if you will, get on the efficiency road and accomplish wonders now. But no worrying! Start with a smile and a cheery disposition; help others too. Save wisely.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Generate activity along your duties are adapted. Your wits are keen; keep them on the beam. Be cautious handling money, buying, making investments for others.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Sweep through opposition with your accustomed energy and acumen. Day's caution: Don't be complacent. Many a game or point has been lost through over-confidence. Use discernment!

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — If you effectively combat purposeless activity, moodiness, and anything else contrary to common sense and good living you will move forward appreciably.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Take advantage of good efforts, seize advice, and help-ing hands. Use every minute possible to strive after worthwhile goals. Watch health, diet.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — As a starter, look to Scorpio advice. Anything worth while is worth the effort to attain it. Just be sure you are not dispersing energies along uncharted or worthless paths.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Don't jump to conclusions or get ahead of yourself. Coordinated effort is best. Maintain a steady tempo. Think logically and act accordingly to round out a successful day.

You born today are evenly balanced, fair with others, innately kind and understanding with young and old, and especially with those less fortunate. You have ability for mental and physical work; could be a skilled mechanic; able in any trade or calling. We find you artistic, with ability for acting. Or you may select a scientific career. If true to your finest qualifications, you will be efficient, progressive in whatever endeavor you are occupied. Watch out for extravagance, anger, over-luxurious living! Birthdate: Cordell Hull, Amer. statesman; Ferdinand Foch, Fr. Marshal; Richard III, King of England.

HUGE RAF

Broadhurst commanded the allied air force which supported Field Marshal Montgomery's successful western desert campaign against Rommel's Afrika Korps. Later he headed a tactical air force over France during and after the Normandy invasion.

He took over bomber command after the post-war departure of Sir Arthur Harris, who led the command in its wartime bombing of Germany.

RUSSIANS WATCH

A large group of Russians, at the airport to welcome Bolshoi ballet director Igor Moiseyev and viol jet airliners, saw the crash. They watched, seemingly without emotion, as a flame-shot pall of smoke and sheets of flame rose from the wreckage of the pride of Britain's bomber command.

Just to the side of the Russians were members of a noisy, welcoming delegation from the RAF and the Moiseyev Mission with families of the crew members.

The occasion was scheduled to be a big one for the RAF and for British civil aviation, already piqued by the failure of the Comet jet airliners, serious delays in the service's new jet fighter by the setting back of service for the British Canberra bomber.

A spokesman for the manufacturers of the Viscount, the Vickers Siddeley Group and A. V. Roe, said the crash had all the appearance of an accident caused by bad weather.

There were "no indications whatsoever" that anything was wrong with the engines when operating as usual.

The pilot was making a perfectly normal approach in driving rain with a low ceiling and poor visibility when he reported over ground control — he was being given landing data — that he was unsafe.

"I then seems he hit something, possibly an obstruction, on his approach and we believe he actually saw the runway," the spokesman added.

He immediately turned his engines on to full power in an attempt to climb away. But at this point though he gained some height and went back into cloud, he recognized the aircraft was out of control and while records gave the order to abandon ship, the aircraft crashed.

STIRLING

Mr., Mrs. Fred Bataman Celebrate Silver Wedding Anniversary

STIRLING.—Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Adams, Fuller, Ontario, opened their home last Wednesday evening in honor of the 25th wedding anniversary of her sister, Mrs. Fred Bateman and Mr. Bateman of Stirling.

The guests numbering 35 included brothers and sisters of the honored couple and a few friends.

The rooms were decorated with pink and white streamers and lovely bouquets of autumn blooms.

Miss Ruth Linn of Mount Pleasant, Rawdon, assisted the hostess with the decorating and serving.

The dining table was centred with a three-tier anniversary cake iced and lettered for the occasion.

As the couple arrived, the bride's mother, Mrs. Thomas Tanner, had the honor of pinning on the daughter's corsage. Fred's boutonniere was pinned on by his oldest sister, Mrs. Iris Brand.

During the evening Mr. Morley Tanner, Campbellford, was master of ceremonies and several brief address were given, expressing best wishes for future happiness.

ADDRESS READ

Mrs. Melville Tanner read an appreciative address on behalf of the group assembled and the honored couple was presented with a chesterfield mirror, a pop-up toaster and numerous other gifts.

Fred and Annie voiced thanks for the delightful evening arranged in their honor by Mr. and Mrs. Adams, who had made all the preparations for this memorable event. They also expressed thanks for the lovely gifts, which they would enjoy using in their home.

Mrs. Adams served bountiful refreshments and the group enjoyed a social chat.

Annie is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Tanner of Stirling. Mrs. Tanner was the former Margaret Bay. At the time of the marriage, her parents lived in Rawdon township.

Fred and Annie were married September 26, 1931, at Springbrook United church parsonage, by the Rev. H. A. Bunt.

The bridegroom's niece, Miss Jean Nickle (now Mrs. Bert Johnson, Flesherton), was the bride's attendant, while the bride's brother, Mr. Melville Tanner, was groom's man. The newlyweds enjoyed a honeymoon trip to Toronto. They lived in Rawdon previous to taking up residence in Stirling, where they conduct a "ladies' wear store".

GUESTS ATTENDING

The guests in attendance were: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Tanner, Mr. and Mrs. Melville Tanner and family, Stirling; Mr. and Mrs. Morley Tanner, Campbellford.

Many of the bride's brothers were unavoidably absent, Barton Tanner, Calgary, Alberta and Ray Tanner, Stirling.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Bristol, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Bateman, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bateman, Mr. and Mrs. Burton Bateman, Springbrook; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Brown and Mrs. James Nickle, Madoc.

A brother, Alex. Bateman of Springbrook, and a sister, Mrs. George McMaster of Harold were detained at home because of illness in the family.

Also in attendance were, Mrs. Adams' daughters, Mrs. Gerald Bateman, Mr. Bateman and baby, and Miss Helen Adams, Belleville.

The other guests included Mr. Garth Joslin, Foxboro, and Miss Ruth Linn, Mount Pleasant, Rawdon.

Mr. and Mrs. Bateman are members of St. Paul's United church Stirling, and are regular attendants at the services.

Mr. Bateman is a Past Grand Master of Ontario East Orange Lodges and is well-known in this area.

Stirling friends join in extending congratulations at this time.

Trousseau Tea Honors Bride-Elect

STIRLING — The home of Mrs. John L. Grant, Front Street West, Stirling, was a bower of beauty with autumn blooms on Wednesday afternoon when a large number of ladies were guests at a trousseau tea, in honor of her daughter, Miss Roberta Good, Reg. N., whose marriage will be held Saturday at St. Paul's United Church.

The dining room table was covered with a cutwork cloth of linen. Low bowls of pink and white carnations with matching tapers in silver candelabra enhanced the room.

The door was opened by Bride Miss Jill Carragata, and the bride-elect received with her mother and her fiance's mother, Mrs. George Vince of Campbellford.

The guests were invited to the tea room by Mrs. C. I. Hatton, where the bride-elect's grandmother, Mrs. A. D. Good and Mrs. J. R. Belshaw, presided over the silver tea urns. Those who served were: Miss Janet Anne Good, a sister of the honored guest, and Mrs. Gerald Taylor, Burnbrae.

The dainty plates of sandwiches and cookies were replenished by Mrs. Robert Patterson and Mrs. Maurice Dee.

The guests included the ladies of St. Paul's W.A., members of the Past Grand Club of Lansing Lodge, No. 311. The girls and their mothers from Mt. Zion Sunday school section, and others from Belleville and Campbellford.

Mauritians Fight To Get Glimpse Of Princess

PORT LOUIS, Mauritius (Reuters)—Police used clubs to beat back excited Mauritians fighting to get a glimpse of Princess Margaret as she came ashore Sat. to this Indian Ocean island from the royal yacht Britannia.

The crowd was in an ugly mood for a moment until it was distracted by the appearance of the King's African Rifles band and the princess' guard of honor.

But the unbridled Mauritians cheered when the princess stepped ashore on a bright red carpet and walked smiling to a rose-bedecked reception platform.

The princess, who is touring East Africa, wore a royal blue-and-white printed silk dress with swathing at the neck and sleeves of white taffeta. She had a matching bolero lined with white taffeta and a small white cloche hat with a narrow brim of straw.

After inspecting a red-faced guard of honor, the princess and Sir Robert Scott, governor of Mauritius, drove in a closed car up a palm-lined avenue to government House.

Dense crowds almost halted the procession at several points and police again used clubs to force back surging Mauritians at the gates of the Government House.

The princess will spend three days in Mauritius before sailing Monday to the island of Zanzibar.

Ruthless Chiselers Robbing Public of Millions of Dollars By High-Pressure Scare Tactics

WASHINGTON (AP) — In 1302 A.D., King John of England decreed that any baker who cheated on weight should be "drawn upon a hurdle . . . through the streets which are most dirty, the false loaf hanging from his neck."

But cheating in food is still big business.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration says ruthless chiselers are robbing the public of millions of dollars a year by outright swindles and high-pressure scare tactics.

It would be unfair, of course, to suggest that fast-buck hustlers and fly-by-night operators reflect any considerable part of the huge food and drug industry. Most established firms are scrupulously honest.

Was that pepper you sprinkled on your breakfast eggs this morning? The FDA has found instances of pepper mixed with cheap grains of paradise, the pungent seeds of a West African plant.

Ate a turkey ever shrink like a snowball in July a few minutes after you popped it into the oven?

FDA inspectors not long ago tracked down a gang of Chicago racketeers using a novel method of "force feeding" freshly killed turkeys—with water. The gypsters took a king-size hypodermic needle, hooked it up to a garden hose, turned on the water and gave each bird four hefty "shots" just before quick-freezing them for market.

The treatment magically transformed skinny birds into plump beauties. Housewives who bought them paid 69 cents a pound for two extra pounds of water injected into the meat.

Other recent examples of cheating turned up by FDA sleuths included bootleg butter padded with oleomargarine, green-dyed corn mixed with coffee beans, and cheap fish misbranded as expensive varieties.

PROFIT BY FRIGHT

Even worse than such brazen frauds, as viewed by FDA officials, is a class of diet-fad promoters and self-styled nutritionists who attempt to frighten consumers into believing there is widespread malnutrition.

"By scarefattist prices, common mixtures of vitamins and minerals, virtuous enough in their own limited right, are peddled as boons to mankind, and worthless nostrums are extolled as life savers," an official said.

There is a legion of charlatans and medical quacks who peddle phony "uranium" blankets, "cosmic ray" lockets, "atomic" health machines and a host of other devices labelled as sure-fire remedies for everything from black widow spider bite to cancer.

"A quack cancer clinic treated more than 8,000 patients in two years. As medicine, it used an alleged 'secret formula' which we analyzed as containing prickly ash bark, red clover blossoms and cascara—utterly worthless for curing cancer."

VULCAN BOMBER CRASH MAJOR BLOW TO BRITISH AVIATION

A major blow to British military aviation was the crash of the highly rated Vulcan bomber at London airport on a trip from Australia. The big ship, largest delta-winged bomber in the world and the most powerful weapon in Britain's offensive arsenal, exploded and plunged to the ground as it neared the airport runway. It had completed 26,000 miles in the air in the trip to Australia and back. (Central Press Canadian.)

RAF Court Commences Probe Into Crash of Vulcan Bomber

One of two survivors in the crash was Sir Harry Broadhurst, chief of Britain's bomber command, and the ship's captain, Wg. Cmdr. Donald Howard. Four others were killed. Ejector seats saved the two survivors.

Cyprus Terror Has Claimed 205 Lives, 799 Hurt

NICOSIA (Reuters)—A total of 205 persons have died and 799 others have been injured since the outbreak of terrorism and violence on Cyprus 18 months ago, figures published today show.

The statistics, based on official reports made after each incident since the anti-British campaign began April 1, 1955, show that 180 persons were killed by members of the EOKA terrorist organization and that 21 terrorists, suspects, and rioters were killed by British troops.

In addition, eight Cypriots were hanged for terrorist attacks, six Cypriots died in Greek-Turk clashes, and four terrorists died from explosions of their own bombs.

Sixty-one of those killed were British, 53 of them servicemen and two of them women.

HALF BRITISH

Of the 799 injured, 363 were British servicemen hurt in shootings, ambushes, bombings and forms of violence. Thirty-six other British civilians were hurt while 60 Cypriots, including 28 Turkish Cypriots, were injured.

A total of 201 Greek Cypriots have been convicted on charges arising from EOKA activities, their prison sentences totalling 5334 years. In addition, 30 Cypriots' death sentences have been sentenced to life imprisonment.

More than 200 other Greek Cypriots have been detained as suspected terrorists and are being held in detention camps. Those being held include priests, policemen, doctors, teachers, merchants, trade unionists, students and workers.

A further 85 Cypriot Communist leaders are also being held in detention under the present emergency regulations.

SPAIN HAILS FRANCO

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: This morning a band of scattered showers and isolated thunderstorms extends from James Bay to Lake Michigan. The low-pressure system behind this persistent weather is only one of a series of weak weather disturbances moving across the continent. These disturbances are travelling eastward at 30 to 34 knots apart.

Variable cloudiness with scattered showers and isolated thunderstorms will prevail most of the day throughout the province, but clearing will take place this evening and tonight. Wednesday should be mainly sunny in southern regions.

Except for temporary warming today in extreme southern Ontario, changes in temperature elsewhere is expected throughout the province. Winds will be light everywhere.

LONDON (Reuters) — A Royal Air Force court of inquiry began here today into Monday's crash at London airport of the giant jet bomber Vulcan on its return from a record-breaking flight to Australia and New Zealand.

Four men were killed.

The two survivors, Air Marshal Sir Harry Broadhurst, command-in-chief of bomber command, and the pilot, Sqdn. Ldr. Donald Howard, are expected to give evidence at today's preliminary hearing. They escaped from the crashing plane by use of ejector seats.

An air ministry spokesman said statement will probably be issued at the end of the private inquiry. It might be given in the House of Commons when Parliament reassembles in three weeks' time.

Gangs of workmen were still clearing heaps of twisted metal from one of the airport runways this morning as newspaper aviation reports were demanding answers to questions arising from the disaster, which no one says should never have happened.

The reamalgamation of the £1-000,000 four-jet plane, the Hawker Siddeley Group and A. V. Roe Limited, said Monday night that parts of its undercarriage had been found in a ploughed field several hundred yards from the aircraft, indicating that it had touched down too soon.

Some of the questions being asked are:

1. Why was this still-secret military plane brought to such a busy civil airport?

2. Why was it not diverted to another airfield as were three Russian jet airliners which brought the Bolshoi Theatre Ballet company at about the same time?

3. Why did only the pilot and co-pilot have ejector seats?

4. Why did not the other four men aboard try to bail out?

Suez Canal Users' Committee Meets

The council was set up immediately after the association was established at the London conference which began here Monday. Sheikh Hassan el Baquri Pakistan, who are at the discussions as observers, have not joined the association.

The council also set up committees to deal with technical shipping problems and finance matters.

STORMS HIT LONDON

LONDON (Reuters) — Freak storms dislocated road and rail traffic in many parts of London Monday. Lightning struck a power line in Kensington, setting off a fire which "level off" at 9,500.

The only thing causing concern is the danger of inflation," he said.

Taku Tillie, Moose With Sweet Tooth, Refuses to Return to Nature

Tillie, apparently an abandoned twin, was brought out of the wilderness to Taku Lodge last May. Now she won't give up the company of tourists and sportsmen-or the sweets and bread they feed her.

Tillie became a nonpaying guest and an unofficial greeter for visitors. Now she sleeps on the porch, nuzzles up to guests for food and loses down to the landing dock to be first on hand when float planes land with visitors.

Residents say Taku Tillie is the only tame moose they ever heard of. Tillie will go just about anywhere with people—except back to the woods.

And that may show Tillie to be a moose with moxie. Hunters have shot about a dozen moose in the Taku Lodge vicinity this season. In May, 1955, for the surgery.

Labor Congress Says Canada Can Afford Two TV Networks

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada can afford two national television networks and the development of color TV, the Canadian Labor Congress said today before the royal commission on broadcasting.

But a brief from the 1,000,000-member organization said this would depend on the CBC remaining in the dominant position and added that private broadcasters cannot finance TV on a national network scale without reducing the quality of programs.

The congress also proposed strengthening the finances of the CBC through parliamentary grants up to perhaps $130,000,000 a year for TV as the number of homes with television expand.

Currently, the grants might go to $60,000,000 a year for the type of activities the CBC carries on against the $30,000,000-a-year rate at which the CBC now is spending money on TV.

The CBC now is financed mainly from a 15-per-cent excise tax and tax on radio and TV receiving sets, but is looking for long-range financing through parliamentary votes.

The labor congress suggested Parliament lay down a legislative standard of amounts the government must turn over annually to the CBC, based on some factor such as population.

This, the congress said, would ensure that the CBC be kept clear of the political influence of the government in power.

Meanwhile, the Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters—spokesman for the 56 of the privately-owned stations—took the labor congress to task on several points of a CLC brief delivered when the commission opened its public hearings here last spring.

The association submission was made public Monday.

The CARTB said the CLC brief's recommendations against private broadcasters' proposals, for such things as an independent regulatory board of radio and TV and for more private-station freedom to form networks, are not in the best interests of unbiased service. The association also challenged the right of the CLC leadership to speak for the congress membership generally on the points at issue.

In the main brief of five it has submitted for consideration at the final sittings, the CARTB called for an expanded role for private radio and TV and re-emphasized its earlier contention that the regulation of the CBC and operating functions of the CBC should be restricted.

Under present circumstances" the association said, "the state broadcasting service is operating towards a concentration of size, wealth and power significant enough to upset the safeguards represented by elective governments."

The association accused the CBC of trying to build up a broadcasting empire by getting away from answering to Parliament annually should it have long-range financing.

Stevenson Challenges Ike To Renounce H-Bomb Tests

WASHINGTON (AP)—Adlai Stevenson has challenged President Eisenhower to "take the leadership" in banning hydrogen bomb tests.

The proposal came in the wake of a slashing campaign attack on Eisenhower Monday night on Stevenson and the Democratic majority in the Congress.

Eisenhower also forecast, in a major address at Cleveland, that a continued prosperity "will more than 70,000,000 jobs at good wages" if he is re-elected.

Stevenson's renewal of his earlier proposal that the president take the lead in banning H-bomb tests came in an address prepared for delivery at the Fairleigh Dickenson University campus at Teaneck, N.J., and made available to the press in advance.

"The responsibility of such tests is a step which I think the great powers are now willing to take—but there is leadership. We thirst direction," Stevenson said.

Eisenhower returned to Washington after speeches in Cleveland and Lexington. Stevenson headed today for an eight-speech tour of New Jersey.

this:

"We all know that there are people who suffer from living in a world of words and phrases for which they no longer recognize action when they see it."

Before Stevenson spoke, candidates also were chasing votes on Monday and today. Democrat President Nixon scheduled appearances in Hartford, Conn.; Manchester, N.H., and Boston. Democratic vice-president candidate Estes Kefauver was booked for Roseville, Mich., Los Angeles and Albuquerque, in New Mexico.

Waco, Tex., Monday night, Kefauver said Eisenhower "is too busy trying to win an election with sunshine and smiles to do anything effective to help small farmers and ranchers hard pressed by drought."

He told a Houston told a TV audience that Stevenson's domestic affairs "are no concern of mine" and "should not be a proper issue in the campaign."

Kefauver's reference to Stevenson's divorced status was made when Mrs. Ruth Murray, president of the Federation of Republican Women of Wisconsin, asked Nixon to discuss the official White House hostess if the Democratic nominee became president.

Algerian Rebels Attack Farms, Troops

ALGIERS (AP)—Nationalist rebels attacked European farms, machine-gunned a train and ambushed a unit of French troops in Algeria during the last 24 hours, as high French officials began talking more pessimistically about the course of the rebellion.

The nationalists, who began their uprising 23 months ago, continue to concentrate their attacks in the area of this capital city. Since Sunday eight persons have died in the second more than 40 have been wounded.

Most Moslem converts kept their children from school again today for the second day of the fall uprising in Algiers as a protest against the French administration.

The train between Souk Ahras and Bone, in eastern Algeria, was attacked as it entered a tunnel. Rebels bidden in bushes near the tunnel mouth opened up with machine-guns. A young French soldier, on his way home for discharge, was killed.

About 35 miles south of Sebdou, in western Algeria, rebels ambushed a patrol, killing one soldier and capturing five.

Sailboat Sighted Drifting Empty In Mid-Ocean

NEW YORK (CP)—A sailboat belonging to two Toronto boating enthusiasts attempting to sail to Britain has been sighted drifting empty in mid-ocean, the United States Coast Guard reports.

The captain of the liner America found the derelict Sept. 22 and could discover no sign of either of the occupants, Al Battersby, 29, and Bert Smith, 36. The two left Montreal June 14 in the 26-foot sailboat Orenda. After a leak developed they returned to North Sydney for repairs and started out from there Sept. 1.

Capt. Frederick Fender of the America said he expect to reach Lizard Point. Lizard is the turned his ship about to inspect the drifting sailboat.

A—heavy swell prevented the lowering of a boat to investigate more closely.

Capt. Fender reported the mast of the sailboat had been damaged. The mainsail and the foresail were trailing in the water. The tiller had been lashed. A line spokesman said during storms it is common practice to lash the tiller of a small vessel and go below to ride out the blow.

TREAT ATOM VICTIMS

Princess Sails For Spice Island Of Zanzibar

PORT LOUIS, Mauritius (Reuters) — Princess Margaret today sailed westward across the Indian Ocean for the spice-bearing island of Zanzibar, off the East African coast.

She left Port Louis Monday night in the royal yacht Britannia on a three-day visit during which the town was gay with flags and bunting for one of the biggest occasions in its history.

Highlight of the farewell scene was the explosion at three harbour-side points of 15,000 pounds of sun-dried army rations, buried there night into day with blinding tropical rain.

The royal yacht is due off Zanzibar Friday morning.

Princess Margaret labbold Daily Mirror has lashed out at the "big-heads" who, it says, "have clammy hands on the visit of Princess Margaret to the island of Mauritius."

In an editorial headed "will they ever learn?" the mass circulation paper says: "The princess was on Mauritius for 36 hours. In that time she spoke to not one single ordinary member of the public and was shy about five bouquets."

Instead, "local dignitaries were wheeled into place to meet her. Officialdom, in large lumps, was propped up in the presentation lines to greet her.

"The workers, housewives, ordinary folk, were kept out."

JOHN DIEFENBAKER GAINS SUPPORT FOR PC LEADER

Executive to Choose Convention Site

OTTAWA (CP)—A drive was on in the Conservative hierarchy today to steer John Diefenbaker to the party leadership, and it appeared possible that his closest rival, George Hees, may step aside to maintain party unity.

As the party's national executive met to pick a time and place for a leadership convention, it became evident that most key members strongly favor Mr. Diefenbaker, 61-year-old Saskatchewan lawyer, to succeed Hon. George Drew.

Hees close to Mr. Hees, 46-year-old Toronto businessman and former National Conservative Association president, said the member for Toronto Broadview may sacrifice his personal ambitions "because he is a team worker and wants to work with the team."

However, they felt that if Mr. Hees withdrew it would be hard to party consideration to make him party leader so that he might possibly step up to the leadership at some future time.

There was no indication that Mr. Diefenbaker, member for Prince Albert, would agree to such bargaining. There has as yet been no official declaration of candidates. Diefenbaker and other possible candidates are Donald Fleming, Sl. Toronto Eglinton, and Davie Fulton, 40, Kamloops, B.C.

DIEFENBAKER POPULAR

Mrs. Diefenbaker's popularity began showing at Monday's four-hour caucus of Commons members.

Mr. Diefenbaker has been a Commons member since 1940; Mr. Hees since 1950. Mr. Diefenbaker first sought a seat in 1925; Mr. Hees in 1949.

The time and place of the convention is expected when the second week of December, is to be decided by the executive. The choice is between Winnipeg and Ottawa.

Mr. Diefenbaker's edge was reported to have been shown during the four-hour caucus. He was attended by 47 of the arty's 53 Commons members. The caucus reflected the party's first loss. Dufferin — Simcoe, as acting leader, and Mr. Diefenbaker as leader of the party. Mr. Drew who resigned two weeks ago because of ill health.

Only two party members at the caucus felt the convention should be held as soon as possible.

About 1,300 voting delegates would be expected. Each sitting member of the House of Commons, Each of Canada's ridings, covering the 10 provinces and two territories, can send three voting delegates and three alternates.

Other convention votes are allocated to party senators and members of provincial legislatures, provincial party leaders, members of the national executive, and representatives of the national conservative Association and party clubs all across Canada.

SITE IS FACTOR

The convention site also may have some effect on the choice of a new leader. Mr. Diefenbaker, the Conservative's strong man in the West, favors Winnipeg.

Holding the convention in Winnipeg, he feels, would be in an important issue." Those who support him say it will help him to win votes in the West, he is not made clear whether he favors Winnipeg because he thinks members in Eastern Canada want Ottawa as the site.

Six Children Slain By Gun, Axe In North Carolina

Hunted Father's Body Found In Woods With Gun Nearby

CLINTON, N.C. (AP)—Officers early today discovered six children slain by gun and axe in their humble tenant farm home, and several hours later their hunted father's body was found in woods nearby, a gun beside him.

Sampson County coroner Coleman Carter announced the finding of the body of the father, 34-year-old Rufus King.

Sheriff's deputies who went to the King home to serve a warrant charging assault on his wife found the children's bodies strewn about the blood-spattered home. One was in bed. Five were sprawled on the floor of the six-room frame dwelling.

YOUNGEST SHOT

Coroner Carter said a superficial examination showed that most of the children had been beaten with the butt of a rifle or with an axe. The youngest, two-year-old Susan, had been shot. All the others suffered compound fractures of the head.

"It's the terriblest thing that ever happened in this community," said Allen McCullen. He operates a store at Mt. Olivet, four miles from the King home and about 60 miles southeast of Raleigh in eastern North Carolina.

Mrs. King spent the night with relatives in Johnsonville, about seven miles from her home. Early today she signed a warrant charging her husband with assault. Deputy Sheriff Ira Hatch said he and other officers attempting to serve the warrant looked through the windows and saw the bodies.

Russian Pilot Takes Vessel Through Suez

PORT SAID, Egypt (Reuters)—A Russian pilot took a ship through the Suez Canal unaided for the first time today.

Four Russians, training as pilots under the Egyptian Canal Authority, wrote their examinations Monday. A spokesman said that all four passed and would begin work on the first convoys today.

Earlier today reliable sources said the director of the Egyptian canal company, Mahmoud Badawi, was en route to the United States to discuss a $56,000,000 canal development plan with American firms.

The sources added that Badawi planned to use $15,000,000 received in compensation for the Suez Canal Company's assets to finance the project.

Two more American sea captains arrived in Port Said today to start training as canal pilots. Egypt has passed the test of Englishmen, who asked that his name be kept secret, also applied for a pilot's license.

SUPER SABRE CRASHES

THE HAGUE (Reuters) — A United States Air Force pilot parachuted to safety near Oisterhout, Southern Holland, Monday before his F-100C Super-Sabre jet fighter crashed. Lieut. R. M. Mohammed pulled the lever on his ejector seat and shot out of the plane after vainly trying to work the controls.

Professor of Philosophy Pokes Fun At Fear of U.S. Cultural Imperialism

OTTAWA (CP)—United States "cultural imperialism" has become a bogey to some Canadians, says Dr. Marcus Long, associate professor of philosophy at the University of Ottawa.

In a brief prepared for final hearings of the broadcasting royal commission, he pokes fun at the idea that Canadians will lose their Canadian viewpoint unless guarded against U.S. programs, particularly on television.

The brief, supporting the Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters, attacks one delivered earlier by the Canadian Radio and Television League.

The league bore down hard in its submission on the idea that American interests could take over Canadian thought on the airwaves unless there was stiff regulation from Ottawa.

Dr. Long scoffed at the league's suggestion that finances of the publicly-owned CBC should be put on a permanent footing "for the same national purposes as appropriations are made for the armed services."

'Rescued' Child Just Sleepy Doctor Finds

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—The teacher in the first grade at Ralph Street school quickly called police Monday when she saw a six-year-old child climb up over her desk.

Police, a rescue squad and a doctor answered the emergency call. The doctor drove the child home to complete the rescue mission and a relative reported nothing wrong with her.

"She was tired and fell asleep," the doctor said.

British Vessel Runs Aground In Suez Canal

PORT SAID, Egypt (AP)—The British freighter Kenbrik went aground in the Suez Canal about seven miles south of Port Said today, delaying passage of southbound ships through the vital waterway.

The Egyptian canal administration immediately dispatched tugs to the scene of the mishap to disengage the 2,270-ton freighter and free traffic in the canal.

It was the first time a ship has gone aground in the canal since Egyptian pilots took over the piloting duties over two weeks ago. Officials of the canal administration said they hope to be able to bring the Kenbrik out in the entire channel is open again and free traffic.

The Kenbrik was part of a convoy of 14 ships which left Port Said at 2 a.m. Another nine ships left Port Said about four and 14 were en route to the Mediterranean from Suez.

Thurlow Official Explains Point On Annexation

Co-operation extended by officials of Thurlow township to officials of Belleville officials in the gathering of data submitted to the city council in support of annexation in connection with annexation proposals "does not necessarily mean" that these Thurlow officials "feel that annexation is in the best interests of the people living in the area of the township, Reeve Denyes said.

Mr. E. M. Dafoe, clerk-treasurer and tax collector for Thurlow township, makes this point in a letter to the editor of the Ontario Intelligencer.

"We notice in your report of the recent meeting of the city council concerning proposed annexation that Mr. Denyes is quoted as having said 'officials of both townships realized that it was necessary for the city to expand to properly plan for a growing sub-urban area,' writes Mr. Dafoe.

"This deduction is certainly not correct in the case of Thurlow at least, and I know I can speak for Thurlow officials when I say that the fact that co-operation was extended to the city by assessment and welfare administrator did not or does not necessarily mean that we, the Thurlow officials, feel that annexation is in the best interests of the people living in the area of the township concerned. The information given to the above city representatives was simply what any ratepayer is entitled to and so far as the annexation of the area is concerned no opinion was expressed as to its advisability or not.

"We would appreciate very much if you could find room in your valuable paper to print this letter as we feel there may have been a wrong impression left with a number of people."

Past President Outlines Ideals, Objects of Rotary

Guest speaker at Rotary yesterday was past president Hazel Kemp who is also chairman of the Rotary Information Committee.

Mr. Mott said that Paul Lang, president of Rotary International has suggested that all clubs re-acquaint their members with the ideals and objects of Rotary. In his opening remarks the speaker referred to the aims of the organization.

Rotary was first started on February 23, 1905, by Paul Harris, a young lawyer who thought up the idea of a club to promote a bond of common fellowship and understanding among business and professional men all over the world. Mr. Lang, and a tailor, an engineer and a coal dealer were the only members of the first Rotary club in Chicago. But Paul Harris's aims began to rub off on other men and other communities. In 1908 the Chicago club boasted a new member — a printer.

Two years later a second Rotary club was organized in San Francisco and in 1909 a third club began in Oakland. The first Rotary club at Oakland was the first Rotary body to establish regular weekly meetings. A club was then set up at Winnipeg and by 1911 there were 16 clubs in the British Isles. Five years later Rotary had spread to the non - English speaking countries of the world.

"The object of Rotary," said Mr. Mott, "is to encourage and foster the ideal of service."

He said that for years Belleville Rotary had supported a Crippled Children's Committee and had been responsible for the betterment of city and district children to fit themselves for the battle of life as normal life. Also, a few years ago Belleville Rotary undertook to sponsor and finance the Summartown mobile clinic which has contributed greatly to the benefit of many afflicted persons in the area.

These are only two of the many services rendered by the city club, he said, and all its projects are financed purely by contributions from the club itself or donations from its members.

MEMBERSHIP UNIQUE

"Membership in Rotary is unique," said Mr. Mott. One member of each profession or business in a community is taken into the club. "Rotary," he said, "is not an exclusive club but rather it is inclusive because it provides a cross section of men from many fields thus eliminating any possibility of cliques."

There is no need for a present member to worry about losing his membership when he retires from business. He can still be a member if he has been in a Rotary club for a total of five years.

Senior active membership is available to men who have served a minimum of 15 years in Rotary. Mr. Mott suggested that when the time comes for each member to take advantage of the opportunity of becoming a senior active member.

There is one great advantage of being such a member: membership to a certain club will still be in effect if and when that member decides to move his residence away from the district that that club provided he keeps up his attendance and dues.

In conclusion Mr. Mott outlined briefly how a candidate for admission to Rotary is chosen. The name of a prospective member is submitted by a sponsor to the board who study it and then pass it on to the classification committee. If there is a vacancy in that classification the committee studies the candidate's merits then they pass their remarks back to the board who in turn notify the sponsor of the acceptance or rejection of the candidate. Finally the candidate is notified that he has been favorably considered for membership and he gives his permission to have his name included in the club bulletin. Then, when he pays his first dues, he is a member of Rotary.

Evening Classes Will Help Many to Raise Earning Power

In explaining the purposes of the Evening Classes which commenced last night at the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, Principal E. A. Orr said that more than 800 entrants will participate with a view to furthering their ability and earning power in various commercial, technical and home craft courses.

Mr. Orr, who is in charge of the evening classes, said these classes are designed to assist both people preparing themselves for future employment and those employed or holders desiring to advance their ambitions through the attainment of greater skill and knowledge.

The evening hours have been chosen to facilitate the attendance of people who are otherwise employed in the day time.

The BCIVS principal remarked that attendance at these classes had been somewhat stimulated by those students who, for various reasons, were unable to attend high school and had found from subsequent experience that further education was necessary to obtain a desirable type of work and for continued advancement in salaried positions.

Mr. Orr was particularly complimentary when talking about the progress of new students in the learn-to-speak English course. "These people show the results of hard work and application which seems to be part and parcel of their background," he observed.

CHANGE IN CURRICULUM

When asked what he considered to be the greatest change in the regular high school curriculum during the past thirty years, the Belleville educationist replied that "the most notable advance is a trend towards a more flexible and versatile choice of courses and subjects, enabling students to develop their talents to maximum advantage. We have been somewhat more conservative than the Americans in making some basic subjects obligatory. A child may take courses including general, commercial, home economics, technical and agricultural subjects every student to adapt himself or herself most nearly to their needs according to his or her ability, desire and ambition."

Touching on the highly publicized complaint that Canada is not obtaining enough engineers, physicians and scientists for the machine age, Mr. Orr was inclined to agree with the statement and in this paper stressing that the demand for such trained minds had increased beyond all anticipation while the personal preference of the students was for preparing themselves for medicine, law, business, commerce and similar professions has remained constant. "Times change a great deal more than human nature," Mr. Orr observed.

Are today's students more advanced than those of yesterday? Mr. Orr replied that partially so. "I believe our students are considerably more sure of themselves and confident of their ability to perform under variety of assignments. Enforcement of the 15-year-old leaving age and almost 100 per cent attendance of public school graduates in high schools naturally includes many students whose less than average ability would have discouraged them carrying on past public school in the past. Despite this more general representation, past average marks have been fairly well retained indicating real progress in the overall standard of education," Mr. Orr noted.

On the debit side, Mr. Orr regretted that nearly 50 per cent of high school entrants fail to complete high school. "Many of these could well do do do not realize the full importance of this failure until they encounter the rising demand of industry for highly educated employees," he said.

People requiring further education find that the assistance they require to advance their careers through the course of study offered in the approaching evening classes, Mr. Orr said.

ATTENDANCE WILL GROW

"Adult education is growing," "what is the greatest anticipated change in school life?" Mr. Orr said: "The answer is that we will be vastly increased attendance of high school graduates. The peculiar situation which has produced multiple attendance in public school will end as building programs for this purpose has not been duplicated as yet at the high school and college level. The tremendous increase of public school attendance in the past few years will thus new generation was born in the post-war era and the peculiarly high birth rate prevailing while the under average birth rate of the depression years when all college and most high school students were those who held attendance in these institutions at a constant level despite a rise of population.

Within the next few years graduation of the part of this generation become eligible for secondary and collegiate education a general expansion of facilities similar to that which has taken place in public schools will be necessary at all levels.

In connection with Mr. Orr's observations it is interesting to note that other authorities have estimated that a four-fold increase of college facilities alone involving an expenditure of one and a half billion dollars in buildings and equipment.

Fire Department Members Will Take Course

A 20-week instructional program aimed at training members from other departments to act as instructors in the Fire Service Training, is scheduled to get underway at the Fire Hall at Belleville this evening.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance, District Fire Co-ordinator, said that two members from each fire department in Hastings and Prince Edward counties would attend the course. Instructions will be given each Tuesday evening for the next four months.

The instructional course has been ordered by the Ontario Fire Service as part of a mutual aid program designed to equip departments to give mutual aid in times of emergency.

The instruction received at the Belleville course will in turn make it possible for those taking the instruction to teach fire fighting techniques to other members of their departments.

TORONTO STOCKS

Believed Convict Abandoned Car in City, Stole Another

The search for Robert E. Wood, 27, of Toronto, prisoner missing from the Kingston penitentiary since Sunday, spread to all parts of the province today after a car stolen two blocks from the penitentiary was found abandoned in Belleville Monday afternoon.

The Kingston car was found abandoned on Field street at mid-afternoon, while Sunday night a car was reported stolen from Great St. James street.

This morning police learned that the license plates on the car stolen on Great St. James street had been switched with those on a car owned by Allan Steele of 362 Stokes street.

SERVING 24 YEARS

Wood, serving 24 years for a series of bank robberies, disappeared Sunday from the penitentiary after a sports program. Person officials searched the grounds without finding Wood and police are now of the opinion he may have been smuggled out of the grounds in a garbage truck.

Police are working on the theory that the fugitive has headed west in the second automobile stolen at Belleville which apparently carries switched licence plates to throw officers off the trail. Belleville police car was checked late yesterday afternoon by a Kingston police car as ascertain if there were any of Wood's fingerprints.

OWNED BY DOCTOR

The car stolen from Kingston was owned by a Dr. White who had parked near the penitentiary leaving the keys inside. When the Kingston car was located the keys were still in the ignition of the front seat.

Monday night Kenneth Powers of Trenton told police that his car had been stolen from where it had been left parked on Great St. James street.

Police in Belleville today disclaimed any knowledge of a Canadian Press report that Wood had been seen in Belleville wearing women's clothing.

"We don't know anything about that" stated Chief Walter Probert.

Truck Struck By CNR Freight At Anson

Magley Smith, 47, Belleville trucker, escaped injury early this morning when the truck he was driving was struck and slightly damaged by a C.N.R. freight at Anson, west of Stirling.

The truck came over a hill near the track with Mr. Smith failing to see the northbound train until he was near the crossing. He applied his brakes and swung to the side with result that the train only struck the rear fender.

This morning on a concession road near Plainfield a bull owned by Art Huskins got loose from its pasture and emerged out of a ditch in front of a car driven by Finlay Park, R.R. 1, Plainfield. The animal was injured and was to be slaughtered this morning.

Lightning Bolt Split Chimney Of Church

TRENTON (special) — A bolt of lightning during a sudden electrical storm which swept over the town just before noon today split a chimney on St. Andrew's Presbyterian church and sent bricks showering over the Lange and Fetter parking lot below.

Town firemen were called to the scene and although there was no smell of burning inside the church no fire was discovered.

A line of cars on the parking lot had been moved a short time before the storm.

St. Andrew's Church was badly damaged by fire about seven years ago and was restored at a cost of over $50,000. The new minister at St. Andrew's is Rev. M. C. McLelland.

Robert Wood, serving a 24-year sentence for bank robbery, is missing at Kingston penitentiary. Prison officers could not say what happened to him but admit he did not answer roll call and could not be found within the prison walls. It is believed he stole a car near the prison and came to Belleville where the car was abandoned.

Five Stirling Stores Entered, Loot About $200

A lock-picking expert who apparently had no trouble in mastering steel door locks is five places of business in the village of Stirling escaped with an undetermined amount of cash and merchandise.

This morning when store owners or employees at Majestic Cleaners, Noble's Drug Store, Harry Francis Sell-Rite Store; Mrs. Art Stevenson's Ladies' Wear Store, and Merrick's Meat Market, opened for business, it was found that all premises had been entered during the night.

At Noble's drug store about $60 in cash and a number of cigaret lighters and lighter compacts were taken, while an unsuccessful attempt had also been made to remove the safe's strainer.

At Merrick's Meat Market the cash register was removed from the store and was found abandoned on the grounds of the high school. About $30 in silver was said missing.

Mr. Merrick said the drawer of his cash register had been pried open. Police are checking it for fingerprints.

Jordan's Story Is Accepted By Commission

JERUSALEM (AP)—Despite an Israeli walkout, the Israel-Jordan mixed armistice commission has accepted Jordan's story that an attack on an Israeli archeological meeting was carried out by a mentally deranged Jordanian soldier.

The Israeli delegation quit the commission meeting before the vote Monday. The United Nations chairman, Norwegian Col. Christian Moen, joined the Jordan delegate in recovering the resolution fixing the blame on the bi-partisan meeting.

Four Israelis were killed and 16 wounded in the shooting Sept. 28 at Ramat Rachel, near Jerusalem where several hundred members of an archeological congress were inspecting ancient ruins. Two days later Israeli forces killed 38 Jordanians in a retaliation raid.

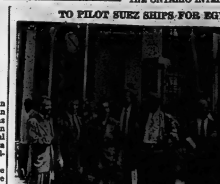
The Israelis claim several Jordanian soldiers were seen firing at the archeologists from a border outpost.

ARABS DRAFT PROTEST

Officials of Israel's four Arab neighbors conferred in Beirut to draft a protest to the UN Security Council about the Israeli retaliatorial raid. A spokesman said the representatives of Egypt, Jordan, Syria and Jordan discussed "joint measures to be taken to face Israeli attacks."

Moshe Sharett, Israel's former foreign minister who is touring the Far East, said in Manila that Israel has lost faith in the UN as an agency for enforcing peace in the Middle East.

"The Arab nations are bent on obliterating the Jewish nation," he asserted. That is why Israel must strengthen herself and be ever watchful."



Civil Servants Move to Bar Embassy Members

OTTAWA (CP)—The 24-member board of directors of the Civil Service Association of Canada on Wednesday night will consider an executive recommendation to bar all embassy officials from association membership.

The chairman executive made the recommendation Monday after studying a report from the association's chess club on the expulsion from Canada of a club member, Gerhardt Flogel, accused secretary at the Russian Embassy.

Popov and James Stanley Staples, 30-year-old former RCAF employee, met during sessions of the chess club. Staples says Popov tried to get secret information from him.

Staples later was released as a poor security risk, and Popov was ordered out of the country.

Judo Team Will Demonstrate Art at 'Y'

A sport which is increasing in popularity in Canada is the gentleman's lightning-swift, bare-handed, hand-and-hand combat called Judo, a version of Jujitsu only with the bone-breaking movements removed.

Mr. Hatashita is one man a person looking for a fight would be wise to avoid. From 1945 to 1948 he was a Judo expert and holds a 3rd Dan—a degree of the Black Belt.

The expert is considered one of few Canadians thoroughly versed in the sport. He has formed and conducts the Hatashita Judo Club in Toronto which has an enrolment of about 250 students, is open seven days a week, 30 hours a day. Mr. Hatashita also runs the Ukee Canadian champion of judo.

Saturday night's demonstration was planned by the local 'Y' for the purpose of starting a Judo Athletic club in Belleville. Boys train children and adult men and women in the art of self-defence. The local club will be called the Hatashita Judo Club of Belleville and will be under the auspices of the YMCA.

Not only will judo be taught as self-defence but it will provide an entertaining sport during the long winter months. But don't expect to get a Black Belt in one year. It takes several years of hard and intensive training before a student is qualified to wear the belt.

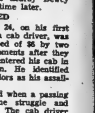
Two Canadian Sailors Drowned Trying to Escape

BOSTON (AP) — Two Canadian sailors early today leaped into a deep Boston Harbor channel in what police described as a futile attempt to escape capture in the $6 robbery of a cab driver.

Booked on suspicion of unarmed robbery were Jean Jacques Lalonde, 21, of Gatineau Point, Que., and Robert Hicks, 20, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., both crew members of the destroyer HMCS Nootka.

One of the pair, identified as Hicks, was pulled from the water while clinging to a cluster of bridge pilings in the channel near the South Station railroad terminal.

The other was apprehended dripping wet on nearby Dewey Square a short time later.



HERTS—BORERS

Paul Mitchell, 24, on his first night's duty as a cab driver, was beaten and robbed of $6 by two sailors a few moments after they hailed him and entered his cab in downtown Boston. He identified the Canadian sailors as his assailants.

The sailors fled when a passing motorist saw the struggle and stopped his car. The cab driver and the motorist soon were joined by other civilians and police in the search for the pair.

When the two men were cornered in the parkings they jumped into the water as their only escape route, police said.

The air temperature at the time was 47 degrees.

TROUBLE IN SOUTH KOREA

The attempt to assassinate the vice-president of South Korea, Chang Myun, serves to focus attention on a fact which all too frequently has escaped our attention.

President Syngman Rhee is certainly an staunch anti-Communist, being pro-American does not in itself guarantee that one is a true democrat. Hitler, too, was an anti-Communist. That statement is made without any intention of interfering with Rhee is like Hitler. There has been disturbing evidence, though, that Rhee is not above using strong-arm tactics to quiet his opponents.

At South Korea's election last May, Rhee was an easy victory in his campaign for re-election as president. It was a personal triumph for Korea's "grand old man," a tribute to his militant patriotism and his courage and leadership during the war against the Communists. But South Koreans did not think that their admiration for Rhee in his long struggle, first against the Japanese and later against the Reds, required them to provide him with a dictatorship as the price of his works. They solved their problem neatly by re-electing Rhee, but decisively defeating his candidate for the vice-presidency.

Thus South Korea's vice-president is a political foe of Rhee. If Rhee dies during his term of office, as he may well do since he is 81, Chang Myun will succeed to the presidency. This would be no smooth transition of power from one individual to another, such as occurred when Vice-President Harry Truman succeeded President F. D. Roosevelt in the U.S. in 1945, but will involve a turn-about in the policies advocated by the president of the nation. It is as if the U.S. in the coming election chose Eisenhower as president and Stefsauer as vice-president, or perhaps a Democratic group would be Adlai Stevenson in the presidential chair with Richard Nixon, of whom he can hardly be said to be an admirer, as his vice-president.

Assassination though Stevenson might be by having Nixon as his chief official aide and would-be successor, he would certainly not take steps to "purge" him. There is no proof that Rhee was in any way responsible for the attack on Chang Myun, but The Associated Press story concludes with the significant observation that Rhee has always been "extremely sensitive to political criticism" and that in the past toughs have assaulted opposition candidates.

In any event, the National Assembly had voted, 24 hours before the assassination attempt, to warn Chang against continuing his criticism of the administration. Imagine the House of Commons warning George Drew or M. J. Coldwell against criticizing the Liberals! Wouldn't any such warning have raised the already sky-high level of the political mercury during the pipeline debate?

THE NEW ELIZABETHAN ERA

Come to think of it, was it not rather foolish to expect that the mere fact that the throne was occupied by a woman of the same name would assure, or even encourage, a revival of past splendors?

These rather ridiculous expectations having failed to materialize, the Mirror is currently trying to pin the blame on the company the Queen and her consort keep at court.

"This," it says, "should have been the age when kings mixed with commoners, when the paraphernalia of protocol was swept aside, when pomp shaved off its whiskers and came down to the people."

One might think, from reading the Mirror's tirade, that the explorations of Raleigh and Drake had nothing to do with the recent discovery of the New World. That the plays of Shakespeare and Marlowe were not the product of the genius of men of genius, but were the direct result of good Queen Bess possessing the common touch.

In one sense, though, the Mirror was right. It is the commoners and not the court which set the permanent trademark on any age. Queen Bess is remembered because of Drake and Raleigh and Marlowe and Shakespeare, not they because of Queen Bess. If Britons today failed to provide the expected lustre for a "new Elizabethan era," the fault, if any, lies not in the court, but at the doorsteps of commoners. More reasonable would be the suggestion that the fault exists but that circumstances beyond the control of all have made this a different world from that of the first Elizabethan era.

FIRE COSTS US

A major forest fire in 1956 is fully 20 times more costly to the people of Ontario than would have been the case in our grandfathers' day, says Mayor C. H. Smale of Sault Ste. Marie.

At the present time a single acre of good pulpwood forest can be converted into $1,500 worth of pulp and paper products and the same acre can repeat its values time and time again. A century ago, Ontario's woodlands were in excess of the current need. (Forestry Association.)

THE "FOLDERS" WILL FEEL AT HOME

The United Nations Korean Reconstruction Agency is assisting in adding 1,500 acres of ricefields to Korea's arable land. These new acres are being wrested from the sea. Systematically dikes are being built along the west coast of Korea will be drained, to form a series of "polders" on the model familiar to travellers in the Netherlands.

The "polders" ought to feel right at home. The Communists can testify that President Rhee and his countrymen have an adequate supply of that traditional Dutch quality, stubber - - - pardon us, tenacity.

FAILURE

Failure is a teacher stern,
Punishing to make us learn,
Showing methods false, untrue,
Training youth what not to do.

"Start again," grim failure cries.
"Success is for the youth who tries."
Wiser than you were, are you,
Knowing what is wrong to do.

"I teach merchant, banker, clerk
Plans and ways that never work;
Crush their happy hopes, and then
Wait for them to try again.

If he wins; he's often failed.
Hard the struggle? Strength is Easy triumphs little mean."

Parking Problem Solution

By John Allan May writing from London in the Christian Science Monitor

I see that six members of the London and Home Counties Traffic Advisory Committee have returned home after spending three weeks studying the parking meters of Canada. They then come to the conclusion that although parking meters are probably a valuable contribution to London's parking problem they would not solve it. London has, after, if any meters.)

"All we saw and learned," the chairman Mr. Alexander Samuels, declared, "confirms our view that parking meters can and do play a very great part in controlling, to some extent the indiscriminate use of vehicles."

That is exactly the trouble with parking meters. They are merely other expedients for solving the traffic problems. They can do a good deal, but only to some extent.

What we need is a strategem that will do something but to a great extent.

Maybe the greatest impediment to a solution is the imported official picture of the parker. He is, for some reason, or none, seen as a wily, wealthy, antisocial character who has a positive passion for parking as near as possible. He is believed to have no business in the town. He just drives up there for the fun of it. He passes all the sensible parking places, searching in himself in his indiscriminate manner, and finally parks in the most crowded area he can find. He then goes away and leaves his car in all the way. And leaves his car in all the way. By train. I cannot think how else he fills his time.

But actually, we are parkers, know. The parker is quite a different bird altogether. He is certainly very nice and discriminating as they come. What he is looking for, honestly, is just a place to park.

The parker has quite probably come to town in the first place because in his circumstances that is the best way to come. He could walk to the office. Or he is going to meet Mrs. Parker later. Or he is going to see the dentist. Anyway He may even be a diplomat. I see that Mr. Maurice Metcalf, British Commissioner in Salisbury, Rhodesia, is fighting a battle claiming diplomatic immunity from meter fees.

But whatever his reasons for coming to town Mr. Parker does not usually wish to park his car for one moment longer than necessary. After, all he did not buy his car just to leave it by the side of the road. He bought it to drive in.

It is only because officialdom sees the parker as the driver in a two different people that confusion sets in. In fact they are the same person. The prime object of traffic control thus is to deal with a single issue: To keep the driver moving, moving and to keep the traffic in intentionally stationary stationary and out of the way.

Indiscriminate parking meterage can have the effect of keeping stationary traffic moving. This in turn helps to render moving traffic stationary. Thus is confusion more confounded. And Parker-Driver too.

May's law says: Traffic that is moving is always on the way to becoming stationary. That is most of the cars that you see going along until they get to their destination. Or as near as they be. Then they have to be parked.

Now a car that has 100,000 two-hour parking meters practically assures itself of 50,000 unnecessary walking movements per hour throughout the day. That is nearly half a million car journeys to nowhere in particular every working day. And a million if it should be one of those cities that keeps going round the clock. Tug some effect can be expected, and frequently is, by indiscriminate time regulations without all the expense and paraphernalia of meters.

Parking meters and time regulations are useful where a rapid turnover of clients is essential. Or where city authorities deliberately want more traffic in the streets than they have got already. They are also invaluable as a means of getting more revenue out of drivers. But they are not in themselves a solution to any traffic problem.

The best way out of the difficulty is not to penalize Mr. Driver for parking but to encourage him to get out of the road.

There is a free parking lot at Surbiton, Surrey. And although this for five months I have definitely established that it fills up more quickly at the middle-all-day parking lot next door. I have established also that if there are three such lots there would be no cars parked in the main streets of Surbiton at all.

Every traffic advisory committee should have framed on the wall of its office the motto: Kindness to motorists, my friend. Will be rewarded in the end.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

NEVER BE ANGRY!

Anger is one of mankind's greatest enemies. Its greatest punishment is to that superb gift from our Creator—the brain. The late Dr. Crile, one of the great of his profession, a Cleveland surgeon, in his many scientific books had this to say about anger: "When we are angry we have not our normal judgment, because the greater part is blocked off, and we are no more our complete selves than when, if ever, we are very drunk." And further he said: "Under anger or fear there occurs a destruction of brain cells that are but slowly repaired, and under stress of severe and prolonged emotion, the brain is permanently injured."

Anger never settles anything. It unsettles! It takes Nature and turns it backward. Nothing is so sensitive as the human mind. In anger it actually "loses its head." All through life we are met at times with someone who has perhaps worked us into a state of mind where we open up the throttle and allow our anger to do its worst. And that is exactly what it does—its worst, and its worst is the experience that no human should tempt. You keep that temper of yours. It may come handy some day in a normal manner.

Many a person has died in a fit of anger. The human heart is a strong brave organ, but there always comes a time when it refuses to stand too much abuse. On the other hand, cheerfulness and happiness have a most wholesome bearing upon health and the power of the mind. You can't be too kind to the body that houses your Soul! I am not a member of the Christian Science church, but I can understand its growth and power. Its sane belief urged to the body to me seems totally Christian. I think God must be happy over the way many treat their bodies—to emphasize its divinity

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Oct. 2nd., 1936

Over four thousand tourists registered at the local tourist camp on Dundas Street east during the past season. The camp will be officially closed this evening Saturday night. The records show that 880 automobiles entered the camp with tourists.

Mr. Jesse Harris, entered upon his duties as caretaker of the city hall 24 years ago yesterday.

From our file copy at this time in 1916 we learn that the contract, we are informed, will be closed within a week's time and the bylaw covering the contract will be submitted to the city council.

Mr. and Mrs. James Phillips of 9th. concession of Thurlow township celebrated the 50th. Golden Anniversary of their wedding on Tuesday last. They were married on September 28, 1886 by the Rev. R. W. Jarvis, Methodist minister, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Ross. Mr. and Mrs. Phillips have lived continuously on the farm since the time of their birthplace. Mrs. Phillips played the organ in Bethel United Church for over thirty five years and Mr. Phillips has been a member of the Church for many years and was leader of the church choir for many years. He was the president of the Zion Cheese Factory for a number of years and was also a member of the Belleville Cheese Board. Mr. and Mrs. Phillips during the afternoon of the anniversary received numerous congratulations and good wishes. Mr. and Mrs. Phillips received many beautiful presents. Their only child, Mrs. McGregor Easson of Ottawa, was with her parents on their happy anniversary day.

30 YEARS AGO

October 2nd., 1926

Lord Willingdon, the new Governor General arrived at Quebec yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Corrigan accompanied by their son, their father, have left for Chicago, Ill. Mr. Cornish, sr., will go on to Los Angeles California, where he will spend the winter with his daughter.

Mrs. H. A. Hoskings, Dundas street west, is visiting friends in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan McDonald of Valleyfield, Quebec, are the guests of the latter's cousin, Mrs. L. S. Wight, Hillside street.

Mr. William Pinkerton, student at the School of Practical Science, Toronto, was home to spend the week-end.

40 YEARS AGO

October 2nd., 1916

Mrs. R. M. Gilbert has left to visit friends in Winnipeg.

At a meeting of the city council a petition was presented asking for the paving of Bridge street east from Pinnacle street to McDonald Avenue. The petition was referred to the city clerk and the city assessor to ascertain if it is properly signed. It was recommended at the meeting that the paving of Pinnacle street be left until next year before I began telling the truth in public. This recommended him on his weekly operating day in the hospital. In rapid succession patients were wheeled out of the school children, already under anesthesia, for tonsillectomy. Next, because I was looking on, I assure you, for the nose and throat man didn't give — was he hooked into the throat of one patient, asked why the gauze was there, got no answer, as nobody seemed to know, and sent the patient back to the ward to bleed. Then he was told: "Must have got mixed in with the kids this morning," so social service worker had lined up for tonsil and adenoid operation.

Tonsils do not "grow back in," as his Michigan reader expresses it, though tonsil (or adenoid) tissue were malignant. This common notice, however, reflects the view many fast operators have taken and some still take of enlargement of the tonsils.

The tonsils of school children are normally large, very large in the late winter and early spring.

About the time that youngster got mixed in with the kids line, for operation" the late Dr. W. Barron of Addison, N. Y., reported in the N.Y. State Medical Journal that most of the pupils in a school had enlarged tonsils and school physician advised removal of the tonsils. However, the same children examined by the same physician after summer vacation, had normal tonsils. Fortunately for the kids, few parents had followed the school physician's advice. But with school children are blessed with sensible arents.

Parents of chool children should know:

1. The tonsils enlarge in the winter and shrink in the summer time.
2. The major operation known as tonsillectomy is not necessary and not justified for merely enlarged tonsils. The modern operation known as tonsillotomy—removing the offending tissue, usually removing the obstructing portion of tonsil — is satisfactory in about 75 per cent of adults, and no more dangerous than the removal of a tooth.
3. As for "getting every bit of tonsil," this is the irresponsible argument of the ignorant or dishonest operator. More or less tonsil tissue is left in the throat after most tonsillectomies. If necessary physician of standing questions, I'll cite the statistics.
4. Treatment of enlarged tonsils is seldom an emergency question. So I urge parents of school children to think it over when the screen school doctor, teacher or social service worker suggests that the child's tonsils should be removed. The best months for thinking it over are July and August. By that time school operations after vacation, if the kids have had a break, the best salesman in the doctor business probably be unable to sell you a major operation.

Gold Shields Atomic Plant

Chatham News

In these days, when the gold shield is considered the symbol of a sure-fire producer of wealth, has to be aided by governmental grants, when the dollar used for coinage, it has been captiously stated that the only present day use for the former precious metal is for filling teeth.

In the days when where gold was once used extensively, has gone by the board, except for gold which looks like gold but costs a lot less.

Actually, modern science and invention, while devising methods of using cheaper metals, has also discovered new uses for gold.

For example, gold is now being used in the construction of a person's eyeglasses, and one who might well prove to be the first of many.

Despite the high price for gold, 533 an ounce in the United States, the engineers are in the main inexpensive answer to the problem of building a shield that will not be fool cooked up in a scientific laboratory.

For this experimental adaption of gold to industry, a 30-pound shipment of pure yellow gold, valued at $14,000 was recently sent from a New York precious metal dealer's office to St. Louis, Missouri over the welder's torch.

Gold's high resistance to acid and corrosion foreshadows its use for many other purposes in this new atomic age.

As one success in the field of scientific experiment leads to others, there are excellent prospects that the gold mining industry is "sealing" a brighter era.

The slough of depression, may in years to come regain terra firma. to be called "minter."

Esq. and Mr. Re-defined

Christian Science Monitor

A recent decision by a British library has defined "gentleman" and "Esq." seems almost to raise their use to the level of art.

There was a time when many people, and nearly all the "right" people, would follow the strictests-in this matter uncluttered, of "Esq." after the name addressed to a "gentleman," the name of the "addressee" preceded by "Mr." Thus a letter addressed to-be was a "tradesman," then his name would be preceded by a mere "Mr."

Americans usually have taken the short form of address, "Esq." is usually than their British cousins. "Esq." is rarely used, though it appears on American envelopes even today. Some Britons also get around it by the use of a very noted family pointed out a few years ago that "minter" was a more distinguished title than "esquire," for a man might claim the title "Esq." if he were related to some higher hereditary titles, but anybody could become a minter, whereas "minter" was a form of "master" as bestowed by custom on "misters" as the considerable learning.

The British Britain comes a new twist, which tends to elevate "Esq" once more at the expense of "Mr." The public library in one British community now reserves the title "Esq." for male readers who borrow serious books, and addresses male readers of the latter as "Mr."

This is a perversion of the original use, but it may have added a jewel in its toadying. For by recalling a certain type of reader "esquire." It may eventually increase the number who deserve to be called "minter."

Expropriation Of 1,260 Acres Being Considered

MONTREAL (CP)—Mr. Justice Andre Demers took under advisement Monday an application for an injunction preventing the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority from expropriating 1,260 acres of land nearby Caughnawaga Indian reserve.

Prof. Frank Scott of the University of McGill law faculty appear d in Superior Court for James Lazare and the Caughnawaga group of Iroquois. He raised three main points.

The Canadian Parliament, he argued, lacks authority to revoke treaty rights originally established in 1760 and confirmed by the Franco-British capitulation agreement of Montreal in 1760 and the Treaty of Paris in 1763. Indian Affairs Minister Pickering should have sought authority from the United Kingdom government if he wished to appropriate Indian land, said the poet and former national chairman of the CCF party.

Secondly, argued Prof. Scott, even if it were granted that the federal government has the power to order expropriation, this power was not delegated to the seaway.

He also said expropriation could only be justified if the land was to b. used for a deep waterway. But the 1,260 acres at issue was 2,320 feet from the canal at one point, he said.

John Ahern, counsel for the seaway authority, said in opposing the injunction that the case was brought in the wrong court and that many of the Indians have already received compensation for the expropriated property.

Finally, he said, the injunction application is too late to provide a valid case.

Baby Passenger On Mercy Flight Dies in Plane

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP)—A plane whose pilot was forced down by weather Sunday while he flew a baby to hospital today escorted home the body of the infant, who died while the plane sat on an inland lake.

Pilot Alan West, 25, of Tchesinut Lake, B.C., made his wife by telephone that he was escorting the body of 20-day-old Henry Zacharias, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ignace Abe Zacharias, to Burns Lake, 125 miles west of here.

"I'm bone weary," he said. "It was an awful day."

Also on the train was nurse Sheila Ellis, 24, of Kimberley, in whose arms the boy died while the single-engined plane was down on Ootsa Lake in northern British Columbia.

The mercy plane carrying the baby, believed to have been suffering from spinal meningitis, took off from Burns Lake at 10:45 a.m. Sunday for Vancouver. It failed to reach Williams Lake, 212 miles south, for refuelling at noon.

"We were about an hour out of Burns Lake and ran into fortified weather," said the nurse.

The pilot said the fuel forced the aircraft down to a point where a landing had to be made. The small float plane was slightly damaged.

"We worked on the baby all the time with oxygen and suction equipment to clear his throat," Miss Ellis said. "It died about midnight Sunday."

The aircraft was spotted Monday morning by the navigator of an RCAF Canso search plane which landed on the lake and picked up the occupants and the body of the child.

BRIDGE COLLAPSES

A 60-foot section of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway bridge crashed into the swollen Mamquam River a half hour after a passenger train with 140 passengers crossed it. The span crumpled under the weight of a 35-ton crane clearing debris around the pilling. The operator and another workman were uninjured. Service between Squamish, 40 miles north of Vancouver, and Lillooet, B.C., was halted more than a day. (CP Photo).

Pair Handcuff Mountie to Steering Wheel

REGINA (CP)—RCMP officers say a three-province, two-state search is under way for two men who escaped in a car with a Montana licence after handcuffing a Mountie to the steering wheel of his patrol car Sunday then shooting it full of holes.

A police search for the two men, described as "on the loose and dangerous" has extended from Saskatchewan into Manitoba and Alberta and across the border into Montana and North Dakota.

Suspected of two abortive robbery attempts in the area, the men confronted Const. T. Jamkas with drawn guns when he stopped their car at a roadblock at a highway junction near here, 140 miles southeast of Saskatoon.

The constable's revolver was thrown into a ditch and the men escaped in a car traced to a Montana owner.

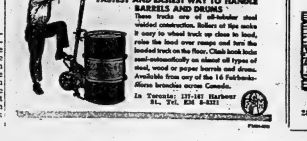
High Banking Rates Stopping Works Projects

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost said Monday the "high banking rates levied on loans to provincial and municipal governments are holding up essential work."

He said the $200,000,000 bond issue for Ontario Hydro projects had just been placed on the market and the added charges made it "well nigh impossible to raise the money."

Addressing a provincially-sponsored conference on industrial development, Mr. Frost said in cases such as the St. Lawrence Seaway development and other high-priority projects there should be no restrictions.

Mr. Frost said "a wise understanding between the federal finance department and banks, especially the Bank of Canada, could plan development that would be in relation with economic conditions."



SOMETIMES TOO COSTLY

Walter H. Blucher, Chicago planning consultant, said small municipalities often cannot provide the services needed by large small towns might find it costs more to attract large firms that they get back in extra taxes.

Dr. O. J. Firestone, economic adviser to the federal trade department, said present economic conditions point to a maximum of opportunities for Canadian businesses.

By DWIGHT L. JONES

It concerns the future of 10 orphaned children, and what caused the automobile accident that killed their parents.

The children, five each in the Smith and Bowman families, were left orphans Sunday morning when their parents, returning home in one car from a midnight snack, crashed into a tree.

"I've never seen a community so affected by anything," said Gregg R. Potvin, a lawyer.

"We have been so flooded with food that we've had to ask people to stop sending more because it might spoil," said Mrs. Lee Roseanke, president of the American Legion Auxiliary.

What about the children?

"I imagine the brothers and sisters of the parents will want to take care of them," said probate Judge Henry Vollweiler. The children are wards of the state under his jurisdiction until guardianship or adoption arrangements are completed.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Bowman were heading home at 1:30 a.m. Sunday. Within two blocks of their homes the car driven by Smith failed to make a curve, sideswiped two trees and slammed into a third tree.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith, aged 39 and 32, and Mrs. Bowman, 35, were killed outright. Bowman, 41, died 24 hours later.

TRENTON (Special) — A Trenton mother of 13 children was fatally injured early Monday evening when the car in which she was riding was in collision with another vehicle on No. 2 highway one-half mile west of Trenton.

Killed was Mrs. Alice Perry, 40, of 43 Leopold street. The woman died en route to Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Injured were Mrs. Iva Preston, Marmora street, sister of Mrs. Perry, who has a possible fractured pelvis, and James Gibson, R.R. 3 Trenton, driver of the car in which she was riding, who has a broken collarbone.

Driver of the other vehicle involved, a late model station wagon, was Carl Bowness, 31, of R. R. 2 Brighton, who escaped injury.

The accident occurred at the intersection of No. 2 highway and the St. George's Cemetery Road. The entire right side of the Gibson car was caved in, the vehicle coming to rest on its top with all four wheels in the air.

A seat from the Gibson car was found 30 feet away in a field.

Stan Perry, husband of the dead woman, a civilian worker at Trenton Air Station was on duty when told of the accident.

Crown Attorney Harry Deyman of Cobourg has ordered an inquest which will be held before Coroner Dr. W. Elliott of Brighton. Provincial Police Corporal Lyle of Brighton investigated.

Liberace Plays 'Jealousy' for London Critics

LONDON (AP) — Liberace played while placard - carrying pickets marched up and down outside Royal Festival Hall Monday night.

One sign read: "It's alive."

Another: "Down with Liberace."

A third: "Britain will rise again."

The pickets said they were picketing simply because they don't like Liberace. He has been similarly picketed by critical British individuals ever since he hit town.

Playing to a packed house of 4,000, the pianist said he wanted to dedicate a number to his critics. He played Jealousy.

He said he has been criticized in the United States as well as Britain but holds no grudge.

"I love everybody," he crooned into his microphone while shrieks, screams and wails from the audience echoed over the house.

HE PRICE OF FAME

Dame Myra Hess, one of Europe's greatest pianists, will give a Beethoven concert in the same hall next Sunday at a top ticket price of 15 shillings.

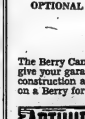
Liberace wore three different jackets during his program and invited members of the audience to "come up and feel them."

At each intermission scores of girls vaulted over seats and dashed down the aisles to fondle his goldthreaded, white and black beaded coats.

"I'm glad you like this gold jacket," he said. "You ought to—you paid for it."

Newfoundland Holds Election

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The 200,000 people of Newfoundland today are deciding which political party will form the next provincial government.



Premier Smallwood, 56-year-old leader of the Liberals, is confident his party will be swept back into power for the third time with more than the 27 seats originally at stake this election. Progressive Conservative leader Malcolm Hollett, 62, hopes to upset the government with wins in at least 20 seats.

The CCF, a minor third party contesting its first provincial election in Newfoundland, is aiming for a balance of power if neither major party gets a clear majority.

Four seats, including Mr. Hollett's St. John's West district, were decided by acclamation. The other three went to Liberals Pope to Isaac Mercer and Placentia West to P. J. Canning, both members of the last house, and Labrador South to newcomer George Sellars.

Alberta-to-Montreal Gas Line Will Be Completed in 1958

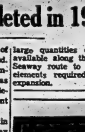
TORONTO (CP)—An official of Trans - Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. says the company hopes to complete its Alberta-to-Montreal gas pipeline by the fall of 1958, despite delays caused by the recent United States steel strike.

A. P. Craig, vice - president in charge of sales, said Monday night there is no reason why the gas cannot be laid to Fort Arthur by the fall of 1957, and the rest of the 2,200 - mile line completed a year later.

The company was to have laid a 375 - mile link from Alberta to Winnipeg by Dec. 31. The steel strike, however, led to a shortage of pipe and officials said the schedule could not be met.

Mr. Craig told an industrial development conference here that although the company has not been able to complete its western leg pipe laying, right of ways have been cleared and essential engineering done.

All construction schedules and orders for materials have been placed and there is every reason for confidence by the fall of 1958— the original schedule, he said.



Completion of the line will mean a new multi-million dollar industry for Ontario, Mr. Craig said. It would affect 10 per cent of the province's population.

During the next three years more than $300,000,000 would be spent for material and wages in connection with the line in Ontario alone, he said. The line for years could easily see the spending of $500,000,000.

Mr. Craig said the value of Alberta gas to Northern Ontario is that a constant supply of a readily-available, economical fuel cannot help but stimulate the processing on the spot of many minerals and forest products which now are shipped out to be processed.

The Trans-Canada pipeline project alone will require between 3,000 and 4,000 employees working directly on the project in Ontario. A permanent operating force of 400 employees will be needed in the province once the project is completed, Mr. Craig said.

Upon completion of the pipeline large quantities of gas will be available along the St. Lawrence Seaway route to provide all the elements required for industrial expansion.

Mrs. G. Dobbs introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Mrs. Helen Jones.

Mrs. Jones told an interesting story depicting the life of an average family and their attitude towards the church. A story well told and giving much food for thought.

The speaker was thanked by Ruth Bailey.

Ruth Lowther expressed the thanks of the Evening group to Rev. and Mrs. S. E. Larman for graciously opening their home for this meeting.

Harvest Festival Services Held at St. Thomas' Church

The ancient rites of Harvest Festival were observed in St. Thomas' church on Sunday with the church decorated with the "kindly fruits of the earth."

A large choir, composed of both adults and boys, filled the church call and was under the direction of the organist, R. B. Bell, Mus. Bac. A.C.C.O. The old favorite hymns "Come Ye Thankful People Come" and "Now Thank We All Our God," were the processional and recessional for a great service at 11.00 a.m., when children of the parish crowded the old church.

The rector, the Rev. Canon A. S. McConnell, M.B.E., who preached both morning and evening, made a special appeal to the large congregation to take a full, active part in the giving of thanksgiving as one means of showing our appreciation to Almighty God for His bounty and goodness to us at this harvest time.

HOSE RUNS WILD

FALL RIVER, Mass. (AP)—A wild fire hose, hard as rock and swinging wildly, knocked eight women to the ground Monday night as they watched a fire at the Fall River Casino. The women, standing in a group, were swept from their feet when the 2½-inch hose, strung out behind a pumper, went on the rampage when the pumper was inadvertently started by

A new emphasis at the top of the coat definitely establishes this topper as fashionably new. Arthur Jaffee uses an insert of imported English tweed in contrast to the body of the coat. The line is without disturbing the slim, elegant silhouette. A velvet collar tops the beautifully shaped shoulders. The coat is lined in black taffeta, and is of a type that will see plenty of wear for various occasions through a long season.

Every woman of the church should be invited to share in W.M.S. work.

Mrs. Pierce Jones of Picton, the literature secretary, presented the new study, "East of Eurus", also the Junior study based on St. Paul's letter to the Ephesians. A short review of some new missionary books was also given.

Paintings Sell Like Hotcakes

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. (CP) — When Rose Somerscales gave her brother-in-law some of her paintings to decorate his restaurant she never dreamed they'd sell like hotcakes.

Crippled after a seven-year battle, 20 years ago with tuberculosis Rose, 46, had given up hope for an art career. But she set up shop in a small basement studio to pass the time.

Although she was born and raised here, 10 miles east of Oshawa, not even the residents of this town knew her work.

"I guess the only people who ever saw my paintings were members of my own family," she said. Now however, her sill lines the talk of the town. During the last few months a bevy of them has converted part of its premises into a showroom for her paintings and she has sold dozens of the 200 canvasses she had painted for something to do.

TOOK UP ART SCHOOL

Not interested in drawing even when I was in public school, she said. "I would rather sit in the back of the class and sketch than play outside and many times the teacher would have to order me out of doors."

Then said she's thought her dreams for an art career were shattered when she was stricken with tuberculosis at 19.

"I spent the next seven years in sanatoriums and then the sickness affected my back leaving me unable to work," she said.

Spurred by her recent success, however, she plans soon to enter one of her paintings in a major art exhibit, she said.

W.I. Hears Two Interesting, Educational Talks

The president, Mrs. C. Weese, opened the meeting and extended a cordial welcome to the visitors and members.

Mention of the recently formed Girls' Club with 14 members was made and a donation of $15 was given to aid its work.

At this stage the district president, Miss G. Meyers was introduced. She chose as her topic, "Home Economics", mentioning the various aspects in this broad subject which covers every phase of family living: nutrition, family relations, housing, buymanship and clothing. She urged all to take advantage of the various extension courses available from the department and closed with a timely poem entitled "Kitchens".

Miss K. McMechan, supervisor of Historical Research, took charge of the following program. Community singing with Mrs. Dorothy Weese acting as pianist; Mrs. McMechan gave an account of the "New Provincial Park at Adolphustown", dedicated by Premier Frost early in the summer. An area including 50 acres that overlook Hay Bay, and on the Bay of Quinte to be known as the Bay of Quinte U.E.L. Park was acquired by the province for park purposes so that it will be once a provincial shrine. It includes a two acre cemetery in which several early pioneers are buried. Records this plot has been surrounded by an ornamental iron fence while a fine entrance a pair of wrought iron gates supported by stone pillars have been erected. The points which mark the history of this great land will be restored and retained.

Mrs. E. Pearce followed with a humorous monologue "The Meeting Will Come to Order", after which Mrs. Simon Robbins gave a most interesting talk on the museum at Adolphustown 200 years ago. A historical society was formed in the county to look after same but it was not until in recent years that it became a reality and credit of which they are indeed proud.

She explained how show-cases were modernized and all from Toronto experienced in this line, arranged articles, pictures in artistic order and spaces. She also told of a recent visit to a home near Collins' Bay built in 1792, where all the furniture and contents are in their original places. The third storey includes a room where the cobbler came and spent a week or more making shoes for the family. She urged the W.I. to work towards establishing antiques for a "museum" in Hastings county as these places house the "History of Yesterday."

Thanks for enlightening the group on so many phases of this intriguing subject were expressed to the visiting speaker.

Mrs. Weese favored with a piano solo which was enjoyed by all.

Delightful refreshments were served by the hostess and her committee.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Men are more fragile than women, says Dr. Daniel Beltz. The physician told an audience Monday that "the vital organs of men are more fragile than those of women, and Missionaries are constantly having died annually in the United States in this decade." The years between 45 and 60 are particularly dangerous for men, he said. Women, he contends, find the going

ADVICE To the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOU MUST STOP SEEING THIS MAN AT ONCE

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'm 15 years old and in junior high school.

The janitor at my school has paid a good deal of attention to me recently. I love him very much and I think he loves me.

I realize that there is quite a difference in our ages—he's 38—but I know that if we have half a chance, we can make good. The good man like this is hard to find and I don't want to lose him.

My biggest problem is my parents. They don't object to the difference in our ages, but they don't think this man could support me and say children we might have on a janitor's pay.

Do you think I should pay attention to my parents or follow my heart?

Thank you so much for your kind consideration. I think it's wonderful that this newspaper has a column to help all troubled people and I'll be reading it daily and awaiting your reply.—J.C.H.K.

Dear J.C.H.K.:

As I read the main part of your letter, I couldn't help wondering if you weren't, perhaps, just making up what you thought was a funny letter to send me. What you say is so unrealistic that I'm hard to believe you're really serious.

However, when I came to the last couple of sentences, it made me think that you probably were sincere—that a very confused young girl, so I shall answer your letter on that assumption and say just this:

I earnestly hope that you'll listen to your parents and put any idea of marriage with this man right out of your head. It would be a disastrous mistake for you to do anything else.

This 38-old janitor has no right in the world to act toward you or any young girl as he apparently has been acting, and I think it's a matter that should be brought to the attention of the school authorities. In fact, I think your parents should do this without delay.

I cannot urge you too strongly to stop seeing this man, or even talking to him, and I hope you'll take my word for it that this is the wisest thing to do. There's nothing about this situation that's right, and everything that's wrong for you. Your friendships should be with the boys and girls in your own age group, and if you don't do as I'm so strongly advising you, I'm afraid you're very likely to find yourself without any friends at all among your schoolmates.

HERE'S AN IDEA FOR YOU, LEE

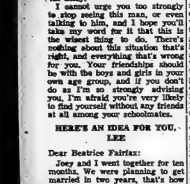
Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

Joey and I went together for ten months. We were planning to get married in two years, that's how serious we were. He's 18 and I'm 16.

A year ago we broke up over a silly little matter, but still went out together quite often, even though steadily.

Now Joey goes steady with another girl who is far from a lady. He's just right for her, though. She's promised to wait, but I know she won't, because she goes out with anybody.

What should I do? I want him back. Should I write and tell him how I feel or just keep waiting? — Lee S.



Dear Lee:

If you know this boy's address, why don't you write him a nice friendly little note and wish him luck in his new career in the Navy. Say that since he is going to be away from home, you're quite a long way from home—perhaps he'd like to have some of his old friends write him. He's now one in a while and ask if he would like to hear, from you occasionally.

You suggest telling him how you feel, but I'm against that. Don't get emotional in your letter, don't dig up the past when you were going steady together and, above all, say nothing about this girl you think he's now interested in and whom you think is no lady.

Just keep everything on a friendly basis and it'll be much more effective than if you write in any other way. But don't expect miracles. If he's going with another girl, he'll shy away if you try to get sentimental. Whereas, if you just suggest, as I've already said, that he might like to hear the news from home now and then, he might go for the idea, and little by little increase your friendship.

Try this and let me know how you make out.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

TREAT YOURSELF AS YOU TREAT YOUR CHILD

When the 3-year-old is tucked in for her nap, it's time for Mother to rest, too.

If you are a young mother you owe it to your children to treat yourself as well as you treat your youngsters. For a healthy, well rested mother is one of the most important gifts you can give them.

Unfortunately, the most conscientious of mothers frequently neglect themselves. You probably spend hours reading all the latest information on nutrition for children, and you wouldn't dream of letting a day go by without little Johnny and Nancy downing their big glasses of orange juice, their big bowls of cereal, their quart of milk each and all the other must-foods for children.

But how about yourself? Are you as careful about your diet? Do you have your orange juice and your eggs and cereal every day? Do you see that you eat the proper amount of proteins and minerals and vitamins and other necessary food elements? Do you drink your share of milk?

When you tuck away a tired little three-year-old for his or her afternoon nap, do you lie down for a quiet hour of rest yourself? If you've been doing housework all day you need it, and nerves and health will be better for it. Even if it a daily habit just as you've made it a habit for your child.

How about daily exercise in the fresh air? No need to ask if you see that your child plays out of doors as much as possible. You wouldn't think of keeping him in the house if the weather is at all good. But outdoor exercise is also important to his mother's health, and it's so easy to put off when there are those thousands of little tasks to be done. Make it a point to get some outdoor exercise every day. Walk somewhere briskly if only to the store and breathe in plenty of fresh air while you do it.

When you make an appointment with your doctor or dentist for a routine check-up for your child make one for yourself as well. Mothers are likely to forget themselves when it comes to check-ups. And when you are giving your children their extra vitamins, see that you take yours too. In other words, you owe it to your children to keep their mother in tip-top health.—

Mother's Helper

IF YOUR little fellow feels a bit squeamish, put an enamel pail or other deep pan on the floor beside his bed. Be sure it can be sterilized, and that it is in a handy spot to prevent accidents which upset most children more than the actual tummy ache. A sheet-and towel draped over the edge of the bed is helpful too. Q. and, for: Yes! Sweet tooth for.

PLANS FOR SERVING LUNCHEON AFTER CHRISTENING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Our baby is to be christened in an Episcopal church, directly after the 11 o'clock service. We should arrive home between 12:30 and 1 o'clock. Then I am planning to serve a midday meal, with coffee and punch. What is the proper menu to serve on such an occasion?

2. About the toasts. We would like to serve champagne for the toasts, provided it can be served, when is the proper time for the toasts? Isn't it the godfather who proposes the first toast? Who proposes the following toasts?—S.

1. There is no special menu correct to serve on this occasion. What is served depends of course on how many guests you are invited, how much service, and in your case, I should imagine, whether or not you will have to prepare the food beforehand, perhaps most of them the previous day. The luncheon service may be served, or, as is more usual nowadays, buffet service. The menu may be usually is, very simple. You need have no first course, or you may have a fish course, a jellied madrelene, or melon. Your main course probably should be lunch you can prepare beforehand: sliced chicken or slices of several meats; stuffed eggs, perhaps, or potato salad or a green salad or sliced tomatoes with a chicken casserole, or some specialty of yours that can be made ahead of time and easily heated. Dessert might be ice cream or an ice, to be served with the Christening cake (a while cake with white icing, often decorated with white sugar flowers, sometimes with the baby's initials or first name and the date). 2. If the champagne is not served during the luncheon, it is poured just before the dessert is served, and then the godfather proposes the first toast to the child's health and happiness and welfare." After this first most important toast, anyone wishing to may propose a toast to the child.

WHEN LADIES ARRIVE TOGETHER AT CHURCH WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister, my cousin, and I have been invited to a large church wedding, and we are going together. We are all working girls. Should each one of us be escorted by an usher?—T.S.

Yes. When several women are in a party, each woman should be escorted by an usher. However, if your group arrives at the desk of the guest-attendant, and it seems obvious that there are not enough ushers to take care of the arrivals and not enough time before the ceremony-hour, then an usher may offer his arm to one of you ladies and the other two may follow. Wrong number.

GROOM'S PARENTS MUST RECEIVE DEFINITE LIST-INFORMATION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our son's engagement was recently announced, and wedding plans are being made. It's to be a large, formal church wedding, large reception following. Last evening our son told us we must begin to assemble our list of relatives and friends to be invited. We have a host of relatives and friends. How in the world are we to know how many we may invite? Shall we ask our son to get us this information?

—Groom's Mother

You yourself should get this important and definite information directly from the bride's mother, who is the hostess of the wedding, not from the bride-to-be. You should be told (1) the number of guests you may have in your list for invitations to the church and reception, (2) what parents are to be invited to both church and reception, then how many invitations and cards and announcements are to be sent, how many are to be assigned to your list. When you have this definite information, you and your husband and son can begin right immediately on these lists. Be sure to check and double-check the correct spelling of every name, and the correct address.

NO PLANS FOR HOSTESS, HOST

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I was told yesterday that it is not correct form to have place cards at the places of the hostess or host. Is this true or false?—R.H.

True. There usually are no place cards at the places of the hostess and host.

OF COURSE SHE SHOULD SEND HIM A BIRTHDAY CARD

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am 17 years of age, and have known this boy, aged 18, for a short time, and he has asked me for dates. I think he likes me, and I like him. He has been to my house, and has met my parents, who think he is very well-mannered. But one question that we cannot wonder what to do. He has told me when his birthday is, and I had thought about sending him a card. Would this be a proper thing for me to do, as I don't want to have him think I'm pursuing him? What should I do? — Anne

Of course send him a birthday card . . . entirely proper, delightfully friendly. I'm glad he told you when his birthday is, as you would be able to make this pleasant gesture of birthday greetings. And I'd like to see you keep this personal touch by adding to the printed message a nice little greeting of your own words!

WASP STING FATAL

HARLAN, Ky. (AP)—Elmo Robertson, 20, died Sunday after he was stung in the mouth by a wasp. He waited into the house and lay down on a bed, and when he attempted to rise later, collapsed and died. An autopsy confirmed that his death was due to the sting.

Smorgasbord

By Mary Moore

Two letters from one reader are written three weeks apart are in front of me. This reader whom I shall call Ahrem, is beloved by me although I have not met her I know her sister and know her too via frequent correspondence and the success of some of the enterprises we have worked on together by mail and telephone.

Ahrem and her church group are planning something sensational in the way of a big supper which is to be a Smorgasbord. Ahrem wonders among other things if all of the food must be genuinely Swedish.

My answer to her two letters will include a long authentic smorgasbord menu. But what's the use of giving the menu without recipes?

No use at all. So I'm going to give some Swedish recipes now. This ambitious project will require the space of at least two columns.

Would you readers be willing to go along with Ahrem and me and send her committee and read about smorgasbord food today and on Tuesday of next week too? Some of you will want to make some of the dishes for your families, and there may be conveners of other groups who will want to copy. Ahrem and her group's smorgasbord idea for a popular church supper.

SMORGASBORD MENU

Assorted buttered breads including rye with caraway, pickled herring, lobster-stuffed celery, olives, deviled eggs, perhaps, or potato salad or a green salad or sliced tomatoes with a chicken casserole, or some specialty of yours that can be made ahead of time and easily heated. Dessert might be ice cream or an ice, to be served with the Christening cake (a while cake with white icing, often decorated with white sugar flowers, sometimes with the baby's initials or first name and the date).

SWEDISH MEAT BALLS

These are a must for a Smorgasbord or could be served for your family dinner this very night. I have what I think is a sensational idea for serving them. In a bowl mix together 1 lb. fine ground beef, 1-3 cup fine dry breadcrumbs, 1 egg, 2-3 cup milk, 2 tablespoons grated onion, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon each pepper and nutmeg. Shape into small balls about 1 1-2 inches in diameter. Brown on all sides in hot fat. Add about 1-4 cup hot water. Cover and simmer 20 minutes. Serve with thickened gravy. This amount serves six. To serve at the Smorgasbord buy the longest loaf of French bread made. Slice off top, scoop out centre and use it as a container in which to serve the meat balls. Double or triple the recipe in order to fill whatever size French loaf you have. Ahrem should provide at least four of the loaves full of meat balls for herself.

'Accumulated Hate' for Police Caused Slaying

POZNAN, Poland (Reuters)—An expert on mass psychology said Mon. that "accumulated reserves of hate for the Polish security police" caused the beating to death of an officer during the Poznan riots of June 28.

Josef Chalasinski of Warsaw University was giving evidence at the trial of three young men alleged to have played a leading part in the murder of the security officer on Poznan station.

The men are Josef Polfastwicz, 26, Kazimierz Jurek, 18 and Jerzy Broka, 18—were alleged to have been in the forefront of an infuriated mob which beat, kicked and trampled to death a 35-year-old security policeman because they thought he had killed a woman and two children.

Judgment is expected Thursday.

In another court in Poznan three youths accused of stealing arms and attacking the security headquarters continued. Judgment on these cases is expected Oct. 8.

Smog Control Chief Most Cussed, Discussed Man in L.A.

As smog control chief for the last year and a half, Griswold has had been badgering and wheedling local industry, auto manufacturers and the trash-burning public into some semblance of cooperation with smog laws.

"This is not a problem that will be licked this year or next, or even in 19 years," Griswold insists. He has consistently hammered the point that there is more to smog than meets the eye. And to drive it home he recently became the city's first human guinea pig.

PROVED HARM DONE

The result? Smoggy Smith hates the grisly confession—he went for the stuff—worse than ever.

Griswold, at 47, is a big, bluff specimen built like a college fullback, which he once was. But his two hours in a smog chamber left him with coughing spells and so listless that he felt compelled to urge Los Angeles County supervisors not to relax smog regulations.

Griswold's stunt, timed to exact the maximum attention before the heavy September-October smog season began, made medical men sit up and take notice. Doctors have been divided on the effects of smog on health. The general belief has been that it doesn't do much harm except to persons with respiratory ailments.

"I don't want to get back in that chamber again," Griswold told the medical board of the air pollution control district which he heads.

The roof of his mouth became dry in 30 minutes, but a soft drink tasted like bilgewater. His chest began feeling tight, and during the last 30 minutes he became lightheaded.

Dr. Hurley Mottley, who examined Griswold the next day, found his lung capacity had been reduced by about 12 per cent. But a month afterward Griswold complained of being overvalued, and of a persistent, tickling cough.

Thus far Griswold has managed to clamp lighter smoke restrictions on existing industry and almost complete control over new plants. Long hours and many conferences are beginning to pay off in better compliance, his associates feel.

Control expenditures have risen from $125,000 in 1948 to $4,000,000 in fiscal 1956-57.

Main reason: Industrial plants continue growing up. There now are 10,000 in Los Angeles County, and at the present rate of expansion there will be 25,000 by 1970.

Plus automobiles. The county has 2,700,000 vehicles—one for every two citizens—the greatest concentration of fume-producing buggies in the world.

BLAMES AUTOS

Griswold's goals for 1957 include putting a $15 carburetor device on each new or resold car. The more-efficient combustion of fuel will decrease fumes, tests show.

"Autos are responsible for more than half of our troubles," Griswold said. Another aim is to get rid of about 1,500,000 incinerators by next Oct. 1.

WALLBRIDGE — A large number of friends and relatives attended the funeral of the late Mr. Clem Ketcheson on Saturday afternoon at John R. Bush's Funeral home. Find Time Bomb At Air Terminal

ALGIERS (Reuters) — Passengers and workers were hastily cleared from the Algiers air terminal Mon. when a time bomb was discovered similar to ones which injured 45 persons in Algiers Sunday night.

Engineers who removed the fuse said the bomb's clockwork mechanism was the same type as those set off Sunday in the first bomb outrages ever committed in the centre of the city since Algerian nationalists revolted against French rule 22 months ago.

Hospital authorities reported that three of the 45 injured Sunday are not expected to live. Twelve others had to have amputations of arms or legs.

The casualties were caused by bomb explosions in a cafeteria and milk bar in two of the city's central streets. The explosions were almost simultaneous.

Cancel Flypast Of Newly-Built Jet Interceptors

PEIPING (Reuters) — Driving rain kept China's newly-built jet interceptors on the ground Mon. and caused a flypast to be cancelled at the National Day celebrations on the Communist Chinese People's Republic.

But apart from this, a huge parade of more than 500,000 rain-soaked people, including armoured units, went forward as scheduled before Mao Tse Tung, chairman of the Chinese republic.

In an order of the day, Gen. Peng Teh-Huai, defence minister, said the task of the forces still was to liberate Taiwan (Formosa) defend the motherland the people's democratic dictatorship.

He repeated China's support for Egypt over the Suez Canal issue but said the world situation had improved in the last year.

With Mao on the "Gate of Heavenly Peace"—which leads to the imperial city—were President Sukarno of Indonesia, here on a state visit, and the Nepalese Prime Minister, Tanka Prasad, with his host, Prime Minister Chou En-Lai.

Boy Remanded Until Oct. 9

TORONTO (CP)—A 14-year-old boy, charged with juvenile delinquency in the slaying of seven-year-old Marjory Maude Moody, was remanded in juvenile court until Oct. 9.

Body of the boy from Seeleys Bay, 18 miles north of Kingston, was found in a deep pit behind at the waterfront Canadian National Exhibition grounds early Sept. 16.

Subsequent medical investigation showed he had been choked and killed by having his face pressed against the ground. Police said it appeared he died in a struggle with another youngster.

The Toronto boy will be tried when found hiding in the basement of an apartment house near his home.

Judge Lorne Stewart is to decide whether the boy will be tried in juvenile or adult court.

Hungary on Way to Abolishing Some Stalinist Absurdities

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—The mechanic installing my new telephone grumbled freely about his low wage.

"I don't care a damn who you are," he said. "I don't care if you are the party secretary. I give him a bit of my mind when ever it pleases me."

I asked him what was the difference between today and two years ago and whether he was better off.

"Nuts," he answered. "I still have to work on Sundays. I never get to the end of the month. But at least I can call a spade a spade without being afraid of having to face the music."

CAN GRUMBLE NOW

And that's a lot, believe me. Englishmen accustomed to the tradition of Sunday orators on a Hyde Park corner, or Americans who may criticize President Eisenhower whenever they feel like it will hardly understand what it means to 10,000,000 Magyars who apparently can grumble freely — and call names, decry authorities.

In the weeks since I first took a deep breath of warm summer air after leaving the grim building here I had been behind bars. I have been talking with Hungarians from all walks of life and trying to see with my own eyes the changes that have taken place while I was isolated from the world.

Extreme people may talk about indoctrination or brainwashing.

Many of the answers to my situation with the skepticism of a doubting Thomas. After weeks of talking to the newspapers, listening to the radio, talking with the unknown little man on Budapest's streets I have to admit:

Hungary of the autumn of 1956 is a entirely different country compared with the Hungary I left in the winter night in 1951. Of course Hungary has not ceased to be a Communist country, but it is on the way to abolishing some Stalinist absurdities.

GENUINE TREND

There is much pondering about the genuineness of the new trend. The question is whether the Communist regimes of Hungary, the rest of Russia and the other "peoples democracies" have any mental reservation about what they are doing—whether this is a tactical step which might be reversed at any time.

Who knows? Every meditation on sincerity is fruitless.

But no one should minimize the importance of new conditions as that the Judit Mariassy, a Communist journalist to assailt the privileges of party bosses and their families. Her comment in The Literary Gazette, likely the most popular paper in Hungary today, drew a mild rebuke from the official party organ, Szabad Nep. She indignanxiy rejected the criticism and did not recant, as Stalin or would have done in the Stalin era.

This is only one example. Budapest newspapers, state property without exception, resemble more and more the newspapers of the West. Criticism is a hackneyed feature of Communist journalism. It used to mean that newspapers could criticize lower authorities for not carrying out party decisions to a "T," or workers and farmers for not fulfilling and over-fulfilling party plans. Today criticism goes much farther. Of course it does not go so far that newspapers or members of Parliament would criticize Communism as a doctrine, but they do criticize government decisions.

LAWYER JUDGED UNFIT

TORONTO (CP)—Two psychiatrists testified Monday that Toronto lawyer B. J. Spencer Pitt is unfit to conduct his own defence in a suit brought by the Law Society of Upper Canada Council. Mr. Justice A. M. Le Bel granted an application for Pitt's wife that the trial be stayed indefinitely, and ordered that a medical guardian be appointed to defend Pitt's interests. The church is suing for an accounting of money received by Pitt, its former solicitor, from the sale of city property.

SPECIAL SERVICE

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Firemen here are becoming expert in freeing people from elevators. Two heads caught between bars. Release of two - year - old Debbie Schoch from between the bars of a verandah railing was the fifth such rescue job this year.

Any housewife would have thought of it! But credit goes to the builders of the U.S. Navy's mighty new carrier, U.S.S. Ranger, for using aluminum foil to keep their product "fresh".

During construction, a ship rests on wooden blocks, which absorb a lot of moisture. To protect their costly steel hull from rust and corrosion during the 18-month construction period, the Navy simply covered the blocks with ordinary household foil. This brainwave was a natural for a marine builder, since nowadays he uses shiny, non-corroding aluminum widely for superstructures, lifeboats and other important shipbuilding components.

Labor Condemns Eden's Handling Of Suez Crisis

BLACKPOOL, Eng. (Reuters)—The Labor party Mon. passed an emergency resolution condemning Prime Minister Eden's government for "lamentable handling of the Suez crisis."

Hugh Gaitskell, who was given an enthusiastic ovation on his first appearance as party leader, complained that even now the government has given no pledge that force in the Suez dispute would be used only in accordance with the United Nations Charter.

OPTIMISTIC VIEW

He added that "if we can let the temperature drop in the United Nations, there is not much doubt that President Nasser will agree to a negotiated settlement."

The Labor leader suggested that out of this dispute a "real settlement" could be created between Israel and the Arab states.

Of Eden's government Gaitskell said: "They really did intend to use force. They cannot deny it. They can wriggle and evade as much as they like. . . ."

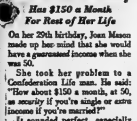
Earlier, party chairman Edwin Gooch accused the government of frittering away Britain's "moral leadership, reputation for justice and fund of goodwill."

Gooch said Eden's foreign policy was "riddled with failure, incompetence, evasion and near-disaster."

The 1,300 Socialist delegates, representing 4,500,000 party members, arrived in an optimistic mood for the five-day conference.

They apparently feel that Labor's stand on the Suez crisis—which many of them claim forced the government to take the issue to the UN—has heightened Socialist prestige and will help to shorten the life of the Conservative government.

Shot in Thigh



HAMILTON (CP)—Ross Case, 42, was shot in the thigh with a 12-gauge shotgun early Sunday as he entered a friend's home after an argument. Hospital authorities say he is in fair condition.

Herbert Wallace Levy, 22, was charged with attempted murder.

Little Benny's Notebook

Ma started to shake her head to herself, saying to pop, William, I have nothing to wear. I know that's a proverbial expression, but this time the shoe fits, because I literly figuratively have nothing to wear.

My dear, that's a strangely intriating statement, pop said. It makes a baffling mistery out of what seemed to be meerly an odd situation, he said, and ma said, How do you mean?

It's too mutch for me to dope out, pop said. It would take a Sherlock Homes, a Nero Wolf and a crime labratory, he said, and ma said, Now William will you please talk in clear sillables instead of around an obscure bush?

You read all the delective misteries, so maybe you can arrive at the solution, pop said, and ma said, And maybe you know what you are talking about.

Miss me she didn't, said pop said, I'll review the evidence. By your own sworn statement you arrived home to discover that you have absitively nothing to wear. And yet scarcely an hour ago I opened the door of my own closet and found it jammed, stuffed and overflowing with some women's wearing apparel. I could barely squeeze in my coat on a thin hanger. At first I thought that it must be your stuff and that you had been walking in your sleep and putting your things in my closet, but now I dont know what to think, and I must say the situation makes me a little nervius, he said, and ma said, Oh hush and nonsense, read your paper.

Which he did lattrig.

Quits Her Job and Sails for Hawaiian Holiday

Has $150 a Month For Rest of Her Life

On her 29th birthday, Joan Mason made up her mind that she would have a guaranteed income when she was 50.

She took her problem to a Confederation Life man. He said: "How about $150 a month, at 50, as security if you're single or extra income if you're married?"

It sounded perfect, especially when Joan heard about the total disability benefit. If, due to sickness or accident, she couldn't perform any work for a period of six months or more before she reached 50, Confederation Life would then pay her premiums till she recovered.

So, now, Joan is sailing away to Hawaii—and returning home to $150 a month for life—guaranteed. You, too, can enjoy this kind of peace of mind. Find out how . . . today.

PAINSCAUVILLE, Que. (CP)—Heat and not food poisoning was blamed Wednesday for an illness that hit 25 persons at a Sept. 1 wedding reception in this village 35 miles east of Ottawa. All recovered. A report issued here by Dr. J. C. Belanger and Dr. Rene Lafreniere said laboratory analysis of food from the party proved beyond question that it was not the cause of their illness.

Yankees Favored To Win Classic But Dodgers Not Lacking For Support

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

AWAY WE GO!

By the time this reaches the front porch, this department will be telephone its way toward Brooklyn, the Gowanus, Flatbush and Ebbets Field where the flags are out in every bistro and hotel from Canarsie to Greenpoint.

We're going to see first-hand how the Brooklynese behave when their beloved "Bums" are locked in mortal combat with the hated feemens from the Yankee Stadium. And we're assigned by Art Fevere to bring back a special edition of the Brooklyn dictionary as Fevve figures there should be some new phrases coined ere this series is over.

The Dodgers are a vastly different team to the crew that slumped a week or so ago when prospects for the 1956 flag looked blacker than a landlord's heart. Their resurrection from the baseball near-dead when they swept the pesky Pirates in three straight games to bury Milwaukee's hopes for the seasonal flag, has put them on a morale plane higher than any since last years' series clashes.

Right now the Brooks are hotter than the south end of a firefly and are shouting defiance to the dear Yankees with their Maalox, Rasset, Herras and the rest of Murderers' row. They figure the Duke and Newk, Sandy Amoros, who chameleoned from a here to gone in fast time and didn't kneed his own corners, and above all the sensational return to second form of the Barber Sal Maglie, more than offsets any advantages the current crop of Yankees have over the 1955 edition.

Then there's Campy and his potent bat. Gil Hodges and Jackie Robinson. They're all pepped up after the "resurrection" and shouting "Ware" to the Bronx Bombers. It should be a rousing series and the fireworks will rocket in Flatbush if their beloved Bums come up with the second world series flag.

But the Yankees are taking things in their stride. They have the blasting magic of the Mantle bindgoes. They have the hurling with Whitey Ford leading the pitch parade. So they've gotta be the favorites and although they have an all-round edge on the Yankee machine that bowed in the seventh game to Johnny Podres in that fateful seventh last year and it may be sufficient to give Ole Case his ninth series bowing.

The Yankees, led by Mantle, were the greatest home-run hitting club in the American League. Mantle's 52 and Yogi Berra's 30 gave the team a king-size boost toward the League's all-time high of 196 four-baggers. Brooklyn hit 175.

Among the players who figure to see most of the action during the classic the American League champs hold a 5-3 edge by position in the records.

It should be a whale of a series. Now for that train, plane, and Ebbets field. There is no truth in the rumor that Art Fevere has been invited as guest soloist with the Dodger Symphonee Dixie-landers.

BADMINTON

The possibility of obtaining the services of former world champion Doug Grant as coach of the Belleville Garrison Badminton Club will be one of the major points of discussion at the annual meeting of the club to be held at the Armouries on Wednesday evening.

Doug, who is now a resident of this city, has been instructor at leading Toronto and Montreal Clubs and universities.

Grant won the Canadian Amateur Singles in 1932-34 and 36 also reaching the men's doubles finals. His accomplishments include practice game wins over Jack Purcell, then professional champion of the world, Frank Devlin, former English champion, first unofficial American professional Ned Radford, and exhibition match victories over American amateur champion Walter Kramer, Canadian open champion George Goodwin and the prevailing professional champion of the world, Stan Cutis.

Doug held the world professional title in 1946, losing it to Stan Cutis who was later defeated by Poul Holm of Denmark, the present holder. Doug played for the world title on six occasions, three times in televised matches.

The club is planning to hold playing sessions three times a week on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings.

Hawks Return Bud McFerson To Canadians

MONTREAL (CP) — Defenceman Bud McPherson, sold to Chicago Black Hawks along with centre Ken Mosdell early this year has been returned to Montreal Canadiens by the Hawks, He reached Montreal Monday.

McPherson was returned because an old knee injury has reresponded to treatment. He will work out with Rochester's new entry in the American Hockey League.

It was also announced the National Hockey League Canadiens have sent three players to Trois-Rivieres of the Quebec Hockey League. They are forwards Bev Bell and Ron Attwell and defenceman Jack Bownass.

Calum McKay Named Coach Petes Juniors

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Calum (BaKy) MacKay has been appointed by Montreal Canadiens as coach of the new Peterborough entry in the Ontario Hockey Association junior A league, club president Bob O'Toole was informed Monday by general manager Frank Selke of the sponsoring Canadiens.

The 29-year-old leftwinger who has played with Detroit and Canadiens, of the National Hockey League as well as Buffalo of the American Hockey league, became available as coach last week when he was injured while training with Cleveland Barons and was advised by his doctor to quit playing.

Resurgent Brooks Look Good To Many To Repeat 1955 Win; Ford Starts, Maglie Probable

By JOE REICHLER

BROOKLYN (AP) — The well-rested New York Yankees ruled a stout 7½ to 5 choice to dethrone the champion Brooklyn Dodgers in the 1956 world series which starts Wednesday at Ebbets Field but the National Leaguers had plenty of supporters, too.

Bobby Brugan, who gained stature as a manager despite Pittsburgh's three season record of losses to Brooklyn, picked the Dodgers to defeat the Yankees.

"All they have to do is play the kind of ball they played against us in those last three days," Brugan said, "and the guys were simply great."

A major league umpire, who will remain unidentified, thought the Dodgers would win because they are keyed up right now and they have the momentum.

"They have reading where the Dodgers are supposed to be tired" he said. "Tired of what? Winning? Capturing the pennant on the last day of the season, and the manner in which they did it, was the best pick-me-up they could have gotten. They came right on and though right through the Yankees. Remember the Cardinals of 1946 and the Indians of 1954? Both those clubs won the pennant in playoffs and didn't stop winning until they became world champions."

Whitey Ford was certain to pitch for the Yankees in the opener but manager Casey Stengel was not expected to name the Brooklyn pitcher until after batting practice today, perhaps not until just before game time.

Despite Alston's uncertainty, it was believed Sal Maglie, Brooklyn's hottest pitcher in the stretch drive, will get the call. Alston wants Maglie to open and late Monday had just about made up his mind to go with Sal but reserved judgment when the 39-year-old righthander complained of miseries in his shoulder.

"Maglie will pitch if his arm is all right," Alston said. "If not, it will be Clem Labine. Right now Sal's arm is tired and he may not be ready to go with only three days rest. He pitched his best hitter with no more rest.

Maglie admitted he felt tired and also complained of a mild stomach disorder but said he other, at the height of the forehead.

would pitch if Alston waqued him to.

"I'll probably be all right to morrow," he said.

The former Dodger killer's 13-3 record for Brooklyn ranks him second only to Don Newcombe (27-7), who will hurl the second game against New York's Don Larsen. Sal lost his only previous world series start against the Yankees, failing to go beyond the fifth inning in the 1951 series between the Yankees and Giants. With the Indians last year, Sal held the Yanks hitless in 3⅓ relief innings.

Ford hasn't pitched since he failed in his bid for a 20th victory last Wednesday. The southpaw ace appeared undaunted by the task confronting him in a park that is called lefthanded pitcher's graveyard. In Whitey's only Ebbets Field appearance there, he was knocked out in the first inning.

"For a lefthander to win at Ebbets Field is a challenge," acknowledged Ford. "Sal Harvey (Haddix (Philadelphia) and Johnny Antonelli (Giants) have beaten the Dodgers in Brooklyn. Why can't I?"

Stengel said he planned no lineup changes. Mickey Mantle, though still bothered by a pulled muscle in his left groin, will retain starter in centre field. Enos Slaughter has had too but he will be in left field.

Alston, who said Sunday he may play rookie Frank Bolling at second base, switching Junior Gilliam to left field in place of Sandy Amoros was uncertain about such a move today.

"Right now I'm leaning the other way a bit and may go with Amoros," Alston said. "Sandy has been hot lately and may continue that way no matter who is pitching."

Amoros never has started a game with Maglie on the mound for Dodgers this year. The little lefthanded-hitting outfielder went to bat 11 times against southpaw relief pitchers, getting but one hit, a triple.

All 34,000 tickets for the game have been sold. Those unable to get tickets may see the game on television (NBC) or hear it on radio (Mutual). Game time is noon EST. This is the seventh series between the rivals with the Yankees having won the first five and the Dodgers having taken the last two.

Yankee Netters Rout Italy In Cup Play

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States team of Mike Green and Sam Giammalva Monday in completing a 4-1 rout of Italy in the Davis Cup inter-zone tennis final.

Green, a 19-year-old Miami collegian who hasn't quit growing, lost to Italy's ace, Nicola Pietrangeli, 6-4, 6-4, 6-3, 6-3. At times he looked like another Jack Kramer.

Giammalva, 23, of Houston, Tex., played some of the finest tennis of his life in subduing giant Orlando Sirola, 12-10, 6-2, 6-3.

The U.S. scored much heaves by str. Oct. 30 for Australia is likely to be made up of veterans Vic Seixas and Hans Richardson, Giammalva, Green and perhaps Herbie Flam of Beverley Hills, Calif., and Mike Franks of Los Angeles.

KIDS VS. AUSSIES?

There's a lot of sentiment among tennis' high brass in this country to have Green and Giammalva shot at the Davis Cup. They've been "seasoned" one high official who preferred not to be identified. "Seixas and Richardson have been there time and again they can't beat (Lew) Hoad and (Ken) Rosewall. Let's put the kids in a break — the experience would be wonderful."

Mike Davies of the U.S. Davis Cup selection committee, had other ideas.

"It might be construed as an insult to the Australians," he said. "We have to play our best, no matter who they are—and hope."

Costs Go Up For Interference With Referees

VANCOUVER (CP) — Cost of molesting referees ice, the Western Hockey League is going up, says referee-in-chief Ian (Scotty) Morrison.

Molesting is the charge when a player pushes a referee, shoves or threatens a referee, or both, on a disputed whistle. It results in a minor-misconduct penalty.

Misconduct sentences last season cost the players $10 for each offence. This season, says Morrison, they will pay $10 for the first misconduct, $25 for the second, and so on until the amount reaches $50. Each subsequent misconduct then will cost $50.

Officials Will Use Signals In National Hockey League

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League today announced 14 designated sighals are to be used by referees and linesmen, the first complete official set in the league's history.

The signals were prepared on instruction of the NHL governors and will be of particular benefit to television audiences, particularly with the televising this season of 10 games over the CBC network in the Ud States.

Bill Chadwick, who retired as an NHL referee a year ago, employed a system of signals which he devised early in his refereeing career. A set to cover four rule infractions was adopted by the league in the 1945-47 season.

OFFICIAL LIST

The new signals, are:

Slow whistle—Either arm, with whistle in hand, extended above head. If play returns to neutral zone without stoppage, arm is drawn down the instant the puck crosses the line.

Delayed calling of penalty—Referee repeatedly points, with free hand (without whistle) to player to be penalized until play is stopped.

Washout — Sweeping sideways motion of both arms, palms down. The signal by a referee indicates no goal; by a linesman, no icing and, in certain situations, no offside.

Icing the puck — Arms folded across chest. One linesman may assist the other in icing calls by raising either arm if, in his opinion, the icing condition existed by the washout signal if it does not.

Hand with the other hand well in front of the chest.

Hooking—a series of tugging motions with both arms as if pulling something toward the stomach.

Cross-checking—A series of forward and backward motions with both fists clenched extending from the chest.

Interference—Crossed arms signal.

Misconduct — Placing of both hands on hips several times and pointing to penalized player.

Sasky Riders Crush Eskimos And in Own Igloo Backyard

By JIM PEACOCK

To say "Saskatchewan Roughriders" is worse than to swear in Edmonton today, for the Roughies have done it again—knocked over the Eskimos.

The Riders did it in unfriendly Clarke Stadium. That's no little feat, for Eskimos hadn't been beaten at home in 20 games until Monday night when the Riders whipped them 33-7 to move into a first-place tie with Edmonton in the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Meanwhile, Winnipeg Blue Bombers, featuring hard-charging half Bob McNamara, widened the margin between playoff berths and Saskatchewan. Defeating British Columbia Lions 34-7 at Winnipeg to take a four-point lead over fourth-place B.C. and move within two points of the top.

TWO LOSSES TO REGINA

Not since Sept. 27, 1954, when Riders turned the trick 8-6, have Eskimos lost before a hometown crowd. More than 20,000 watched Saskatchewan quarterback Frank Tripucka and his smashing line romp over the injury-weakened Eskimos.

The loss was the second in a row for Eskimos, who dropped an 11-3 decision at Vancouver a week ago, and their second of the season to Riders, who now lead all Regina.

Tripucka's passing, the brilliant catching of Canadians Ed Harry Lampman and running by halfbacks Ken Carpenter and Bobby Marshall paced the fired-up Roughriders.

Tripucka threw touchdown passes to Lampman and Carpenter, Carpenter, last year's scoring champion, plunged over from a yard out for another major, Marshall also plunged from a yard out for a touchdown while guard Reggie Whitehouse kicked three converts and two field goals.

Fullback Normie Kwong drove over the Saskatchewan line, following a Tripucka fumble and a 30-yard Jackie Parker forward pass, to score the Edmonton touchdown. Tackle Bob Dean converted.

Eskimos played with 11 imports instead of the maximum 12 because of injuries to Johnny Bright, Earl Lindley and Leo Miles, brother of Rollie.

THERE FOR MCNAMARA

In Winnipeg, 18,467 fans watched Minnesota halfback McNamara blast through the B.C. line for three touchdowns, two of them in the final minute.

Buddy Leake, who played quarterback in place of Eagle Day during more than half of the game, scored two touchdowns, passed for another and converted three. End Tom Miner got a single when he missed a field goal attempt and Rae Ross was rouged by Bud Grant.

MONTREAL (CP)—Ted Workman, "vice-president of Alouettes, Alouettes, says his club has lost an average of more than four footballs a game to souvenir-grabbing fans so far this season.

Workman said between 35 and 40 balls have been lost in eight games played in Montreal, including exhibitions.

Workman's calculation of the loss followed announcements by referees-in-chief Seymour Wilson in Hamilton and Big Four President James P. McCaffrey in Ottawa that a complete covering will be ticked from behind the goal line.

Workman said that so far as Alouettes are concerned the matter isn't so much one of financial loss as the possibility of injuries to fans, particularly youngsters, and of small-size riots developing.

During the high-scoring game Saturday, won 44-43 by Alouettes over Hamilton, the home club lost seven footballs — at $25 a football—in the scrambling fans.

Under the new regulations, Big Four President McCaffrey said is mandatory, every touchback must be made from the end zone. A white line will be drawn 10 yards behind the goal line. The ball will be attempted between that line—the sportsmanship line, which are greatly interested in Canadian football," said Workman.

"We get many letters from such places as Burlington, Vt., and Plattsburg, N.Y., and even from a group in Saranac Lake, N.Y., asking for any information of interest in our games they see over TV. . . We also get letters from people who say they know the Canadian game better than the American game."

At Winnipeg, Commissioner G. Sydney Dobbs of the Western Interprovincial Football Union had only one thing to say about the new Big Four rule on converts:

Frankford Edges Jarvis 1-0 Wins Intermediate B Title

FRANKFORD (Special) — This sportsminded village was agog today giving a triumphant welcome to its new OASA intermediate "B" champions.

The Merchants won the provincial title last night defeating Jarvis 1-0 on the latter's diamond to take the finals series in two straight victories.

Bobby Hunter, Merchants mound ace, and the timely clouting of Mike Cosgrove paved the way for the slim margin of victory in a tight hard-fought battle.

The Intermediate "B" crown was the fourth Ontario championship won by district diamond teams so far this year. It is the second Hillaire success for the Belleville District Softball League.

Cosgrove was the hero of the piece driving in the winning run in the eighth innings. Pat Gilmour started the run parade with a walk and reached third base on successive fielder's choice plays. Cosgrove slashed out a screaming double to send Gilmour across the plate for the championship run.

Bobby Hunter set the Jarvis batters down with four hits, all singles. He sent down ten via the strikeout route and walked four in a stirring mound duel with Jack Edwards, Jarvis hurler.

Edwards had the Merchants eating out of his hand for seven innings yielding but five clean hits. He also whiffed ten and issued but one walk, the costly one.

Both hurlers set down the opposing batters in order in consecutive stanzas regularity for seven innings. Frankford came up with a pair of bobbles, one dangerous, while the homesters erred but once. The game was played in 75 minutes.

Leafs Display 'Disgraceful' Says Mr. Day

SUDBURY (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs and Cleveland Barons battled to a 3-3 exhibition tie Monday night in a hockey game that saw 37 penalties, 20 to Toronto.

There will be no more of that nonsense. The public pays to see a hockey game, not a free-for-all."

Cleveland grabbed a two-goal lead in the first period when Dan Poliziani and Gord Vejprava scored. Brian Cullen scored for Toronto in the second and George Armstrong fired the matcher with less than two minutes remaining.

Leaf coach Howie Meeker said the playing of his club was "not satisfactory." Meeker was no disappointed that he benched the forward line of Billy Harris, Gary Aldcorn and Jerry James for the third period.

WINS SEVEN OF EIGHT

'Third Party' Fan Gets Seat For Opener

SZCAUCUS, N.Y. (AP) Henry Krajewski says he will get to see the opening of the world series because of his demands for "equal" seating space as a United States presidential candidate.

Krajewski said President Eisenhower and Democratic nominee Adlai Stevenson will appear at the opening game Wednesday and as a result he and Democratic Leader Walter F. O'Malley, president of Brooklyn Dodgers and Tod Tipping, president of New York Yankees.

"I asked for a bleacher seat," Krajewski, perennial "third party" candidate, said. "Beggars can't be choosy."

"And today," he added, "I received the telegram from O'Malley telling me to pick up a ticket."

Where is Krajewski going to sit? He doesn't know yet—the telegram didn't say.

Mantle Thinks Brooks Easiest Club to Beat

NEW YORK (AP) — Casey Stengel, genial pilot and manager of the New York Yankees, sighed today at the thought of the bales of wasted effort that went into accordin Milwaukee and Cincinnati as potential world series rivals.

"I guess I'll have to throw out all that stuff on the Braves and Redlegs," rasped the Yankee skipper. "I think I'll dig out one of those lineups the Dodgers used last year.

"I guess the only big guy they got who is new to us is Sal Maglie, and he not only knows how to pitch, but he is in a very hot streak right now."

Mickey Mantle, the triple-crown winner, whose leg has been bothering him the past week, had a similar ailment last year which kept him out of action most of the '55 series.

"It'll be all right," he said. "In fact, I feel great and will be able to run fine."

Stengel, usually a reticent bloke, volunteered the information that he was glad the Yanks were not playing Brooklyn rather than Milwaukee.

"In my opinion, the Dodgers will be a whole lot easier," he observed.

Irvin Home Goes to Bed

TORONTO (CP) — The man given credit for Toronto's International Baseball League pennant in 1956 won't be with the Maple Leafs next year.

Lynn Lovenguth, 34-year-old Saskatchewan boy topped the pitchers with an earned-run average of 2.35, has been traded to St. Louis Cardinals of the National League.

The Leafs said Toronto will get veteran first baseman Stan Jok, a righthanded pitcher Jim Pearce and another player whose name will be released later.

Lovenguth, named the league's most valuable righthanded pitcher this year, chalked up 24 wins during the regular season and suffered 12 defeats. Last spring Leafs purchased him from the Phils for a reported $17,500.

McFarlands to Hold Practice In Bowmanville

The Belleville McFarlands will start their seasonal practices tonight in the Bowmanville arena and will work out there every night until Memorial Arena ice is ready.

Manager Drury Denyes in making the announcement last night said the Bowmanville ice was the closest and with several hockey players in town, drafting to get into action, the nets was necessary.

All players and those wishing to try out with the club are requested to be at the arena here tonight at 8:30 where they will box for Bowmanville.

Williams Picks Yankees to Win

FREDERICTON (CP) — Ted Williams passed through here Monday en route to Maine and had time to predict New York Yankees would win the world series.

The Boston Red Sox slugger is headed for a private camp on the Dennis River where he will have about eight days of hunting and fishing.

Last October Williams was in the Miramichi area fishing salmon for about 10 days.

Earlier, in New York, Williams was quoted as saying he liked the Yankees' chances because of the pitching of Don Larsen.

"I only got a couple of hits off him last season," said Williams.

Good Weather For Opener; Starts Noon EST

NEW YORK (AP)—Cool and clear weather is predicted for the opening game of the world series at Ebbets Field Wednesday.

The official U.S. forecast said scattered showers were likely Wednesday morning but that the weather would clear in the afternoon. Game time is noon EST.

The forecast through the coming Saturday indicated the same seasonal cool, clear weather but with showers both Wednesday and Thursday mornings.

Argos Lose Curtis, Ponton For Cat Game

TORONTO (CP) — End Bucky Curtis and halfback Alex Ponton, both injured Saturday, will be missing because of injuries when Toronto Argonauts meet the Tiger-Cats at Hamilton Saturday in a Big our football game.

Ponton suffered a knee injury while Riders were walloping Argos 43-22 and Argo officials said after a practice last night that the pair won't be available for the weekend.

Club officials also revealed several minor injuries that aren't expected to keep players out of action.

Quarterback Arnie Galiffa had an injured knee treated Monday. End Al Pfeifer has a bruised thigh and tackle Francis Machinsky and halfback Bill McFarlane have knee injuries.

LET'S GO HUNTING . . . safely!
Hunting is a great sport! It's healthful recreation, too. But it's a sport where skill and safety go hand in hand. Here are the "Ten Commandments of Hunting Safety." Tack them near your gun rack: Or post them at your gun club. And when you give your son his first firearm, make sure that he reads —and heeds—these rules:
1 Treat every gun with the respect due a loaded gun. This is the first rule of gun safety.
2 Guns carried into camp or home, or anywhere you're not in use, must always be unloaded. Never climb a tree or fence or leap a ditch with a loaded gun. Never pull a gun toward you by the muzzle.
3 Always be sure barrel and action are clear of obstructions, and that you have only ammunition of the proper size for the gun you are carrying. Remove oil and grease from chamber before firing.
4 Always carry your gun so that you can control the direction of the muzzle, even if you stumble; keep the safety on until you are ready to shoot.
5 Be sure of your target before you pull the trigger. Know the identifying features of the game you intend to hunt.
6 Never point a gun at anything you do not want to shoot. Never permit anyone while handling a gun.
7 Unattended guns should be unloaded; guns and ammunition should be stored separately beyond reach of children and careless adults.
8 Never climb a tree or fence or jump a ditch with a loaded gun; never pull a gun toward you by the muzzle.
9 Never shoot a bullet at a flat, hard surface or the surface of water; when at target practice, be sure your backstop is adequate.
10 Avoid alcoholic drinks before or during shooting.
By all means, let's enjoy the hunting season—with no regrets:

Queen's Get New Quarter

KINGSTON (CP) — John Moschelle of Clayton, N.Y., will probably get his first taste of Canadian football Saturday as quarterback for Queen's University Golden Gaels in the Intercollegiate Senior Football opener at Toronto.

Moschelle, a U.S. army veteran who played two years at Courtland State Teachers' College, missed Gaels' two exhibition games because of an injury to his passing arm.

Coach Frank Tindall said Monday he may use halfback star Ron Stewart at quarterback if Moschelle is not fully recovered. Also available is freshman Bob Pow, who called signals in the exhibition games.

Halfback Charles Safrance suffered a broken collarbone in an exhibition game. Otherwise, Tindall said, there are no serious injuries.

Ezzard Charles Meets Welshman

LONDON (AP)—Ezzard Charles and Dick Richardson crossed an old pugilistic drama tonight on the four-cornered stage at Harringay Arena—the faded favorite and the brash brat.

Old champion Charles, who has lost more than he has won in recent engagements, meets the 22-year-old Welshman who is getting a fancy bulldrop in Britain.

The heavyweight fight could last 10 rounds but it is not supposed to. London authorities say Richardson should knock Charles out.

Many of London's leading bookmakers will have nothing to do with the fight, but the ticket buying public is responding nobly says promoter Jack Solomons.

"The fight is a sellout and has been for a week," he said. That means a crowd of 11,000.

Mustangs Ready For Season

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—With two preliminary skirmishes under their belts, University of Western Ontario Mustangs are this week preparing for Saturday's opening of the Intercollegiate Senior football season.

Coach Johnny Metras' charges Saturday will face the powerful McGill Redmen. Rated by many as the team to beat, the Redmen will invade London still steamed up after a 47-6 shellacking they handed McMaster Marauders Saturday.

Metras is devoting a good portion of this week's practice time to defence in an effort to find a way to stop McGill's quarterback Dick Carr.

The Mustang defence looked strong in last weekend's 44-1 romp over Ontario Agricultural College Intermediates. And Western's defensive wingline broke through to block three punts. Two of these blocked kicks were credited to end Bob Fullerton. One resulted in a touchdown.

Balanced strength at all positions rather than individual stars seems to be the Mustang pattern this year. Metras alternates his backfielders against Guelph without any apparent weakening in the attack.

Art Turner and Frank Cosentino shared quarterbacking duties, with Turner looking better on passing, and Cosentino in ball handling. Three players alternated at the fullback spot, Johnny Bell, Frank Caputo and Lloyd Conacher, the latter making his debut in a Mustang uniform.

End John Girvin and guard Ron Irwin, who missed last weekend's game, are expected to be ready for McGill.

Glut of Old Motion Pictures Will Hurt Stars Says Powell

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"I think the coming year is going to bring a lot of changes to a lot of careers."

This war-Dick Powell's comment on the glut of old motion pictures on the television market. There has been much speculation about what this will do to the theatre business. But what will it do to the stars?

Clark Gable and Judy Garland are among those whose voices have been raised in protest against the wholesale showing of their old films on TV. Powell believes the stars have reason to worry.

"All these pictures on TV are going to hurt some people," he said. "You take a star who is getting along in years. The public will see him as a young performer in the old movies on TV, then find he has aged 20 years when they see him in a new movie.

"There's another thing. Styles have changed. A girl may have looked glamorous in the styles of 15 and 20 years ago, but today's audience might think she looks ridiculous. That's bound to hurt.

"And there is simply the frequency of exposure. If the public sees John Wayne in four pictures on TV in one week, will they want to pay to see him in a new movie?"

Powell brought up such considerations in discussing his own career.

His acting these days is confined to appearing as host off the new Zane Grey TV series which will appear on CBS Friday nights. He'll also act in a minimum of three of the dramas produced by the company of which he is a partner.

Powell's last theatre movie was "Susan Slept Here," made more than two years ago. This has been the longest screen absence for the star, who found fame first as a musical star and later as a tough guy.

"I've had it," he said. "I'm tired of holding my stomach in. I never got much of a kick out of acting, anyway."

Won't Play For McGill

MONTREAL (CP) — Wally Bulchak, backfielder with the University of Toronto in the Intercollegiate Senior Football last year, is ineligible to play for McGill this season, it was announced Monday.

Athletics director Harry Griffiths said Bulchak, who graduated from Toronto where he played defensive halfback for three seasons cannot play because of a new transfer rule passed last spring.

Bulchak, 22, is taking dentistry at McGill. He was an offensive standout in the Redmen's 47-6 romp over McMaster in an exhibition game Saturday.

AT THE McCARTHY — One for the Road — Little does Marilyn Monroe as a honky-tonk entertainer suspect that she'll be seeing ringsider Arthur O'Connell so soon again — on a bus bound for a Montana cattle ranch. Scene is from "Bus Stop", Twentieth Century-Fox's hilarious screen version in CinemaScope of the Broadway hit play opening Wednesday at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

AT THE BELLE — Life inspired stories make powerful movies! Paul Newman, one of Hollywood's brightest new stars portrays Rocky Graziano in "Somebody Up There Likes Me", telling the story of the tough hoodlum of New York's Lower East Side, who achieved respectability and fame. Pier Angeli co-stars in the M.G.M. picture based on Graziano's best-seller autobiography playing tonight for the last times at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

Barbara Nichols Played Hard To Get and Got Into Movies

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP)—For television starlets with an eye on a film career, Barbara Nichols has a word of advice:

The way to break into movies, she says, is to play hard to get.

Miss Michols, a stunner with turbulent ash-blonde hair, speaks with some authority. She avoided movie studios and the scouts found her on TV. And with three movies completed, bouncy Barbara has yet to take a screen test.

Her own formula for breaking into the cinema has been live television and broadway shows.

She made a big splash a couple of seasons back in a bit appearance on Sid Caesar's NBC-TV show. Later Caesar called her back and worked a whole show around her.

Before her stint on the Caesar show Miss Nichols probably was the best-known unknown in the land. For two years she was a calendar girl of Esquire magazine, and a model her face figure appeared on the covers of inside pages of 200 other magazines.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Wednesday, October 3, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — This day's challenges to Aries fine ability and sense of judgment. You should conquer all obstacles quickly. With faith in God's help and your own talents, tackle do unflinchingly.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — You should find enough going today if you put your heart in your work and don't falter over trifles. Taurus is known for his (or her) unusual talents and all-around capability. Show it now.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — More than a little is promised today for the top effort you can give so ably. There's no need to overwork or strain. Just allocate tasks properly, be consistent and you will achieve good results.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Heed advice to Taurus now. You have much ability and reserve energy to handle emergencies and even ordinary duties. Well, here's your day to do some honest 'showing off.'

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Hold back some of that fire and enthusiasm, but go forward with your day's schedule according to plan. You won't fall short of fine achievement. Be hopeful, thankful.

August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Advice to Gemini persons here. A day for big or small accomplishment according to the demands of your position and calling. Don't fear competition or opposition; you can handle both.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Similar to Taurus now. Fine achievement is possible, but it's really up to you and how you manage things today. Be sensitive to essentials but don't strain or force issues. Your interests favored.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — You will probably accomplish more if you slow your pace enough to avoid needless errors, irritation — and fatigue.

November 23 to December 21 — (Sagittarius) — Do not become excited if you mislay anything, nor easily provoked if others irk you. Take things in stride, and give this day plenty of your inborn sense of humor and good old common sense.

December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — You can make this day productive, gainful merely by lending your intelligent know-how quietly, without strain. Even in seemingly small tasks there is often important reward.

January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — Steadiness of purpose and effort stressed if you are to get desired results from both duties and personal matters. Familiar activities, essential daily tasks, home interests favored.

February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces) — This may be an exciting day but it can also be a frustrating one, with sound matters, essential business and work interests pounced.

You born today can truly appreciate the beautiful things in life, and get great comfort from home, family, dear ones. Pride, ability to labor consistently as executive or employee, justice, a tendency to play and work at too strenuous a pace, and integrity are outstanding in this birth sector. Shun extremes; don't let pride carry you too far; avoid overindulgence, and you will be the powerful community benefactor and family man or woman that you can be.

Birthdate of: George Bancroft, Amer. historian, statesman.

Witness Says He Saw Soldier Join Civilians

POZNAN, Poland (Reuters) — A prosecution witness told a Poznan court today that he saw a soldier join civilians in a tank they seized during riots in this west Polish industrial city June 28.

Then the tank drove off on its 2 m e d i u m - l o n g journey, including a woman holding a torn, bloodstained Polish flag, said the witness, 28-year-old Edward Gomulski.

Gomulski said he did not know whether the soldier was forced to get into the tank or went voluntarily.

He was giving evidence at the resumed trial of eight youths and a 35 - year - old man accused of stealing arms and attacking security police headquarters during the June riots.

He was giving evidence at the resumed trial of eight youths and a 35 - year - old man accused of stealing arms and attacking security police headquarters during the June riots.

A third trial of six men charged with stealing weapons opens Wednesday, while a fourth trial of 10 men accused of stealing weapons begins Friday.

At the moment there are 68 indictments before the courts as a result of the June riots in Poznan which began with a protest demonstration by a large section of the Zispo factory's 20,000 workers against grievances later admitted by the government to have been genuine.

News Monopoly Charge Answered By Broadcasters

OTTAWA (CP) — Restrictions on newspaper ownership of radio or television stations are opposed by the Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters.

The CARTB's objections were made known today in a brief to the royal commission on broadcasting for its final hearings opening today. The association took issue with an earlier Canadian Labor Congress submission objecting to newspaper-radio-TV "monopolies."

"For all practical purposes," the private broadcasters said, "the radio and TV stations named as 'monopolies' in the congress brief are not monopolies at all, unless the monopoly position is imposed on them by the licensing authorities. Certainly, channels are available for others.

"In Canada newspapers and broadcasting stations together as monopolists, the CLC does not make up the conviction of the CARTB that both broadcasting and newspapers are engaged in publishing at all, so doing it lends strength to the argument that they should be considered in that light when regulations are being framed.

"It also lends strength to the argument that, since broadcasting is publishing, a newspaper publisher should not be denied the use of electronics in the process of publication.

"However, where a group of employees feel they have a grievance, they ought properly seek recourse in the existing laws and not to combines rather than attempt to restrict the growth of publishers everywhere.

"The CARTB would be the first to deplore monopolies of power, and we are convinced that recommendations of the Canadian Labor Congress brief would be of less concern rather than in less.

"We find the CLC and affiliated briefs unsupported by the merely forthright advocacies of complete nationalization, and by the specious argument, unrepresentative of the views of membership, inconsistent of the public interest while promoting union interests.

"They misrepresent the legitimate requests of private broadcasters, make false charges of monopoly control by private interests while urging monopoly in union interests."

PROFESSOR

"Surely, there is nothing more ludicrous than the suggestion that Canada should follow Uncle Sam and Billy O'Connor to save us from the savage attack of Jackie Gleason and Perry Como."

Unfortunately for the league's cause, Prof. Long said, it did not go far enough. Radio and TV should be the domains of cultural invasion. The brief had stated that nothing brought Canada and Canadians a realization of the U.S. than Hollywood-produced movies. There was no suggestion of a federal authority to protect Canada from this "menace to culture."

"Perhaps they have such action in the back of their minds," Prof. Long said. "At least they argue that 'the only guarantee of continued existence of Canada is the continued nationalization of the whole economy of our national life, of which broadcasting is one.

"They do not define 'key sectors'. Their general contention is that broadcasting is one of them and that it is clear that movies and the press fall under this category.

"If theI- thesis is correct, then these two industries should also be nationalized to save us from a fate that is national death."

"Their main concern," the professor added, "seems to be to decrease the power of the federal government. This is the real reason for stressing the impact of American culture."

CARTB Requests Regulatory Powers, Operating Functions Of Broadcasting Co. Be Curbed

By JOHN LEBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—An expanded role for private radio and TV in Canada is urged upon the royal commission on broadcasting by the Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters.

The CARTB, whose membership includes most private station operators, recommends that the regulatory powers and operating functions of the CBC be curbed.

"Under present circumstances, the state broadcasting agency is courting towards a concentration of size, wealth and power significant enough to weaken the safeguards represented by elective government," the association declared in a 12,000-word brief made public today.

RESTYLE BRIEFS

The brief is one of five CARTB submissions presented to the three-man commission for its final hearings opening Tuesday. The commission, under Chairman Dr. M. Fowler of Montreal, which opened hearings last spring, also will receive evidence from the CBC and the Canadian Labor Congress in its last sessions.

All three are delivering rebuttal material against ideas expressed by opponents of their views. All submitted briefs earlier and are the only groups permitted new appearances before the inquiry.

The CARTB in its final brief reiterated and expanded on its original main recommendations for:

1. Establishment of a separate administrative authority, a "Canadian telecommunications board"—for the licensing and administration of all telecommunications including broadcasting received by the public. This board would take over the CBC board of governors' powers to regulate broadcasting and also assume functions over other types of air communications now exercised by the transport department.

2. Licensing of competitive TV broadcasting stations in any area of Canada, to permit maximum use of TV channels and "transfer a larger share of its cost from the taxpayer to industry." Governments police now calls for a single station in any viewing area.

ANNUAL GRANTS

3. Financing of any state broadcasting agency such as the CBC—whatever its form—by annual parliamentary grants "to protect the basic principles of responsible government." The CBC and its supporters propose long-term financing.

Of private broadcasters' ability to meet the country's needs; the CARTB said:

"This association believes that private broadcasting facilities are capable of providing a comprehensive broadcasting service and coverage to the nation.

"But because of the commission's terms of reference, our submission is based on the assumption that a state broadcasting agency will continue to operate in some form."

LIMITED OPERATIONS

The association did suggest—though it did not emphasize strongly—that the CBC might well be confined to these functions:

1. Continuing to operate the federal government's international short-wave information service.

2. Providing broadcasting services to remote northern areas.

3. Producing—rather than distributing—a service concentrating on "programs of unusual significance to the nation."

Dealing specifically with television, the CARTB said the CBC "busily engaged in building up its own television empire, does not seem to us to be in a position to judge justly the proper allocation of TV channels in the public interest."

HELD BACK

"Were it not for the restrictive nature of the present system, we would have provided television service in Canada in all areas from the end of the Second World War.

"In the new Canada of 1956 we would, if unbound from the corporation (CBC) which claims us as part and parcel of its body, make such progress that the present hybrid system would seem obsolete and old-fashioned within two or three years.

"Viewers would have many television channels to choose from: new sources of program material within Canada would be developed rapidly: color television would be speeded; sets would sell in larger quantities and would improve, more people would be employed."

The private operators said the majority of those supporting their views favor freedom for individual Canadians and have faith in their ability to progress. The "vast majority of those who oppose our views are of the deprogrammed, state - adoring collectivist school."

"Certainly, they are entitled to their beliefs and attitudes, but it would seem ironic if they carried the day here and assisted in keeping the broadcasting industry tied to outdated theories, not shared by a majority of Canadians."

ASK RELIEF

"We ask relief from a system which . . . has attempted and succeeded in totally dominating the entire field of radio and television communication, a system which is also seeking full itself of control of elected rersentatives over its annual expenditures.

"We are bound in the web of a power-hungry corporation more interested in empire-building than in programming.

"We would prefer to be regulated, however strictly, by a separate regulatory body.

Discussing competitive TV as opposed to the existing single-station policy, the association said Canadians should have a choice of more than one station or program from Canadian sources, provided channels are available.

ONLY REASON

"The only serious reason that can be given for the establishment of the state monopoly in the six large population centres," the association said, "can be a fear by the corporation of competition or fear of loss of revenue.

Commercial revenue loss through competition has never proven to be the case."

"Licensing of competitive television stations throughout Canada," the CARTB said, "would reduce United States penetration, increase interest in television, the large audiences and set sales, keep Canadian advertising expenditures at home and increase the opportunity for employment in Canada by persons engaged in TV broadcasting.

"It would correct the present situation which the Canadian voter pays for no choice. By provision of additional programming and additional pools of talent, it would hasten provision of TV service to smaller and outlying areas."

Ald. Summerville Rebuked by Control Board

TORONTO (CP) — Alderman David Summerville, who said Parks commissioner George Bell was operating a posh hideaway in 200-acre High Park, was rebuked Monday night by board of control and the parks committee decided it is only a functional office.

Controllers and committee members moved a vote of confidence in Mr. Bell and suggested Mr. Summerville was trying to grab publicity in saying there was something irregular about the operation of the office.

Mayor Nathan Phillips said there was nothing wrong in the parks department finding up the office, converted last year from a hayloft.

The special meeting to resolve the office issue was held in the high park office instead of at city hall.

Whites Hustle Negro Students Off Campus

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP)—Pickets of a newly-organized white citizens' council hustled two Negro students off the Lamar State College of Technology campus Monday night, and a council spokesman promised another 50 pickets and a demonstration at the state-supported school today.

Police added that the Negro students, whose names were not learned, were not injured. Two other Negro students attending classes were advised by officers to go home, and they did.

Some 100 white persons, ranging in age from 20 to 30, arrived at the campus about 7 p.m. and set up a picket line. They carried placards. Students swelled the crowd to about 500 during the evening.

HOUSEWIFE ORGANIZER

Mrs. H. T. Mercer, a housewife from Vidor, Tex., a small town just east of Beaumont, said she organized the demonstration, and had organized the council about a week ago.

She said she has a 17-year-old son whom she wants to send to what she called "an all-white Lamar Tech" next year.

Aneurin Bevan Named Treasurer Of Labor Party

BLACKPOOL, Eng. (Reuters)—Aneurin Bevan, leader of the left wing of the British Labor party, was elected today to the key post of party treasurer after a long struggle.

He defeated his closest rival, George Brown, a former cabinet minister, by 2,628,000 card votes to 2,755,000 in balloting at the party's annual conference.

Other candidates were C. Pannell, who got 844,000 votes, and D. Rhydderch, 42,000.

Bevan's election returns him to a position of policy-making importance after a period in the party wilderness. The ballot was greeted with noisy enthusiasm.

It was Bevan's third attempt to become treasurer. In previous years, while feuding violently with the moderate leaders of the party, he was soundly defeated by Hugh Gaitskell, who has since become party leader. But in the last few months the bitter rivalries between the right and left wings of the party have dampened down.

Confident that Labor can oust the Conservative government from power at the next general election, the party has striven hard to achieve unity.

Chief Bevan supporters described the result as one of the most significant developments in the party for a long time.

Today's vote showed that many of the powerful trade unions, once Bevan's most hostile critics, now want to give him a chance. His election puts him back on the national executive committee, ruling body of the party.

For the first time a woman—red-headed Mrs. Barbara Castle—topped the poll in elections by the political wing (constituency parties) to the national executive. The political wing elects seven of the 28 members. Elected were:

Mrs. Castle, 928,000 votes; Anthony Greenwood, 899,000; Wilson, 877,000; Tom Driberg, 871,000; Richard Crossman, 860,000; Ian Mikardo, 717,000; Sidney Silverman, 615,000.

PARTY LEADERSHIP CONVENTION IN OTTAWA IN DEC.

Draft-Diefenbaker Move Comes Out Into Open

OTTAWA (CP)—A Diefenbaker-for-leader movement, born in the ranks of Progressive Conservative Commons members, has come into the open on the heels of the announcement that a party leadership convention will be held in Ottawa in the week of Dec. 10.

Gordon Churchill, Winnipeg MP, issued a statement Tuesday night that a 15-member committee has started work to "draft" John Diefenbaker, 61-year-old Saskatchewan lawyer.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who seems certain to run for the leadership although he hasn't yet said so, commented that he was deeply grateful "for this show of confidence."

The place and time of a successor to Leon Balcer of Trois-Rivieres, Que., Conservative interim leader, was decided Tuesday at a day-long closed meeting of the executive of the national council of association.

The executive named a convention committee and drew up ground rules under which delegates will be chosen. Delegates can be chosen to attend the big meeting, the executive decided, but Association President Leon Balcer of Trois-Rivieres, Que., expected more than 1,400 will be present.

HEES NOT CANDIDATE?

As the executive met, behind-the-scenes manoeuvring reached a faster tempo in the leadership race. But one name as yet declared himself.

There was a strong indication that George Hees, 48-year-old member for Toronto Broadview, may drop his leadership hopes and swing in support of Mr. Diefenbaker, the party's external affairs spokesman who fallied in two previous leadership bids.

Mr. Hees had may move Donald Fleming of Toronto Eglinton into second spot in the leadership fight. Another possible contestant is Davie Fulton, member of Kamloops, B.C.

Mr. Fleming, 51, and Mr. Fulton said Tuesday night it is too soon to make any statement. Both are lawyers and both have held Commons seats since 1945.

Egypt Makes New Proposal To Settle Issue

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times says Egypt is reported ready to accept United American oil and shipping control plan under supervision of a development of the Suez Canal.

A Times dispatch from Cairo reports Ali Sabri, a high policy decision a i m e d at strengthening Egypt's economy and which, he said, would be maintained at the highest level of efficiency.

Western diplomats were reticent to discuss the plan, but unidentified Egyptians were quoted as saying Helmy Bahgat Badawy, director-general of the Egyptian Suez Canal Authority, was coming with Fawzi to the United States to propose that the Suez Canal oil interests controlling most of the world's tankers that they take over the job of maintaining, widening and improving the Canal, the Times' Egypt would pay the costs of the work.

The report says the plan is seen as an important bid by Nasser to take advantage of the Suez Canal crisis to force a negotiated settlement of the canal dispute.

Smallwood's Govt. In Nfld. Returned With Big Majority

Takes Seat From Opposition, CCF Loses all $100 Deposits

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The Liberal government of Premier Smallwood was swept back into office Tuesday with an increased majority for its third straight election victory since Confederation seven years ago.

Liberals increased their strength in the legislature by winning all eight new seats created by a redistribution bill in 1955 and taking one seat from the Progressive Conservatives.

The CCF, which had entered 10 candidates, did not win a seat and lost their $100 deposits for failing to gain half the number of votes of the elected candidate.

The standings:

Liberals	32	23
PCs	4	5
Totals	36	28

NOT UNEXPECTED

Mr. Smallwood, who termed his victory a "landslide," said he was not surprised at the outcome. Before the election he had predicted his party would win "more than 30 seats."

It was the 56-year-old premier's third victory at the helm of the Liberals since Confederation became Canada's 10th province in 1949.

Malcolm Hollett, 52, leading the Progressive Conservatives in an election campaign, was the first defeated victory to the Liberal less than two hours after polls closed.

In a statement he said:

"The election has shown me people are beginning to think. I am sure of different results in the future."

CCF LEADER BEATEN

Samuel Drover, 45, leader of the CCF, said "the CCF was a new party and didn't have the funds to fight the election." He predicted better luck when the people know more about us."

Mr. Drover was defeated in Bell Island by Liberal Joseph Webber. Mr. Drover was elected in Labrador West by 1951, but split with the party in 1954.

A dissolution standings were Liberal 17, Progressive Conservative four, CCF one and six vacant. Five Liberals and a Progressive Conservative had resigned since the 1951 election.

Shepilov Convinced Reasonable Solution To Suez Can Be Reached Through UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) Russia's Foreign Minister Shepilov, arriving today for the United Nations Security Council debate on the Suez Canal, declared himself "deeply convinced we shall be able to find a reasonable solution to the problems troubling us."

The Soviet minister said this could be achieved "through negotiations on a basis of equality and fairness, and by means of a correct combination of the interests of Egypt as a sovereign state, and the interests of all other states using the canal."

Shepilov and six other foreign ministers, including Egypt's Mahmoud Fawzi, will take part in the council debate opening Friday. Egypt is not a member of the 11-power council but was invited to participate as an interested party.

Shepilov, in an airport statement, asserted that attempts are still being made to settle the Suez problem "from positions of strength."

LACK UNDERSTANDING

"These attempts are caused by lack of understanding of the spirit of our times and of the revolution of the forms of social life that is in progress throughout the vast expanse of the East.

"It is ignorance of these processes that lies at the back of all hot-headed and impractical projects to resolve the Suez problem through compulsion. But we hope that the advocates of these measures are becoming even fewer in numbers."

Private conferences were being held today in advance of the 11-power debate. Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd of Britain and Foreign Minister Koca Popovic of Yugoslavia were already on hand. Paul - Henri Spaak of Belgium, Christian Pineau of France and Fawzi were expected during the day and Dmitri Shepilov of Russia by Friday or perhaps sooner.

Britain and France are preparing a resolution for the council ruling for international control of the strategic waterway nationalized by Egypt July 26. Yugoslavia and others are reported working for a compromise. The Soviet Union has backed Egypt in the canal issue.

Lloyd and Pineau were to meet tonight at dinner with Henry Cabot Lodge, United States representative on the council, with the first council session expected to be the top item in their talks.

A British spokesman confirmed published reports that the resolution will ask the council to recommend that Egypt co-operate canal - using countries in "operational arrangements to keep waterway open to all countries." negotiate a final settlement based on the majority proposals from the first London Suez conference.

These proposals called for an international board linked with the UN to operate the canal. The plan was rejected by President Nasser.

Any such British-French resolution faces the possibility of a Soviet veto in the council.

In Cairo Tuesday, William Yates Conservative member of the British Parliament, described the Suez crisis with President Nasser for an hour. He said afterward he understands a negotiated settlement is possible.

"I understand here that the whole situation can be solved by an international conference to survive the 1888 convention," Yates told reporters.

"Egypt would give all canal users and the United Nations explicit guarantees of their right of free passage and on tolls to be levied," he said.

Yates said he also understands an advisory board for Egypt's nationalized canal authority would be acceptable to the Egyptian government. An international advisory board was proposed by India at the London conference on Suez in mid-August.

Battle MiGs

TAIPEI (AP) — The Chinese Nationalists reported today they shot down four F-84 Thunderjets battled furiously Monday with four Chinese Communist MiG-17s off the South China coast.

The Nationalists claimed two of the jets were damaged, one seriously, but that the Nationalist planes suffered no damage and escaped unscathed.

The Reds said earlier that a Nationalist jet had been shot down.

It was the first action reported to have included MiG-17s since 4 July 21.

Today's Chuckle

Two children were standing on a corner waiting for the light to change.

Cars were driving through red lights and stop signs, double parking, and weaving in and out of traffic lanes. Said one boy to the other:

"What do you want to be— If you grow up?"

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Other Tuesday's showers, skies cleared throughout the province and early Wednesday temperatures fell to the freezing point in northern Ontario, and into the low 40s in the South.

Southern Ontario will enjoy fine, sunny autumn weather today, but a new disturbance in northern Manitoba, already causing increasing cloudiness and a few scattered showers in northwestern Ontario, will bring a repetition of Tuesday's weather—showers Thursday morning, followed by clearing.

Israel Plans Boycott of Mixed Armistice Body

JERUSALEM (Reuters)—Israel today announced she will attend no more meetings of the Israel-Jordan mixed armistice commission for discussion of border incidents.

A foreign ministry announcement said Israel remains ready to meet with Jordan to seek a peaceful settlement of major problems but sees "no useful purpose" in continuing the present commission meetings.

The move was not entirely unexpected. Israel walked out of the last commission session two days ago during a discussion of an Israeli retaliatory raid into Jordan territory. Israel was censured by the commission for the raid.

"As regards the UN truce supervision organization, not only did it fail to succeed to deter the Arab countries from their policy of aggression, but it even failed in its responsibility to draw the distinction between attackers and attacked, between the party which refused to live up to its obligations under the UN Charter and the armistice agreements and the party which demands fulfilment of these obligations in their entirety," the announcement said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dulles apparently is charting a course "more British dependent" from that of Britain and France in the Suez Canal dispute with Egypt.

His purpose seems to be to show the peoples of Asia and Africa that the United States is not "100 per cent" identified with Britain and France on the issue of colonialism, although the exact extent of differences over Suez is not clear.

The scope of these differences was clouded by changes in wording Dulles made after discussing Suez policy off the cuff at a press conference Tuesday.

He seemed in effect to be saying that Britain and France also are colonialism problem in the Suez situation, although the U.S., Britain and France stand together on the main issue by insisting on international operation of the canal which Egypt nationalized in July.

Dulles himself brought up Africa before when asked about reports of a split between Washington and its British and French allies in organizing a users' association of countries whose ships depend on the canal passage.

While denying that there has been any basic change in that concept, Dulles told reporters there is some difference in approach to the problem of Suez.

That difference relates to rather fundamental things, he declared.

He drew a distinction then between co-operation among Britain, France and France under the North Atlantic treaty, and their policies in dealing with problems which he said involve colonialism.

French Military Convoy Ambushed 9 Soldiers Killed

ALGIERS (Reuters) — Nine French soldiers were killed Tuesday night when an insurgent band ambushed a military convoy in the Djebel Amour mountains of the Algerian Atlas, according to reports reaching here today.

The incidents immediately returned the fire and inflicted heavy losses, according to first reports. No further details were immediately available.

The French Tuesday strengthened their forces in Algiers and sent light tanks on patrols against new threats of rebel violence.

Greek-Cypriots Maintain Curfew Faces Thousands With Starvation

NICOSIA (CP) — Greek-Cypriot officials and people had settled down to a five-day old curfew ordered by British authorities as reports circulated that many others are going on a hunger strike.

The curfew, confining 15,000 peoples to their houses in the Greek quarter of Nicosia, was ordered for two hours today to permit people to buy food in street markets.

The boycott is believed partly due to a general cash shortage—especially among wage-earning workers — and also in protest against the continuance of the curfew.

British authorities today reported the arrest of three Greek Cypriots and said they were suspected of planning to bomb a police station at Lefka in northwest Cyprus.

Steel City Gary Uses Its Product For Cheap, Installment-Plan School

GARY, Ind. (AP)—This steel city is using its major product to build a school officials say is less expensive, faster to erect and can be bought on the installment plan.

They say it could provide an answer to the national problem of bulging classrooms.

Educationists are watching closely the building of the six-classroom Horsford Park junior high school. Its steel construction, builders say, makes it fireproof and nearly eliminates maintenance.

Calumet Township school district, after a lengthy legal tangle, obtained permission from the state to make a down payment of $15,000. The remaining $290,000 cost will be paid next year from the township's accumulated building fund.

The school was designed by collaboration with United States Steel Corp., which has huge plants here.

The new school has six classrooms, an office, activity room, teachers' room, boiler room, two rest rooms and several storage rooms.

It will cost around $50,000 less than a 10-room brick school built this year.

Structo Corp. says its downpayment plan is expected to attract school districts with comparatively little cash on hand.

The one-storey school's steel components include interior and exterior wall panels, roof, supporting columns, ductwork, girders, window frames and skylight wells. It is expected to be ready Nov. 1.

Inside and out the school will flash with colors porcelainized into the steel. Engineers say the walls will not corrode and will require no painting or expensive upkeep.

Bank Officials Assist Teller In Getting Wed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The wedding went off without a hitch after the world's largest bank, in a sentimental assist to young love, let down its electronically controlled defences.

At 6 p.m. last Friday the vaults of the bank's Marina branch were sealed electronically for the week-end.

"I'm ring," he cried, "the ring for the wedding tomorrow noon! It's in my safe deposit box, locked in the vault!"

Bonavita called higher officials who came up with a solution.

At 9:30 a.m. Saturday a police inspector and a patrolman met bank officials, who opened the vault—touching off the burglar alarm—and retrieved the ring.

And at high noon, Brosio and Helen Maiocco were married.

Power Squadron Will Soon Begin Series of Lectures

In existence for the past three years, the Bay of Quinte Power Squadron will shortly begin its fourth year of lectures on the science of boating.

The winter classes which begin in October include the general course for beginners and advanced courses for those desiring specialized studies.

In the first year the student is introduced to almost every aspect of boating. He becomes familiar with weather predictions, emergency procedure, dead reckoning, lights, buoys and other aids intended to make life at sea safer and more comfortable.

Safe operation of boats is probably the theme of power squadron activity, but such courses as seamanship, celestial navigation, advanced piloting and engine maintenance indicate the scope of its interest. The program has now been arranged and a full schedule is planned. Studies will end early April allowing for spring conditioning before launching.

Club membership of the power squadron includes some with powerful cruisers with sail boats and some with a love for the sea.

Mounting interest in boating by Canadians has led to a more strict inspection of boats by the RCMP with government recently considering the licensing of operators of all boats whether for pleasure or for hire. Present regulations call for the licensing of craft and attempt to minimize the dangers of collision, drownings and fire.

Club Projects For Kiwanians Are Discussed

Kiwanians discussed a few proposed club projects at a noisterous meeting. Mr. Staff McKenna chaired the period and was assisted by Fred Hall, Lloyd Kells, Bill Harvey and Jim Allan.

Mr. McKenna urged members to get out and sell tickets for the comedy "Arsenic and Old Lace" venture series which the club is sponsoring this season. It sponsored last year. "This year," he said, "the series should spark the interests of about 500 people."

Mr. Fuke gave a report on the financial situation of ticket sales. Mr. Kells and Mr. Harvey added their encouragement to the club to get behind the travel series over the top.

Finally, Mr. Allan briefed the members on a project which would be a great benefit to Belleville's youth. At present the project is being submitted to the board of directors for approval.

Bill Slade, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, is in charge of a trip to Cornwall, proposed for October 29. The idea behind the trip is to give the club a first-hand glimpse of the work being done on the St. Lawrence Seaway project.

President Al Drysdale encouraged as many members as possible to attend the inter-club meeting at Madoc on October 15. Mayor Harvey J. McFarland of Picton, will be guest speaker.

Thirty Attend First Lecture On Fire Fighting

Aimed at increasing the efficiency of the 11,000 permanent and volunteer firemen in the province, the Ontario Fire Marshal's Department is holding a series of lectures in central points across Ontario which is hoped will improve fire fighting services and cut fire losses.

Not all firemen in the province will attend the lectures, but instructors will be trained from each department, with these men in turn passing on their learning to other members of their own departments.

One of the lecture courses is being held at Belleville at which representatives of all fire departments in Hastings and Prince Edward counties will attend.

The lectures got underway Tuesday night at No. 2 firehall on Moira street with close to 30 fire chiefs, officers and firemen from north to Bancroft and south to Wellington in attendance. The courses will run each Tuesday evening until February 19th when the "students" will receive certificates.

Methods of instruction to be followed during the courses were explained last night by D. E. Barrett, director of the Ontario Fire College. Following lectures on all phases of basic fire fighting will be given by H. J. Mallory, instructor from the Ontario Fire Marshal's Department.

Attending the opening lecture at Belleville last night were: Bancroft — Chief C. McAffree and Clarence Leedy and R. Tryon; Batawa — Chief John Aquino; Belleville — Deputy Chief Gerald O'Brien, Lieutenants T. Poste, R. Wardle, H. Stump, L. Culhane and firemen V. Card and F. Ellis; Bloomfield — Chief R. Rolston, E. Trenton Sends Electronic Gear To Hunt for Jet MACDONALD, Man. (CP)—Electronic underwater sweeping gear from Trenton, Ont., has arrived here for use today in searching Lake Manitoba for a T-33 jet trainer believed to have crashed into the lake Friday. The plane was from this air force base, 10 miles south of Portage la Prairie.

An RCAF spokesman said the metal - detecting device, which trails cables deep into the water, will probably be carried in an RCAF launch. When it detects the presence of metal, dragging equipment in other boats will be put into use.

Aboard the missing plane were an instructor, F/O R. D. Mulligan of Windsor, Ont., and a NATO student pilot.

Trenton Flying Club Charter Accepted by Belleville Girl

Finkle, 253 Bridge Street East, was accorded the honor of accepting the official Charter and membership certificate of the newly formed Trenton Flying Club, from Mr. G. The presentation Friday, September 28, was made during a distinguished gathering of officials of the Royal Canadian Flying Clubs Association, the Department of Transport, representatives of the armed forces and senior Air Force Officers from Training Command Headquarters, RCAF Station Trenton and the RCAF Flying Club.

The Trenton Flying Club, formed late last spring, offers serving members of the RCAF an opportunity to learn to fly in aircraft owned and operated by their own club. The club has already two members who have obtained their private pilot's licence, and a number of others who have soloed.

Prior to the official presentation ceremonies, the visitors witnessed a 20 minute air display of RCAF jet and piston-driven aircraft which landed and formed a semicircle with one of the club planes in the centre. The distinguished guests were officially welcomed to Trenton by Air Commodore R. B. Harvey, AFC, CD, Club President.

Following the flying display and presentations, club members and guests proceeded to the new airmens dining hall where a formal dinner was held. The guest speakers were Mr. G. MacDonald, President of the R.C.F.C.A.

Big Demand For Workers in Bancroft Area

A big demand for construction workers is predicted for the Bancroft area where housing accommodation for mine workers is being erected. This resulted in a bright month-end employment picture at the Belleville office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

At the end of September there were but 360 persons receiving unemployment benefits through the Belleville office as compared with a total of 514 on claim at the same period last year.

A breakdown of claims on file showed there were 68 men and 86 women receiving benefits in Belleville and immediate area, while postal claims accounted for 116 men and 18 women.

During September 185 persons were placed in jobs by the Belleville office. Of these persons 75 were women.

Also for today there were 38 job openings for men and 46 openings for women listed at the Belleville office.

In the Bancroft area it was stated there are approximately 450 workers on construction jobs, principally on housing units at the mines township near the Ontario boundary of the county. One hundred men from the Eldorado Beaverlodge mine officials hoping to get 60 units closed in before the snow flies.

11-Room Addition Authorized by Board Members

Authorization for the architect to proceed with final plans and specifications for the proposed 11-room addition to the Bay of Quinte Secondary school was given by board members at a special meeting held Tuesday evening.

At the meeting Mr. H. H. Roberts, architect, showed sketch plans for the new addition which have already been approved by the Ontario Department of Education.

Tenders for the new addition expected to cost in the neighborhood of $200,000 are likely to be called some time in December or early January.

In the meantime with a third high school planned for Belleville within the next two years, board members are planning to visit the Peterborough district next Tuesday to inspect new schools and additions in that area.

Gaitskell Wins Ovation for Plea For Party Unity

BLACKPOOL, England (AP)—Labor party leader Hugh Gaitskell today won an ovation at the party's annual conference with a plea for unity within the movement.

"We must have unity within the Labor party itself—the kind of unity that has been so outstanding at this conference," he said, "and all of you must share the responsibilities of leadership in this.

The moderate Socialist refrained from any open reference to his opponent, Left-winger Aneurin Bevan. By winning the part of party treasurer Tuesday, Bevan posed a challenge to Gaitskell's leadership.

Bevan received a veiled warning from the trades union branch of the movement set up the local party organizations against the unions in any bid for power. Believing fratricidal strife would, warned that there must be no attempt to divide trade unionists from the political organization of the Labor party.

THEIR DARLING

Bevan is the darling of local party organizations which favor his left-wing views. He is still viewed with suspicion, however, by many of the big trade unions which support Gaitskell's moderate policy.

At today's session the conference called for a sweeping revision of Britain's taxation system, including the introduction of a capital gains tax on stock transactions.

The conference gave assent to a policy document urging the use of taxes to promote equality.

IN MEMORIAM

McQUAID, — In loving memory of a dear brother, Edmund McQuaid, who passed away one year ago today, 1955.

He is gone, but not forgotten,
And in our hearts he will remain.
Sweet memories of kindness
Thoughts of him are always near
Days of sorrow and heartache
Friends may think the wound has healed
But they little know the sorrow
That lay within unrevealed.
—Ever remembered by brother and sister-in-law Estella and family.

McQUAID, — In loving memory of a dear brother and uncle, Edmund McQuaid, who passed away October 3rd, 1953.

A thank of him in silence,
His name we oft recall,
There is nothing left to answer,
But his picture on the wall.
—Remembered by sister Mary, brother-in-law Joseph Valerie and Karen, nephew Terry.

McQUAID. — In loving memory of Edmund McQuaid, who passed away one year ago today, 1955.

Whatever lands we view,
Whatever path we may pursue
We will always think of you.
—Ever remembered by mother, sisters and brothers.

McQUAID, — In loving memory of Edmund McQuaid, who passed away one year ago, October 3rd, 1955.

He bade no one his last farewell,
He left us in silence,
The heavenly gates were opened,
A loving voice said "Come"
We often sit and think of you,
And wonder why you went away;
Sad and lonely as we are,
Without a chance to say goodbye.
—Ever remembered
You are still missed, still loved, still dear
You will live with us in memory
Till we meet you here.
—Lovingly remembered by brother and sister-in-law Harris and Betty.

Pope Innocent XI To Be Beatified Sunday in Rome

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Innocent XI, a humble man who dared stand against powerful Louis XIV of France, will be beatified Sunday in St. Peter's Basilica.

Centre of the glittering ceremony will be the silver-masked body of the 17th century Pope.

Pope Pius XII has given the pontifical robes to clothe the Pope Innocent XI, and the papal ring that has been placed on his silver-covered hand. The crystal coffin containing the Pontiff's body will be exposed at the culminating moment of the solemn and joyful ceremony—when the papal herald is read proclaiming Innocent one of the blessed of the Roman Catholic Church.

Pope Pius will come from his Castel Gandolfo summer residence to St. Peter's to lead in the first act of veneration of the newly beatified Pontiff.

Innocent XI, born Benedetto Odescalchi May 16, 1611, at Como, northern Italy, was noted for his humility and modest way of life. He was called "the father of the poor."

Relations Between Countries Better Says Pravda

LONDON (AP) — The Russian newspaper Pravda says relations between the Yugoslav and Soviet bloc Communist parties are getting better, and "co-operation is growing in scope."

The statement by the organ of the Russian party took on special significance because of the talks now going on in the Crimea between President Tito of Yugoslavia and Kremlin leaders.

Tito made a hurried flight to the Soviet Union for the talks after reports of "ideological differences" between Belgrade and Moscow. Many Westerners believe he went to back up the Soviet party leader, Nikita Khrushchev, in the power struggle with former close associates of Stalin who are said to think Khrushchev and Premier Bulganin are loosening control on the satellites too much.

Pravda's applause for Yugoslavia appears to indicate that the issues which brought Tito to Russia might be near settlement in the Crimean talks.

Western diplomats in London meanwhile say Khrushchev has asked Tito to join a new Communist-type lineup of Communist states, quoting Yugoslav sources. But Western informants report that Tito's initial response was cool—either negative or perhaps inconclusive.

The old Cominform, the Red propaganda bureau founded after the war with the aim of promoting world communism, was dissolved last April. That action was seen as a move to appease Yugoslavia, which was expelled from the Soviet bloc during the Stalin-Tito feud of 1948.

Committee, Heads Named By Civil Defence

DESERONTO — The organization meeting of the local Civil Defence Committee was held in the town hall last weekend in charge of James Cochrane, vice-chairman, in the absence of M. A. Hicks.

The meeting was addressed at some length by co-ordinator E. Lack, who only recently returned from Civil Defence College at Arnprior.

COMMITTEE HEADS

In the discussion period that followed the following were appointed to head the various committees:

Police, W. S. McTaggart; health, Mrs. Charles Cole; welfare, D. S. Cassie; wardens, R. Batt; fire, J. H. McVicker; communications, John Neal.

A permanent location for Civil Defence headquarters was tentatively selected and another meeting will be held in the near future to finalize the formation of the complete committee.

In his remarks to the gathering Co-ordinator E. Lack stated the Sure drawn was not located in a logical target area the operation of the local force would be put to use in carring for evacuees from target area.

BONFIRE

On Sunday evening the local fire department was called about 8.30 p.m. to the home of Don Rimmell, Dundas Street. Apparently from a bonfire sparks had blown across and ignited the west end of the barn.

The flames were seen by members of the Kendall family across the road. The alarm was phoned in, fortunately the flames had not gained too much headway and were almost extinguished by Don Rimmell before the arrival of the firemen. The loss is covered by insurance.

Letter Carrier Sues Federation

HAMILTON (CP)—The former secretary of the Hamilton branch of the Federated Association of Letter Carriers, expelled from the association last March, has filed suit in Supreme Court for unstated damages against 10 members of the national executive.

Fred Bimson, in a writ filed today, asks damages for "wrongfully suspending the plaintiff as a member of the organization and for wrongfully depriving him of his civil rights as a member of the federation."

The writ also claims an order compelling the defendants to reinstate Mr. Bimson as a member of the federation.

Mr. Bimson was expelled during a controversy over the four and one-half day suspension of a Hamilton letter carrier by Postmaster C. D. Sipe for allegedly "shoving down on the job."

CHARGE INTIMIDATION

The union charged Postmaster Sipe with "intimidation" and asked that he be removed from office. The request was rejected by Postmaster-General Lapointe.

Support of both Hamilton labor councils was enlisted by the carriers. The national executive of the carriers took exception to the campaign to win public sympathy and Mr. Bimson was expelled. He is still employed at the post office.

Y.W. Hagerman Injured by Electric Saw

RAWDON — Late Saturday afternoon, Mr. Y. W. Hagerman, Anson line, who was 85 years of age in August of this year, caught his left hand in the electric saw in some unaccountable manner.

Later he was taken by ambulance to Belleville hospital.

On Sunday it was found necessary to amputate a portion of his little finger and all of the long finger. The other fingers were badly bruised.

Mr. Hagerman has been residing on the old homestead with his son Harold.

At the time of the accident Harold was working some distance away from the driveshed.

DULLES

After the press conference reports asked the state department whether Dulles was saying that the Suez dispute is really an issue is colonialism, and whether he was listing Britain and France among what he termed the "so-called colonial powers."

EDITS TRANSCRIPT

After the questions were relayed to him, Dulles edited the press conference transcript.

He struck out his statement that the difference in approach to Suez relates to some rather fundamental things. He changed his comment that there "is some difference" with Britain and France over the Suez issue to read "there has been some difference."

"There are other problems outside NATO where our approach is not always identical," Dulles revised version said. "For example, there is in Asia and Africa the so-called problem of colonialism. Now there the United States plays a somewhat independent role."

The effect of the revisions was to put his reference to differences with Britain and France in the past tense and to divorce his Suez comments in some degree — but not entirely — from the remarks he made about colonialism.

The book version Dulles said the role of the U.S. is to try to see that the process of shifting from colonialism to independence takes place in a "constructive evolutionary way" and is not stopped entirely or diverted into "violent revolutionary channels."

It seemed to many diplomatic observers here that the British and French governments would be upset by Dulles' linking the Suez problem with the broad problem of colonialism, and this may have been a principal reason behind his revisions.

HUGE OUTLAY

The 10 provincial governments in Canada are spending an estimated $437,000,000 on highway construction in 1956.

Times Accuses Dulles of Gross Misrepresentation

LONDON (Reuters) — The Times accuses State Secretary Dulles of "gross misrepresentation" for implying Tuesday at his press conference in Washington that the Suez Canal crisis was an issue of colonialism rather than an issue of elementary international law and order.

In a strongly worded editorial, the influential independent paper says: "Mr. Dulles spoke of the United States not being able 'to identify itself 100 per cent either with the colonial powers or the powers uniquely concerned with the problem of getting independence as rapidly and as fully as possible.'

"Britain's record as a colonial power stands in voluntarily becoming independence on four great Asian countries after the war, in withdrawing from the Palestine mandate—at little benefit to peace in the Middle East—in 1947; in delaying settlement with Egypt because the latter refused to grant like independence to the Sudan, and in granting independence to Malaya and the Gold Coast in recent years. Can even some nationalist politicians here forcibly expressing their doubts at the time, immediate desirability.

"And the issue of the canal is not an issue of colonialism, but one of elementary international law which is menacing the waterway which is many times as important for Western Europe as the Panama Canal is for North America.

"For Mr. Dulles to portray a cleavage between 'colonial powers' and those 'uniquely concerned with the problem of getting independence' is to misrepresent the country's role and record.

"To speak of it in this context is to misrepresent the Suez issue itself. Such gross misrepresentation at such a moment, with the Security Council debate imminent, is a grave disservice to Anglo-American unity."

Three Men Die As Globemaster Crashes, Burns

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — A C-124 Globemaster crashed and burned today at the Charleston air force base and three of the 10 aboard were killed.

The base public information office said the plane, coming in from Bermuda, landed short of the runway and crashed about 7:30 a.m. The plane apparently burst into flame after it hit. A light fog hung over the base at the time.

Court Rejects Defence Request To Hear Story

POZNAN, Poland (Reuters) — A Poznan court today rejected a defence request to hear a delegate who whose complaints on working conditions sparked a strike which flared into bloody rioting here June 28.

Judge Wasław Zebrowski ruled that none of nine men on trial, accused of stealing arms and attacking security police headquarters during the riots, had any contact with the delegates, and thus the delegates could give no relevant evidence.

The strike and riots, in which 53 persons were killed and about 200 wounded, started after the delegation, from the Zispo locomotive plant here, returned from negotiations in Warsaw over their grievances.

The judge also rejected another defence motion that the court visit the scene of rioting around the security police headquarters. The court said there were sufficient photographs to give a clear picture of the location.

Water was poured on them from windows, the crowd threatened and firing began, Bilski said.

Liquor Prices To Be Increased Say Commissioner

TORONTO (CP) — William H. Collings, Ontario liquor commissioner, said Tuesday there is every likelihood of a general increase in the retail price of spirits before the end of the year.

No increase is expected in the price of beer.

Mr. Collings said the liquor control board of Ontario has not decided the extent of the increase or when it would be effective. The board has yet to receive notice of wholesale price increases from all distilleries.

Mr. Collins said one distillery in the United States boosted prices from 80 cents to $1.40 a case and the range was similar here.

"That's quite an increase," he said.

The control board made some minor adjustments in its retail list last July, with increases on some brands from five to 20c.

In Victoria, the B.C. liquor control board said price increases quoted by distillers average 15 per cent. With the addition of federal sales taxes, paid by the board, the increase becomes 16½ per cent.

WORLD SERIES TIME

This is World Series time, a brief period every year which witnesses the blossoming of more phenomena than there are flowers in May.

For one thing everybody—but everybody—is suddenly interested in baseball. Nothing like this has been seen for a long time—not since last Saturday when it seemed that everybody was suddenly a duck-hunter and the marshes were crowded with men who will not pull a trigger again until next opening day.

Well, perhaps this universal interest in baseball is not unique, perhaps it is matched by mass infatuation with other activities at other times of the year, like that warm spring day when everybody gets out the lawn mower, the rake and a packet of seeds and vows that this year he will build a veritable Garden of Eden in his own backyard.

There are, though, some things about the World Series which are unmatched in any other realm of activity.

Consider, for a moment, the name itself. "World Series." Just that and nothing more. Not the World Baseball Championship. Not even World Ball Series. Just "World Series," as if baseball was the most important thing in the world. As, of course, it is, for a whole continent, for a whole week.

But if the fever is continent-wide, how does it come that a contest between the representatives of two leagues is unanimously accepted as being for the world championship? Well, in the first place in spite of the efforts of the Japanese, North America is the world as far as baseball is concerned. And in this world there can be no disputing the fact that the best players are gathered into two leagues. All baseball fans will agree on that.

No such unanimity of opinion exists with respect to other sports. The English may talk about "The Cup," with that definite article indicating a sublime assurance of supremacy at least equal to that of "World Series." Unfortunately for the long past when this assurance was justified. Long before the Dynamos started revolving in Moscow, there were legitimate challengers to any English team to that title in the soccer world.

"The Ashes" have a firmer claim to fame, but it should be noted that this is a competition between nations, rather than between clubs. And the Davis Cup and cricket's Test series being picked from the best in the land. The same holds true of the Davis Cup and here an additional flaw has developed, for it is no longer true that the best tennis players are amateurs.

This leaves the World Series virtually unchallenged as the only annual sport spectacle which can be truthfully said to bring together the two best teams in the world in their sport.

The Stanley Cup? Oh, please now, let us not make comparisons of that sort, not even in the name of a sport in which Canadians can claim almost a virtual monopoly of the best players. Stanley Cup teams have been playing each other all year and very often the team which has the record on paper does not win. Isn't even in the final. It is as if the Yankees were playing the Indians, or the Dodgers the Braves. Series like those wouldn't be World Series, would they?

Play ball!

NO EASY-PAYMENT TAXES PLEASE

The Timmins Free Press suggests that the Timmins Council should study a system under which municipal taxes would be paid monthly rather than on a semi-annual basis.

There is much to be said in favor of making taxes payable in instalments. Taxes are so high these days that few citizens find it easy to accumulate a sufficiently large sum to pay a year's taxes all at once.

Putting taxes on the monthly payment plan, though, seems to us to be carrying things too far.

Taxes at Timmins are at present paid in two instalments, in June and September, and the Timmins Press argues that the town's expenditures are so heavy that it is forced to borrow money and pay interest until June collections. "There is no reason why the average citizen should not start paying as soon as the town begins spending," it argues. That may be true, but it is a different argument entirely from the desire to adopt a plan which would require people to pay easily-handled amounts monthly.

For one thing, monthly payments are frequently referred to as "easy payments," and while this may be a misnomer it is undesirable that there should be anything easy about the leaving of a big sum of taxes ought to be an unpleasant reminder of the cost of government. If taxpayers do not get reminders of this nature, they are less likely to require their bodies which levy taxes keep likely to require their bodies which levy taxes keep them as low as possible, consistent with the proper discharge of the taxing body's responsibilities.

Aside altogether from this point, municipal taxes are one of the few remaining items in the cost of living which are not met on the instalment plan. Month-to-month living is hand-to-mouth living. Is it too much to ask that there be one expenditure which requires us to save, to think of future needs when we get today's pay cheque?

NEW DOG

I know it would happen. So still was the place;
No funds dug through the purse;
No toppling of tables; no tinkle of glass;
No tail to sweep trinkets long kept in a mass.
The children sedate with their books in their chairs
And no dog in the dwelling to race them upstairs.

I knew it would happen. The modern dog-craze
We've had all the dogs that I'm eager to know,
I don't want another to care for and feed."

And, of course, with that verdict But I once heard him sigh in the place where he sat—
And I knew he was missing a head he could pat.

No "Let the dog out" and no "Let the dog in!"
No begging for food when to eat we begin.
Just mother and I and the children about
And never a thing cherished are tumbled about.
So, just as the fireplace requires a new log,
I guess it is time that we got a new dog.

Prosperity's Victims

Montreal Gazette

Now that the season of welfare campaigns is about to begin, good people might be thinking that there is something incompatible between welfare and widespread prosperity. If times are so good, if so many people are at work and earning so much, surely welfare needs must be dwindling away. In hard times the needs would obviously grow; but in good times they must melt.

It is not as bad that simple does not solve all problems. But there is much bad that it leaves some problems unsolved; it may even make them worse; or it may bring new problems into being. In fact, many welfare agencies find themselves very busy indeed, trying to deal with the victims of prosperity.

* * *

Who are these victims? One group of them is the old people. They are often past the time in life when they may join in prosperity's benefits. Disability may have rendered them incapable of earning their own support. Age created a prejudice (often unjustified) against them. What, then, are the good times to them, if not because the nation is better off?

To make matters worse for many old people, they may be the victims not only of poor health but of inflation. Some people—especially those with pensions—are able to "beat inflation" by keeping ahead of it. Indeed, they might even come to say that inflation is the price that must be paid for prosperity.

The trouble with many old people, however, is that they cannot afford to pay the price. They have no chance in food, and clothing and shelter, to be anything more stringent, if not desperate. Prosperity is not only passing them by; it is positively cruel.

Many find themselves doing their best to get by on what little is their old age pension. Many face hardships that would seem unbearable in the midst of such good times. Among these hardships are those of inadequate shelter, but actual malnutrition.

The welfare agencies, therefore, are busy with the application of writing the elderly people off their records as people no longer in need of help, just because the nation is prosperous.

* * *

But if prosperity often increases the problems of the old, it may also increase the problems of the young. "Prosperity's children" are not necessarily happy children, never in need of the helping hand. They may be children with very real problems indeed.

During the prosperous years delinquency, desertion and illegitimacy were regarded as lamentably obvious accompaniments of unemployment and poverty. But the idea that these problems would disappear before the rising sun of prosperity was a delusion. Indeed, some welfare authorities believe that the children of today are exposed to conditions that are peculiarly hazardous to responsible growth.

One feature of "prosperous times" is the high mobility of the population. Whole families frequently move from one part of Canada to another, to take advantage of better job opportunities. But this means that many families are becoming rootless and lacking in a sense of community, family stability and pride.

Another influence of prosperity may be seen in the fact that many young people have more and more married women were working in war factories. That resulted in a generation of "latch-key" children — children who suffer from the lack of supervision in the important formative years. According to reports of social agencies, the same conditions are to be found in many homes today.

All these influences, and many others, combine to explain why prosperity leaves the welfare agencies with as much work as ever demands to be met. And in addition to the associated problems of the sick and the maladjusted, which continue through all seasons.

Then, in addition, there is the increase in the population. Not only has the population of Canada risen by one million in the last five years, but the drift of population is towards the cities. This last factor, in itself, would heighten welfare problems.

All of which is to keep all these things in mind. Human needs may change. But they remain. The welfare campaign which begins this autumn will need all the generosity and hard work that they have ever had—or even more.

Try to Cut Rail Losses

St. Thomas Times-Journal

Passenger traffic has never really paid its way on the railroads but war systems, and the problem has become more acute abroad and air competition has increased its deficiency. These two sources deprive the railways of millions of passengers, and some of the big Eastern railroads are asking to be allowed to charge a fare of 4 per cent more on coach tickets. Great Britain has already increased by 10 per cent more on coach tickets. Great Britain has already increased by 10 per cent more on coach tickets. Great Britain has already increased by 10

Rev. R. Gale Inducted as Church Rector

PICTON — The induction of Rev. Russell Gale, A.B., L. Th., as rector of the Parish of Hallowell-Milliken, was held in St. Andrew's Anglican church at Wellington, Monday night. Two members of the clergy were among those present.

Admonitions at the font were read by Rev. J. Cantrell, Belleville, at the prayer desk by Rev. G. Rennison of Carrying Place, at the lectern by Rev. H. Flint, Milford, at the pulpit by Rev. E. Smith, Belleville and at the altar by Rev. A. L. Page, Belleville.

The Very Rev. A. T. Brierly Browne preached the sermon. Archdeacon J. B. Creegan of Belleville conducted the service and inducted the new rector.

Following the service, the Guilds of both churches entertained at a reception at the rectory.

Soviet Papers Attack Stalin

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet newspapers Tuesday published a new attack on Stalin's role as a military leader.

Several Moscow newspapers agreed Stalin failed to shine as a military commander as far back as 1918 and that historians also credited him with greater role in the Russian revolution than he actually played.

The new attack took on particular significance in the light of the current meeting at Yalta between Communist Chief Nikita Khrushchev and President Tito of Yugoslavia, who was the butt of Stalin's wrath from 1948 until the Soviet dictator's death. There has been speculation that the Yugoslav-Soviet meeting indicated a split in Kremlin ranks.

Prime Minister Buys Car Built For Edinburgh

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent has bought a swanky car that was specially built for the Duke of Edinburgh.

The stately black sedan was custom-made for the duke for his 1954 tour of Canada. The Austin Motor Company of England shipped it to Canada as a gesture to the duke, but it was not used during the tour.

The chauffeur-driven car which sits six passengers was offered to the prime minister for an undisclosed price. It had travelled about 2,000 miles when it was delivered to Mr. St. Laurent last Thursday.

Mr. St. Laurent, who also keeps a car at his family home in Quebec City, traded in the black limousine he bought six years ago.

Labor Spokesman Says CBC Should Gather Own News

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC should set up its own national and international news-gathering service, Leslie Wismer, legislative director of the Canadian Labor Congress, said Tuesday.

Mr. Wismer appeared before the royal commission on broadcasting, said The Canadian Press should do more than rely on non-Canadian news services for international news.

The CP supplies a news service to the CBC.

If CP feels it is useful to cover parliamentary news, Mr. Wismer said, it would be just as useful to cover the United Nations.

"They don't," he said.

The CLC believed Canadians should receive more international news at once through the eyes of Canadian reporters.

"The CBC now thanks national is the CBC National News Bulletin," Mr. Wismer said.

HOW NEWS SUPPLIED

The CBC National News Bulletin is based exclusively on news from The Canadian Press, national cooperative of Canada's dailies, and the British United Press, subsidiary of the American - owned United Press.

The Canadian Press delivers to Canadian dailies—and to CBC—the world news reports of the American-owned Associated Press and the British-owned Reuters news agency. It also provides its own material from bureaus at London and New York, from its staff correspondent at Washington and from staff correspondents assigned to major international conferences.

For some years, The Canadian Press has assigned a staff reporter to the General Assembly of the United Nations.

Deny Leave to Appeal Store Hours By-Law

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada Tuesday refused six Ottawa merchants leave to appeal a city by-law setting store closing hours.

Three judges rejected the application without calling the city to present its case. The merchants all are from a suburban Billings Bridge shopping plaza.

Benny Forgot Violin Bow, Instrument Dusty

NEW YORK (AP) — Cheers, bravos and boots of laughter greeted violin-playing Jack Benny at Carnegie Hall Tuesday night.

The veteran comedian made brave tries at two violin masterpieces. To be sure, he fiddled around more than he fiddled.

He forgot his bow and walked off stage for it. He hadn't played for so long he had to dust off his violin.

At rehearsal, he said, the orchestra was three pages ahead of him in the concerto, and some of the players had gone home before he finished. Tuesday night he came in comfortably ahead.

Proceeds went to the Committee to Save Carnegie Hall and the National Association for Retarded Children.

Pearkes Calls For Overhaul in Defence Dept.

OTTAWA (CP)—Maj.-Gen. G.R. Pearkes, VC, has called for a thorough review of the top administration in the defence department.

The Progressive Conservative spokesman on military affairs said Tuesday in an interview that the chiefs of staff system should be overhauled.

Under the present system, the chief of each of the three armed services is individually responsible to the civilian defence minister. There is a chairman of the joint chiefs of staff committee but he has no defined responsibility.

Gen. Pearkes suggested that there be an over-all chief of the services who would be the minister's chief adviser or that the three chiefs be responsible for coordinating policy to present to the minister.

The Conservative member for Esquimalt-Saanich said recent statements by Lt.-Gen. Guy Simmonds, former army chief of staff, and Maj.-Gen. W. H. S. Macklin, retired army adjutant-general, indicate there is something wrong in administration of the defence department. The whole question should be reviewed by a parliamentary committee or royal commission.

Gen. Pearkes also said the defence department should eliminate the duplication which, he said, exists in the services.

$18,878 Found In Home of Man Dead Eight Days

FRESNO, Calif. (AP)—Authorities Tuesday counted $18,878 out of a garbage can they used to haul away money found hidden in a two-room Fresno home where the John Domke family lived in seclusion for years.

The money, some in gold coins, was discovered Monday after authorities removed the body of 87-year-old John Domke from a bed where he had lain dead for eight days.

The widow, Mary, 78, was taken to hospital. The son, Albert, 53, was jailed on charges of resisting officers. They said he put up a battle when they took his mother away.

Money found hidden in various receptacles was dumped into the garbage can for transportation to a bank.

Mrs. Domke's only explanation was that the money belonged to another son, "Tiny." Apparently she referred to a son, Henry, who was shot to death by his father in 1933 during an argument. The father was absolved without trial.

150 Parents, Teachers Attend H-S Meeting

The October meeting of the Collegiate and Vocational Home and School Association was held Monday evening in the Boys' Gymnasium at the Collegiate with an attendance of more than 150 parents and teachers, a large number of whom were enrolled as members.

The president, Mrs. R. G. Williams, extended a cordial welcome to all and expressed her pleasure at having so many present, and hoped they would plan on attending future meetings.

After a short business session, a sing-song, conducted by Mr. Freeman, with the accompaniments played by Mr. Templer, was much enjoyed by all.

Mrs. A. Layton and Mrs. J. Hughes were in charge of the next part of the meeting which was primarily arranged to try to find out what type of programs would be best suited to the needs of the Home and School members.

Mrs. Hughes introduced the subject stating that there are many things that parents would like to better understand, in regard to their children, and that any suggestions for future meetings would be appreciated. Blank cards were passed to the parents so that they might write their suggestions, and the audience was divided into groups.

Those leading discussions were Mrs. P. W. Dewberry, Mrs. A. G. Tooth, Mrs. H. J. Fisher, Mrs. G. A. Bradford, Mrs. F. Sprague, Mrs. C. A. Sherry and Mr. C. Lundy.

Mrs. Layton thanked all who had helped with the program. She was pleased that so many cards had been turned in and felt sure that some interesting panels would be arranged for future meetings, with parents, teachers and maybe senior students participating.

Mrs. Williams called on Mr. Orr, the principal, who gave a sincere welcome to all present and remarked on the splendid turnout. Mr. Orr said the teachers were looking forward to a good year in the school and he hoped the same would be true in Home and School. The new teachers were introduced, and all teachers moved to certain sections of the gymnasium where their room cards were posted, and the parents had the opportunity of meeting with their child's home room teacher.

Parents and teachers then, repaired to the cafeteria where the tables were marked with the form number, and parents, whose children were in the same form, enjoyed having their coffee together and becoming acquainted with one another.

Going Shopping?

Shopping day is pretty nearly any day for the average Canadian housewife. There, quite inadvertantly, we have used the word average which is maybe an error. It has become habit to hear and to parrot "the great average American this or that", but what does it mean? One dictionary definition for average is "ordinary standard" or "medial estimate" so, we suggest that if we insist on describing the Canadian homemaker by using the adjective average, we should at least go a step further and say "the above average Canadian housewife." The women who make about 80 per cent of all purchases made in the Dominion are no mean group and by and large, the vast majority are way above standard "above average."

The Canadian housewife will be shopping this week for Thanksgiving which hardly seems possible; the year has passed by so quickly. We wonder how many homes will have the regular routine or the best-laid plans knocked helter-skelter this weekend because the annual American sports spectacle is in progress? It might be a good idea for the housewife to plan meals bearing in mind that the World Series games begin at 11:45 a.m. E.S.T. as of today. It is rather a fine thing that Canada can share and get excited about her neighbor's baseball climax. Anyway, the housewife will do well to remember this if she, her menfolk, and children want to hear or watch the games.

If there has been no continuity so far in this column, we take refuge in "Tut & Tut" as our thoughts ramble here and there. We pause to recognize that the richness and the fulfilment of the Thanksgiving season is portrayed in the variety of color and the bounty of nature. Vegetables and fruit are a delight to the eye—the purple of grape and eggplant, the snowy cauliflower, the dark green of broccoli, the pale green of cabbage, the red of the apple, the golden yellow of corn, and of course the orange of pumpkin.

We may be thankful that vegetables are the most reasonably priced of all produce. It was a shock though, to see imported tomatoes in the stores already. There is a modest supply of our own home grown tomatoes, but it is nevertheless an indication of things to come to find imported cantaloupe here already. Citrus fruit has risen in price. Baskets of apples, cans of mincemeat and pumpkin are prominently displayed to provide the housewife with the dessert of her choice for the Thanksgiving table.

If you are one of the group who are convinced that a capon is a better buy than a turkey, we saw capons weighing almost nine pounds. The capon buyer believes you get more meat because of the capon's lighter bone structure. On the other hand, some cooks believe that a small turkey is a better buy than the capon, and this group insists that the turkey has more breast and leg meat. Whatever your conviction, it seems that the supply of turkeys, capons and broilers, too, will be sufficient to meet demand.

Eggs are down slightly in price to what they were a month ago, but medium and small remain the best buy from the economical point of view.

September this year gave us the lowest mean temperature in over two decades so it is not surprising to discover in our local shops heavier gloves, scarves and sweaters. The turtle neck sweater for men is staging a rally and is being shown for women also. Another unusual feature we noticed in our shopping trip was that many women's shoes are now unlined. The leather is very soft and in some cases, the toe cap is not built up. They are recommended for comfort.

Believe it or not, we have already heard of Christmas shopping. Probably, it is not too early or it is not rushing the season to take this as a reminder to shop early.

Whether a discussion about the relevancy of the adjective "average" is important or not, it is relevant and essential that we Canadian housewives be conscious of our Thanksgiving as we shop this week throughout our blessed Dominion.

Good shopping!

We never seem to tire of referring to the crowded activities of the women of Belleville and district, and their contribution to local progress. It was encouraging to read the words of the U.S.A. representative on the Human Rights Commission of the United Nations, Mrs. Lord. She said: "Women show their abilities to take part in world affairs by starting on the local level", for it is in the local community—in the family, in the schools, and in municipal councils—where women have to start exercising their rights and fulfilling their responsibilities." It can be accepted as a fact that any idea of feminism per se has been replaced by the more progressive step of teamwork and that both sexes can do most by each contributing its best and finest for humanity.

Contact Club Holds First Handicraft Meet

On Monday evening, the Contact club of Christ church, held the first handicraft evening of the session.

The members gathered in groups to learn their chosen artcraft and to discuss the various problems that confronted them. Chatter and laughter filled the parish hall as the members worked zealously to master weaving, glove making, the art of petit point or embroidery work.

Marion Huson showed a colored film of the 'Sun 'N' Shade Fair,' held in June, which Mr. Huson took at that time, and it was thoroughly enjoyed by all. There was much merriment as each member recognized herself or saw a friend.

President Catherine Roulet presided over the business period. It was decided that the remaining layettes be sent to a northern district where the need is greatest.

The Corporate Communion is October 14, and all members are urged to attend. A rummage sale will be held this month in the parish hall.

The members were reminded of the gifts for the Moose Factory parcel.

There will not be a meeting next Monday.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses Jean Ford, Doris Stewart and Diana Settle.

A chicken pie supper was planned for October 20 at the church. A social hair hour was spent.

HOLLOWAY STREET W.A.

The Holloway Street United church Woman's Association met at the church for the September meeting, after all had enjoyed a dessert luncheon.

The president, Mrs. N. Brown, opened the meeting with an appropriate poem.

Mrs. Fitzgibbon read Act 8—the story of Philip and the eunuch, and Mrs. Townsend gave a short meditation and called on Mrs. Middleton for the address, who chose as her topic "Racial Prejudice."

She emphasized that if Jesus were here He would not make any difference between the races, of which we hear so much today. She also spoke of the great women of the Bible and asked, "Do we

HOW TO START A NEW LIFE IN MIDDLE AGE

If growing old is, as the poet claims, "the best of life", then it's up to you to make it so. And the time to begin making it so is when one is still young.

For unless one has learned, while young, to be interested in many things, to face life courageously and happily, to appreciate friends and beauty one will have a dull and barren middle age. All of us have some little talent we can cook or paint or crochet or sing or sew a bit better than the average. We should develop that into a hobby while we are youngers.

Many women, whose families are grown, or who have been left alone with the support of children, have found their talents or hobbies real life-savers. Almost every town can point out a most profitable business such as the baking of fine cakes, catering, an antique shop or a children's shop which is run by a woman who began it as a hobby—or who fell back on a hobby in a time of need.

Perhaps it isn't necessary for you to earn money, but you want a new interest and you have a hobby or a talent you'd like to share with others. The other day I met a charming, happy middle-aged woman who was busily knitting baby socks, bonnets and sweaters. They were exquisite—some of the loveliest baby things I've ever seen. She seemed to be knitting love into these dainty little garments. I remarked that she must have a great many grandchildren.

To my surprise, she told me she had no grandchildren. She spends all her spare time making these pretty things and at Christmas distributes them to babies in hospitals. Her friends help her with gifts of left over wool. She gets her reward in thinking of the joy of the mothers in receiving these beautiful things for their babies. She is a happy woman because she loves what she is doing and she is doing it for others.

Perhaps you can't knit but you can read aloud. You can find shut-ins to whom you can give a few hours of pleasure weekly by reading to them. Perhaps you like to sew. There are dozens of things you can make, from toys to clothes, that would give joy to small orphans. Or you may do water colors well. Think how pleased some aged or bed-ridden patients in homes or hospitals would be to receive hand-colored cards of cheer from you.

The answer is, of course, that when you give of yourself you grow. You become a new person. And the secret of finding growing old "the best of life is to keep on growing.

So find yourself a hobby and develop it while you are still young—a hobby you can fall back upon when you reach the middle years either as a source of revenue, if you need it, or as a means of helping others and so helping yourself to lead a full and richer life.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A NEW ATTITUDE ON YOUR PART MIGHT HELP

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

Nowadays we hear so much about juvenile delinquency attributed to mothers leaving the home to work. But when will the day come that somebody speaks about forgotten parents, mothers like myself who dedicated all their lives to their children?

My family consisted of four boys. We never were rich, but we could afford to give our children a good education. Two of our boys are college graduates, the others graduated from high school. One of the boys is a doctor and lives out of town.

Now I'm a widow, partially blind and suffering from cancer. All my boys make big money, but not one of them helps me financially. I'm just unable to receive an old age pension. Now that I'm alone in the world my children seem to be ashamed of me, even to hate me. The one who lives out of town doesn't even write to me.

I'm not the only mother like this. I know of mothers who have devoted their lives to their children and after their children left home they don't even write to their parents.

What is your opinion about this? Please say something to raise my spirits, as I cry so much and only regret having dedicated my life to them and not to myself. M.M.

Dear F. M.:

I'd have to know a great deal more than you tell me about your present way of life, and about your past, before I'd be in a position to give you any intelligent advice. It seems amazingly strange that all your sons have deserted you as you say they have.

Are you living entirely alone, and, if so, how do you manage with the disabilities you have? Did your husband leave you some money on which you are living, or do you get support from some other source? What do you do to pass the time, or is it impossible for you to do anything but sit and brood?

Could it be possible that you've complained and scolded your sons so much about neglecting you that you've completely alienated them? If that is the case—and if you can see enough to write letters—why don't you start writing each one regularly and just make your letters loving ones? Try to think of things you can talk about in your your letters that would be cheerful and show them that you're keeping your chin up even though you have so much trouble in your life. The very surest way to win affection and sympathy and admiration from others is not to seek pity but to let them see that you're brave and courageous and trying to handle your difficulties as best you can.

If you can't see well enough to write yourself, isn't there someone you could ask to write what you would dictate?

If you can be a loving mother who shows interest in everything her children are doing, I think you'll find you'll not only make yourself happier, but that some, at least, of your children will take a new attitude toward you.

WHY COUNT ON A BOY YOU DON'T TRUST?

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'm in love with a boy of 19 and I think he loves me.

He goes to his sister's to stay, saying he's seeing about a job so we can get married. But there is a cute girl that lives down there that he used to like, and "I don't know whether to believe him or not. — L.C.

Dear L.C.:

If you don't really trust this boy, don't you think it's pretty foolish to count on him? There is never any happiness in a relationship in which one person distrusts the other.

My advice to you would be that you keep on being friends with this boy, if you want to, but don't definitely count on and don't build up big ideas of a romance with him.

Instead, put your thoughts on your other friends, have all the good times you can with them and wait to see whether this chap intends to surprise you by coming up with a job so you can get married, or whether he's trying to ease out of the picture by going off as he does.

You'll certainly find out, eventually, what's going on, and if you haven't let yourself count too much on him, you'll save yourself a lot of emotional wear and tear should it prove true that he's taken up with the other girl.

DAINTY DANCE DRESS

Pictured is a delightful dance dress, a one-piece that contrives a two-piece look. The bodice is brown lace with a beige organza skirt, collar and cuffs. The top has a back button closing. The dress is worn over an opaque beige slip and is the sort of thing that should do nicely right into the season ahead and then for resort or cruise wear.

Dinner at United Church Training School

By Mary Moore

In our Wednesday series on stretching food budgets we have been feasting on our readers' penny-watching ideas, which have proved helpful and ingenious and welcome.

I thought I'd carry on this week with economical meat ideas such as Aileen G.'s Minced Beef Stew of last week, when by coincidence last night Irish Stew was served to us in the dining-room of the United Church Training School in Toronto. It was delicious and just the ticket for penny-watchers.

I give you the recipe for genuine Irish Stew with lamb or mutton but want to tell you about the new U.C.T.S., for my sister Doris is in residence there this year while she takes her masters degree in social work.

The cornerstone was laid in April, 1954, so one school year has been completed—for deaconesses, workers in the mission field, social and lay workers in the United church. If beautiful physical surroundings were what attracted young people to church work they are here in abundance. A spacious glass front in a clean sweep before you as you swing into the driveway; the modern decor of the interior open to your first glimpse.

After installing Doris in her comfortable, efficient and tastefully decorated room, she took us on a grand tour of the school. The modern but small chapel seemed to invite us in to worship; comfortable common rooms with snack facilities and piano, on every floor; a recreation room that made Doris want to hunt out her old Badminton racquet. Lucky the girls who live and study in this ideal and idealistic atmosphere.

We had our dinner at one of six tables for eight with a student from Korea who is finishing this year to return to her native land to teach sociology in the university at Seoul; and a Japanese girl who is a graduate nurse residing there while she takes a public health course. At other tables were students from Jamaica and Australia and plenty of other distant lands.

Miss Harriet Christie, slim, smiling, gracious, alert—the very personification of loving leadership—is principal. Marion Brittinger, her assistant and director of the drama department, by strange coincidence was Doris' playmate when they were both little girls. Miss Hilda Buckmaster from England, is house director and dietician, and of course, took me through their efficient stainless steel, spotless kitchen. What a heyday a really dedicated cook could have in a place like that. Even making Irish Stew in their dream of a kitchen would be exciting.

IRISH STEW

The idea is to keep the stew "white", Buy 2 lbs. neck (or shoulder or front) lamb, and ask butcher to chop the bone almost through into the number of servings you want—say 4 or 5. Wash well to remove bone splinters. Dry. Sprinkle with 2 teaspoons salt and 1-3 teaspoon black pepper in heavy kettle. Add 1 onion, 6 oats instead of barley; the Border English, rice. Serve quick cooked green cabbage with it. For dessert at the Training School we had a variety of melt-in-your-mouth tarts. I hope I will be invited back!

GOLDEN WEDDING CELEBRANTS MAY SIT AS THEY RECEIVE GUESTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Thank you very much indeed for answering my questions in your column about the Open House my husband and I are planning to give to celebrate our Golden Wedding. We are so grateful for your kind help and suggestions. May I ask you for a few more questions?

1. Should I wear gloves?

2. The hours are to be from 2 o'clock to 5. Should we stand or sit as we receive the guests?—C.

Thank you for your very kind words of appreciation. I'm so happy that my suggestions were helpful in making your plans for this wonderful Golden Occasion!

1. You may wear gloves if you think they add a harmonious touch to your costume. But really it would not be necessary to wear gloves on this not-strictly-formal occasion.

2. You and your husband might stand during the first part of the receiving-hours, but I wish you would provide chairs, for that you will be so wise and sensible that you will sit down the very minute you begin to feel even the slightest bit tired. If you force yourselves to stand during the four hours of receiving, you won't be able to enjoy the golden day as you should, as your guests want to have you. It is quite customary, and correct procedure, for the "bride and groom" of a Wedding Anniversary Open House to stand during the greater part of the receiving-time, particularly when there are four hours of Open House.

THE GALLANT GROOM TOASTS "THE MOTHER OF THE BRIDE"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married soon, and I'm trying to make every plan as perfect as possible. I have been to several wedding parties lately, and at the receptions there were the usual first toasts, to the bride, to the bride and groom, to the bridesmaids. But in no case was there a toast proposed "To the Mother of the Bride." I'm wondering about this, for I should think she would be, and certainly should be, a most important person since she is the hostess! At my reception I'm going to combine the Bride's toast and the Parents' toast, and I want to make very sure that there will be a toast to my mother. Would you do I consult about this . . . in other words, who proposes this toast? — Sandra P.

Good for you, you thoughtful bride-to-be! You're so right about this, and I admire so much your loving thought and plan. You should talk this over with your bridegroom, for it is he who should propose this toast. And a courtly bridegroom can make this toast a pretty wonderful and memorable gesture. Some of the finest and most-to-be-remembered toasts I have ever heard at wedding receptions have been proposed by gallant bridegrooms to the mother of the bride. For example, your bridegroom might say something like this: "I would like to propose a toast, a standing toast, please, as tribute to the charming and gracious and dearly loved mother of my bride . . . and most hearty to thank her, as hostess of this truly wonderful occasion."

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY Miss Lee Lee Lee

One of the nicest things about babies is that they don't measure amusement in terms of dollars and cents. Low-cost happiness: a couple of gaily-colored balloons, attached to baby's crib or pen, will keep baby entertained. The spinning beauty of a pinwheel, taped to the foot of baby's carriage, is fascinating. Spools strung on a shoestring make a happy clacking toy. And a nest of plastic measuring spoons can really be joy.

Cmdr. MacNeill Only Woman In RCN to Command 'Ship'

OTTAWA (CP) — The woman who trained Canada's wartime Wrens now is helping women find permanent jobs in the Royal Canadian Navy.

Cmdr. Isabel Macneill was the first—and so far the only—woman in the RCN to command a "ship."

She was also the first Canadian Wren officer decorated during the Second World War. She received the Order of the British Empire for her services as commander of HMCS Cornetots at Galt, Ont., a shore establishment where more than 6,000 Wrens received basic training.

SMALLER SERVICE

"In some ways the peacetime service is very different," Cmdr. Macneill said in an interview at naval headquarters here where she serves as Wren staff officer to the chief of naval personnel.

To begin with, the peacetime force is smaller, says the auburn-haired native of Halifax.

The RCN complement — expected to be met by 1958—provides for 35 officers and 365 Wrens. Seventeen officers and 82 Wrens now are serving in this permanent force, established last year.

Wren training now is more technical and complicated. But women now receive pay, pension benefits and career opportunities equal with the men, she says.

"And Wrens today are just as keen . . . and just as good as their wartime counterparts."

She finds the proud "in-the-navy" spirit still prevails and says many youthful new recruits often give "serving my country in a useful way" as a reason for joining.

"That is the kind of person we're looking for."

TRAIN AT CORNWALLIS

Recruiting is not done on a large scale, but rather new eolrles are sought when there are openings in Wren branches or the 24 Wren trades. Thirty-five women have been selected to begin basic eight-week training at HMCS Cornwallis, near Digby, N.S., this autumn.

Cmdr. Macneill says the turnover in the service is small, "although we lose some through marriage."

But in many cases women who served in reserve divisions turn to the regular force for a definite career. Some 63 officers and 659 Wrens form the reserve service training at 22 naval establishments across Canada.

The daughter of a Dalhousie University professor who studied art in the United Kingdom, Cmdr. Macneill has worked as a scenic designer and a teacher.

She says her real career began in 1943 when she joined the first class of 67 women selected from across Canada to form the Canadian service.

Living in an old Ottawa home, with a barn for classrooms and a road for a parade square, the Wrens at this embryo stage wore blue cotton smocks for uniforms.

WENT TO GALT SCHOOL

When training at HMCS Conestoga ended early in 1945, Cmdr. Macneill returned to Halifax as Wren staff officer on the staff of the flag officer, Atlantic coast.

Demobilized in 1946, her interesting years of civilian life included a three-year post as superintendent of the Ontario Training School for Girls at Galt, Ont.

She says her return to duty is "definitely temporary." Her plans for a post-navy career are indefinite.

Now, she is busy co-ordinating the establishment of Wrens as a permanent part of the RCN. It is the first time Wrens of any Commonwealth navy have been integrated in the regular force, she says, although nurses have been part of the service since the war.

Ashore, the Wrens form an important nucleus of trained personnel ready to relieve men for sea duty in times of emergency.

She believes, of course, that the Wrens are here to stay. More than 400 Canadian Wrens served overseas during the last war and hundreds more served in Canada.

Fight With Wife, Trigger Temper, Led to Murders

CLINTON, S.C. (AP)—Domestic difficulties have been blamed for a tenant farmer going berserk Tuesday and killing his children and himself.

Police said Rufus A. King, 35, known to have had a temper, had several fusses with his wife, but was a sober churchgoer without police record.

Tuesday morning, apparently while two of his children were waiting for a school bus in the front yard of their five-room house his mind snapped.

Within minutes he shot all six children with a .22 rifle. Then he beat the heads of each horribly with an axe and the rifle.

Three hours later his body was found in a cornfield about a quarter of a mile from the house. He had shot himself between the eyes with a .410 shotgun.

NO DOUBTS

Coroner Coleman Carter said "it's a clear case of six murders and a suicide."

Mrs. King, 27, was at a brother's home at the time of the massacre. She was under sedatives today, suffering from shock plus a beating administered by her husband.

Carter said an exact reconstruction of what took place during the family's last fatal hours may never be known.

Mrs. King had sworn a warrant charging King with wife-beating. Two deputies who arrived at the King house around 8 am. to serve the warrant discovered the bodies of the children, Alice 10, Joseph 9, Melvin 7, Ruth 5, Jerry 4, and Susan, 2.

Niona Failed To Answer Charge Of Shoplifting

LONDON (Reuters)—Nina Ponomareva, 31-year-old Soviet discus champion, failed to appear in police court this morning despite persistent reports that she was at last coming out of hiding to face charges of shoplifting.

The Soviet embassy said emphatically that the reports were untrue, although there were many indications that court officials had expected Mrs. Ponomareva to turn up.

A Soviet Embassy spokesman said he did not know the whereabouts of the Russian sportswoman, who has been reported hiding in the embassy.

Mrs. Ponomareva, current Olympics champion, was arrested Aug. 29 while in London to take part in an Anglo-Soviet sports contest. She was charged with stealing five small hats worth 32 shillings from a London store.

After she had been taken to a police station a Soviet official called her out. When she failed to appear in court next morning an arrest warrant was issued.

Arrest Cypriots Carrying Bombs

NICOSIA (AP)—British authorities today reported the arrest of three Greek Cypriots and said they were suspected of planning to bomb a police station at Lefka in northwest Cyprus.

The men were picked up near the police station late Tuesday night. Officials said they carried a leather case containing bottle-type gasoline bombs, fuses and wire with batteries.

The rigid house curfew of the Greek section of Nicosia went into its sixth day today. Stores, offices, banks and schools were completely shut down in the inner walled city, but the 17,000 Greek Cypriots residing in the area were permitted out of doors for two hours—from 12 to 2 p.m.—to buy food from trucks and makeshift stalls set up at control points.

GRAB MALAY RED

SINGAPORE (Reuters) — Chief Minister Lim Yew Hock announced Monday night that Singapore police have arrested Sun Lob Sun, president of the outlawed Singapore Chinese Middle School Students Union. The 23-year-old student leader was arrested six hours after Chinese students in Singapore's high schools held meetings protesting against Lim's student union ban. The union was dissolved Sept. 24 and branded by the government as "nothing less than a Communist front organization."

Appeal Against New Trial Ruling Due This Week

OTTAWA (CP)—An appeal by the attorney-general of Ontario against an Ontario Appeal Court ruling granting a new trial to Robert Pitton in the rape-slaying of a 13-year-old Toronto girl comes before the Supreme Court of Canada some time this week.

Pitton, 21-year-old mail truck driver, was convicted of the strangling of 13-year-old Linda Lampkin but on appeal was awarded a new trial.

Indian Gradually Turning To Other Occupations Leaving His Nomadic Life Behind Him

OTTAWA (CP) — The Indian brave no longer dresses up in war paint, feathers and ferocity. He's too busy trying to make a living, too involved in coping with the encroaching complexities of a modern society.

In some areas, particularly in the North, he may still live a nomadic life, hunting, trapping and fishing. But as often as not even the northern Indian has to fall back on the federal government for whatever help it gives him.

Gradually he is turning to other occupations, leaving the past behind him. Now he farms or works in lumber camps, on oil rigs or Arctic radar lines. He raises cattle, perhaps follows the law or other professions — although in very small numbers as yet—and may even get into politics.

NEED FOR UNDERSTANDING

The transition from the old ways to the new is no easier for the Indian than for anyone else, officials of the federal Indian affairs branch told a reporter. But on the other hand it's no harder for an Indian to change his ways than for any others — what the transition needs most is time.

The Indian could also use more understanding on the part of his fellow Canadians.

This aspect of the Indian's problem in trying to gain equal status in the land of his ancestors has been pungently outlined by Rev. Andre Renaud of the University of Ottawa's native community development bureau.

Ignorance and misconception by the white man make it so difficult for the Indian to integrate in the community, Father Renaud told a reporter at a recent Edmonton conference, that he is being driven to a "no-man's land" of alcohol, shack towns and slum society.

INDIANS MISUNDERSTOOD

"The white is not racially prejudiced as some parts of the United States are against Negroes, but just has a very limited knowledge of what the Indian is really like.

"All historical texts are biased on our side and term the Indian primitive. The books acknowledge no contribution by the Indian to life on this continent and are under the impression the Indian is shiftless and has no initiative —that all bronze-skinned individuals are wards of Ottawa. Comics and Hollywood add to these misconceptions."

Whites, Father Renaud added, are inconsequently suspicious and deny the Indian full participation in all our activities—social, economic and even religious."

The Indian is leaving the reserve, but only gradually. The problem created by his diminishing opportunities to live in the old fashion has been intensified, paradoxically, by one of civilization's blessings to him—medicine.

The original Indian population of 200,000 was dwindling rapidly through improved medical knowledge and treatment, his numbers have risen again to more than 150,000, and are still increasing.

There are 999 Indian bands living on the 2,300-odd reserves in Canada set aside in return for certain concessions, among them peace and submission to the white man's way. Twelve main treaties, beginning about 100 years ago, provide for annual payments from the federal government amounting to about $5 a person.

Treaty Indians get other privileges—they do not pay income tax on money earned on the reserve. The federal government is committed to look after their welfare.

This commitment, different in many details under each treaty, caused the Indian affairs branch to spend a total of $19,000,000 on the Indian last year, including $10,464,333 for his education. Provision has been made this year for $4,021,000 in welfare payments to treaty Indians.

The health department's Indian health services went through an additional $17,000,000 last year treating the Indian and Eskimo for illness and injury.

OWN RESOURCES

Citizenship Minister Pickersgill has said that since 1945 well over 8,000 new houses have been built on Indian reserves and nearly 18,000 houses repaired, some of the money coming from federal welfare funds but a considerable part financed by the Indians through their band funds.

The band funds, held in trust by the Indian affairs branch, have been accumulated through the years from various sources. The Indian can sell reserve land if every member of the band concerned agrees to it and the branch approves the price. Use of these funds is supervised by the branch.

Timber, a big source of Indian earnings through the years, last year earned him more than $500,000 through sale of logging rights and operation of 41 Indian-owned sawmills. On the Prairies the Indian has found money in oil—more than $1,550,000 last year.

But generally speaking, he is still Canada's poor relation, involuntarily at odds with its civilization.

Girl 12, Wounds Armed Intruder

SOUTH NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—When an armed intruder broke into her home while her parents were away, 12-year-old Mary French knew just what to do. And, shaking with fright, she did it.

Fleeing into an adjacent room, Mary locked the door, took her father's .38-calibre pistol from a drawer, inserted five shells, unlocked the screen and shot the gunwaving intruder in the leg. He fled.

James Bell, 24, was arrested when he turned up at a hospital for treatment. He was charged with breaking and entering.

"I just did what daddy said to," Mary told police.

AFRICAN CHIEF TO RETURN TO TRIBE

Seretse Khama, exiled African chief, is shown with his English wife and their children, Seretse, 3, and Jacqueline, 6, in the garden of their home in Croydon, England. Having renounced all rights to the chieftainship of the Bamangwato tribe in Africa, Khama and his family will now be allowed to return to the British protectorate of Bamangwato as private citizens. BUS GOES OFF CLIFF

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — A crowded bus plunged over a cliff in northern Formosa Saturday, killing five persons and injuring 22 others. Survivors said the bus swerved off the road trying to avoid a collision with another vehicle.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower will attend the first game of the world series at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn on Wednesday. The president's plans to take in the game between the Brooklyn Dodgers and the New York Yankees were announced aboard his campaign train Sunday night.

Mourning Puppy, Dog Gets Lion As Foster Child

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — A dog named Fuzzy joined the circus Monday with the job of nursing a baby lion.

Fuzzy was grieving over the loss of a puppy, and the cub was trying to escape being killed by its mother when Huntington zoo got the two together. They hit it off fine.

The cub's mother belongs to a travelling wild animal show. She killed cubs she had once before, owner Eddie Kuhn said.

Lion cubs will not feed on a bottle, and the mothers rarely raise their young in a circus because of the nearby humans, Kuhn said, so Fuzzy will travel with the troupe, nursing the cub about 30 days before returning to her owner here.

DEBENTURES REFUSED

TILBURY (CP)—By a vote of 130 for and 240 against, ratepayers Monday turned down a debenture issue of $50,000 which was to be used to complete a $125,000 area started at the first of the year. Efforts probably will be renewed to raise money by public subscription.

PARTY

Mr. Heat, former Toronto Argo football player and head of a manufacturing firm, entered the Commons in 1950 and was a hard-working organizer across the country as president of the party association in 1954-55. He left Tuesday night on a two-week speaking tour of the four western provinces which was planned last July.

Those close to him said his hope to be decides to support Mr. Diefenbaker, would be to become deputy party leader with a view to winning the leadership when the post next opens.

Mr. Diefenbaker, member for Prince Albert, tried for the leadership in 1942, and placed third in a field of five. In 1948 he placed second behind Mr. Drew. Mr. Fleming, also entered in 1948, placed third and last.

Other possible candidates may emerge before convention time less than 18 weeks off.

DR. SMITH MENTIONED

Dr. Sidney Smith, president of the University of Toronto, has been reported as a possible contestant.

The statement by Mr. Churchill said a campaign to draft Mr. Diefenbaker began this week "and reliable reports indicate a very high percentage of Conservatives who are prepared to support Mr. Diefenbaker."

Mr. Diefenbaker, who said he planned to be in Toronto today and return here Thursday, said he would make no public statement before talking with Mr. Churchill and committee members.

The association executive chose Ottawa as convention site in a three-way vote in which Montreal and Winnipeg were second and third choices.

The first two days of the convention—Dec. 10 and 11—will be spent in meetings of committees on policy and other matters. The full-scale convention will open Dec. 12 and run three and possibly four days, with the leader chosen the last day.

The executive decided that the basis of selecting delegates will be the same as in 1948, when 1,343 votes were cast in balloting for leadership.

Biggest block of delegates will be chosen by party associations in individual ridings across the country, with three voting delegates and three alternates for each of the 265 Commons seats. That would be a maximum 795 votes.

Next largest group will be delegates at large chosen by provincial party associations. Each province will have as many as it has federal constituencies—a total 265.

Other convention votes go to party members of the Commons, Senate and provincial legislatures, provincial leaders, national executive members and representatives of the Young Progressive Conservative Association and of party clubs at universities.

PICTON

Miss Supertest To Make Assault On World Record

PICTON — An assault on the world record for the measured mile, by boats of the unlimited class, will be made on Picton Bay, Saturday, Oct. 13. Miss Supertest, Canada"s entry in the Gold Cup classic in which she won one of the three heats, will arrive in Picton on Friday. She will be launched on Monday and prepared for the trials, which have been sanctioned by the Boating Federations. The trials are being run under the sponsorship of Prince Edward Yacht Club.

Miss Supertest defeated the cream of United States unlimited boats at the July regatta here but did not remain for the trials in order to prepare for the Detroit races. The owners, James Thompson and son of London, Ontario, expect speeds up to 150 miles an hour.

This summer, Miss O'Keefe set a world record for the mile for 266 cubic inch class boats on Picton bay.

SIX BREAKS IN LEG

PICTON — Douglas Wamsley of Picton is in Kingston General hospital suffering from six breaks in the leg between the knee and ankle. An employee of Lightfoot Bros. Construction Co., he was employed at Barriefield. A water pipe was being laid in a deep trench and Wamsley was standing in it. A sudden cavein of the chunks of dirt on the side of the trench smashed his leg against the pipe, and twisted it.

SMALLWOOD'S

All of Mr. Smallwood's 14 cabinet ministers were elected, some for the first time. Fisheries Minister John Cheeseman, Welfare Minister St. J. Abbott, and Health Minister Dr. James McGrath were appointed earlier this year and held no seats.

Final figures are expected to show a lower popular vote than in previous elections because of a lack of specific issues and drenching rain in many parts of the province.

Mr. Hollett, who assumed the Progressive Conservative leadership in 1953, was returned earlier by acclamation in St. John's West. Others of his party elected were W. J. Browne in St. John's South, James D. Higgins in St. John's East and A. M. Datty in St. John's Centre.

CHALLENGE BACKFIRES

Derrick Bowring, who challenged Premier Smallwood to run a candidate against him in St. John's North, was one of 25 Progressive Conservative losers.

Shortly after he announced the election, Mr. Smallwood said he did not plan to contest St. John's North or St. John's West because of his "deathly fear" of eliminating the opposition.

Mr. Hollett won by acclamation, but Mr. Bowring said he did not want to "enter the house of assembly by the back door, still less through the grace and favor of Mr. Smallwood."

The premier then named George Nightingale, as Liberal candidate. Mr. Nightingale won by 530 votes.

WESTERN TURKEYS

Nearly 2,600,000 of the estimated 4,614,000 turkeys on Canadian farms in June, 1956, were in the Prairies and B. C.

Texas College Admits Negro Student but Action Strongly Protested by Segregationists

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP)—Texas segregationists Tuesday night confirmed their picketing of a college which has admitted Negro students, while others protested the appearance of television Governor Frank Clement of Tennessee.

Three Negro students at Lamar State College of Technology in Beaumont were turned away by pickets as they attempted to enter the campus.

Both men and women, apparently members of a white "citizens' council," were in the picket line.

There have been no difficulties between white and Negro students on the Lamar campus, college officials said. About 33 Negroes are enrolled in day and night classes.

Lamar Tech is the second college in Texas at which Negroes have been prevented from attending classes by white persons who are not students. At Texas Junior College recently only Negroes were barred by a white crowd. Several state and denominational colleges in Texas have integrated without incident in recent years.

Clement was confronted by 25 pickets carrying signs of protest when he arrived at a Houston hotel to speak at a dinner. Several pickets said they were protesting the Tennessee governor's action in calling out the national guard during recent disorders over public school integration at Clinton, Tenn.

Clement said the pickets "either misunderstood the facts or are against law and order." He said he ordered out the troops to maintain law and order, not to support either segregation or integration.

In Washington, both the American Veterans Committee claiming membership of about 35,000 veterans, and the Washington chapter of Americans for Democratic Action denounced a Congressional sub-committee's handling of an inquiry into public schools in the capital.

The AVC said the investigation, conducted mostly by southerners, "was carefully and skillfully planned to subvert the process of integration of the nation's public schools."

Machinery Set In Motion for PC Convention

OTTAWA (CP)—William Rowe, who stepped from his central Ontario farm two years ago to become national director of the progressive Conservative party, will be key man in the mammoth job of organizing the party's national convention here Dec. 10-15.

A right-hand man will be P. A. (Dick) Bell, 43-year-old Ottawa lawyer who ran the detailed machinery of the party's last two conventions in 1942 and 1948.

The two were named Tuesday to a five-member convention committee charged with getting everything ready in less than 10 weeks for 1,300 or more delegates.

KITCHENER WOMAN

The others are Leon Balcer, 38-year-old association president and Commons member for Trois-Rivieres Que., Dr. W. G. Blair, MP for Lanark, Ont., and Elizabeth Jansen, a Kitchener business woman and president of the Conservative Women's Association.

Bill Rowe, top executive official at Conservative headquarters here is expected to be main organizer. Mr. Rowe, 33, is son of the party's acting leader, Hon. Earl Rowe. He still runs a 300-acre farm near Newton Robinson, in the Dafferin-Simcoe constituency his father represents in the Commons. His father's farm is nearby and together they run a string of six harness horses, doing most of their own driving.

The big meeting will be held in the same Ottawa hall that housed the 1948 convention. It is the barn-like coliseum on the grounds of the Central Canada Exhibition.

TV NEW PROBLEM

Mr. Bell, in an interview, ticked off the main problems to be faced.

One of the biggest is getting party associations in each riding across Canada into action on choosing the best riding organizers and three alternatives they can send to Ottawa.

Since this will be the first Canadian political convention covered by television, there would be a new task of providing TV facilities.

Housing will be another worry. Besides the 1,300 or more voting delegates expected, there will also be alternate delegates, wives and party adherents.

Mr. Bell said Ottawa's two big hotels, the Chateau Laurier and the Lord Elgin, are expected to handle more than 400 persons. The remainder would be allocated to smaller hotels and motels with the overflow billeted in private homes.

NOON-HOUR FIRE

ACTON (CP)— Four rooms of Acton public school were damaged by fire Tuesday while most of its 700 pupils were home for lunch in this town 12 miles northeast of Guelph.

Private Broadcasters Make Last Appearance Before Board

OTTAWA (CP)—Private broadcasters undergo their big test today before the royal commission on broadcasting.

The three-man commission is expected to start probing into some 30,000 words of testimony which the private operators' spokesmen have put into the record for final hearings.

Five submissions have been introduced by the Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters, which speaks for most of the private radio and TV stations.

Main recommendations:

1. An independent board to regulate both private operators and the CBC, whose board of governors now performs this function.

2. Elimination of the government's single-station TV policy to permit second stations in any area, particularly private stations.

3. Financial curbs on the power of the CBC through holding it to grants from Parliament on an annual rather than long-term basis.

Expectations are the CARTB spokesmen might be two or three days before the commission. After that, the CBC will have the last say testimony before the commission begins preparing its report.

The three - man commission Tuesday received its last brief from the Canadian Labor Congress.

The congress said in a brief that Canada can afford two national TV networks and proceed with the development of color TV, provided that these are done by the CBC and with that agency retained as the "dominant" factor in Canadian broadcasting.

The congress suggested spending of up to $120,000,000 a year in the future by the CBC on television, from the federal treasury, starting with perhaps $60,000,000 now to attain these objectives. The CBC now is spending at the rate of about $30,000,000 a year on TV.

The congress said private broadcasters cannot finance television on a national network basis and, even if they could, it would be against this.

CLC legislative director Leslie Wismer said the CBC is necessary to protect Canadian ideas. Private stations, with the best of intentions, might be forced by financial pressure to draw much of their programming from the United States.

He suggested the CBC's finances could be improved by it taking the lucrative private broadcasting stations. However, he added, the congress' is not trying to "make things difficult" for private business in the broadcasting industry.

Banking Salaries National Scandal Says Organizer

TORONTO, (CP)—A Canadian Labor Congress official said Tuesday night that in terms of hours worked "banking salaries are a national scandal."

Russell Harvey, organization director in Ontario for the CLC, told more than 100 Toronto bank employees meeting to learn more about organized labor, that "in terms of purchasing power, you don't have the strength of common laborers."

The meeting was the second since a drive started several weeks ago to get nearly 4,000 local bank employees into the trade union movement. The drive is sponsored by Local 131, Office Employees International Union.

Realizing they are up against what they term "the white collar attitude," union leaders are not planning a flamboyant, hard-driving campaign, Mr. Harvey said.

PICK COPPER CLIFF

MASSEY (CP)—The Lutheran youth of the northern conference of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Canada has accepted an invitation to hold its 1957 rally in Copper Cliff. More than 60 delegates from Sudbury, Copper Cliff, Massey and Sault Ste. Marie attended a weekend rally here. Rev. Norman Bauer of Kitchener, assistant to the synod president was guest speaker.

Allen-Sullivan Feud Flares Into Hot Words

NEW YORK (AP) — The Steve Allen—Ed Sullivan competition for the same audience flared Tuesday into a battle of hot words.

Allen accused his Sunday night rival of idea piracy. Sullivan, describing himself as "furious," said the idea is "absolutely ridiculous."

Sullivan said his program on CBS has won bigger audiences — with one exception — every night since the Allen show began last June 24 on NBC at the same hour. That was when rock'n' roller, Elvis Presley was an Allen guest.

Allen cited several instances of the alleged theft of ideas. The immediate instance deals with cilo of the new Warner Bros. film, Giant.

Allen said he had been working with Warner since July to show scenes from the film on October 21, when he learned Sullivan had obtained clips for October 14.

Allen said, too, that he had planned to devote part of his October 14 program to a tribute to the late James Dean, a star of the pictures and that Sullivan then cancelled scheduled guest stars to do an Oct. 14 Dean tribute.

Replying, Sullivan said he started negotiations with Edna Ferber, author of Giant in April, 1952.

"He's apparently dragging me into some argument with Warner Bros.," Sullivan said "I was never aware that he was in any deal with Warner Bros.

"I was the first to use film clips on TV. We originated most of the techniques, mainly because we were first in the field."

Sullivan said flatly he isn't planning a Dean tribute.

As for the cancelled guest stars Sullivan named them as comedienne Imogene Coca and singer Vic Damone. He said both had asked to be released from their agreement with him because of other commitments.

Marilyn's Kiss Only Polite Peck Says Paper

LONDON (Reuters) — Marilyn Monroe kissed Sir Laurence Olivier in front of the movie cameras—and nearly every British national newspaper today finds space for a photograph of the occasion.

"Never in the history of motion pictures have so many fans been kept waiting so long for such a little kiss," it says.

Bing Running Out of Drive And Enthusiasm

LONDON (AP) — Bing Crosby says the demand for his recordings is down to a "faint whisper" because he is running plumb out of drive and enthusiasm.

The old groaner, a top-liner for three decades, makes his comment in a letter written from the United States to the popular music column in The Daily Express.

The column recently did a treatise on the 53-year-old crooner entitled, "Is Bing Crosby going out —or has he gone?"

"I'm long gone," Crosby replied, explaining: "I'm just not as enthusiastic as I used to be. The feel for a song isn't there, the desire to sing, to be in action—and when this is absent, so is the style."

CAMPBELLFORD

Centennial Fair Opened by Goodfellow

CAMPBELLFORD—The Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, cut the white ribbon here on Wednesday afternoon to officially open the Campbellford fair. The occasion marked the fair's centennial year celebrations, although the fair itself has actually been going for 102 years.

Apparently the early records of the fair's activities became lost over the years, and it was only recently that proof was found to definitely establish the fact that the fair has operated annually since 1854.

Mr. Goodfellow rode in an open car at the head of a parade through the town just before the official opening. With him in the car were: Dr. Fred Robertson, M.P.; and Allan Curtis, president of the Seymour Agricultural Society.

Attendance to the event was up from last year and the weather-man co-operated with sunny skies and cool weather.

Also on hand for the centennial celebrations were Mr. F. A. Leahley of Toronto, vice-president of District No. 3 of the Ontario Fairs Association.

Following the opening, a ceremony was held on the grandstand where several of the dignitaries spoke briefly, congratulating the members of the Seymour Agriculture Society. Past presidents of the society, both men and women, were on the platform and a basket of flowers was placed in memory of deceased past presidents.

STEADY GROWTH

Records of the fair show a steady climb from a small beginning to the proportions of today. In 1854, there were 81 members of the society and prize money totalled $75.00. The fair in those days had no real home, and it was held annually in October, in various locations.

In March 1886 the society purchased 11 acres of land at a cost of $1,000, and a building was erected on the homemakers' section, was built. Ten years later, in 1906, four more acres were added at a cost of $206 and two years later more buildings were added, including a cattle barn, grandstand and a race track. These were largely built by voluntary labor. In 1922 a large frame poultry building was erected at a cost of $2,000. This building was later converted into now what is the general exhibits building.

At a banquet in 1946 the highlight of the evening was the burning of the mortgage.

In recent years, a second large cattle barn has been added, and great improvements have been made in the sheep and swine pens.

In 1954, a Coronation Gate was erected to commemorate the crowning of Queen Elizabeth. This year, as a climax to a century of progress, memorial stone gates were built. These centennial gates were built largely through a grant from the Ontario Fair Association, known as the Centennial Grant. It is given to fairs upon their 100th anniversary.

Entries in all classes were heavy, especially in the women's section. The Campbellford area has long been known as the centre of cheese production in the province, and the cheese display is usually very large. This year, as in previous years, it was second only to the display held at the CNE in Toronto. Many prize winners at the CNE also exhibited at the Campbellford Fair.

Seize 3 R.C. Schools As Taxes Are Unpaid

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C. (CP)—Legal title to three Roman Catholic school properties in neighboring Coquitlam will be taken immediately by the municipality following failure of the school board to pay $18,000 in taxes, Reeve James Christmas said Monday.

Mr. Christmas said the council's action followed the failure of the Roman Catholic school board to pay its taxes before the expiry date of Sept. 30. Some of the money covers the four years since 1952.

Indians' Problems Can Best Be Solved by Easing Them Into Stream of Canadian Society

OTTAWA (CP)—In one sense, it was supported by all opposition parties, but rejected by the government on grounds the Indians already have this right.

The changes include giving Mr. Pickersgill, instead of the cabinet, the power to issue orders in administrative matters affecting Indians.

INDIANS' VIEW

In a letter published in the Calgary Herald while the legislation was before Parliament, Dave Crowchild, secretary of the Indian Association of Alberta, commented:

"The Indian people wonder if this clause be put in the (Indian) act giving any treaty Indians the right to appeal to the courts on any decision felt unjust but made at the ministers' discretion; they do not want people out of the treaty; they do not want any change in the liquor laws because this is part of our treaties."

There is opposition to the federal policy on enfranchisement of treaty Indians. If they move off the reserves and take up full Canadian citizenship, including the right to vote, they must relinquish their right to treaty payments and help from the federal government if they come on hard times in the future. Many Indians want enfranchisement without loss of these treaty rights.

The changing trend in Indian education probably indicates as accurately as any single factor the direction in which the Indian's life seems to be heading.

In 1949 there were 1,200 Canadian Indians enrolled in non-Indian schools. Now the number has risen to some 5,000, or one-eighth of all Indian children attending school. A new agreement with Ontario is expected to increase this number through extension of Indian education into the regular schools on a province-wide basis.

Mr. Pickersgill has described Canadian Indian policy before 1939 as "a mixture of benevolent supervision and habitual obliteration." In the same speech, he quoted Prime Minister St. Laurent as setting out a new Indian policy in 1949 when the Indian affairs branch came under the citizenship and immigration department.

He quoted the prime minister as saying it was the government's aim "to have the Indian affairs branch administered in such a way as to bring the original inhabitants of Canadian territory to citizenship as quickly as that can reasonably be accomplished."

If this policy can be carried out, then, in a sense, Canada will have been given back to the Indians—they will possess a share of it equal to that possessed by other Canadians. But the country has changed since the Indians relinquished it to the whites.

The hope is there. But, as one Indian affairs branch official put it, the transition of the Indian probably won't come about in this generation, nor is it likely in the next.

But it seems to be coming.

Britain Voices Her 'Interest' In United Europe

LONDON (Reuters)—A foreign office spokesman has reiterated Britain's "close interest in developing a European co - operation."

He made the comment at his daily press conference when asked to react to Monday's statement by West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer calling for a union of West European countries including Britain.

Adenauer suggested that this could be achieved through a revision of the seven-power West European Union, made up of Britain, West Germany, France, Italy, and the Benelux countries.

Adenauer said the West European Union offers the best road to full European integration because it includes Britain.

He said European unity in economic, political and military fields furnishes the only possibility of preserving Europe's position in the world.

The chancellor said that the union, formed in 1954 to open the way for rearming West Germany as an ally of the West, contained all the necessary provisions to achieve political and military integration.

In Bonn, the West German government officially said it will urge all West European nations to coordinate foreign policies in the new step toward continental unity.

Deputy Foreign Minister Walter Hallstein unveiled the plan at a press conference in which he proposed frequent consultation on foreign policies.

Hallstein's declaration made clear that Germany is pressing a new drive to weld West Europe into a powerful federation.

Hallstein said West Germany will press energetically for the development of a common European market and a European atomic community.

Road Makers 'Out-Produced' By Car Industry Says Minister

QUEBEC (CP)—Canadian traffic growth may require expenditure of $30,000,000,000 in the next quarter century on construction and maintenance of roads and streets, Roads Minister Talbot of Quebec said Tuesday.

"It is important for us as road planners and builders to adjust ourselves realistically to the fact that no slackening is in sight in the dynamic demand for highways and streets," said Mr. Talbot. Road makers were being "out-produced" by the auto industry.

In his presidential address to the Canadian Good Roads Association, he sketched this background:

Canada now is the second most highly-motorized country in the world, with a ratio of four persons to each auto. This is second to the ratio of 2.3 persons per car in the United States.

Canada's total of car-miles last year had been estimated at 34,-900,000,000. This was almost double the 1946 total.

Canada's population growth expectations—possibly to 22,000,000 in 15 years by some surveys—meant continued expansion in auto travel. It is reasonable to expect, Mr. Talbot said, that the Canadian pattern will follow the U.S. one, where the 4-to-1 ratio existed in the 30s.

The $30,000,000,000 estimate "would imply an average annual road expenditure of $1,200,000,000 for the next quarter century—or not quite double the amount devoted to road purposes this year."

Mr. Talbot's remarks were released to the press before delivery.

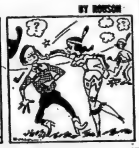
Two in Crash Still Serious in London Hospital

PICTON — William Armstrong of Point Anne and Shelley Williams of Demorestville are still in a serious condition in St. Joseph's hospital in London, Ont., following an accident near that city last week, relatives here were informed yesterday. Mrs. Armstrong and Mrs. Williams are recovering satisfactorily.

The party was en route to Windsor and near London were turning on highway 401 when their car was struck broadside by another car. The car was pushed 200 feet along the highway, then to the side of the road and against a tree. So great was the impact that the car was wrapped around the tree and it required 35 minutes to free the two couples. Driver of the other car was not seriously hurt.

Mr. Armstrong, unconscious since the accident, is given a slight chance of recovery. He suffered internal and head injuries, a crushed hip and a broken arm. Mrs. Armstrong suffered crushed vertebrae and is unable to move from the waist down. Mr. Williams, a brother of Mrs. Armstrong, had a severe scalp injury and severe bruises. It is expected that it will be some weeks before any of the victims can be removed from hospital.



SHOULDER BROKEN

Gordon McLeod of Kingston was admitted to Prince Edward County hospital here suffering from a broken shoulder after his car had overturned on a corner, four miles southwest of Picton on the Cherry Valley road. His companions, George Brierly of Napanee, John Zuber and Robert Mulridge of Cherry Valley were shaken up. The driver told police he did not notice the corner due to fog and the car went into the ditch and rolled over.

Yankees 8-5 Favorites To Beat Brooklyn Dodgers In World Series

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

BROOKLYN, N.Y.—Don't call them "Bums" short!

This baseball-mad borough shrugs off the odds on the fay-ored Brook-n Boomers with sudsy-fingers pointed at a resurgent crew wearing the Brooklyn colors.

Two weeks ago the Flatbush faithful would have tossed Walt Alston's fading world champions to the wolves... Today they're hustling them to the skies.

And a Cinderella-man by the name of Sal Maglie and a here-gust-here called Amoros are two of the main reasons. And you can add a manager's faith and the come-to-life spirit of a gang of "old pros" as two other good reasons.

The faithful here, whether in bistro, bistro, hotel, tavern or office or plant, not to mention those who dwell in the aroma of the fragrant Gowanus, have taken their beloved Bums back to their bosom with all the ardor of a mother and her new child.

They will tell you that they never lost faith in the crew. Don't believe it. A little while ago when the Pittsburgh Pirates almost made runners out of them and minimized their flag chances to a minimum there red-hot Brooklynese would have sold the Bums for a box of peanuts.

Today you couldn't buy 'em for a million.

They either hate you, or love you in Brooklyn... That means 100 per cent either way.

Take Sal Maglie. For years he was the most-hated man between Canarsie and Greenpoint. Today the most rabid Flatbusher would give the Barber from Niagara the family jalopy, the mortgage, his wife and his chances in the hereafter. A year or two ago they would have, figuratively, shot him on sight.

When he was a Giant, the former Coogan Bluffer loved nothing better than to whip the Dodgers in Flatbush. And he did that with considerable success.

Today Maglie plays a new role. He has changed from heavy to hero—and a hero here in Brooklyn. Who's entitled to be mooned at." Consequently, Sal, in other years was the difference on two occasions between the Bums and a flag, came up with a repeat performance this year only this time in a Dodger uniform.

Maglie's Cinderella story has thrilled the nation, not to mention those in Canada and other parts of the baseball world.

Only a little over a year ago, the Barber, who wears a permanent five o'clock shadow on his lean face, was tossed over Coogan's Bluff and the world of major baseball. He was supposedly washed up, had "had it," and in general was ready for the baseball boneyard.

Manager Walt Alston, who in the past week or so again revealed his faith in baseball human nature, saw that something was still alive and vibrant in the Giant cast-off. His judgment was vindicated. Today Maglie is the idol not only of Brooklyn's faithful but millions of fans elsewhere.

He is one of the main hopes of the Dodgers, and a large section of baseball fandom wherever they are to help the "Bums" repeat over the Bronx foemen.

And Alston's faith in another player reveals that the Brooklyn monster knows human nature. After Sandy Amoros deemed the whiskers and horns of the goat in that 7-3 setback at the hands of the Phillies last week, Alston refused to bench the youngster even after Newcombe requested it.

Alston turned a deaf ear to not only this, but from other quarters. He had an exact set: bench Amoros. But he chose to stick with his left fielder, both during the "crisis"—and after. What Amoros did to justify the manager's faith in him was written in the record books in that sensational flag-winning sweep over the Pirates.

World Series Notes

BROOKLYN (AP) — When the president of the United States attends a world series game, it calls for a lot of extra doing.

The box seat layout had to be revised for President Eisenhower's visit today to Ebbets Field. The chief executive, with a party of 12, will occupy the Brooklyn dugout and will toss out the first ball.

He will arrive at 11:25 a.m. EST —25 minutes before the start—like a true fan, so he can witness the final warmups.

Twenty secret service men will be spotted in unrecognizable—at first—key spots. A group of them made a thorough inspection of the Ebbets Field layout Tuesday.

Brooklyn will have 500 uniformed policemen around the ball park to direct traffic, watch pick-pockets and keep order.

Pity the poor ticket scalpers. The television age has cut into their huge profits. They're moaning that they can make no more than 100- and 150-per-cent profit on sales this year.

Tougher to get than tickets are hotel rooms. Hostelries in both Manhattan and Brooklyn booked their reservation lists weeks ago, and outgoing inns are also loaded to the rafters.

Do you figure it'll be a four-game series? The pricemakers will give you 10-1 against the Yankees making a clean sweep and 16-1 against the Dodgers.

The veteran of both Yankee and Dodger casts is Brooklyn captain Pewee Reese, playing in his seventh world series. In 147 games, he has batted .282, 15 points above his regular season lifetime average.

Brooklyn's Sal Maglie is intent on getting a world series victory because, he says, it would complete his three-point goal.

The goal: To win 20 games in both leagues, the majors (he won 23 in 1951 with New York Giants); to pitch a no-hit game (he did against the Boston Braves last Sept. 25); to win a world series game (he still hasn't done it).

Yankee scouts have told manager Casey Stengel he must be more careful of Maglie than Don Newcombe, the Dodgers' 27-game winner. Newcombe, they say, is pitching "tired ball."

Maglie's fast ball is much faster," Ed Lopat, the onetime New Yankee junkman told Casey, "but his pitch isn't worth much any more. He has about as sharp a breaking curve as there is in baseball."

Pewee Reese, Brooklyn's veteran shortstop, probably will feel lonesome out there without Phil Rizzuto as an opponent.

Reese and Rizzuto began their world series rivalry in 1941 and played opposing shortstop in 11 series after that, but Rizzuto has been cast out by the Yankees and will attend the 1956 show as a spectator.

The Voice of America will broadcast a detailed play-by-play description of the series in Japanese to the 20,000,000 baseball fans in Japan. This should be interesting. How do you describe a Chinese bothe run in Japanese?

Dwight D. Eisenhower Will Be First U.S. President in 20 Years to Attend Series

By JOE REICHLER

BROOKLYN (AP) — Either out of force of habit or because of their past winning ways in this sort of competition, New York ruled a solid 8-to-5 favorite to defeat Brooklyn in the 1956 world series but was only a 6-to-5 choice to win today as the Yankees' Whitey Ford and the Dodgers' Sal Maglie squared off in the opener at Ebbets Field.

A crowd of about 34,000 jammed the ancient Flatbush ball park with Dwight D. Eisenhower, the first president to attend a world series game in 20 years, scheduled to throw out the first ball.

Cool, clear weather was forecast, with sunshine and early morning showers supposed to end before the scheduled starting time of 12 noon EST.

CONTRAST IN PITCHERS

The pitting of Maglie against Ford marks a strange contrast and not only because the 39-year-old Sal is righthanded and 28-year-old Ford throws from the left side. Maglie, the old timer who never ve open a world series, has never won a game before although he has started two. Ford has won three, two over the Dodgers, but his only one over a club in Ebbets Field, he lasted only one inning.

Maglie won 23 games in 1951 and three days rest. Ford had not pitched since he blanked the Athletics for victory on 20 last Wednesday.

Yankee manager Casey Stengel's explanation for nominating Ford over his three starting right handers in a park considered a southpaw's graveyard, was simple:

"Ford is my best pitcher," he said, "and I can't afford to hold him out until the third game."

WALT'S CLUTCH HURLER

Dodger manager Walter Alston's reason for going with Maglie in preference to his younger starters was equally as simple.

"Sal has been the club's best pitcher over the past two months," he said. "He's won our clutch games and I'm going to stick with him. I'd like better to pitch such an important game as this one."

With due respect to the proven ability of Maglie and Ford, this does not mean that the pitching series in fact, it looks very much like the hitters, led by the Yankees' Mickey Mantle, Yogi Berra and Hank Bauer and the Dodgers' Duke Snider, Roy Campanella and Carl Furillo, will take charge.

RELIEFERS IMPORTANT

The remainder of every very well go to the team which receives the shortest relief pitching. That's one of the reasons why the Dodgers hold the edge over the Yankees. The American League champs, who whipped the Dodgers five straight times in world series competition until they were beaten last year, don't have anyone to match bullpen aces Clem Labine and Don Bessent.

The way this observer sees it, the series figures to go the limit of seven games, just as it did last year, with the Dodgers again winning it.

There is strong reason for sticking with the Yankees. n the last 35 years, starting with 1921, they have won 22 pennants and 18 world series record consists of 18 series victories and only five defeats.

DODGERS TIRED?

Some also point to the fact that the Yankees are well rested following their romp in the American League race while the Dodgers might be exhausted after their pressure-ridden stretch drive that did not pay off until the final day of the season.

Alston, however, did not consider the exhausting pennant race a disadvantage.

"I'm counting on the momentum to carry through," he said. "This plus the fact that we should have more confidence since we've beaten them once in a series."

Stengel's only comment was: "I expect to win every game I play, but I don't see how anyone can win this in four straight. Both teams have experienced, able men."

BOOTERS FULL

Both teams were at full strength but three of the Yankees and one Dodger were not at their physical peaks. Billy Martin, who missed most of the '55 series, still is bothered by a groin injury sustained Sept. 22; second baseman Billy Martin has an aching back and 40-year-old Enos Slaughter, who will patrol left field, has a charley horse.

The diagnosis of Brooklyn catcher Roy Campanella's persistently-aching right thumb is: "Not in good shape but it has been worse."

The lineups that won the pennants will remain intact for the series, at least the first game.

Alston, who at first had intended to bench the southpaw - hitting Sandy Amoros against lefthanded pitching, switch Gilliam from left and play rookie Charlie Neal at second base, changed his mind Tuesday.

"I thought it over," explained Alston, "and decided to stick with Amoros because he's hot. When Sandy is hot, he can hit anyone."

The managers already were looking ahead to the second game, a day-night affair. Don Larsen is expected to go for the Yankees against Brooklyn's Don Newcombe. The Yankees' fourth- and fifth-game pitchers figure to be lefthander Tommy Byrne and Tom Sturdivant.

Clem Labine will pitch the third game for the Dodgers unless he is needed in relief in either of the first two games. Either Carl Erskine or Roger Craig will pitch the fourth game for Brooklyn.

Ted Kluszewski Nearly Through As Major Player

NEW YORK (AP) — Slugger Ted Kluszewski, archtype of Cincinnati's "Big Red Machine" this year, says he may be washed up as a player unless he recovers from a bio muscle injury.

The 240-pound first baseman said Tuesday he is "in constant pain" with a torn muscle that has pressed against the sciatic nerve.

"I am not concerned about it now," he said, "but if by next spring I feel the way I am now, I don't see how I can continue to play."

The 32-year-old first sacker said specialists at Cincinnati and Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore told him that the damaged muscle would mend with rest.

The hip trouble first cropped up in spring training this year when he complained of a pulled muscle after fielding a ground ball during infield practice.

Although the muscle pained him somewhat during the season, he batted 35 home runs, brought in 102 runs and batted .302.

British Heavy Scores Disputed Win Over Charles

LONDON (AP) — Dick Richardson, Britain's 23-y-e-r-o-l-d heavyweight hope, scored a disputed victory over Ezzard Charles Tuesday night when the former world champion was disqualified in the second round for "persistent holding."

A packed house of 11,000 fans in Harringay Arena set up waves of booing and derisive laughter which lasted for five minutes after referee Frank Wilson lifted Richardson's hands in victory.

Charles, once a sleek and fast 183-pound champion, appeared hard-eyed and weighed a flabby 202 pounds. Richardson weighed 203½.

WARNED THRICE

Wilson cautioned Charles for holding three times in the first round and made two trips to his corner to warn both him and his handler. The referee called off the fight after two minutes, 52 seconds of the second round.

The fourth defeat in six fights this year for Charles. Since his two beatings by then-heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano in 1954, he has lost nine of 17 fights, two of them by knockout.

Richardson, a Welsh milkman who has been a pro only 21 months now has won 17 of 19 fights.

Charles' purse was withheld pending an investigation by the British Boxing Board of Control.

Nimble Colby Made Favorite For Futurity

LEXINGTON (AP) — Nimble Colby, a swift trotting filly who twice licked the colts in stake competition this season, tries it again Thursday in the Kentucky Futurity, one of the big three races for three-year-olds.

Nine colts complete the field, among them The Intruder, latest winner of the Hambletonian in August who returned to competition last week after a lengthy lay up with lameness.

The Futurity, rich in tradition and feature of the Lexington trots, will gross $53,731.74, the smallest purse in eight years. The Futurity first raced in 1893, teams with the Hambletonian and Yonkers Futurity as the triple crown for the trotters. It is decided on the best two of three mile heats.

Sal Maglie Will Be Oldest Hurler Ever to Start Series

By ED CORRIGAN

BROOKLYN (AP) — Grim-faced Sal Maglie, the oldest pitcher ever to start a world series game, stared out at Ebbets Field today before taking the mound against the New York Yankees.

"I'm raring to go," said the 39-year-old castoff of two major league teams. The only reason that I had any doubts about my ability to pitch the opener was that I was terribly tired after that tough game last Saturday and I didn't know how long it would take for me to recuperate."

1951 YEAM WAS BETTER

What about the Yanks?

"They must have a good ball club to win the pennant so easily," he reflected, "But still they aren't as good as the 1951 team."

That was the club that beat him when he was a mainstay with New York Giants.

"On the other hand, though," he continued, "I'm a better pitcher now than I was then. I have much better control for one thing."

Manager Walt Alston chimed in that there could be no other choice than Maglie, assuming the ancient "Barber" felt right.

"Not only has he been my stopper," commented Alston, "but something else to remember is that he has the box-breaking stuff that we need to stop the Yanks."

Alston turned his attention to home-run hitter Duke Snider, who has had his troubles against lefties in the past.

"Why should I worry about Duke?" he asked. "He stays right where he always is, in the third spot in the batting order. The way Duke hit in those last three games with Pittsburgh, I see no reason to change him.

"Furthermore, he has had three straight good series, and personally I think he's going to have another good one."

In the 1952, 1953 and 1955 series Duke hit, respectively, .345, .320 and .320. He hit four home runs each in 1952 and 1955.

Alston knows the Brooks have the psychological edge today because the game is on home grounds and they have been murder against lefties.

"But in the long run," he observed thoughtfully, "I'm counting more on the momentum of our strong finish than any other factor to carry us through."

GOLIC ON WAIVERS

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four Football League Tuesday asked for waivers on tackle Bob Golic, with a view to releasing him from the club.

NAME McGILL TEAM

MONTREAL (CP) — Bob McClure, Derek Hanson, Ross Dibble and Carl Mein Tuesday won berths on the four-man team that will represent McGill University in the Intercollegiate golf championships in Kingston Oct. 5.

WILL SWIM LAKE

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Ben Loughren of Victoria, defeated three times by the Sirois of Juan de Fuca, said Tuesday he will attempt to swim the 17 miles between the Port Arthur waterfront and the head of Sleeping Giant, a lake situated beneath a cliff southwest of here.

Stengel Confident Ford Can Take Care of Bums in Opener

By ED WILKS

BROOKLYN (AP) —Manager Casey Stengel was confident left-hander Whitey Ford could take care of Brooklyn Dodgers in today's world series opener as Yankees Field and hoped "our younger pitchers can profit by the mistakes they made last year" in losing to New York Yankees the rest of the way.

Ford, 28, a stubby southpaw who won 19 during the regular American League season, made his sixth series start today, but only his second in Ebbets Field, the chummy Brooklyn ballyard with close-in left field stands that usually make it tough for a left-hander against the Dodgers' right-handed hitting power.

Ford, although clubbed for three runs in the inning he lasted in Ebbets Field during the 1953 series, said "it wasn't any tougher than Fenway Park," the cozy home of Boston Red Sox.

OTHER STARTERS

Stengel set up righthander Don Larsen, southpaw Tommy Byrne and righthander Tom Sturdivant behind Ford in the starting rotation. It wasn't a deflatie pitching plan, but it probably will stand.

He made no particular reference to Johnny Kucks, the 23-year-old righthander who won 18 this season, or fastballer Bob Turley (5-1) a loser last time, as relief hurlers.

But he was prepared to use as many pitchers as necessary to win back the championship.

RESPECTS BROOKS

"I'll tell depending on how hot that club (the Dodgers) is," said Casey, "I understand they're goin' pretty good right now. I don't want to criticize the other clubs in that (National) league, but with respect to Milwaukee and Cincinnati it was that club (Brooklyn) that went by everybody. They were playing their best of the season at the end."

Stengel thought his infield was pretty set, with Andy Carey at third, Gil Mcdougald at shortstop, Billy Martin at second and Bill Skowron at first.

"Or I can put Martin at third and Jerry Coleman at second if the things won't goin' the way I like it at second and third.

BENCH LACKING

"Ya the outfield we've got (Enos) Slaughter, he has a bad toe but he'll tell you he's all right, and (Mickey) Mantle he says he's alright and I hope so, and (Hank) Bauer, he'll give me the long one once in a while."

"Catching? Well you can say we're okay there with (Yogi) Berra.

"My bench? My bench is gone. Sure, there's (Joe) Collins, and Coleman and (Elston) Howard and (Bob) Cerv. Collins gives me a pinch-hitter or a first baseman or an outfielder. And Coleman I can use in the infield and maybe as a hitter. Howard's been sick, in the hospital with that throat and may be weak. Cerv's come through. I mean he's hit some of 'me almost out of sight and I wouldn't be afraid to play him at Ebbets Field where they could be home runs.

"But my bench is gone.

"I mean it's not like I had (Johnny) Mize to go up there and hit."

Falls Leaves Argos' Camp

TORONTO (CP) — Guard Mike Falls left Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Football Union Tuesday to return to the University of Minnesota for a master's degree.

Falls, a place convert kicker, left the team voluntarily. He said he was "not doing myself, or the club any good."

The 225-pound, two-way player will be replaced on offence by Bill Lucky, formerly of Cleveland Browns and Green Bay Packers of the United States National Football League.

SPORT IN BRIEF

INTERZONE FINAL

MADRAS, India (AP) — India will play the United States in Interzone final of the Davis Cup at Perth, Australia, Dec. 7, 8 and 9, the All India Lawn Tennis Association announced Tuesday.

GRANT FOR PARADE

VANCOUVER (CP)—City council Tuesday granted $5,000 to the Grey Cup committee to help finance British Columbia's entry in this year's parade at Toronto.

PROLONGS STREAK

HOUSTON (AP)—Roy Harris, undefeated Texas heavyweight, won his 16th straight decision Tuesday night with a unanimous nod over Charlie Norkus, Fort Washington, N.Y., veteran. Harris weighed 185 pounds and Norkus 196.

TWO TRIPLE WINS

TORONTO (CP)—Trainer John Starr and jockey Avelino Gomez scored triple victories at New Woodbine Park Tuesday.

Tommy Ivan To Coach Hawks During Season

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Tommy Ivan, the only National Hockey League coach who never played professionally, is returning to the business which established his name in NHL circles.

He said Tuesday he will direct Chicago Black Hawks from behind the bench "as long as I am able" as well as doubling as Hawks' general manager.

Ivan, 46, who quit coaching two years ago to become general manager, succeeds Dick Irvin, forced to quit Sunday because of ill health after 26 years of big-league coaching.

In seven seasons with Detroit Red Wings, Ivan and his teams won six straight NHL championships and three Stanley Cups.

LOOKING FOR COACH

Ivan said he was appointing himself coach "because Dick's retirement happened so suddenly, we just haven't had a chance to sign a top-rate man for the job."

He said he would coach the club for the entire 1956-57 season if necessary, but that he would try to find another "permanent" replacement" in the meantime.

"We have some fine young prospects in our training camp here," Ivan said. "But it will be a tough struggle to get any place in the league this year. Now don't get me wrong—I'm not conceding anything to any of the other clubs."

ONLY ONE GOALIE

He said he would carry only one goalkeeper when the season starts Oct. 11 with the Detroit visiting Detroit. Harry Lumley, obtained from Toronto Maple Leafs during the summer, and Glen Rollins, regular Chicago goalie last term, are waging a close duel for the position in training camp.

Gus Mortson, Pierre Pilote and rookie Elmer Vasko have the inside track for the defence positions, Ivan said. Of the 18 forwards still trying out, Ivan said any of them could make the team.

Basilio Named Boxer of Month By Association

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Carmen Basilio, who recently regained the world welterweight championship by stopping Johnny Saxton, Tuesday was named boxer of the month by the National Boxing Association.

Basilio recaptured the title September 12 when he scored a ninth-round technical knockout over Saxton in Syracuse, N.Y.

The NBA, which now plans to issue its ratings monthly instead of quarterly and also pick the fighter - of - the - month, dropped Saxton into the No. 2 spot below Basilio in the October list. Tony DeMarco, a former champion, was ranked No. 1 contender.

Archie Moore was rated No. 1 contender for the vacant heavyweight crown, followed by Floyd Patterson. Tommy Hurricane Jackson was placed in the No. 3 slot, ahead of Bob Baker of Pittsburgh.

The only Canadian fighter among the top 10 in any division is Gordon Wallace of Brantford, lifted the No. 5 contender for the light heavyweight championship.

Bobby Pulford Good Prospect To Make Jump

Bobby Pulford appears to have no discrimination against nets. Indeed he is scoring as well against National Hockey League stars in training camp this year as he did against minor league goaltenders during the 1955-56 season.

Pulford, who led Toronto Marlboros to their second consecutive Memorial Cup and Canadian junior championship last year, has been rated a good prospect to make the jump to the NHL this season.

He enhanced his chances Tuesday night by scoring two goals to lead Toronto Maple Leafs of the NHL to a 6-1 rout over the American League Cleveland Barons at Timmins.

ROOKIES BENCHED

In other Tuesday games New York Rangers and Boston Bruins battled to a 2-2 tie in an all-NHL exhibition at New Haven, Conn., Hershey Bears of the AHL defeated the NHL Chicago Black Hawks 3-1 at Niagara Falls, Ont., and Detroit Red Wings of the NHL defeated Edmonton Flyers, their farm club in the Western League, 6-1 at Edmonton.

Toronto coach Howie Meeker, who was not pleased with his charges after they fought to a 2-2 tie with Montreal in the AHL, a bruising game at Sudbury Monday, benched rookies Bobby Baun, Larry Aldcorn and Al McNeil for Tuesday's game.

SAME OLD HAWKS?

A crowd of 1,500 fans saw Bob Solinger, Lorne Davis and playing-coach Frank Mahoney beat Chicago netminder Harry Lumley for Hershey's victory. Larry Wilson scored for the Hawks.

Norm Ullman, a former Flyer, scored twice for Detroit before the capacity crowd of 7,800 fans at Edmonton. Alex Delvecchio, Metro Prystai, Murray Costello and Bill Dea added singles.

The tie for the Bruins was the best they could do in a three-game series with the Rangers, who won the first two games at Providence, R.I., 4-2 and 4-3.

Boston's Doug Mohns and Ron Murphy of the Rangers traded goals in the second period before Andy Bathgate gave New York a 2-1 lead in the third. Jack Caffery locked the score late in the game.

Henry, 23, was the NHL's rookie of the year in 1953-54 for Rangers and last season topped AHL scorers with 59 goals in 59 games. New York, in return for Henry, optioned left winger Parker MacDonald to the Reds.

Glamor Boy, Ronnie Knox, Signs Contract With Calgary

CALGARY (CP) — Football's glamor boy—Ronnie Knox—was due to sign today for the Canadian team this season.

The flashy, former UCLA quarterback, who last year left Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four last week in a huff, Tuesday agreed to join the last-place Calgary Stampeders in the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

The six-foot-one, 200-pound flier who is under contract to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, came to terms with the Stampeders only hours after arriving from the East with his stepfather, Harvey. Within 15 minutes of the agreement, he was on the field and taking part in Stampeders' workout. Details of the contract were not disclosed.

Coach Otis Douglas wasted little time Tuesday night in getting Knox, who earned $1,000 a game with Hamilton, into action. He had him calling the signals on several passing formations.

The former UCLA player's throwing ability—he completed 41 of 64 passes for seven games with Hamilton—and his deception in the backfield seemed to impress the coach.

Knox, a great crowd-puller during his brief career in the western football...split with the TiCats following a reported demand by Harvey that coach Jim Trimble make him first-string quarterback and play at least one game each game.

Harper-Cats used Ronnie as a glamor attraction at the gate, not as a football player," said Harvey. "We'll go down to Hollywood where glamor really pays off."

After Ronnie failed to turn up for a practice, he was cut from the Hamilton squad but before he made plans for Hollywood he and his father were already talking business with Calgary.

Chiefly because his father disagreed with coaches, Ronnie played with six U.S. college teams before turning pro.

C.V. Whitney Thinks Business Looks Better Than Year Ago

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — There's a sign over C. V. Whitney's desk that reads:

"If you can keep your head when all others around you are losing theirs — then maybe you just don't understand the situation."

This is typical of Whitney's approach to the movie business, into which he has leaped with both feet. A financier, developer and sportsman, he has entered films as a producer at a time when some persons despair of its future. Not Whitney.

"I expressed my faith in the motion picture business when I got into it a year ago," he said. "I think the business looks even better now."

Whitney, a ruggedly handsome man who chooses his words carefully between puffs on a pipe, said he has been involved in the movie business over the years in the financing end.

He and his cousin, John Hay Whitney, backed some of the first successful color pictures of the 1930s and invested in technicolor. They also financed David O. Selznick classics such as A Star is Born, Rebecca, and Gone With the Wind. C. V. Whitney still holds an eighth interest in "GWTW," and that should be enough to convince anyone of his wisdom of picking films to invest in.

No part-time producer is Whitney. He sits in and advises in all the production sessions.

"I've even written a full screen treatment of our next picture," he said. "Then I'll have a screen writer come in and put it into script form."

Jackie Gleason Live and Lively In New Show for Television

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the happier events of the new television season is the return of Jackie Gleason—live and lively—with a full hour show on CBS-TV.

Perhaps it was a good idea for Gleason to go to film for a year after all. To at least one viewer it makes his return to the live home screen the more pleasant by comparison.

As his Saturday night debut revealed, the staging of this year's show has been enlarged, the choreography improved, and the Gleason girls look lovelier than ever. The total effect is first-rate entertainment.

Those fortunate enough to have turned to Alcoca Hour (NBC-TV) last Sunday evening saw what can happen when a writer of great talent turns all her powers to the creation of a television drama.

The writer was Pearl S. Buck and her drama The Big Wave.

The Big Wave was Mrs. Buck's first essay at writing television drama—and she did not attempt it with her left hand. To a great theme and an exciting setting she brought perception of human nature and a fine economy of words. One can only hope that she will return again to this medium.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

For Thursday, October 4, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—A rigid check on all spending is in order; also on distribution of your energies. Time-wasting is taboo. Try to coordinate new facts with planned program.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus)—There's plenty of opportunity for you to bestir yourself to achieve worthy goals. Don't pay homage to schemers. An excellent day for thinking and devising constructive plans therefrom.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini)—Productive action, progressive growth indicated. Gather all the knowledge you can, apply it as needed. Add to others' happiness by cheery words, good deeds.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Point energies to matters that demand early attention. Be alert in money matters, dealing with strangers, be compulsive bargain. A happy — so — lucky attitude won't get you far.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—Slow tempo to normal to get your breath, sustain good health. Be alert to ever - present opportunity. Take things in stride and dovetail efforts to meet current demands. Vary your approach.

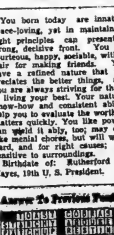
August 24 to September 16 (Virgo) — A fine outlook. Be alert to valuable contacts, advantageous situations. Life is what you make it. Aim to concentrate on the important issues first.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Aspects look with favor on sincere effort, well-planned action. This is no time to get excited or declare yourself heedlessly. Take everything in stride. Be astute in allocation of energies.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Don't try to crowd in too many things at one time. Instead, handle essentials to the best of your ability, then apportion the balance of your time to developing new and progressive ideas.

November 23 to December 21 — (Sagittarius) — Your record today (any day, for that matter) depends upon what you put into it. Be sensibly consistent. Watch finances, business interests, commitments for the future. Relax in the P.M.

December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — Take care of the present tasks and duties early and the "extras" will seem a lot easier, mistakes be less likely. Curb a possible tendency toward impulsiveness.



January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — Pleasant events may occur unexpectedly. Contentment and satisfaction are the result of continued, competent effort. Master any tendency to lose hope, or fear your ability to achieve.

February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Put forth your best efforts early when you are fresh for conquest. Be gentle in domestic affairs. Don't act without investigating, ascertaining facts; alter schedule if necessary.

You born today are innately peace-loving, yet in maintaining right principles can present a strong, decisive front. You are courteous, happy, sociable, with a flair for making friends. You have a refined nature that appreciates the better things, and you are always striving for them. If living your best. Your natural know-how and consistent ability help you to evaluate the worth of matters quickly. You like power, can wield it ably, too; may dislike menial chores, but will work hard, and for right causes; are sensitive to surroundings.

Hammarskjold Trying To Avert Suez Showdown

UN Negotiating Committee Being Urged by Secretary

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold of the United Nations is reported using his full influence to avert a showdown fight in the Security Council which might shut the door to further UN peace efforts in the Suez dispute.

Informed quarters say this is the main theme in the series of private talks Hammarskjold is having with high-ranking diplomats assembling here for the Suez debate beginning in the Security Council Friday.

The secretary - general was understood today to have found substantial support, but Britain and France said they were determined to push their demands for UN endorsement of the plan for international control of the canal, approved by the London conference in mid-August.

FEARS RECTIFIED VETO

Hammarskjold and his supporters are said to fear that this position of the London UN initiatives might be eliminated if this plan is rejected either by a Soviet veto or through failure to get the necessary seven votes in the 11-member council.

Hammarskjold is trying to enlist support for creation of some kind of negotiating committee to keep the discussions alive without placing the UN behind either side in the dispute.

Pending the arrival of State Secretary Dulles, the United States delegate, Henry Cabot Lodge, had been keeping in close contact with British and French representatives. Britain's Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd said he hoped the U.S. would support the British-French proposal, but informed sources indicated that Washington is somewhat cool to it.

Hammarskjold has had long talks with Russia's Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov, Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville of Egypt, Lloyd and Lodge. French delegate Bernard Cornut-Gentile and other council members. The delegates mostly have had little to say about their plans.

4 Dead, 6 Missing After Michigan Building Falls

JACKSON, Mich. (AP)—Rescue operations were broken off early today in the shattered ruins of a collapsed building, leaving at least six men presumed dead in wreckage that already had yielded four bodies.

It was hoped that the task of uncovering tangled tons of concrete and steel which buried the victims would resume later today, after technical experts had declared to fall on rescuers had been knocked down.

The halt in the frantic digging that had continued throughout the night cancelled the last faint hope that some of the trapped workmen would be found alive.

Fifteen others were injured Wednesday when the half-completed office building of the Consumers Power Co. collapsed with a roar like the sound of an exploding bomb. The four-storey poured-concrete structure had been designed to withstand the shock of an A-bomb blast.

"It all happened so fast I didn't get to see very much," said Russell Taylor, 25, a carpenter foreman who was inside the building. "There was a cloud of dust and it was over in about three seconds. Shortly afterward I could hear the screams of the men who were trapped."

J. H. Crowe, a carpenter who had left the building moments before, said "it sounded like a big bomb exploding."

LISTED FOR MOANS

A tense moment came late Wednesday night when noisy generators and rescue machinery were shut off for 10 minutes while a dozen workers put their ears to the debris to listen for moans or sounds that would indicate life.

But all was silent, and the men returned wearily to dig some more.

One wing of the building, designed to keep power flowing to Michigan industry in the event of an enemy attack, caved inward Wednesday afternoon as if pushed down by an invisible force. Its four heavy floors crumbled one by one, pancaking into the basement. Screaming workmen were carried down small mounds of concrete to be buried in a huge pile of twisted wreckage.

About 40 electricians, carpenters and construction men were working in the building at the time. Several were able to leap to safety as floors remained standing, but more than a dozen were trapped.

Doctors and nurses gave painkilling drugs to the first of the entombed victims were dragged clear to waiting ambulances. Oxygen was gave comfort and the last rites of the church.

FRANTIC RESCUE EFFORTS

Scores of rescue workers, spurred on by moans and screams that came at first from beneath the wreckage, ignored the danger that other parts of the shattered structure might also collapse.

All the city's ambulances were called to the scene three miles north of Jackson and about 70 miles west of Detroit. Police were quickly joined by civil defense workers and Red Cross personnel.

Governor G. Mennen Williams ordered all military national guard forces to stand by for duty.

Today's Chuckle

"Well, son," wrote the fond mother to her soldier son, "I hope you have been punctual in rising every morning so that you haven't kept the regiment waiting breakfast for you."

Britain Explodes Atomic Weapon at Ground Level

No Reporters Allowed To Witness Blast

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—British exploded an atomic weapon at ground level today at the Maralinga proving ground in South Australia. It was the second explosion in the fourth British series of test blasts.

"The firing went off satisfactorily," Australia's Supply Minister Howard Beale announced. "The explosion was within the forecast and meets the requirements of the Australian safety committee."

Earlier reports said the ground level explosion was intended to test the effect of shock waves on underground shelters and water, sewage and gas pipes.

NO REPORTERS

No reporters saw today's blast, which Beale said was Britain's ground burst.

The test was mounted by British, Australian and Canadian scientists and servicemen, and among those who saw the first were a group of members of Parliament and a number of independent observers from each of the United Kingdom and Australia.

It is generally believed that the weapons Britain is testing are the darkening sky to discourage Russian spy planes from taking pictures for guided missiles.

Any test which scared the desert air, Canberra jets flashed into the darkening sky to photograph Dr. Herbert Evatt, leader of the Australian opposition Labor party, who has criticized the staging of atomic tests on Australian soil.

Coal Mine Owners Balk at Signing Pact With Lewis

CINCINNATI (AP) — John L. Lewis's efforts to close a peace deal to his United Mine Workers convention Wednesday, only to have the union's contract representative refuse to sign it.

Lewis called the 2,000 convention delegates assembled here that the independent union he heads had initialed a contract agreement calling for a $2.40 daily boost in wages and other benefits.

Delegates cheered and eventually ratified the deal after some debate. But a scheduled signing of the new wage pact a few hours later failed to come off.

Edward Fox, president of the bituminous Coal Operators Association, who had flown through a fog in a private plane to come here to sign a pact, was left through the haze without putting his signature to the final draft of the pact by Lewis.

Nature of the snag was kept secret, but it was said a matter of vacation pay.

Fox had hailed the tentative agreement as a continuation of labor relations in the coal industry that have prevailed six years of peace, without major strikes and without government interference.

Hat-Stealing Athlete Forgotten, Russian Ballet Wins Wild Ovation

LONDON (Reuters)—The opening night of the Bolshoi Theatre's ballet season at Covent Garden—the first ever given the 300-year-old company outside Russia—ended in a tremendous demonstration of Anglo-Soviet friendship.

Two weeks of bickering over the case of the Russian ballerina Nina Ponomarova, who has been charged with stealing five hats from a London store, were stored were wiped out by the wild reception given by the company's production Wednesday night of Prokofiev's Romeo and Juliet.

There were cries of applause greeted the end of a 3½-hour performance starring the legendary ballerina Galina Ulanova.

Nina Ponomarova, the shy, 47-year-old dancer was surrounded by huge baskets of flowers after many curtain calls and a captivated audience. Her Romeo, the handsome Yuri Zhdanov, also won long personal ovations, and the whole company was applauded.

The impact of Ulanova's performance was remarkable for the unanimity of opinion among the critics.

The Times says the performance was a translation almost of Shakespeare's very words into movement and that the occasion yielded all that was expected of it.

The Daily Herald declares: "The Bolshoi ballet has been given the highest of its movement, the splendor of its scenes, the richness of its imagination. And (Ulanova) is more than a dancer who seems to move on invisible wings. She is a great tragic actress, as the climax proved."

Arnold Haskell, director of the Sadler's Wells ballet school, writes in The Daily Mail that to praise Ulanova is to praise the whole company.

"Her impact is overwhelming," he says. "Her dramatic power is unfaltering. Her technique is unfailing. Her control is complete. Her timing is perfect. Her every movement is a delight to the eye. Her every gesture is a delight to the mind. Her every expression is a delight to the heart. Her every pose is a delight to the soul. She is, in short, a complete artist."

Editorial in Ottawa Journal Sharply Criticized by P.M.

OTTAWA (CP) — An editorial strengthening there. in the Ottawa Journal commenting on Prime Minister St. Laurent's offer of a public post to Hon. George Drew, retired Progressive Conservative leader, was sharply criticized by Mr. St. Laurent.

In a letter to the newspaper published Wednesday, Mr. St. Laurent described the editorial as "very unfair." He said it was "based on a statement of facts which is quite inaccurate."

However, The Journal, in an editorial published with the letter, said that its previous editorial was valid and "based upon facts."

The first editorial, published Monday, criticized Mr. St. Laurent for statements he made to reporters last Thursday.

It said Mr. St. Laurent's statements present "a most disconcerting precedent" in that "the prime minister seems to be discussing publicly an offer of a censorship before the offer has been accepted or even adequately considered."

The paper's news report last week had quoted the prime minister as saying he had asked Mr. Drew in a Toronto hospital and had spoken to him about continuing in the public service "in the Senate or some other suitable position." Mr. St. Laurent, it said, asked whether he had the Senate in mind, had said "yes" to the Senate or some other positions."

Its report also said the prime minister had said the Senate was "not a particularly strenuous form of service" and that Mr. Drew's party could stand some needed strengthening anyway!"

Frick Orders Postponement Of Second World Series Game

NEW YORK (CP) — Baseball commissioner Ford Frick ordered the postponement of today's second game of the world series between Brooklyn and New York Yankees because of wet grounds and "menacing weather."

The decision came at 10:03 a.m. EST after a conference of Frick with managers Casey Stengel of the Yankees and Walter Alston of Brooklyn Dodgers and the umpires.

The huddle was held in the Brooklyn dugout at Ebbets Field where a light sprinkle fell on the diamond, which was covered by a tarpaulin.

"These conditions are all right for playing," the commissioner said, "but the forecast for afternoon and possibly heavier rains this afternoon have forced me to this step of the game."

The second game will be played Friday at Ebbets Field with the forecast for fair weather. The first game was played on Tuesday morning.

It was the first postponement of a world series game in five years. A Sunday game at the Polo Grounds in 1951 between the Yankees and New York Giants was postponed then because of rain.

Frick said:

"My biggest nightmare since I became commissioner is the fear that sometime we might have to play an abbreviated world series game. It never has been done and I hope that we will never have it. It is not fair to the players and the spectators.

Consumer Index Drops as Result Of Cheaper Food

OTTAWA (CP) — Living costs declined slightly in August from their record high level of July, forced down by lower food prices of harvest time.

The bureau of statistics today reported its consumer price index, based on 1949 prices equalling 109, reached a mark set for July 31, down one-tenth of a point from the July level of 109.1 which had been reached following three consecutive monthly increases.

Of the five main components of the index, only food prices showed a drop. The food subindex fell to 115.5 in August from 115.9.

The yardstick of shelter costs reached a new high of 133.1 from 133, and household operations rose to 117.1 from 116.8. The sub-index of miscellaneous goods and services rose one-tenth of a point to a record 121.4.

Clothing costs, which had dropped seven-tenth of a point in July, held steady in August at 118.4.

Vulcan Bomber Crash Blamed On Human Error

TORONTO (CP) — Sir Thomas Sopwith, chairman of the British Hawker-Siddeley Aircraft Companies, Wednesday blamed "human error" for the crash of the world's jet atomic bomber, the Vulcan.

Here for a visit, Sir Thomas said he doubts that the trouf rear section for the crash Monday at London airport will ever be known but the bomber was in perfect flying shape. The crash was "due to no defect in the plane."

Sir Thomas said the Vulcan's pilot could have tried to land but two ways following advice of a ground controller or by using his own instruments.

"I have no idea which system the Vulcan's pilot was using," he said. "It would seem, however, that someone made a very grave error somewhere along the line."

Bank Robber Arrested Acting Part of Drunk

Robert Wood Found In West Toronto Apt.

TORONTO (CP)—Bank robber Robert Wood, an artist at disguise, who escaped from Kingston Penitentiary five days ago, overplayed a drunk act Wednesday night and got caught.

Two detectives went to a West Toronto apartment to question a man. In the Dufferin Street apartment they discovered an apparent drunken friend, his coat collar turned up and hat awry. Police let him defend him, then had a hunch something was wrong.

The "drunk" was taken to headquarters for questioning. Later he was fingerprinted and police announced the recapture of Wood, 27, who had been serving a 25-year term for two bank holdups involving a total of $94,317 and two shootings. Most of the money has been recovered.

LOOKED LIKE EXECUTIVE

Police pictures of Wood in various disguises had been circulated, police didn't recognize him at first. He made identification through fingerprints. Officers said Wood looked like a typical executive than a bank robber. He was not armed.

"You wouldn't recognize him from his picture," said Sergeant of Detectives Alvin Morrison, "but other fellow was not being investigated for any suspicion connected with the robberies."

Wood escaped during a Sunday afternoon basketball game. He is said to have travelled to Toronto in cars stolen in Kingston and Belleville.

OUT IN 1957

It was his second escape. The first was in 1951, shortly after his arrest on the robbery charges, when he broke from a police cell during him to Toronto's Don Jail, using an imitation revolver fashioned from soap and covered with boot polish. He was quickly recaptured.

Wood was high on the most-wanted list and his capture last night came 24 hours after Ottawa started an intensive hunt on the man police could not be had slipped into the city.

Defence Pleads Poles Victims of Mob Psychology

POZNAN, Poland (Reuters) — Defence lawyers making their final plea today for three youths on trial for murdering a security officer during the June bread riots of mob psychology were victims of mob psychology.

The prosecution has already demanded a "just sentence" for Zbigniew Pekala, 20, Kazimierz Turek and Jerzy Sroka, both 18.

One of the defence lawyers said the boys guilty the cause of the policeman's death was not sufficient to justify the death sentences imposed three weeks later. The riots took place June 28.

According to one of the defence lawyers, the murder was a spontaneous crime in which a whole crowd of people were concerned.

In another court, where nine men are on trial for stealing arms and attacking the security police headquarters, Professor Jan Szczepanski, professor of psychology and sociology at Poznan University, the accused were manual workers with elementary education and without much experience of the world.

Says Saskatchewan Lawyer Best Possible PC Leader

TRAIL, B.C. (CP) — George Hees today withdrew himself as a contender for the Progressive Conservative party leadership, thereby ending his campaign and pledging his support to Saskatchewan lawyer John Diefenbaker as the man who can achieve "complete harmony and unity within our ranks."

Mr. Hees, 46-year-old Commons member for Toronto Broadview, said Mr. Diefenbaker "will make the best possible leader for our party."

"I strongly urge him to run, and I pledge my support to him if he does," said Mr. Hees as he stepped down in favor of the 61-year-old member for Prince Albert, Sask., the Conservative party's foreign affairs spokesman.

Mr. Hees issued his statement simultaneously at Ottawa and at Trail, where he is a two-week speaking tour of the four Western provinces.

His announcement aligned him with a Diefenbaker - for - leader movement within the Conservative Commons membership which took shape at Ottawa following a meeting of the party's national association executive.

The meeting, attended by Mr. Hees, planned a convention for Ottawa the week of Dec. 10 to choose a successor to Hon. George Drew, resigned because of ill health.

DIEFENBAKER SILENT

"But I have nothing to say at the moment and that will be for some days yet," he added.

The leadership has been vacant since Hon. George Drew resigned two weeks ago because of health reasons. The party will choose a new leader at a convention in Ottawa Dec. 10.

After falling from his father's car while it was doing 50 miles per hour on No. 2 highway near the Trenton Air Station, Norman Tucker, age 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Tucker of Murray, York township, is in Trenton Memorial Hospital with head lacerations and bruises.

Hospital authorities stated this morning that the lad is "resting comfortably."

Provincial police described it as a miracle that the Tucker lad was not fatally injured when he fell from the left door of the car and onto the pavement while the vehicle was going 50 miles per hour.

As the lad struck and rolled on the highway a following car was forced to swing into a nearby lawn to avoid running over him. The boy was taken to hospital by a passing motorist, and was treated by Dr. D. E. Campbell. Provincial Police constable Jack Fuller-ton investigated.

The Tucker family was returning home following a motor trip to New Brunswick. Mrs. Tucker and three children were riding in the back seat when, near the air station, the door opened and the lad rolled out onto the highway.

Fine Weather, Good Exhibits Bring Out Record Holiday Crowd to Madoc Fall Fair

MADOC (Staff) — Old Man Weather was in a favorable mood for the annual Madoc Fair Wednesday as sunny and warm October skies beckoned to bring out a typical holiday crowd for what directors said was the "biggest and day fair in Hastings county."

It was a beautiful day and fair-goers — both young and old—thoroughly enjoyed the varied program set up by the committee. Francis Tobin and his beast of directions.

There was a fine racing card, the usual fine horse show, a good exhibition of cattle, sheep and poultry, a fine exhibition of farm and garden produce and fine examples of domestic science. Music was provided by the Madoc Municipal Band.

County junior farmers had a big day with the Madoc 4-H Calf Club holding its achievement day and the agricultural Representative Al. Francis noted the club had made a fine showing with a total of 30 members turning out for the show.

Also featured at the fair was the county pre-club calf show with top calves from all four county clubs competing.

The juniors had their own building where every phase of the show groomed for the big show. In the same building were prize winning garden displays, fine exhibits of potatoes grown by club members.

A feature of the fair was the ring — Prince Edward Yorkshire Breeders' Show which saw 51 head of swine shown by 14 different exhibitors. In charge of the show was Agricultural Representative Don Taylor, of Picton.

SPLENDID MIDWAY

Mecca for the youngsters and also for many adults was found in the March midway with its full complement of rides, side shows, ball throwing, refreshments and other games of skill. Hot dog and refreshing stands did a big business feeding the inner man.

In the horse judging ring one of the tracks best in district horse flesh was exhibited for the benefit of the judges with horse loving fair goers. There was a fine showing of both heavy and light horses following the regular harness racing there were pony races and roadster events.

Farm machinery men were on hand with the latest in mechanized farm equipment.

New at the Madoc fair this year was a set of bleachers installed along the track and north of the judging stand. The fair grounds took advantage of the seats to rest tired feet. But the familiar hill on which the secretary's building stands, still proved a popular vantage point to swing or climb to see the races and other fair features.

There was a good cheese show although the quantity was possibly down from other years.

FINE GRANDSTAND SHOW

The beautiful fall weather contributed to the success of the grandstand show with hundreds of people from near and far lining the grandstand to see such as both young and old oiled up their joints to shake, rattle and roll in a variety of competitions.

Several married women climbed the platform to show their prowess with hammer and nail in the nail driving contest. Not to be it to any husband who overlooks his wife's ability with those instruments. Mrs. Ivan Dafoe, Marmora showed that she was capable of driving the nail right into a two-inch plank in nine seconds to equal the skill and speed of many of Mrs. Dafoe's rival of Bellville came second in the nail driving taking 14 seconds to complete the task, while Mrs. Armstrong of Sulphide did it in 16 seconds.

Seven-year-old Reggie Webber put on a great show in the dance competition for children under 15 years of age and took first prize. Gail Kleinsteuber came second and Patsy Quinn placed third. Mr. Reeves of Bird's Creek, came first in the step dance for folks over the age of 15 years. Appropriate music for the dancing was played by fiddler Clarence Wannamaker.

While on the subject of fiddles, Mr. Monaghan of Coe Hill won the prize in the old-time fiddling competition.

GOOD SAWYERS

Thirty-eight seconds was all a team made up of Harry Walsh of Bellevile and Al Hall of Trenton, to saw through a two-foot log and win the log sawing contest.

Mr. Will Miller of Madoc, was awarded a beautiful bouquet of flowers, compliments of Carling's Brewery, for being the oldest man at the fair. He was 84 years young yesterday.

To show that folks really did come from near and far, Mrs. Arthur Rickey of Westwood won the contest for the person travelling the longest distance to attend the fair.

A group of professional singers and dancers also provided entertainment for the throngs of visitors.

Among the celebrities at the fair were Torchy the Fire-Eater, Madam "X" and Laloni, the Hula Hula dancer, who attracted dozens of curious people into the side-show at the west side of the field.

Bowling Notes

It is drawing to the end of a most successful bowling season and plans are being made to close it out during the holiday weekend. A mixed jitney will be played on Monday morning and afternoon. Three games will be played starting with a ten o'clock draw and then two games after the lunch hour. This will enable all to be finished before the cool evening breezes start to blow. It is hoped that all members, both the men and women, will be out to enjoy the last tourney of the season.

President Austin Watkin has announced the annual meeting will be held in the clubhouse on Wednesday October 17th. The officers will be elected and plans laid for the coming season. Reports of the year's activities will be submitted by the various chairmen and discussions will take place on any matters brought before the meeting by the members. This is a meeting for the members to offer constructive criticism of how the club can be improved and a full attendance is requested.

The club banquet will be held on October 25th when the prizes and the trophies won by the several members during the season will be presented. This will be a pot luck supper and after the business of the meeting is concluded a social hour will be spent. This will be a great way to talk over the past play and figure out how a certain shot was missed that might have resulted in the winning of one of some of the tournaments visited.

Since the last list of tournament winners was given the Belleville club had had further success. At Colborne Ken Ashley, Bill Wright and Gordon Watkin were the Thanksgiving turkey, while Jack Smith, Gordon Vince and Austin Watkin won a turkey with one-high score.

Ken Watkin at the Snowbird tournament on Saturday last, Gordon Vince with a 259, Gordon Vince and Bruce Miller won the second three-game high and came home with a Vicyella shirt each. There were other rinks at these tournaments but failed to make the grade.

THE COMMON TOUCH

"Just what is the common touch?" asks the Peterough Examiner in an editorial.

The Toronto Star, it says, declared in an editorial that Hon. George Drew had undoubted ability, but like another Conservative leader, Hon. Arthur Meighen, "lacked the common touch."

"We have heard this criticism before, and we have often wondered what it meant," says the Examiner.

The Star can give its own interpretation of the phrase, but since The Ontario Intelligencer used precisely the same words, perhaps we should endeavor to define what we meant.

It is a difficult task. The Peterborough Examiner believes the importance of "the common touch" is exaggerated and to prove its point says that it can be seen at work in the U.S. presidential election, "where candidates work like beavers at wearing unsuitable and funny hats, overalls and miner's outfits, and in playing at jobs which they do not understand."

"Is anybody deceived? Not for an instant," says the Examiner, and we agree. But, as the Examiner itself says, a paragraph later, "Such hayseed-dress is the common touch. It is the bogus touch, and we know it."

The common touch and the bogus touch are not mutually exclusive. A man can have both, or either one without the other, or neither.

The man with only the bogus touch displeases the people and it is well that it is so. But the man with the common touch can get away with the bogus touch, because he makes it plain that he knows it is bogus and that the people are not deceived by it. He is just playing a little joke, at the expense of those sophisticated who think that the bogus touch deceives the public, and he is letting the public in on the joke.

Perhaps that is one definition of the common touch, the existence of a feeling of kinship with the masses of the people—or, as The Ontario Intelligencer defined it when it used the phrase, "the ability to win friends and influence people regardless of their color, creed or intellectual capacity."

But that definition is not very satisfactory. Perhaps the common touch can best be defined by an example. . . .

Over twenty years ago Hon. Mitchell F. Hepburn was stumping the province, seeking to oust the government of Hon. George S. Henry. One of his meetings was addressed by a reporter's delight. His speech was well organized. His points were clearly defined. He spoke slowly. After each point he had a little joke, which enabled a reporter's racing pencil to catch up with the real meat of the address. Then, before passing on to the next point, he briefly restated his previous one. It was almost impossible for a reporter, even one covering his first political campaign, to make a mistake. Then, at the end of the meeting, the cabinet minister called the reporter aside. "Are you sure you have the report right?" he asked. "Quite sure," replied the reporter. "I'll go over it with you son," he offered. "No thanks," snapped the "son" and strode off in a huff.

Ten days later Hon. Mitchell Hepburn made a speech. He wandered. His tongue tripped as it raced to catch up with his mind. He jumped up and down excitedly every time any part of the government's record. His jokes interrupted the sequence of his ideas, but if he ever repeated a statement it was purely by accident and never by design. As his audience dwindled to a few cheerless listeners, he spotted the overwhelmed reporter. "Anything I can do for you, old man?" he enquired in a tone of voice that suggested that by now it was the most likely thing in the world that such a long-time friend of time-tested talents could possibly have misplaced a single word or misinterpreted the significance of even a change in tone. He had unconsciously like the Conservative cabinet minister, but he also got a vote from the reporter on whom he had never set eyes before in his life.

The bogus touch? Yes, but the common touch, too.

Perhaps the common touch is saying "old man" instead of "son," saying it and meaning it. And it can be said without words, too.

MOVIE STARS WORRIED

Motion picture stars are concerned about the release of their old films for showing on television.

Dick Powell, the actor, believes they have reason to worry.

"All these pictures on TV are going to hurt some people," he says. "You take a star who is getting along in years. The public will see him as a young performer in the old movies on TV, then find he has aged 20 years when they see him in a new movie."

Is that necessarily going to be bad for the stars? Ought there not to be something added besides years? Will not many of the stars be able to prove that they have acquired, besides a few grey hairs, a greater skill in their profession?

"There's another thing," continues Powell. "Styles have changed. A girl may have looked glamorous in the styles of 18 and 20 years ago, but today's audience might think she looks ridiculous. That's bound to hurt."

Are all the movies made today about contemporary times? Are not some of them about times gone by? And do not the actors and actresses who appear in these films wear clothes of the period they are portraying? Movie-goers may laugh at the styles, but they do not laugh at the actors or actresses, provided they play their parts well.

Yet we think Powell, and those movie stars of like mind, may have reason for concern. Some of these stars are going to look ridiculous, not because of their costumes but because of the way they played their roles.

Should they be protected from ridicule? What other artist receives protection from past mistakes? Can today's author be assured that his earlier works will never be read or criticized? Can the painter prevent the public from viewing his early works, before his style had matured? In many cases, in fact, today's master craftsmen more likely to benefit from public appreciation of the improvement in their work, than they are to suffer from the realization that they were not always as skilled in their art as they are today?

Can it be that what is bothering some of the stars is the possibility that the public will discover that, twenty years from now, they are still playing the same old scenes, in the same old manner, with nothing changed but their costumes and their personal appearance?

Magna Carta Nonsense

Ottawa Journal

We published on Tuesday a letter from a correspondent in support of Premier Bennett's assertion that the Magna Carta was the greatest victory for the ordinary man since the Magna Carta. Incidentally that would be the end of the matter; Bennett said it was, and he is the only Bennett supporter said it was. Such assignment as an expert proof would elude with that arch note used by the editors of the Daily Correspondence is now terminated.

But we just can't let this one die like that. After a restless night wondering how we could clinch the thing it suddenly occurred to us that as a matter of fact it wasn't much of a boast anyway. Magna Carta wasn't really ended man's troubles on this earth at all, at all, whereas Mr. Bennett probably feels quite sure he has. So what's all the digging into history about?

Reddon, it is all nonsense and we plus ultra has been written about Magna Carta, but what it was all about was best expressed by Marriott Edgar some years ago, against non-combatants in the Holloway sharply after the lion et Wren:

"Then they told him they'd brought Magna Charter,
The silly old thing in kind of limp,
But mingling his manners he took off his hat
And said, 'Thanks very much, I'll read that.'

"You'd best sign at once," said Fitzwalter;
"If you don't, I'll tell thee for a fact
The next coronation will happen quite soon,
And you won't be there to take part."

So they spread Charter out on t' floor
And John signed his name like a lamb,
His writing in places was sticky and thick
Through his dipping his pen in the jam.

And it's through that there Magna Charter,
As were signed by the Barons of old,
That in England today we can do as we like,
So long as we do what we're told.

Municipal Govt. Myth

Sudbury Star

There is a myth frequently and freely circulated to the effect that municipal government is a training ground for parliamentarians in the higher field." It was the subject of a few days ago by one of our contemporaries, the London Free Press.

What higher parliamentarians are there in the province in the present cabinet members? Our curiosity prompted us to check the Provincial Secretary Guide. We could find no record of Prime Minister Sinclair Gardiner as ever having had any interest serving in municipal government. The Ontario cabinet furnishes better than half its members served in various municipal governments. In fact the premier has not up only one provincial prime minister with municipal background.

Members of municipal councils are often accused of casualness and for political office because their names are known to the voters. Casual members of them would fall miserably if they had to write examinations or municipal law or procedure. They can hardly lay claim to being "trained" in municipal administration. The kindest thing to be said is that they "service" tickles us that Hon. Leslie Frost returned to them a piece of property worth $1,000,000. Provided it was worth it would come to $1,636.66 plus per Indian, quite a bargain for municipal language.

And yet, it could be a dangerous precedent, for if they succeeded in getting title to the Kansas City burial ground, what's to prevent them and other Indian tribes from laying claim to the rest of the country, which once belonged exclusively to them?

Legislators, you'll have to keep on your toes.

At bowling I've skill.
If I could do it, this wonderful game

Now in my room as a friend he appears
Praising lawn bowling.

Proudly says he.

Too Touchy About Truth

Peterborough Examiner

The world continues to shrink at an uncomfortable rate. How uncomfortable some incidents relating to this years' international film festival at Cannes, in France, make clear.

A British film, recently seen in Peterborough, called A Town Like Alice was on show, because the Japanese objected to it; it showed the ill-usages of a group of British women and children by Japanese during the war. The Germans succeeded in preventing the exhibition of French and Polish films which showed scenes in German concentration camps. The Russians secured the withdrawal of a German film about the reunification of Germany.

These incidents remind us that at the last film festival in Venice the American ambassador (Mrs. Luce) had a film withdrawn called The Blackboard Jungle because it showed a vicious conduct in an American school. And The African Queen cannot be shown in India because—of all things — it shows that much of Africa is undeveloped jungle.

All of these reasons for suppression are rooted in truth. The Japanese did commit enormities against non-combatants. The Germans did establish horrible concentration camps; there are schools in the U.S.A. where hoodlums are a serious problem. These things are not the whole truth about the nations concerned, and brutality, cruelty and juvenile delinquency are problems everywhere. But the nations concerned showed an extreme touchiness in not having these things associated with them.

It is understandable. But it is also a situation which cannot continue. We have all of us become technologically advanced nations of the world — created by means by which we can learn about one another with great ease, and we cannot continue to live on what is learned about us will be flattering.

In the long run, exchanges of information will do much good and create a more thorough understanding, but it will not be done without some pain and humiliation. The process of growing up, on a world scale, cannot be easy.

Indians Are Shrewd

Cleveland Plain Dealer

Never underestimate the American Indian. He has patience, a long memory, and considerable ingenuity, and he finally succeeded in puting it over on the Kansas City, Kan., municipality.

According to the Associated Press, the city fathers there recently guarded a two-acre Indian burial ground in Huron Park in the downtown area. It belonged originally to the Wyandotte Indians, now of Oklahoma, and was ceded to the United States when the Wyandottes moved to Oklahoma from Kansas.

Sixty years ago the Wyandottes gave the city fathers the right to pass a bill returning the burial ground to them — they would sell it for a business site and distribute the money among the 900 members of the tribe.

They were finally successful, in the last session of Congress. The bill was passed right under the noses of Rep. Errett P. Scrivner (R-Kan.) and Sen. Frank Carlson (R-Kan.). The two, who had sought to have a salutary measure signed into law by President Eisenhower, are from Abe Lincoln's old dist.), said Chief of the Wyandottes, Lawrence E. Zane, janitor of the Marsh Grain post office, "by keeping it quiet."

Chief Zane's award is a smoking admiration for the Original Americans, and it rather tickles us that the Indians have returned to them a piece of property worth $1,000,000. Provided it was worth it, would come to $1,636.66 plus per Indian, quite a bargain for municipal language.

And yet, it could be a dangerous precedent, for if they succeeded in getting title to the Kansas City burial ground, what's to prevent them and other Indian tribes from laying claim to the rest of the country, which once belonged exclusively to them?

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

Gastric Hiperacidity

First off, let's make sure everyone knows that gastric means stomach or pertaining to the stomach and has nothing to do with gas.

Second, let me say that in my opinion, at any rate, a so-called "gas attack" may be associated with an accumulation of objectionable air and/or gas in stomach or intestine and with the presence of more or less air and/or gas from stomach or intestine, but the presence of the gas may not be the cause of the trouble, and it is rarely if ever that it causes any serious distress or impairment of the heart. In many instances the actual trouble ascribed to "gas attack" or to "pressure on the heart by gas" is biliary colic (chronic gall-bladder inflammation, with or without gall-stones). In milder — well, yes, I know, if I were the victim I wouldn't consider it so mild — cases of bellyache with bloating by gas and/or air, the cause of the distress is not the presence of gas and/or air, but muscle spasm or cramp in the alimentary canal. The spasm prevents or delays the passage of the gas and/or air through the canal. When the spasm relaxes, a good deal of the gas and/or air may be belched or expelled from the bowel, and the patient experiences relief of discomfort with the escape of the gas. The result is that relaxation of the muscle spasm relieves the pain or discomfort and at the same time permits the air and/or gas to escape.

Now what causes the muscle spasm? I'll give my own idea, which may be right or may be wrong, but only on condition that we stop there, for if you want to go further with it, you should consult a physician.

I believe the immediate cause of the spasm which is the essential feature of most biliary colic, hyperacidity— excessive acidity, or hyperchlorhydria, excessive secretion of hydrochloric acid in the stomach.

If this is correct, the best and quickest relief for the distress or discomfort would be an antacid such as prepared chalk combined with magnesium trisilicate, about 7 grains of the former with 3 grains of the latter, in discs which are not unpleasant to chew.

Sodium bicarbonate, commonly used in too large doses is an antacid has one serious fault—it upsets the acid-alkaline balances of the gastric juices. Magnesia alone is also commonly used in too large doses, is not only laxative but also has the bad habit of robbing the body of calcium. Milk of magnesia as a laxative is efficient and both epsom salts (Epsom salts) as a cathartic for adults are both objectionable for this reason—most American children and old people suffer from calcium deficiency anyway.

BIBLE TEACHING ABOUT SEX

What does the Bible teach about sex?

It teaches that sex is part of God's original creation. God established sexual differences in the beginning and created the sexes. One of men and women for each other in the living of a complete life.

The Bible is very serious in its teaching about sex and the sexual attitude. There is no prudery in the Bible neither is there any shame in sexuality. Sex is the means by which God continues the physical life of his creatures. It is the means of humans, the means by which He fulfills for the life of human creatures, which in the beginning is incomplete and becomes complete and full-orbed only when the two aspects of humanity which our sin.

complement each other—men and women—come together to form one complete person.

Sexual people look upon sex irregularity as a very slight sin, and many regard it as no sin at all. The Bible teaches that it is one of the most basic of sins. Paul teaches that every sin sins against the body; but he that committeth fornication sinneth against his own body (1 Cor. 6:18). Then he goes on to say that the body is the temple of the Holy Spirit and that fornication is the violation of this temple. It therefore becomes one of the most hateful and devastating of all sins.

Sex was used to the glory of God is holy. Sex used to His selfish ignorance and lawless purposes is unholy and involves one in ser-

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SERENITY IN OLD AGE

Every age of man has its own peculiar charm. Youth has its hopes, its enthusiasms and far-flung plans, its fervent belief in the impossible called character. It is a restless time, a time of daring and bold initiative. What would the world be without such a period?

The genuine romantic time in the life of most human beings is between the ages of twenty and thirty-five. Life is full of judgment beyond this period is something like a descent into the valley. The well-lived life looks toward old age as a blessed day of retreat and relaxation as well as one of serenity.

In my newspaper recently I read an interesting article, which was an interview with John Hall Garner (Jack Garner to all close friends). He was perhaps our most picturesque Vice-President. He was several times in Washington, and it was an event just to listen to Jack and observe the apparent love that everyone had for him. In his simple way he spoke of a sentiment that hung upon a card in his simple cabin. I do not know what it said. I read: "God grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, the courage to change the things I can, and the wisdom to know the difference." A soul-ment well worth remembering.

One thing about old age is that it gives one a great many memories—memories that are very precious. People love to honor the great of this earth. They enter their ripe and golden years—men like Churchill, Herbert Hoover and Harry Truman whose names are undying in history. No one deserves serenity more than do our great.

The voice of the aged is the voice of experience. We should listen to them. We should listen to the memoirs of a long and useful life as it always interesting and inspiring. They are written away from the stir of battle and the heat of controversy. Serenity in life is like the falling of Autumn leaves!

Travel by Night

Brockville Recorder and Times

The old trick of making long motoring trips during the dark hours to escape heavy traffic no longer works on most of Ontario's main highways. Vast volume of the province's heavy truck traffic now travels by night and night travel now is just about as congested as day travel.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The attention the medical and surgical profession are paying to the heart, brain, liver, lungs and other glands is going to be a good thing. Previously the attention was misplaced. They should be concentrating on the feet and the hair follicles and joints we go first.

This past summer, I leaped lightly from the outboard skiff in a fashion I have practised for sixty-four years. My heart is still good. My brain is as clear as ever. No liver spots dance before my eyes. My hair has not fallen out. My joints just failed to act. Not only my ankles, knees and hip bones, but that small swivel joint in the small of the back, which you might call the lumbar joint, collapsed, and, somewhat like a roll of old carpet, I slumped onto the bottom of the skiff, the larger half of me suspended over the gunwale. And when I got home my joints refused to step lively to save us all from going sour-faced, and they just refused to speak.

The reason I speak of what formerly were unimportant parts of a whole as if they were separate entities is in accordance with the trend in modern medicine. We have specialists now who deal with only one organism in what used to be a single organism. We have heart specialists, brain specialists, liver specialists and so on. It is hard for us laymen not to conceive that we are incorporated companies rather than individuals. And the older we get, the stronger grows that conception. In bygone days, we spoke of "my heart," "my lungs," "my liver." Not any more. You never hear a doctor say, "How are you?" and he immediately refers to "the ways I am looking. My eyes, as if he were speaking of fellow employees.

"The old ticker," says your friend, "has been acting up."

It is as if the ticker were disembodied.

That is precisely the way I feel about my joints, and I suggest the medical men wake up to the fact that it is in the joints we go first. You can see it all around you. On the street, in the office, at home. The way they step off the car curb when the traffic lights change. Everybody over forty goes clunk. The way they get on the bus or train. Everybody over forty appears to be in the process of mecano. Just watch anybody, even your loved ones, over forty, going upstairs!

Joints, gentlemen, the joints. How do you manage to keep assuming an air of privacy apart from us?

Frozen Immunity

Toronto Star.

The Antarctic is the place to go to avoid catching colds, according to an Australian polar expert, who says: "A person would not even catch cold if he had a hot bath and went walking in the snow straight afterwards...you would go blue and shiver for awhile." And after you freeze solid you're immune to everything!

British Labor Refuses to Seek Conscription End

BLACKPOOL, Eng. (Reuters)—The annual conference of the Labor party today rejected a demand for abolition of British conscription, described by one speaker as a "national curse."

On the vote, in which 1,300 delegates cast ballots for the members they represent, the abolition motion was defeated 3,820,000 to 382,000.

Opening a debate on colonial affairs, Jim Griffiths, the party's new vice-chairman, said a future Labor government would ultimately abolish all racial discrimination. .

"We realize that in some territories these ideas will meet with bitter resistance from the dominating white minority," he said. "These people should have the sense to see that their best safeguard for the future lies in the acceptance of our ideas. . . .

"Because we see what has happened in South Africa, because we oppose the federation in central Africa, and because we see what is going on while settlers are doing it after parts of Africa, we say that the protection of Africa's inner should not be withdrawn until the basis of a political democracy is satisfactorily established.

"We are not going to hand over millions of Africans, without a vote, to white supremacy."

3,000 Britons Comb Mountains For Terrorists

NICOSIA (AP) — Some 3,000 British parachutists and infantrymen were combing the Kyrenia mountain range near the north Cyprus coast today in a hunt for Greek Cypriot guerrilla leaders headed by EOKA chieftain George Grivas.

The vast search, which is expected to continue for the rest of week, covers 200 square miles. It is the first large-scale operation against extremist mountain gangs in three months.

In Nicosia, the rigid day-and-night house curfew imposed by British authorities on the Greek quarter of the capital entered its sixth day. Greek Cypriots, who are allowed out of their houses for two hours at mid-day to buy food, called a boycott of food shops and emergency food stalls as a protest against the ban.

The boycott call under way Wednesday and was followed by a telegram of protest to Governor Sir John Harding against the curfew from the Greek mayor of Nicosia, Themistocles Dervis. He termed the curfew "an unworthy punitive measure directed against innocent persons," and asked for its immediate lifting.

The curfew was clamped on the Greek quarter within the walled inner city last Friday after EOKA gunmen killed a British woman, two British police sergeants and a serviceman.

Deseronto Council

DESERONTO. — The regular meeting of the town council was held on Monday night. All members were present with the exception of Reeve McVicker and Councillor Spencer.

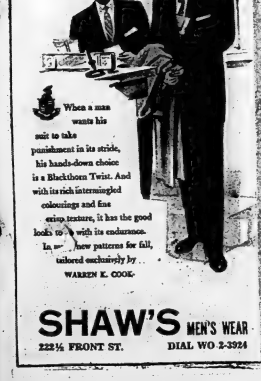
Among the communications received was one from the Fire Marshal's office suggesting that the town contact Belleville or Trenton for a copy of their building by-laws. A letter from the Funeral Directors' Association of the Bay of Quinte area, brought forth some discussion. In the letter, the association requested that the fee for indigent funerals be increased from $75 to $150. Council passed a motion that in future $175 be allowed for indigent funerals.

In his report, Councillor Tweddy, chairman of the Fire and Police Committee, asked that a motion be passed authorizing the fire chief and one other member of the Fire Department to attend the course in fire fighting co-ordination, which is being held at Belleville. He also advised council that the committee would recommend the purchase of a new police car. However, at the present meeting he will not submit estimates for the overhaul of the present car and the approximate cost of a new car.

The property committee was authorized to grant the firemen permission to purchase lumber for the repair of the rink which will be operated by the volunteer firemen again this winter.

The caretaker of the town hall and park, W. Rowland, was granted an increase of salary of $10 per month.

At the request of the school board, the creek back of Maple Avenue is to be cleaned by the streets committee.



In what was informed council that the Indian department would take care of that part of the creek which crosses Reserve property.

A by-law was also passed authorizing the agreement signed between the town of Deseronto and the Department of National Defence, whereby the town agrees to supply fire protection for Mohawk Airport.

Countries Agree On Division of Costs for Dredging

TORONTO (CP)—Canadian and United States agencies involved in construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway project have agreed on division of costs for dredging of the Corsand Hamilton channel, it was reported Wednesday.

The channel will complete the all-Canadian seaway.

Under the reported agreement the U.S. Seaway Development Corp. and the Canadian St. Lawrence Seaway Authority will each pay more than $1,000,000, the New York State Power Authority and Ontario Hydro each more than $4,000,000. Total cost of dredging for the channel is estimated at $21,000,000.

The channel project was added to the original plans after work on the seaway was well under way.

The U.S. is reported to be seeking a guarantee that the all-Canadian seaway will not be completed until deep waterway traffic warrants duplication of locks and canals.

Under the new plans, a deep waterway on the Canadian side between the Great Lakes and the Atlantic ocean would require only a short channel and one or two locks.

The present channel for the seaway is being constructed in the Massena, N.Y., area, on the American side of the river.

Official announcement of the project will mean victory for the Canadian sponsors over U.S. officials who opposed the dredging at first, finally agreed but held they should not have to help pay for it.

Dredging operations must be well advanced by the summer of 1958 so that 14-foot shipping may be shifted from the Canadian canals to the two U.S. locks now under construction.

Closing of the power locks and flooding of the Canadian locks and canals are scheduled for July or August, 1958.

APPROVE SEGREGATION BAN

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—A resolution supporting the U.S. Supreme Court decision outlawing racial segregation in public schools was adopted Tuesday by the international convention of the Assembly of Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ). There was a scattering of "nays." A spokesman said all southern states were represented at the assembly.

Bulbs are "floral bombs" that give a burst of beauty throughout the garden. Don't consider them as separate from other plantings, but use in masses, clumps, borders, backgrounds and pots for indoors. Plant as soon as possible after purchase or receipt of order. They're safer in the ground than out. Exception: In warm areas, some hardy bulbs need several months refrigeration before planting (to produce good bloom).

Oldest Man Took Parting Kick at Peeve

NEW YORK (AP) — Javier Pereira, the little Argentinian who may be the world's oldest man, departed Wednesday for his native Colombia. As he left, he took a parting kick at news photographers, his pet peeve.

Pereira was brought here two weeks ago to try to determine if he is 167 years old, as some people claim. New York hospital experts on old age examined him and said there is no exact way to fix his age. But they said he might be over 150.

Last week at a press conference, the tiny foot-loose Pereira became irked at busy photographers. He slugged a newspaper reporter.

At Idlewild airport Wednesday the flash bulbs irritated him again. He growled and rushed at the photographers, kicking at them until they gave ground.

Later, he calmed down and accepted a calendar with a galaxy of pinup girls on it. Shouting in glee, Pereira singled out one of the pictures and cried:

"She's good."

Then he tucked the calendar into his luggage and departed.

Boy Had Hunch, Took Car Number After Holdup

BUFFALO, N.Y (AP)—Police acted quickly on a schoolboy's hunch Wednesday and picked up two men they charged with first-degree robbery in a bolting plant holdup that netted $1,761.

The youngster, 13-year-old Frank Williams, was delivering newspapers near the Coca-Cola bottling company plant, at the time of the robbery.

He said "something looked wrong" when he saw two men race away in a car driven by a third man, so he took down the licence number.

The holdup was the city's second in as many days. Tuesday three men held up a neighborhood branch of the Liberty Bank of Buffalo and escaped with about $25,000. No trace of them has been found.

The two men picked up are Tobia Anzalone, 28, and Neil Squitieri, 21. A third man, unidentified, was being sought.

Chiang Gets Old, Thus Chou Can Afford to Wait

PEIPING (Reuters) — Premier Chou En-lai of Communist China was quoted Wednesday as saying his government would go on repeating "again and again" its offer for a "peaceful solution" of the Formosa dispute with Nationalist China.

Of 69-year-old Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, head of the Chinese Nationalist government on Formosa, Chou was quoted as saying, "He is a man advanced in years . . . it is evident that time is on our side." Peiping could "afford to wait."

An account of Chou's remarks was given here by Yap Hung Lung, a Chinese general of a trade delegation from Singapore, who talked with Chou for 2½ hours. He stressed his account of the interview was from memory.

Canadian Army Fully Prepared For A-Warfare

OTTAWA (CP)—The army has left no doubt that it is determined to be fully prepared for atomic warfare.

It was learned Wednesday that every Canadian soldier will be issued with an atomic radiation detection device known as a dosimeter.

In fact, the army has settled on two types of dosimeters for service issue. One costs about 55 cents. No contracts have yet been let but the army has set aside funds for purchase.

One type will be worn by every soldier and form part of his medical record. It will be read by experts after the soldier has been in atomic battle or test to determine whether he has been subjected to too much radiation to stay on the job.

The other, pencil-like type will be carried by officers and senior non-commissioned officers to determine the amount of radiation in a unit's immediate area. Other bulkier types will be carried by expert atomic teams in "feeling out" an area for radioactivity.

SEEK MOBILITY

The combined chiefs of staff also have recommended to the government development and acquisition of an army transport plane, known as the Flying Truck, to give the army more mobility in the field.

Atomic training teams now are giving instruction to selected officers and NCOs in the army's five commands on radiation detection. The latter, in turn, will pass on the knowledge to all army units, regular and militia.

The army also is working on clothing which would give at least some protection against radiation.

The navy and RCAF are also carrying out radiation detection training programs.

Workers Want Shorter Week to Combat Layoffs

TORONTO (CP)—Three major broadcasting networks, one of them Canadian, were warned Wednesday that 3,000 employees are prepared to strike to back up demands for a shorter work week to combat layoffs due to automation.

George W. Smith of Chicago, elected president at the final session of the tri-annual meeting here of the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians (AFL-CIO-CLC), said the convention is on record as warning officials of NBC and ABC in the U.S. and CBC in Canada, that NABET members will strike if necessary.

Another union deals with CBS, the other major U.S. network.

Eugene Klumpp of Buffalo was elected vice-president.

The convention passed resolutions calling for expansion within the association's ranks, more strike funds, jurisdictional arrangements with other unions and the promotion of more than television and radio broadcasts.

Another resolution asked association members to resist attempts to feed programs to stations where employees are on strike.

FAST EXPANSION

Between 1946 and 1955 the use of oil increased more than twice as fast in Canada as in the United States.

Fail to Discover Russian Refuge Returning Home

NEW YORK (AP) — United States immigration men swarmed over the huge liner Queen Mary Wednesday in a futile search for a Russian refugee and his American-born baby daughter bound for the Soviet Union.

The searchers were looking for 58-year-old Alexis Chwastov and his daughter, Nyra, 2½, who was born in Philadelphia.

Apparently tipped off by Chwastov's estranged wife, immigration officials made a deck-by-deck, cabin-by-cabin search, in Chwastov's tourist-class cabin they found only luggage and bottles of baby formula.

One passenger, Fedor Solomatin, chief counsel to the Soviet Embassy in Washington, said: "In accordance with our law, the child is a Soviet citizen."

SAID AWITHDRAWN

Solomatin admitted that the Chwastovs were aboard, but said he didn't know where.

Roland Elliott, immigration service director for the Church World Service, told reporters he feared Chwastov left under "intimidation."

C.G.I.T. MEETS

The C.G.I.T. of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church held its first meeting of the year in the Sunday school room.

Sharon McDonald read the Scripture lesson, and Gail Robinson gave the secretary's report.

Two dolls were contributed by Mrs. J. G. Ritchie for the white elephant table for the bazaar which will be held by the church the last week in November.

Field Work In Toronto Told At Pr. Wales H-S

Prince of Wales Home and School Association held its monthly meeting on Tuesday evening, Mrs. J. May, president, opened the meeting.

Mrs. Nightingale read the Scripture. Mrs. McKim read the secretary's report and Mrs. Elvins the treasurer's report.

Business included nominating Mrs. T. Cooke as vice-president to replace Mrs. Hutt, who has taken over the program convenorship.

Mrs. Lowery was nominated as recording secretary.

Members were asked to bring forward suggestions for a project for the ensuing year and also to submit any ideas which might help to better the annual children's fair.

Mrs. May introduced Mr. Mc-Dougall, who explained in detail the accident insurance plan which the Central Council of the Home and School Association of Belleville has arranged.

It was decided to buy one photograph record each month to be presented to a class room which had the most parents out to the meeting.

Mrs. Slack's room won for the month of October.

Mrs. Hutt introduced the guest speaker, Miss Brant, who received her BA at Queen's in Kingston and studied social work in Toronto. She is now assigned to the Children's Aid Society in Belleville. Miss Brant spoke of her field work in Toronto and of other many experiences there. She illustrated how children so often express their fears and emotional upsets in their behavior. When parents sometimes think their three and four-year-old are just plain naughty and stubborn these children, actually, very often, have a problem which is too big for their little minds and in this way are asking for help and understanding.

Mrs. L. White thanked the speaker stating that her address had been most interesting and touched on a subject of vital importance to parents and teachers.

Refreshments were served.

But the most important end when planning a place to live in is achievement of basic comfort."

Mrs. Lloyd Sheppard spoke to the members on "Parliamentary Procedure".

Mrs. Lennox advised the next meeting will be a work meeting in leathercraft to be held at Mrs. Jack Joblin's home.

BEALE—HAMMOND

A lovely double-ring wedding, solemnized in Christ church, Belleville, on Saturday, September 22, at 3.30 p.m., when Rev. Everett Smith assistant rector, united in marriage, Gail Patricia Hammond of Belleville, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Hammond, to Robert Malcolm Beale, of Carnilton, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. John Beale. Tall standards of pink and white gladioli, interspersed with ferns, adorned the chancel rail, and white satin bows designated the guest pews.

Mr. J. R. Herdman, church organist, rendered the wedding music, and accompanied the six choir boys who sang "O Perfect Love."

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. John Hammond, the bride was charming in her bridal gown of white Chantilly lace, nylon net, and dropper satin, fashioned with fitted decolleté bodice accented by a matching lace bolero having short sleeves and Peter Pan collar. The floor-length skirt of net over satin was highlighted by inserts of Chantilly lace. Her waist-length veil of nylon net was held by a coronet of matching net dotted with sequins and seed pearls. She wore short nylon mitts, and carried a shower bouquet of red Americana Beauty roses.

Miss Beverley Hammond of Belleville, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, was gowned in bridesmaid nylon lace over taffeta featuring a molded bodice with cap sleeves and Peter Pan collar. The bouffant skirt of net over taffeta was in ballerina length. She wore a matching headdress and carried a crescent-shaped nosegay of gladioli flowers in matching shades of shrimp, and wore white gloves and matching shrimp shoes.

Miss Darlene Adair of Belleville, cousin of the bride, was attired in pale copen nylon net over taffeta, fashioned with tight-fitting bodice having a matching lace jacket with short sleeves and Peter Pan collar. White gloves, matching headdress and shoes completed her ensemble. Her bouquet was also in crescent shape of shaded pink gladioli florets.

Mr. Fred Mickle of Madoc, attended the bridegroom, while Messrs. Ronald Adair and William Lake, both of Belleville, were ushers.

At the reception, which was held at McCaw's Drive Inn, Foxboro Road, the guests were received by the bride's mother, who was gowned in a two-piece navy ensemble of Chantilly lace, with navy and white accessories, and shoulder corsage of red roses. The bridegroom's mother, wearing navy blue, with navy accessories and corsage of pink roses, assisted in the receiving line.

The bride's table was appointed with white damask, and centered by a three-tier pillared wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom, and flanked by the bridal bouquet, which lent a lovely accent to the occasion.

For travelling to Ottawa and other eastern points, the bride wore a navy two-piece ensemble with white and navy accessories, and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses. Mr. and Mrs. Beale will reside in Belleville.

Guests were present from Peterborough, Madoc, Brantford, Picton, and Springbrook.

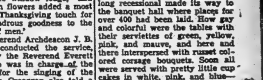
Christ Church Little Helpers Present Thanksgiving Offering

Ideal autumn weather yesterday proved most auspicious for Christ Church Little Helpers' thank-offering service and birthday party in which over 40 boy lots and their mothers took part in an impressive service.

The slanting beams of sunlight, filtering through the stained glass windows touched with radiance the "Good Shepherd" holding so tenderly a little lamb in His arm, coupled with the strains of the 'pro tem' Hammond organ, over which the church organist, Mr. J. B. Herdman, presided; the sheaves of corn which outlined the chancel rail, and adorned the window ledge, and the autumn flowers added a most delightful Thanksgiving touch for "God's wondrous goodness to the children of men."

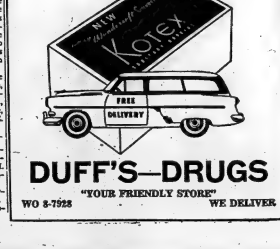
The Reverend Archdeacon J. B. Creegan conducted the service, assisted by the Reverend Everett Smith who was in charge of the projector for the singing of the hymns. Mr. Creegan also told a little story of a little black boy, Kofi, and of his loving care and anxiety for his little sick baby sister; of how though much afraid of the dark wood with its wild animals, he had gone one night to the white missionary doctor to come to his little sister. The good doctor left Kofi at the mission house and went back with the little boy, whom he fed and restored to health. "Truly," said Mr. Creegan, "tells what your little pennies which you have saved in your little boxes are able to do for other little ones, whether they be black, brown, red, yellow or white, but above all to help them to know the Good Shepherd as their own."



After the story, and during the singing of the hymn, "When Mothers of Salem," the little ones, in twos and threes, some singly, and others too small to walk, carried in their mothers' arms, wended their way down the aisles with their mite boxes, placing them within the white covered containers placed there for the purpose. After all had made their offerings, the containers were carried to the altar for dedication to the Lord, by Peter Fargey, Laurie Button, Bonnie Lennox and Ruth Wright, who were accompanied by their respective mothers, Mrs. Lorne Fargey, Mrs. Lawrence Button, Mrs. Les Lennox, and Mrs. James Wright.

Mr. Creegan offered the prayer of dedication and blessing, on the little helpers as well as on their offerings.

Following the singing of the hymn, "Jesus Bids Us Shine," the long recessional made its way to the banquet hall where places for over 400 had been laid. How gay and colorful were the tables with their serviettes of green, yellow, pink, and mauve, and here and there interspersed with russet colored corsage bouquets. Soon all were served with pretty little cup cakes in white, pink, and blue, each cake bearing its birthday candle — and generous helpings of luscious ice cream.



So ended another Little Helpers' service for "others."

Appreciative thanks are tendered to those willing workers who provided the "treats", and to the secretary of "Little Helpers", Mrs. M. B. Button, for her efficient work.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOU NEED TO ASSERT YOURSELF

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'm 24, my husband is 28 and we have been married six years.

For the first two of these years we were very happy. During them I worked, to help purchase a home. Then I became pregnant, which disturbed my husband very much, because, he said, he wasn't ready for a family. I myself was thrilled about it, however.

Since then I've been at home two years, and now there is no living with him. He is a very good worker, has his own job, and, in addition, has a part-time job. He's active in church work, takes part in bowling and baseball and is captain of both teams. You can see he's not often home with me. But if I ever ask to go anywhere there's an excuse or an argument.

I've loved him very much, and if he'd just treat me as a human being I could be contented again, but there's never a kind word or a gesture. I've tried to ignore this, but it's getting too much for me. We've talked it over time and again, but it doesn't seem to help. My friends tell me to leave him, but I came from a broken home myself; my mother was married twice and divorced twice—and this is one thing I never want.

Now I'm pregnant with a second child and really under a terrific strain. At this time, I need and want his affection more than ever. My husband says he still loves me, but you'd never know it. I want a happy home with my husband and my children, but I'm about at the end of my rope.—Mrs. C.M.

Dear Mrs. C.M.: You say you've tried to ignore your husband's neglect of you, but I think it's time you did something a little more definite than that. You do say, of course, that you've also often aired the situation over with him, but got nowhere, which only strengthens my belief that, instead of any more talking, or any more trying to ignore his behavior, a more definite move should come from your side.

This move should be of a type that would make it next to impossible for your husband to continue to ignore your needs and wishes. For as long as you go on accepting, more or less passively, his neglect of you, he is certainly not going to make any effort to change. If, however, you should quietly, and without any discussion of it, start to change some ways in order to achieve more pleasure and comfort for yourself, it might make him sit up and take notice.

What I would suggest is that you start working out a plan by which you could have some recreation and interest outside the home, since your husband appears to be well fixed that way already. What you should do is to look around in the church and in the community for one or two activities in which you'd like to participate.

I'm not forgetting that, with one small child to care for and a new baby on the way, this won't be easy. But if you could scrape up the money to hire a baby sitter—for it doesn't look as though you could expect your husband to help sit it—order to give you some time off in the evenings — you might at least be able, before the next baby comes, to start a program that you could carry out more extensively later on.

Once your plans are all made—and don't even mention them ahead—simply tell your husband casually some morning, as though it were the most natural thing in the world for you to do, that you had joined such and such a club and would be going out that evening. If he objects, and starts to argue about it, you could then say you had done your best for a long time to put up with having no recreation, but you had come to the point where you simply had to have some relief from the strain and pressure of running the household and the care of the baby.

Even though your husband did put up a fight about it, I think it would give him to understand that you were not one to be ignored any longer, which would be likely, also, to start him thinking. It would also give him a new respect for you as a person in your own right, and might be the beginning also, almost certainly, of an eventual solution to the problem.

The main thing is to have the determination t o carry out this plan without your stooping to arguing or quarrelling, no matter what he does. For you will destroy your whole purpose if you let him think he can put a stop to your new independence by quarrying with you.

Let me know if you carry out these suggestions.

Mother's Helper

PERHAPS your youngster takes most of her lunch to school, but maybe he or she is two to bar a hot drink. Ice cream, etc. You tread she'd can be sure she won't have her financial teething if you freeze the money with gummed tape on the inside of the lunch box lid.

So Much to Be Thankful For

By Mary Moore

We had the doubtful pleasure of selecting our own Mincemy duck for Thanksgiving dinner. We looked in on the 15 Empire White turkeys that Loch and Hall have ready for Thanksgiving too, but they are such lovely and engaging creatures we couldn't stand and stare through the wire, because it made us think too much of their impending fate.

THANKSGIVING DINNER MENU

We are going to give thanks for a duck, among other things. You can have turkey, and if you like you can have with it, and be grateful for, Grapefruit and Green Seedless Grape Fruit cup; herb stuffing in his majesty (use rosemary instead of sage and a little lemon rind with the onion and celery when you saute them); Glazed Sweet Potatoes and Creamed Onions or Brussels Sprouts with Hollandaise; Tomato Halves with chive and cottage cheese dressing; Mince or Pumpkin Pie. I'd love to see a picture of that yarn in full color.

MINCE PIE

To 1 20-oz. can of mincemeat (or 2 1-3 cups of your own add three cored apples finely chopped and 1 to 4 tablespoons pineapple or apple juice. (That's just to happy up the filling for a special occasion. It has been known to add a couple of tablespoons of marmalade to mince filling. It's good too.) Turn into pastry-lined pie plate and cover with well gashed top crust or top with 6 pie-shaped pieces of pastry, the latter nearly touching at the edges.

Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. about 40 minutes. Serve with generous wedges or crescents of Canadian Cheddar.

PUMPKIN PIE

The story goes that one of the uncles of our present Queen was having his supper in a boarding house in White Horse in the Yukon. The unimpressed landlady was removing the plates to get dessert and reminded him to "Keep your fork, Duke—there's pie comin'." They say it was pumpkin. I hope he liked it as well as you are going to like this. You'll need your forks too, for this isn't a handout. Mix together 2 cups canned pumpkin, 3-4 cup each white and brown sugar, 1 teaspoon each salt, nutmeg, cinnamon, 1-3 teaspoon ginger, 1-4 teaspoon each cloves and allspice. Add 4 eggs beaten until foamy and 1-4 cup melted butter or margarine. Add these to the pumpkin mixture and mix. Pour into 10-inch unbaked shell. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr for 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. and bake 40 minutes longer until set at centre. This is sweet and takes well to a topping of ice cold, unsweetened whipped cream. You can lower your eyebrows. I know every serving will have about 500 calories.

Thank you.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

YOUR FIRST GRAY HAIR? IT'S A CHALLENGE

Special attention should be given to skin when that first gray hair heralds approaching maturity.

Consider that first gray hair a challenge — not a forerunner of impending gloom! What if it does herald middle-age? With intelligence, you can make those middle years the most attractive of your life.

Heretofore you've been coasting along on the charm and beauty you'b bestowed on you. Now what you make of yourself is up to you. You can be "fair, fat and forty" if you wish. Or you can be slim, glamorous and ageless.

That first gray hair and those telltale little lines around the eyes should be merely warning to you that now is the time to get busy with those extra beauty treatments.

We're living in a wonderful age. Science has given so much thought and research to keeping a woman young looking that there's no excuse for her letting her skin develop wrinkles. We know so much about diet and exercise these days that any woman who wants it can have a slender, youthful figure.

That first gray hair is a challenge to you mentally, as well. Take stock of yourself. Have you sunk into a routine way of life? Now is the time, particularly if your children are grown, to develop your personality with new interests.

Perhaps you've always wanted to study painting or singing or sculpting. Do it. It will give you a new zest in life—bring you into contact with new people, put new sparkle into your eyes.

One other challenge from that first gray hair: Since you have set out to make this the most attractive period of your life, you must watch your grooming. See that your clothes are in perfect taste, perfectly kept, your hands, nails and make-up faultless, your hair looking as though you had just come from the hair dresser's.

Tell yourself, as you look into your glass each day and note the improvements, that you are meeting the challenge of the first gray hair and when you have made yourself a new person with a new slim figure, a new hairdo, perfect grooming, new friends and new interests in life, you'll look back on that hair—the first sight of which gave you such anguish—as a blessing in disguise.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

WHAT TO CALL GRANDFATHER'S NEW WIFE

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I am in my late forties, and quite recently I was married to a widower who has three grown children, all of them married, and with young children. I thank the good Lord that all of my husband's children and I are devoted to another, and quite naturally they all call me by my first name. I like the personal and intimate feeling this gives me with them, but I do feel that it would not be at all suitable for their children to call me by my first name, and I am unwilling to have them do this. My husband agrees.

However, it seems most difficult for me to choose an appropriate name, but since these children are grown, it would be easier for them to begin now calling me another name. Can you suggest a solution? The children call my husband "Grandfather" of course, but since some of the children are old enough to remember their grandmother, it would be, I think, more than a little odd for them to call me "Grandmother." (And I must confess I'd not like being called that.) — D.R.

There are several name-possibilities that may solve your problem . . . and Indeed you and your husband should make this name-decision at once, when the children are so young. Sometimes a very young child in the family will mispronounce a name or title so charmingly or whimsically that this mispronunciation can immediately and lovingly be adopted as a perfect choice. Or if in your life you have had a nickname that now seems suitable to have these children use, you might suggest this.

Or if there is no such "endearing name-treasure," there is always the good old standby as a solution. . . to have these young children call you "Aunt Dorothy."

Women's Institute

WALLBRIDGE W.I.

WALLBRIDGE — The regular meeting of the Wallbridge Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. K. Phillips with 16 members present. Mrs. H. Phillips opened the meeting. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were given and business arising from the minutes of the last meeting was discussed.

Mrs. Clarence Woods was elected 4-H Club leader for the coming club year with Mrs. Ray Shorey as assistant. A large membership is expected and the mothers are being asked to cooperate and help with the meetings.

"Thank you" letters for cards received were read from Mr. F. Harris, Mrs. F. Tucker and Miss Kiernan. Mrs. L. Ketcheson was in charge of the topic, "How Our Women's Institute Helps the Home and Community." This was in the form of a "buzz" session and suggestions were given of some things the Institute could sponsor to help the community.

After the meeting closed the hostess and committee served refreshments and a social half hour enjoyed by all.

Believed Tito Has Failed in Soviet Mission

BELGRADE (AP) — Yugoslavia's President Tito is reported to have failed to convince his Russian hosts at Yalta that they should not extend their de-Stalinization program.

Informed sources say the Soviet-Yugoslav talks in the Crimea have reached an impasse over Tito's reported insistence that the loosening of Moscow's controls continue, as a condition for reviving Belgrade's ties with Yugoslavia's satellite neighbors.

These informants say Tito's campaign for independence of the satellite Communist parties from the Kremlin's direction has run into opposition from the Soviet party chief, Nikita Khrushchev, himself.

Khrushchev is reported to have cooled on the so-called liberal policy introduced following the Moscow Communist party congress last February and Tito's visit to the Soviet Union in June.

The report is based on growing belief that Khrushchev's power in the Kremlin has waned, and that he has been forced to swing toward the viewpoint of former foreign minister V. M. Molotov and other old-line Stalinists in the Soviet hierarchy.

Molotov, Deputy Premier Lazar Kaganovich and other old guard members are said to feel Khrushchev's softer policy weakened the Soviet position in eastern Europe.

Few here believe Khrushchev has undergone any change of heart, but he apparently shares his Kremlin associates' alarm as to where a policy of more independence for the satellites might lead.

Diplomats here believe Khrushchev wanted to explain this to Tito when he made his surprise visit to Yugoslavia recently. But after seven days of Yalta talks, Tito was reported standing fast by his insistence on full independence for the satellite Communist parties; equal rights for all Communist parties, and non-adherence to any "Socialist camp" which might resemble a bloc.

Puny Offer Made For Home, Farm Says Owner

IROQUOIS (CP) — A wooden marker on the outskirts of this new community, relocated from the path of the St. Lawrence seaway project, reads: "Died in infancy—Hydro's promise of fair treatment."

The marker, says R. C. Martin, locates the last resting place of his shattered faith in the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

He says his 120-acre farm and stone home have been expropriated by the commission and he has received no payment. Commission officials have made "puny" offers, he said, but he is "too ashamed to tell how much."

SPOILED PASTURE

Mr. Martin said the commission dumped soil on some of his expropriated pasture land in June, 1955.

"I no longer could use the land for pasture so I was forced to sell my cattle and equipment at one-third of the cost."

Later a commission appraiser arrived after the farm was in weeds and most of the buildings were gone.

"Neither he nor I could figure out how he was going to appraise buildings Hydro had already sold and I haven't heard from him since."

RAPISTS GO TO CHAIR

Israeli Train Engineer Hit In Leg by Bullet

JERUSALEM (AP)—Israeli officials said the crowded Haifa-Jerusalem passenger train was attacked Wednesday night by rifle and machine-gun fire from across the Jordan border. The train engineer was the only casualty.

The wounded man, hit in the leg by a ricocheting bullet, put on full speed and piloted the train for another six miles, until it reached Lydda.

The incident occurred in the Israeli coastal plain about 35 miles south of Haifa. Persons aboard gave this account:

Two rifle bullets first hit the train and machine-gun bursts followed, "all from the Jordan side of the border." The train conductor raced through the coaches, ordering the passengers to get down on the floor. There was no panic.

Security forces aboard the train returned the fire.

"When the danger was over the passengers got up again and began to sing," witnesses reported.

Private Stations Do Not Want CBC Service Choked

OTTAWA (CP)—Private broadcasters say they want to cut down the control powers of the CBC but not throttle its national radio-TV service.

Their spokesman told the royal commission on broadcasting Wednesday that they do not want the CBC eliminated from competition but want to be on an even basis with the government agency under an independent regulatory board.

At present, the CBC board of governors makes regulations both for CBC operations and for private stations.

Gordon Henderson, counsel for the private stations' Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters, said the existing setup contains a "built-in bias in favor of the CBC."

Under questioning by commission personnel, he and CARTB counsel H. W. Batey said the association's proposals in connection with a new regulatory board would not hinder the CBC in its government-assigned function of providing a "national broadcast service."

The CARTB lawyers ran into stiff questioning.

Children Provide High Spot in Massey's Visit

MOOSONEE, Ont. (CP)—Children provided the high spots in Governor-General Massey's tour Wednesday in Northern Ontario.

One little Cree Indian boy solemnly informed the governor-general that his title is "Ka Tepenitak," in the language of the Cree tribes scattered across the northern part of the province.

The boy was one of 30 patients at a Roman Catholic hospital visited by Mr. Massey, travelling on his 100th official trip since becoming governor-general.

Lining the steps to the hospital, in this community just south of James Bay, were smiling Indian boys and girls, dressed in white dresses and red caps. Shy at first, the children sang a special welcome song, conducted by their teachers, the Grey Nuns of the Cross.

Inside the hospital the governor-general was greeted by Rt. Rev. Henri Belleau, Roman Catholic Bishop of James Bay, while the tiny patients bounced in their cribs and shouted "oots, oots", the Cree word for father.

Earlier, he was driven on a rain-soaked tour of the settlement, built in 1928 as the northernmost point served by the Ontario Northland Railway.

Today it has become a centre of supply operations for the Mid-Canada radar warning line.

The governor-general rode past stockpiled equipment and aviation gasoline and ranks of stacked sleighs used in the supply trains which crawl across the frozen muskeg. He visited the little white Anglican mission church served by Rev. L. Beck and Rev. John Long.

At three points on the 185-mile trip north to Moosonee the train made hastily-scheduled stops to be met by crowds of school children. The governor-general asked that they be given a holiday, the Queen's holiday, he told them.

Today the governor-general has one of the few free days on his itinerary before leaving Friday morning by canoe for a short river trip to Moose Factory.

DAM FOR PAKISTAN

A giant $50,000,000 dam to harness the waters of the Kabul River is being built near Warsak in northwestern Pakistan. It will produce 250,000 horsepower by hydro-electric energy and irrigate 100,000 acres in Northwest Peshawar province. An outline of the proposed dam is at lower right. The proposed power tunnel (at right) will carry water to the power house (top centre.) An outline of the diversion tunnel to by-pass the river during construction of the dam is at left. General contractor for the dam is Angus Robertson Ltd., of Montreal. Canada is assisting in the project under the Colombo Plan. (CP Photo).

CANADIAN HELP

Phil Morgan (right) is project manager of the $50,000,000 dam being built at Warsak in northwestern Pakistan with Canadian help under the Colombo Plan. Canadian construction experts and their families are working and living beside fierce tribesmen near Pakistan's historic Khyber Pass on the Afghan border. Canadian contributions over the years totalling about $25,000,000 will be 220 feet high and 730 feet wide. The Canadian Parliament so far has approved $18,400,000 for the project.

At 1,700-foot-long tunnel 35 feet wide must first be built to divert the river while the dam is being built. It is under construction now.

Many of the 2,500 Pakistani laborers, some wearing old-style flowing robes, on the project are being taught carpentry and how to operate trucks and other big Canadian machinery never seen before by the natives.

Shah Nawaz, the Pakistani director of design and operation, received four months' training with a British Columbia firm before taking over.

Mr. Cavell attributes the similarity in religion of the local tribes and the Pakistani people with the success of the Pakistani government in turning the tribesmen into useful citizens.

The native workers are good Mohammedans. When prayer time comes they drop everything and in the midst of modern machinery and tools bow towards mecca.

GRAIN FILLS RIVER

CHICAGO (AP) — Fifty thousand bushels of wheat, valued at more than $100,000 at the current market price, spilled into the Calumet River Monday when a section of a storage bin at a new grain elevator. A spokesman for the Glidden Company, owner of the elevator, said an attempt probably will be made to remove the wheat from the river by dredging. However, the grain is expected to have little value.

A complete village has been built on the plains, 18 miles from the city of Peshawar. There Canadian families are settled in for a life that in many ways resembles their way of life at home.

Dr. Donald Good of Hamilton takes care of their medical needs in a 25-bed hospital manned by Canadians like pretty blonde nurse Ann Tyler of Campbellton, N.B.

Mrs. Betty - Jean Graham of Hamilton is a typical Canadian housewife in the Warsak townsite, about four miles from the hydro-electric project. She and her four children live in a modern home with her husband, an Angus Robertson Ltd. expediter.

The Montreal firm has 95 employees on the project, five of them women. The other Canadian firm, H. G. Acres Ltd. of Niagara Falls, Ont., has 13 Canadians there.

The townsite, built by the Pakistani government as part of its contribution to the project, houses 180 Canadians who will be there from three to four years. They will be joined by as many more Canadian workers.

It was a dusty and drab spot but garden plots now are flourishing and eventually the whole area will be made fertile.

The dam, estimated cost of which will be $50,000,000 with

Political Reporters Survey Sentiment in Key States

(This is the first of a series of election campaign snapshots by AP political reporters who are surveying sentiment in key states across the U.S.)

CALIFORNIA

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — An aggressive, well - organized Democratic campaign is forcing Republicans to get out and hustle to maintain President Eisenhower's edge in California.

A statewide tour showed grass roots signs that, for a variety of reasons, Eisenhower has lost ground here. He's in solid with Republicans. But, what matters, he appears less popular with the state's all - important majority Democrats.

Democratic officials, united behind a ticket they consider made-to-order for California, are highly optimistic.

Democrats are hopeful of gaining two seats in the House of Representatives, where the state's line-up now is 19 Republicans to 11 Democrats. And the state legislature, traditionally Republican, is closer to going Democratic than at any time in the present century.

Is the Eisenhower - Stevenson race, Republicans recognize the Nov. 6 outcome—good for 32 electoral votes—is likely to be closer than Ike's runaway victory in 1952. Eisenhower returned California to the Republican column after it went to Franklin D. Roosevelt four times and to Harry Truman in 1948.

TEXAS

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Drive east along U.S. Highway 80, and you soon run into what Texans call brass collar Democrats. They are the ones who, no matter what, vote the straight Democratic ticket.

This is the year when the brass collar boys in these parts say "I told you so" to those who four years ago left the Democratic party and gave Texas' 24 electoral votes to Dwight D. Eisenhower.

For a mammoth drought has turned the grass bright yellow, as if the ground were covered with newly-threshed straw. Trees are dying. The good black earth appears to be as hard as concrete. Obviously it wouldn't have rained any more if Adlai Stevenson had carried Texas in 1952. But in times of discontent, it's convenient to blame the party in power.

Anyone touring this state, listening to what the ordinary voters say about Eisenhower's chances of keeping Texas away from Stevenson again in the presidential election Nov. 6, will find this a good spot to begin.

For it illustrates some of the problems the Republicans are up against in a state that only twice in history has given its support to a Republican presidential candidate. The other time was in 1928, when Texas balked at Alfred E. Smith and gave its votes to Herbert Hoover.

PENNSYLVANIA

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — It looks close in Pennsylvania.

If the elections were held tomorrow, President Eisenhower probably would win in his adopted home state. The prevailing opinion there is that he has a slim lead over Adlai Stevenson — at this stage of the presidential race.

But election day is still weeks away.

Most of the people who liked the before say they still do and intend to vote for him. But nobody was found planning to switch his vote to Eisenhower, after having voted for Stevenson in 1952. The only switches encountered, a handful, are from the president to his rival.

No issue seems to have gripped the voters. No farm "revolt" has developed in Pennsylvania. Only one person, a woman, mentioned foreign policy. Small businessmen advanced no searing criticism of administration policy as it affects them. In short, nobody seems riled up about anything.

MIDGET MOM HAS BABE

TURIN, Italy (AP)—Mrs. Maria Spada, a midget weighing 38½ pounds gave birth Tuesday to a 5½-pound son. The mother's height is 33 inches. Her husband, who appears with her in a side show, is two inches shorter. Doctors said the baby "should be as tall as his parents by his fifth birthday."

Canadian Building Experts And Families Living Beside Fierce Khyber Pass Tribesmen

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian construction experts and their families are working and living beside fierce tribesmen near Pakistan's historic Khyber Pass on the Afghan border.

The tribesmen have settled down along the shore of the Kabul River to work with Canadians in making a dream come true.

They're building a giant dam harnessing the waters of the Kabul to produce 250,000 horsepower of hydro-electric energy and irrigate 100,000 acres in the Peshawar area of the northwest frontier province.

"It will help give economic stability to the foraging tribesmen," says Nik Cavell, who fought in the area with the Indian army at the age of 19 and was later stationed there as a diplomatic officer.

An officer of the federal trade department and director of Canada's Colombo Plan activities since the plan's inception six years ago, he knows the necessity of the Warsak project.

"The main problem of the northwest frontier is one of economy," he said in an interview here.

"Tribesmen, dependent for food on the rains which rarely came, foraged and raided each other to stay alive."

The dam, part of Canada's contribution to the Colombo Plan, will give the area a steady and certain flow of water for irrigation.

Hydro power will be produced for factories which will employ

Sunny Weather Helps Harvest

TORONTO (CP) — Fine, sunny weather has given farmers throughout Ontario a chance to get their grain harvested and threshed, the agriculture department announced today in its weekly crop report.

Western, southern and eastern Ontario report 90 per cent of the grain crop harvested with fall and winter wheat seeding well under way.

Northern Ontario, where a large part of the grain crop was destroyed by rain and early frost, reports that farmers are using every available piece of equipment to salvage the remainder. Cattle and sheep sales have started. Prices are good. Some potatoes have been harvested and the yield is good.

Rylstone

RYLSTONE — The Women's Association of Rylstone United Church will hold its annual autumn tea in the church on the afternoon of October 12. One of the women's organizations of surrounding churches have been invited, and Mrs. (Rev.) E. A. Toombes, of Happiness House, on the town line, will be the guest speaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Spencer were "at home" to their sons and daughters and their families last Friday evening, when they entertained at a dinner in honor of their 28th wedding anniversary. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Clarence (Dorothy) Thomson, Mr. Tommie, Kathy and Valerie; Mr. and Mrs. Bob Spencer, Lynn and Randy; Mr. and Mrs. John D. Spencer and Johnny Ray; Mr. and Mrs. Doug Doober (Margaret) and Deborah, all of Campbellford, and Fred, Patsy and Sherry at home. Best wishes are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Spencer on their anniversary. Little Suzanne Spencer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Spencer was visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Clara Lisle at Stanwood, and was the only one of the family absent.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Bronson of Bancroft, were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. McKeown and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Spencer, Fred, Patsy and Sherry and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Spencer and family attended the laying of the corner stone at the new St. Stephen's United Church at Hoard's Station on Sunday afternoon. Mr. Spencer is the designer and building contractor of the new church.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Anderson and Beth were Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Geordie Sutherland and family near Stirling.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Reid and little daughter of Trenton, and Mrs. Albert Reid and son Grant of Springbrook, were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Reid, Ferne and David.

Callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Malkinson on Sunday were: Mr. and Mrs. Will Rutherford, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Spencer and family and Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Jones.

Those from Rylstone United Church W.A. who attended the Thanksgiving Tea in Springbrook Orange hall on Friday afternoon as guests of Springbrook Women's Association were Mrs. John Stewart, Mrs. Lily Anderson, Mrs. Ray Stewart, Mrs. Will Rutherford and Mrs. Ellis Jones. Mrs. Jones contributed a reading as Rylstone's part in the program.

Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Maikle-John called on her mother, Mrs. Scott, who is ill, in Marmora on Sunday afternoon.

Most of the residents of Rylstone community took advantage of the nice day to attend the 100th agricultural fair at Campbellford on Wednesday. Exhibits were of the best as were the horse races, and the showing of the cattle and horses and other farm stock. One of the local ladies, Mrs. Ernest Irwin was successful in winning a prize in the "Buck-Saw" contest. Costumes that were in style 100 years ago were much in evidence around the fair grounds. The Memorial Gates, built by Harold Spencer, formerly of Rylstone for the Centennial Fair, were not quite finished, but promise to be a beautiful and fitting memorial to the founders of Campbellford Agricultural Fair.

The fall threshing is finally finished around here. It was difficult to get a chance between showers for the last few jobs. In fact some of the grain had to be literally uprooted for threshing, as it had sprouted and started to grow in the sheaves.

Rylstone Women's Institute will hold its October meeting at the home of Mrs. Ernest Irwin on Thursday afternoon, October 4th. Mrs. Carl Clancy of Wellman's Corners will be the guest speaker, and Mrs. Kenneth Oddie of Burnbrae, will give a demonstration on "Aluminum Etching."

Harry Daubney of Springbrook, and Don Heath, Rylstone, were among those chosen to go to Kingston one day this week for coaching for judging class.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Roblin and Mr. and Mrs. Carmen Roblin, all of Toronto, also Mr. and Mrs. John Roblin, of Whitby, spent a day recently with their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart and family.

Mrs. Stella Gibson and daughter Blanche of Campbellford, spent Sunday with her daughters, Mrs. Ralph Heath and Mrs. Walter Reid and their friends.

HUNGARIANS ON WAY

LONDON (Reuters)—A delegation from the Hungarian foreign trade ministry left Budapest Monday for Canada to discuss extension of trade between the two countries, the Hungarian news agency MTI said.

Carmel

CARMEL—Mrs. J. Chatten returned home Saturday from Kingston General Hospital.

Sorry to report Mrs. M. Jones had the misfortune to fall and fracture her hip and is now a patient in Belleville Hospital. Her many friends wish her speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Patterson attended the evening service at Cannifton on Sunday.

Mrs. H. Dafoe attended anniversary services at Fuller on Sunday and visited with relatives.

Sunday afternoon callers of Mr. and Mrs. M. Ross and Glenn were the Rev. and Mrs. R. McCrea and Kathy, Mr. and Mrs. M. Parks and Mr. and Mrs. DeMille and David.

Miss M. Jones was a Sunday dinner guest of Mrs. R. Empson, Belleville.

Seaway Worker Sues His Union Over Dismissal

OTTAWA (CP) — Melvin Andrew Rowatt, 26-year-old St. Lawrence seaway worker, has issued a writ to sue his union for more than $14,000, charging it got him fired from his job for a period of nine months.

The writ, claiming $4,050 in lost wages and $10,000 in punitive damages "resulting from undue interference in his employment," is expected to be served immediately on officers of the International Union of Operating Engineers, Local 793, in Toronto.

Rowatt, a power-shovel operator, claims he was pulled off his job in May 1955 at the request of the union. He was unable to get any explanation from the union other than that his actions had been "detrimental" to it.

Previously, he said, he had protested that the contract between the union and Ontario Hydro was illegal because it had been signed without the knowledge and approval of the union's general membership.

Rowatt returned to his job in February and said he was advised that the union had "decided to proceed no further against you."

Stevenson Says Eisenhower Guilty of 'Misrepresentations'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic and Republican campaigners got rough Wednesday night, with Adlai Stevenson accusing President Eisenhower of "misrepresentations" and Vice-President Nixon accusing the Democratic presidential candidate of statements "terribly damaging to America's interests abroad."

Stevenson spoke from Pittsburgh in a nationally televised replay to Eisenhower's campaign speeches earlier this week.

Nixon was in Philadelphia, where he struck anew at Stevenson's proposal that the United States lead in a move to end hydrogen bomb tests.

Pennsylvania, with its 32 electoral votes, is a major battleground in the struggle for control of the White House and Congress after the Nov. 6 general election.

Eisenhower will make his next major campaign speech from Pittsburgh Tuesday.

PRESIDENT UNDER FIRE

Stevenson told his TV audience that Eisenhower had been guilty of "gross misstatement" of the record on such domestic matters as social security, the minimum wage, relief of unemployment in distressed areas, the cost of living, farm prices, small business and civil rights.

At one point, the Democratic nominee departed from his prepared text to chide Eisenhower for saying some Democrats are talking "shotgun attacks" on Eisenhower's policies which were hurting the U.S. abroad.

"I think it's too bad," Stevenson said, "that any criticism of the administration, any disagreement with its policies—or lack of policies—is dismissed as some form of moral delinquency or wickedness."

Stevenson planned to move briefly into West Virginia today before turning northward again to speak at three street rallies in the New York City area.

RAPS H-BOMB PROPOSAL

Nixon's biting attack on Stevenson in Philadelphia wound up a 15,000-mile cross-continent tour by the vice president.

Referring to Stevenson's repeated suggestion that H-bomb tests be halted, Nixon called this "catastrophic nonsense."

Nixon said Stevenson was making "ridiculous nonsense."

Referring to Stevenson's repeated suggestion that H-bomb tests be halted, Nixon called this "catastrophic nonsense."

Nixon said Stevenson was making "shotgun attacks" on Eisenhower's policies which were hurting the U.S. abroad.

The vice-president was back in Washington today for five days of rest and conferences with party leaders and Eisenhower.

Tonight he is scheduled to go before the television cameras in what the Republican national committee claims is "another first." He will be questioned by political writers from eight cities he visited in his fast-completed trip.

Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, Nixon's opposite number on the Democratic ticket, today turned his efforts to winning votes in California after a brief rest.

In a speech prepared for a rally in the Los Angeles garment district, Kefauver said Nixon has "a consistent anti-labor voting record."

Former governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York said in a TV-radio speech that he was "outraged" by what he called "disgraceful attacks" by Stevenson on Eisenhower. Dewey referred to Stevenson as "ill-informed, impulsive" and "mediocre."

Wind Breaks Limb, Causes Blackout

RAWDON — On Sunday evening at approximately 8.30 p.m. the heavy wind snapped a large limb from a maple tree along the Tyrin line road between Carmel and Sidney townships near the Ed Fryer property. The limb in its crash broke a hydro wire and plunged the Carmel area in darkness. Very soon the dry grass and the limb were all ablaze.

The Hydro repair crew was almost an hour repairing the damage and clearing the wreckage. The fire had burned a crossarm by the time the crew arrived.

Carmel United Church was in darkness except for a gas lantern and the anniversary guests took their seats in the pews in semi-darkness. By 8.15 p.m. the lights were flashed on and the service was carried out as planned.

It was fortunate that the live wire fell along the side of the road instead of across the road-as it would have hindered motor travel and the guests from other points would have been forced to return home.

The Carmel folk expressed thanks to the guests for their patience in these unforeseen circumstances, and they were also thankful to Hydro men who repaired the break in record time.

RAWDON

Carmel United Church Marks Anniversary

RAWDON. — Carmel United church in Rawdon township was resplendent with large bouquets of asters, dahlias and other blooms for their 81st anniversary last Sunday.

Mrs. Arthur Pyear officiated at the piano and the choir rendered two anthems "Sing to the Great Jehovah," and "Let Jesus Come Into Your Heart."

Mr. Douglas Pyear contributed a vocal solo.

The service was conducted by the Rev. H. A. Kent, M.A., D.D., L.L.D., of Queen's University, Kingston, who brought an inspirational anniversary message.

The service opened with "New Zyerv Morning is the Love". The congregation joined in one of Charles Wesley's hymns of praise and the service closed on the theme "The Church's One Foundation."

The evening service opened with a sing-song of old favorite hymns as the audience awaited in the partially lighted room for the buffet supper break to be repaired.

At 8:15 p.m. the Rev. W. K. Pace B.A. of Tweed, opened with a "Hymn of Thanksgiving". The Carmel choir rendered two anthems "Praise Ye the Father," and "Bless Ye the Lord". Mrs. W. K. Pace, Tweed, rendered a vocal selection. The congregational hymns were "O God of Bethel," and "How Sweet the Name of Jesus."

Mr. Pace based his anniversary message on the theme "Why do People Go to Church?". In Hebrews 10:23-25 it reads in part "Let us hold fast the profession of our faith, without wavering, and let us provoke unto love and to good works; not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together".

The speaker gave three excellent reasons for church attendance regularly: The need to worship God; the need to atone for sin and the need to receive spiritual power and strength to carry on the daily tasks. He stressed the Bible text, "Whatsoever ye soweth that shall ye also reap," and gave a vivid description of God's grace being sufficient for any need.

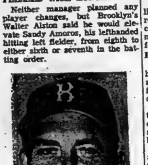
Sal Maglie 'Shaved' Yankees With Slashing Curve To Win First Game 6-3

Newcombe and Larsen Will Be Opposing Hurlers in 2nd Game; Yankees Still Favored

By JOE REICHLER

BROOKLYN (AP) — Brooklyn's Don Newcombe and New York's Don Larsen, a pair of non-winning world series righthanders, face each other in the second game today as the underdog Dodgers seek to make it two in a row over the Yankees at Ebbets Field.



Although beaten 6-3 in Wednesday's opener by the incredible Sal Maglie, the Yankees still remained a 6-5 favorite to win the series although for today's game it was 11-10 take your pick. Only once before had the Dodgers won the first game of a world series. That was in 1953. The Yankees rebounded to win that one in five games.

Baseball's biggest winner this year (27-7), the 30-year-old Newcombe has started three series games and lost them all, two in 1949 and one in 1953. All were to the Yankees.

Larsen (11-8) lost his only world series appearance. He started and lost the fourth game to the Dodgers last year, giving up five hits and five runs in four innings. Big Don was the hottest Yankee pitcher during September, pitching leaf-fall games his last four starts.

PLEASED WITH HODGES

GIL HODGES
Broke Ford's heart

Alston, pleased with the way Gil Hodges had been hitting in recent weeks, said the first baseman would continue in fifth spot with Carl Furillo batting either ahead or behind Amoros. Roy Campanella will be dropped from seventh to eighth. Hodges' three-run home run in the third inning provided Maglie with the margin of victory after Jackie Robinson had put the Brooks started with a home run off loser Whitey Ford the previous inning.

Furillo also distinguished himself with a run-making double in the second to tie the score after the Yankees had staked Ford to a 2-0 lead in the opening inning on Enos Slaughter's single followed by Mickey Mantle's terrific shot over the right field screen.

Campanella and Amoros collaborated to produce the Dodgers with their final run. Roy greeted righthander Johnny Kucks, second of three relief pitchers, with a long double and crossed the plate on Amoros' line single to center.

MAGLIE THE MAGNIFICENT

There were heroes galore for the Dodgers but the biggest of all was Maglie, the 39-year-old mound master with the old head and the young arm. He capped his sensational comeback before 34,479 cheering spectators, including President Eisenhower, with a courageous performance as he completed one of the greatest triple-deckers in the annals of baseball.

In his three most recent starts Maglie the Magnificent pitched, in order, the first no-hitter of his career, hurled the Dodgers into first place a day before the season ended, and won his first world series victory after two previous failures as a Yankee and Giant. The only thing left for him is to pitch the Dodgers into a world championship.

SAL MAGLIE
Kept bombers in check

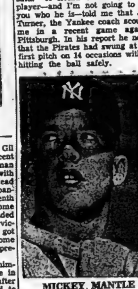
Maglie may have a chance to do that, too. The former Dodger nemesis, although admittedly tired and "all knotted up" around the region of his right shoulder, said he thought he could pitch again Sunday, in the fifth game of the series, and added jokingly: "If it goes that far."



Alston, who has called on Maglie to pitch with only three days' rest in his last four starts, declined to name Sal's next assignment. "We'll have to see how he feels," he said.

HAD INSIDE DATA

Sal attributed a large part of his nine-hit triumph to a Yankee scouting report on him that backfired on the American League champions.

When it was pointed out to him that 21 Yankee hitters had taken called first strikes, he allowed a slow smile to crease his swarthy, blue-bearded face.

"Let me tell you a secret," he said. "A friend of mine, a ball player—and I'm not going to tell you who he is—told me that Jim Turner, the Yankee coach scouted me in a recent game against Pittsburgh. In his report he noted that the Pirates had swung at my first pitch on 14 occasions without hitting the ball safely.

MICKEY MANTLE
Hits 2-run homer

"I figured," Sal continued, "they would be taking the first one and I decided to try to get it over the plate. I guess I figured right."

Only three Yankees swung at Maglie's first pitch. Billy Martin hit it for a home run, in the fourth inning, to account for the final Yankee run. Sal did not permit another Yankee runner to reach third base although the Yankees threatened in every inning thereafter, leaving six runners on base and left five innings. He fanned 10 batters, topping his season high, and in the ninth he drew a final measure of revenge on Mantle. With Enos Slaughter on first with his single Maglie induced Mantle to slam into a game-ending double play.

ON ROPES IN FIFTH

Sal was within one pitch of being removed in the fifth. With two Yankees on base in that inning and only one out, he got Yogi Berra to swing at an outside 3-2 pitch and send a harmless fly to Amoros. Bill Skowron followed suit to end the threat.

Maglie had contemplated taking Maglie out as Berra stepped up to the plate but decided against it after talking with Sal. A walk to Berra would have brought on Al Lakie.

Maglie acknowledged he was "sluggish" at that point but a fast rubdown plus the appliance of some "hot stuff" by club trainer Harold (Doc) Wendler during the Dodgers' half of the fifth, apparently restored life to the Barbers's arm.

JACKIE ROBINSON
The old "pro"

The Dodgers won all three games played in Brooklyn's ancient park last year when they upset the favored Yankees in the series. Should the series go the limit of seven games, it means three more must be played there. That makes it all the more of a mystery why the Yankees, cellar-dwellers already, should still be regarded as favorites in this series.

Canada Enters Soccer Tourney

TORONTO (CP)—Canada's first entry into the world soccer tournament will play the United States in Melbourne Nov. May, June and July as part of the North American zone finals.

The winner of the zone finals will meet the South American champions in Vigh to compete in the finals in Sweden in 1958.

George Anderson of Winnipeg, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Soccer Football Association, said the Canadian team will be chosen in the spring.

Mantle Appeared To Be Favoring Groin Injury

BROOKLYN (AP) — "Aw, I'm all right. Nothing's bothering me. I can run as fast as ever."

Such is the insistence of Mickey Mantle but baseball fans wondering today whether the New York Yankees' home run king may not be waging another struggle with the "injury jinx."

Mickey poked a first inning home run Wednesday but he didn't look like the real Mickey Mantle. He appeared to be favoring a groin injury both in the field and on the base paths.

On two high fly balls—Gil Hodges' in the second and Duke Snider's in the third — Mantle failed to get the jump and let them both fall safely in front of him.

"I was playing back too far, that's all," he said. "I was running as fast as ever. I couldn't get to them."

Mantle suffered a groin injury at Boston Sept. 23 when he hit the first of his 52 home runs this year.

Maglie, 39-Year-Old Castoff, Cost Brooklyn Dodgers $1,000

By WILL GRIMSLEY

BROOKLYN (AP)—Sal Maglie cost Brooklyn Dodgers $1,000—not $10,000, the waiver price—in baseball's bargain basement. Today you couldn't get him for $100,000.

The swarthy, 39-year-old castoff, waived out of both major leagues and considered "washed up," pitched the Dodgers to the National League pennant with a great stretch performance and on Wednesday sent them off to the lead in the world series by taming New York Yankees power, 6-3.

On May 15 this year, Buzzy Bavasi, vice - president of the Dodgers, called Walt Alston, the manager.

"Say, skip," said Bavasi, "if I got a chance to get Maglie cheap would you want him?"

Alston considered a moment and then replied: "Sure. I saw him a couple of weeks ago in our home city, San Francisco. Flaherty said the decision was made after consultation with Portland physicians.

"He's pretty fast, which started as a 15-year-old preliminary boy in Hawaii, reached its peak at Oct. 21 when he was relieved out a decision over Randy Turpin of England to win the world title.

Olson defended his championship successfully three times and won seven other fights before challenging light - heavyweight king Archie Moore in June, 1955. Moore knocked out Olson in the third round, and he has been on the downgrade since.

"He's pretty good."

Maglie's stint in the Niagara Falls, N.Y., who in his early days as a player had refused to play Niagara District Senior League, had started his pro career in 1936 with Buffalo. He came to the Giants in 1943 for $3,200, later jumped to the Mexican League and then played for Drummondville in the Quebec Provincial League before returning to the Giants in 1950 under Commissioner Happy Chandler's amnesty edict.

Maglie's stint in the NiaARA League was in 1943-45. One of his last appearances for Welland was in an exhibition game against Baltimore Ellie Giants, a Negro team. Roy Campanella, who later caught Maglie Wednesday, was the opposing catcher in that game.

After a brilliant career with New York Giants—particularly as the nemesis of the Dodgers, whom he beat 23 times—he was discarded in mid-1955 as an expensive luxury. Waived out of the National League, he was bought by Cleveland just to spite the Yankees.

With Cleveland he was a costly luxury too, earning $29,000 in relief in the bench. From July 31, 1955, he didn't win a game for the Indians while losing eight.

GREENBERG GIVES UP

In early May Hank Greenberg, general manager of the Indians, called Walter O'Malley, president of the Dodgers. "This Maglie is no use to us, but he might help you." Greenberg said.

So waivers were asked again on Maglie and he wound up in a Brooklyn uniform. The waiver price is $10,000. But insiders say the Dodgers paid Cleveland only $1,000 and offered to forget a small minor league deal with Cleveland amounting to another $1,000.

Brooklyn was taking only a mild gamble. The plan was to use him for a month, find out if he was of any value and, if not, discharge him. This would entail loss of only one month's salary out of an annual salary of $25,000.

He started against the Phillies May 30 and went six innings. He won his first game June 4, beating Milwaukee.

SEVEN IN MONTH

"We never doubted after that," said Alston, "that we won games in the last month of the season—our stretch drive. He won 13 games, but last night he may have been 18."

Maglie is a six-foot-two 185-pounder with dark sideburns and flashing black eyes inherited from his Italian parents.

They call him "the Barber"—a sinister name often given to numerous connotations. Leo Durocher, onetime Giant manager, probably started it with the name "Barber of Seville."

Later players gave him to a barber with a long-bladed razor in his hand, cutting hairs away from the plate with whisker-clipping fast balls and curves.

Carl Bobo Olson Hanging Up Gloves for Good

Retirement of the former middleweight boxing champion was announced by his manager, Sid Flaherty, on the eve of his scheduled 10-round main event bout with Sammy Walker here tonight.

"His reflexes are too slow and he hasn't felt like his old self," Flaherty said of the once tireless-punching, durable Olson, who is 28.

The manager said he would try to establish Olson in business in their home city, San Francisco. Flaherty said the decision was made after consultation with Portland physicians.

Olson's career, which started as a 15-year-old preliminary boy in Hawaii, reached its peak Oct. 21, 1953, when he relieved out a decision over Randy Turpin of England to win the world title.

Olson defended his championship successfully three times and won seven other fights before challenging light - heavyweight king Archie Moore in June, 1955. Moore knocked out Olson in the third round, and he has been on the downgrade since.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

BROOKLYN, N.Y. — Don't believe the Yankee idea that Sal Maglie's pennant-winning effort was a flash-pan. The Cinderella man gave a command performance before royalty and the United States top brass on a sun-drenched Ebbets Field as the roars of the battlefield rocketed through the stands.

"The Barber," spotting the foemen two runs off Mickey Mantle's king-size homer in the first, settled down to clip the Clippers 6-3 in a hard-to-get victory.

From a seat high in the supreme press box behind home plate, I saw one of the most colorful baseball panoramas I have ever witnessed.

"There was thrill after thrill for the American fans with the Flatbush faithful's cup overflowing. The biggest thrill was the appearance and departure of President Eisenhower's Cadillac cavalcade.

With "Ike" were members of his executive. The Duke of Windsor watched the game from a box seat.

There was a United Nations touch in the press box with sportswriters here from Canada, Haiti, Japan, Venezuela, Brazil, Mexico, Alaska, Honduras and, as the announcer said, from Jersey City.

There were thrills, too, in the mammoth blasts from the bludgeons of Mantle, Jackie Robinson, Gil Hodges and Bill Martin. Junior Gilliam's spectacular spear of Skowron's sizzling line drive high over second had cheers rippling in the stands.

But the hero of the game was Cinderella Maglie. The dark-skinned Giant east-off won his game in the clutches in his first World Series victory. He struck out Bauer, Mantle and McDougal among his ten victims.

The Brooklyn bludgeons went to work early on Whitey Ford, the Yankee ace. They iced off with a home run, triple and single in the second, added three more in the third that sent Ford to the showers. They scored all six runs in the first three innings. Then the Barber shut off the Bronx clippers and hurled his way to a well-deserved victory.'

There are plenty of Canadians here. We flew from Toronto with Jack Yanover, while Bill Hurst is bedded down at the Knickerbocker Hotel.

Ronnie Knox Inks Contract With Calgary Stamps

CALGARY (CP)—Ronnie Knox, the glamour boy of football, Wednesday inked a contract with the Stampeders.

The former UCLA quarterback, who angrily left the Hamilton Tiger-Cats last week, agreed to join the last-place Calgary club of the Western Interprovincial Football Union. Present at the signing of the contract was club president M. A. (Red) Dutton, general manager Bob Masterson and Ronnie's controversial stepfather - manager, Harvey.

Details of the contract were not released.

Masterson waxed enthusiastic about Knox's ability.

Coach Otis Douglas plans to dress Knox for the Saturday contest with B.C. here at Vancouver and for Monday's game here against the powerful Edmonton Eskimos.

Masterson stressed the 21-year-old player's stepfather "has nothing to do with the coaching or management of the team. Like any other player's father, he will be perfectly free to make any comments he wishes about the club. I think the father will be glad—he's quite happy about the ability shown by Douglas and assistant coach Thompson."

Loss by Argos to Ti-Cats Will Drop Team to Cellar

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts, faced with the stark fact that a loss to Hamilton Tiger-Cats in their Big Four football game Saturday will drop them into last place, are nursing bad injuries to several key players.

The injuries have been responding to treatment in most cases but coach Bill Swiacki isn't sure yet how many of his patched-up brigade will be ready.

Linebacker Alex Poston, guard Francis Maldaver and end Bucky Curtis were banged up the worst last Saturday. Poston and Maldaver suffered knee injuries and Curtis a severe ankle sprain.

The others injured were quarterback Annis Stukus, end Al Pfeifer, halfback Bill McFarlane and guard Mike Falls. Pfeifer's three received leg injuries. It is believed the injuries suffered by Falls in the last few games led to his decision this week to return to the University of Minnesota for a master's degree.

FRAINES CURCILLO

The Tiger-Cats used six new men in losing to Montreal Alouettes 44-34 last Saturday and Hamilton coach Jim Trimble admits he was surprised they did so well after losing 26-14 to the Als the previous week. He said he was pleased with the showing of quarterback Tony Curcillo after only three days' practice following his arrival from Chicago cardinals.

However, he denied rumors that first - string quarterback Nobby Wirkowski will be retired to become a scout.

"I'm not going to cut Wirkowski," Trimble said. "I need both quarterbacks. After all, he threw three touchdown passes against Montreal."

AUCTION PLANNED

WATERLOO (CP)—Police, their station resembling a pawnshop more than a jail, have decided to hold an auction. In five years of accumulating lost and seized articles they have everything from a bassinet to swimming fins.

Football Fans Line Up for Tickets Monday

OTTAWA (CP) — Lansdowne Park, home of the Ottawa Rough Riders, appears headed for its third attendance record of the season this Saturday when the resurgent Riders meet the league-leading Montreal Alouettes.

Football fans began lining up Monday for tickets to see second-place Ottawa battle for its fourth straight win.

The largest crowd ever to watch a football game in Ottawa—18,791 persons—last Saturday saw the Rough Riders clobber Toronto Argonauts for the second time in as many weeks.

The Als will face a healthy club Saturday. There are no Riders in sick bay.

The Riders have released hometown John Reich who was with the club three years. The former McMaster University guard was injured two weeks ago in Toronto.

Halfback Don Sahmidt, former Baltimore Colt, has been drafted into the United States Army. He did not see action during his two weeks in the Ottawa camp.

COAL KILLS DECKHAND

OSHAWA (CP) — Robert MacDonald, 17-year-old deckhand from Cardinal, was smothered by coal Wednesday when he slipped into the No. 1 hold of the collier Valley Camp. The vessel arrived here from Rochester, N.Y.

World Series Notes

By ED CORRIGAN

BROOKLYN (AP) — President Eisenhower, spectator at Wednesday's world series opener between the Dodgers and Yankees, turned to his guest, Brooklyn President Walter O'Malley, in the ninth inning when Mickey Mantle came to bat and said: "I've seen him hit a home run and I've seen him struck out. Now if he should hit into a double play I've seen him do everything." Mantle did just that.

Dodger shortstop Pewees Reese has put one of his gloves away for his trophy room. One of the secret service men guarding Eisenhower borrowed it to be ready in case a stray ball flew in the direction of the president. When Reese got it back it was inscribed by the wishing Pewees luck on his post-series trip to Japan.

Reese, who is the Methuselah of the Dodgers with six world series under his belt, feels a little strange. This is the first time he has not played against Phil Rizzuto. "It doesn't seem like the series without him," said Pewees.

The old Yankee Clipper, Joe DiMaggio is around for the series and looks as if he could step up to the plate anytime.

They don't call Enos Slaughter the "old pro" for nothing. His three RBIs gave Manager Bucky Slaughter's world series batting average to .327 with 16 ribbies in 14 games. The 40-year-old Yankee outfielder played in 12 series games with the St. Louis Cards in 1942 and 1946.

Both of today's starting pitchers are better-than-average hitters; Don Newcombe of the Dodgers had 26 hits including two home runs and batted in 14 runs. Don Larsen also had a pair of homers among 19 hits and collected 12 RBIs.

Alston Preparing to Leave Clem Labine in Bullpen

By ED WILKS

BROOKLYN (AP) — Dodger manager Walt Alston dug a finger into a crumbled pack of cigarettes and said, "Let me just say we won the first one and that's a big help. I can't say things are easier now."

After all, they won the first two games last time.

But this time, last world champions had taken the opener from the Yankees, with Johnny Mize sticking it out to win 6-3.

Today, Alston was starting right hander Don Newcombe against the Yankees—a 27-game winner who was making a fourth try for his first series victory.

"I'll have to consider Clem Labine as being in the bullpen," said Alston.

Labine as a starter unless we can get through a game where he doesn't have to get up so much in the bullpen." He was up plenty in the first game.

"GAME OLD YANKS"

Someone sought out Newcombe about today's starting assignment.

"See anything that'll help?"

"Naw," said Newk, "they look like the same old Yanks to me."

"Did Maglie show you anything about the hitters you didn't know?"

"We went over that in the club house meeting," the big right-hander said almost belligerently. "Besides me and Maglie pitch different."

In the Yankee dressing room there was nothing but praise for Maglie.

TOO MANY STRANDED

"That fellow was not the better pitcher, that's all," said manager Casey Stengel. "Our fellow Whitey Ford wasn't very hot, but that's no excuse. We had their man in a lot of trouble but left —how many? Nine? — on base. There's your answer."

Aggressive Billy Martin, who instigated the game's only interruption when he asked the umpire regularly to inspect the ball when Maglie was pitching, said he started it because he saw a spot on the ball while he was batting the second inning.

Asked if he thought Maglie was scuffing up the ball, Martin replied quickly: "I'm not accusing him of anything. It might been dirt—it might have been anything, but I wasn't taking any chances."

"That's not what beat us—it was his sinker and our failure to hit."

HEAVY NARCOTICS TERM

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Detroit man convicted of selling and possessing narcotics was sentenced Tuesday to prison terms of 120 to 240 years. Robert Hoover Williams, 27, drew the heavy penalty after being found guilty on six counts of selling and one count of possessing narcotics.

Brenda Fisher Will Try Strait Both Ways

VICTORIA (CP) — Brenda Fisher, the self-confident swimmer from Grimsby, England, who beat Marilyn Bell's Lake Ontario record this year, is planning to make a two-way assault on the Strait of Juan de Fuca next summer.

Brenda wrote to Don Gray, a native of Grimsby now living in Victoria, that she would like to cross the choppy strait from south to north first, then do it from north to south.

Only one swimmer—Cliff Lumdon of Toronto—has swum the 18.3-mile southward distance from here to Port Angeles, Wash., regarded as the tougher route. Toronto's Miss Bell swam the strait last summer from south to north.

Tremendous Toss

BOSTON (AP) — Hal Connolly of Boston College established a world record for the hammer throw Wednesday with a tremendous toss of 218 feet, 10½ inches in a special event sanctioned by the New England AAU.

Connolly's heave surpassed the world mark of 217 feet, 9½ inches set by Russia's Mikail Krivonosov last July. Connolly, a withered-arm lefthander at college football, became the first American to better 200 feet with the 16-pound hammer since 1948.

U.S. SUPPORTS HOG PRICES

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson has announced a new federal program to bolster hog prices. Benson told a press conference Thursday that the agriculture department will begin a land buying program next week to help prevent any slip in the price of hogs.

Balmy Beach Marines Down Peterborough 13-4

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Balmy Beach Marines moved into first place by one point in the Ontario Rugby Football Union intermediate series by downing Peterborough Orhns 13-4 Wednesday night. Meanwhile, Hamilton Tiger-Cat Bs downed Brantford Braves 40-14.

Don Hatt and Jim Sillers scored unconverted touchdowns and Bob Chrystal and Howie Yanoshk and forward Lon Haley. The Regals also have signed Don Raleigh, Murray Wilkie, Earl Johnson, Bill Bucyk, Lucien Dechene and Lyle Willey.

Bill Bingham scored two Hamilton touchdowns on long passes from quarterback Glenn Dawson. Other majors were scored by Dawson, Ron Martin, Jon Lukasiewicz and Paul Hrysko. Herb Obermeyer converted four.

Bill Slater accounted for both touchdowns for the Braves who have lost four consecutive games. Stu Crowe converted them.

REGALS STRENGTHEN

BRANDON, Man. (CP)—Three players, all members last season of the now defunct Saskatoon Quakers, signed contracts Wednesday with Brandon Regals of the Western Hockey League. The players are defencemen Bob Chrystal and Howie Yanoshk and forward Lon Haley. The Regals also have signed Don Raleigh.

Maple Leafs Continue to Have Trouble With Cleveland Barons

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The National Hockey League Toronto Maple Leafs continued to have trouble with the American League Cleveland Barons, but other NHL clubs were handy winners in Wednesday night exhibition contests.

The Leafs blew two-goal leads twice and were happy to tie the chippy Barons 5-5 in a game at Normanda, Que. At Calgary, Detroit Red Wings downed the Western Hockey League Stampeders 5-1; New York Rangers downed the AHL Rock 4-3 at Providence and Montreal Canadiens blanked the Junior Canadiens 5-0 at Ottawa.

The Leafs looked weary compared with the Barons, who again got outstanding goaltending from chunky Marcel Paille. In four games with the Barons, the Leafs have managed two victories and two ties.

TEMPERS FLARE

At Calgary, tempers were on edge during the 16-penalty game. Norm Ullman, Bob McNeil, Alex Delvecchio, Lorne Ferguson and Metro Prystai scored for Detroit. The Calgary goal was from the stick of Archie Scott, who was hurt later when hit by a flying puck. The Stampeders outshot the Wings 37-25 while 2,819 homesown fans looked on.

Camille Henry, last season's top scorer in the American League, had three assists for Rangers as they downed Providence. Henry is with the Rangers for the second time in his career, his contract having been bought this week from Rhode Island.

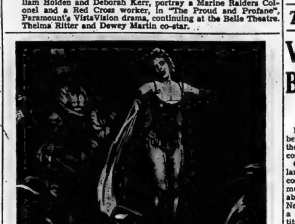
The Rangers optioned goalie Johnny Bower, defenceman Ivan Irwin and forwards Aldo Guidolin and Jim Bartlett to Providence Wednesday. Bower was voted the

Johnny Metras Rather Gloomy About Opener

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Head coach Johnny Metras of the University of Western Ontario Mustangs said Wednesday he is rather gloomy about Saturday's intercollegiate opener here with the McGill Redmen.

For one thing he expects his line to be outweighed by at least 10 pounds. McGill's formidable front wall boasts such heftes as McCabe at 220 and Bonin at 230 pounds. Also, Metras voices growing respect for Larry Sullivan, the ex-Notre Dame tackle now coaching McGill.

Last season the Mustangs tied the Redmen 6-6 in Montreal and then were soundly whipped here 35-17.



Metras dropped two players this week—halfback John Sweeney on a matter of discipline, and quarterback Bill Gray on an undisclosed reason. Both are local products. After turning in their uniforms, they signed with the London Lords of the ORFU.

AHL's most valuable player last season.

Jackie Leclair scored two goals in the Canadiens' victory while 5,500 watched. Boom Boom Geoffrion, Claude Provost and Henri Richard were the other Montreal goalgetters.

The Junior Canadiens, who will perform in the Quebec Hockey League and the Ontario Hockey Association's eastern Senior A loop this winter, had several of the parent team players on loan for the game. The Junior Canadiens also plan to defend the Laurier Cup for junior teams which they won last year.

Buddy Leake In Top Spot Of Scoring Race

WINNIPEG (CP) — Players with Saskatchewan Roughriders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers made the biggest gains in the individual scoring in the Western Interprovincial Football Union as both clubs scored lopsided double victories last weekend.

Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press for games including Oct. 1 show that halfback-quarterback Buddy Leake of the Bombers has taken over the top spot with 57 points as he picked up 34 points in the club's two weekend triumphs. Leake now has six touchdowns, 18 converts and a field goal.

Reggie Whitehouse of Riders, tied last week for first place with Saskatoon's Jackie Parker—holds the runner-up position with 55 points on 25 converts and 10 field goals.

Ken Carpenter scored five touchdowns in Riders' twin victories to move up into third place with 54 points. He now has nine touchdowns.

Pastushak Will Be Offensive Strength of Blues

TORONTO (CP)—A husky engineering sophomore who made his football name as a defensive end may supply a large measure of University of Toronto Blues' offensive punch this year.

Izzy Pastushak, who played intermediate football at Varsity in 1954 but was ineligible last year, will be coach Dait White's wingback when the Blues meet Queen's Golden Gaels in the Intercollegiate Senior football opener here Saturday.

Pastushak is replacing 1955 all-star wingback Gerry Landy, who had to quit football because of a serious eye injury.

In exhibition play this fall, Pastushak has been a brilliant pass receiver.

Viewers Accept Commercials But Critical of Their Form

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Television being a commercial medium, there always will be television commercials.

Grumblings about this fact have largely died away. In place of complaints about the fact of commercials we now have complaints about the nature of commercials. Nearly every viewer has become a commercial critic, using a multitude of bases for passing judgment.

Now comes a missive from a correspondent who expresses a viewpoint she claims is widely held by her friends. They are, it seems, tired of "multiple casting" of actors for commercials. Here are some examples that recently have crossed their home screens:

Within a brief period of time they have enjoyed the same girl (1) advertising peanut butter, (2) as a college coed smoking and (3) as a nurse bandaging a little girl's finger.

Within a briefer period they have witnessed a grey-haired lady (1) advertising soup, (2) telling her constipation problems to her family physician, and (3) assuring her husband that by golly she's sure going to serve undelicted tea.

The faith of those viewers obviously has been badly shaken. They make no bones about it, they believe in the person making the old advertising pitch.

No complaints are voiced, you'll note, about the fact that actors and actresses take on a great variety of dramatic roles—tonight's gunman being next week's Roman emperor and the like. No complaints are voiced about the frequency or the content of commercials. The basic complaint is that some viewers want personalized service. They want to believe that there's a good friend, loyal to only one product, there on the screen speaking to them.

Darryl Zanuck Again Snatching Film Subjects From Headlines

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Launching a new career as an independent producer, Darryl F. Zanuck is once again snatching his film subjects from the headlines.

His next three films:

1. Island in the Sun, which deals with the hot topics of miscegenation and colonialism.

2. Farris Island, the story of the drowning of the U.S. marine recruits.

3. I Married Stalin, depicting the monstrous crimes of the Russian dictator as seen through the eyes of his two wives.

Zanuck discussed these and other subjects during a rare interview in his king-size office at 20th Century-Fox. Dressed in casual sports clothes, he sat at a large desk, rising occasionally to pace into an adjacent room.

"I'm going right back to the field where I have had my biggest success," he remarked. "I have found that when I have stuck close to controversy I have had great luck.

"This dates back to I Am a Fugitive From a Chain Gang, and comes up through the years with Grapes of Wrath, Gentleman's Agreement and Pinky. Even How Green Was My Valley was a risk, because it was a labor story.

"I think Grapes of Wrath was my biggest risk, since it came at a time when the Okie situation was really hot.

Zanuck was asked about the prospects in the southern states for island in the Sun, which deals frankly with Negro-white relations.

"That doesn't worry me," he said. "They said we couldn't show Pinky in the South, but it was one of our biggest grossers down there.

"The same was true with The Desert Fox. It was a glorification of Rommel, yet it did terrific business in England."

Island in the Sun, which will star James Mason, Joan Fontaine, Michael Rennie, Harry Belafonte and Dorothy Dandridge, was described by Zanuck as a massive operation. He will transport over 100 technicians to the West Indies and will make six round trips to London, where the rushes will be processed.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, Oct. 5, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Wind up tasks so you will be in a position to relax pleasantly tomorrow. This will afford mental as well as physical respite. Cheerfulness cushions many rough spots.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Some restrictions. Limit personal desires and stress over-all improvement. Be ready to meet and handle possible surprises.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Turn your thoughts to the problems of others. Helping loved ones and friends is not only laudable but beneficial, for you, too. Don't underestimate the strength of compellition.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Avoid a tendency to carelessness; don't take things for granted. Make sure of your course first, then proceed with poise, consistency, confidence. Relax in free time.

July 23 to August 22 (Leo) — Mesh plans and desires into a well-knit program for bigger results. Introduce a novel idea or re-use a proven method clothed in new raiment. The go-getter will be a winner.

August 24 to September 22 — (Virgo) — The extra effort you put forth now will be greatly appreciated by recipients of your good deeds. Maintain a steady but not over-exacting pace. Keep top goals uppermost in mind when making plans, decisions.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Look to wise heads for advice, assistance if necessary. Be sure whom you ask, and remember, an engaging personality may be a mask for a scheming scoundrel. Progress through continued effort.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Don't beat around the bush. A direct approach to current problems is best. Handle essential matters first on busy days. Wasted effort is never regained.

November 23 to December 21 — (Sagittarius) — This day calls for extra attention to financial and home matters, business interests, civic duties. There is a tendency to leave tasks incompleted. Sabotage this through sustained, pointed activity.

December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — Be discriminating with whom you associate, for so that you can separate the chaff from the wheat. Benefits through agreeable companionships, sincere associations.

January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — Confusion may rear its ugly head; don't be tricked! Be alert to imminent opportunities and make the most of them.

February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Be smart; scan your allotted program carefully, eliminate useless red tape, and trifles, then go to work on essentials. Honest work will prove profitable.

You born today are endowed with kindliness, a neighborly manner and strict conscientiousness. Never let that demon jealousy or a lack of control neutralize these fine qualities. Don't let your generosity be imposed upon. You Librans are generally suited for positions with large and powerful organizations, that need people of courage and honesty, steady application, and inventiveness, too. You are a lover of nature, art, music, drama. Avoid overindulgence in pleasures. Your success, though it may not come early, will nevertheless be stable and lasting. Birthdate of: Chester A.

Highway Experts Turn Attention To Road Safety

QUEBEC (CP) — Highway experts from across Canada and the United States learn their attention to road safety today as the annual convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association goes into it stride day.

W. E. Johnson, assistant general manager of the National Safety Council of the United States, touched on the traffic problem in an address to the 1,000 delegates to the convention. He said traffic deaths in the U.S. may reach an all-time high this year, adding that "a strong, organized safety movement is a necessity for survival in the second half of the 20th century."

Most of Wednesday's sessions were devoted to the financial aspect of road building in Canada.

SAIL VS ROAD

W. G. Scott, general secretary of the Railway Association of Canada, said unless motor carriers pay their full share of highway costs, unequal conditions of competition must inevitably result in the transportation industry.

If inadequate revenues were learned road-users, he said, general taxes would have to be increased for road financing purposes.

Camille Archambault, Quebec vice-president of Canadian Trucking Associations Inc., also spoke about motor vehicle taxation.

The trucking industry considered the planning and building of better roads an urgent tasks than the problem of "dividing intensely every dollar spent between different vehicle groups."

George C. Hoover, executive director of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, said municipal roads "need more money for their street improvement programs as they are already spending more than they should on this work. Present sources for municipalities are inadequate, he said.

Hees Says Govt. Will Again Have To Help Pipeline

TRAIL, B.C. (CP) — George Hees, a possible contender for the national leadership of the Progressive Conservative party, said Wednesday night the government may have to give Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd., further financial assistance to complete the projected natural gas pipeline across the country.

Mr. Hees, MP for Toronto-Broadview, told the West Kootenay Conservative Association the company, which originally said it could build the Alberta - Ontario line unassisted, already has been helped out twice.

He said Trade Minister Howe "agreed to bail out the company by building the Northern Ontario section with the taxpayers' money."

"Recently, the company professed inability to build the Prairie section of the line, and the government once again agreed to bail it out by providing 90 per cent of the capital needed for that section," he added.

Mr. Hees said "it is entirely likely that by the time the line has been built to Kapuskasing the company will again claim inability to finance construction, and the government will once again bail it out and complete the line at the taxpayers' expense."

The text of Mr. Hees' speech was delivered to the press in advance of delivery.

Ten Die In Manitoba Car Accident

Mrs. Ethel Pinder, Her 4 Children And 5 Men Killed

Lone Survivor of Crash Is Father of Children

VIRDEN, Man. (CP)—Ten persons, four of them children, died in a head-on collision between two late - model cars on the Thursday night on the Trans-Canadian Highway, 11 miles east of here. The lone survivor of the crash was a man who was seriously injured.

One woman and the four children, all under 12, who were killed were in a car bearing Saskatchewan licence plates and a Saskatoon nameplate. The surviving man also came from this car.

The other killed were men. They were riding in an automobile belonging to California Standard Oil Co., which was believed to be from the Virden area.

Killed were: Kenneth G. Jenzen, 22, of Winnipeg, Johny Tyky of Elkhoro, Man., Donald C. Endall, of Camrose, Alta., Stanley Lasek, 26, of Elkhoro, David R. Williams of Brandon, all in the Manitoba car; Mrs. Ethel Pinder, 39, of Saskatoon and her children, Robert Milford, 12, Charlotte Jane, 9, Barbara Mary, 8, and David Ross, 6.

3 PINNED IN WRECKAGE

The vehicles met on a slight curve. All six of the people in the Saskatchewan car were thrown clear and were near the rear of the wrecked car.

Two of the men in the second car were thrown onto the highway. The other three were pinned in the wreckage, one in the front seat and two in the rear.

The impact of the collision pushed the motor of the oil company car back into the body. The gas tank on the Saskatchewan car was torn from the chassis. The trunk door was sprung and the rear seat was thrown across the road.

Virden is 193 miles west of Winnipeg.

The Pinders, one of the best known families in Saskatoon and who are owners of drug stores in the city with others in Regina and Prince Albert, were active in the conference to the size of the midgets, the paper ran the story printed in agate type — about half the size of normal newspaper type — and illustrated it with a half-column picture.

Premier Denies Throwing Weight To Diefenbaker

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost who has frequently disclaimed any ambition for the national leadership of the Progressive Conservative party, said Thursday he is not taking sides as far as any potential contenders are concerned.

He denied a published report that he is throwing his weight behind a move to draft John Diefenbaker, member of Parliament for Prince Albert, Sask., for the leadership post vacated by the retirement of Hon. George Drew.

Mr. Frost said his allegiance is not committed. "How could it be? Who are the candidates?"

Mr. Frost made his comments at a press conference.

Only one of those mentioned as possible leaders has yet made a firm announcement on his plans. George Hees, member for Toronto Broadview, said Thursday he intends to back Mr. Diefenbaker for the post.

NO CONFIRMATIONS

Mr. Diefenbaker, however, has not confirmed he will be in the running. Neither have Donald Fleming, Toronto Eglinton, and David Fulton, Kamloops, both named as possible candidates.

University of Toronto president Sid Thursday night that Dr. Sidney Smith, the university president, has no intention of allowing his name to stand. There were reports from Ottawa during the Conservative party caucus earlier this week that he might be a dark horse contender.

The report that Mr. Frost was taking sides said he had sent Mines Minister Kelly to the West to enlist the support of Social Credit premiers Manning of Alberta and Bennett of British Columbia in the Diefenbaker movement.

Mr. Frost said Mr. Kelly's trip was solely to attend a conference of provincial mines ministers.

CRITICIZES LOAN CUTBACK

Mr. Frost criticized a recent rise in the bank lending rate and said provincial governments and municipalities grave misgivings about their development programs.

While he supported strong measures to curb inflation, he contended the measures that Ottawa has adopted restrict financing of priority works to which provinces and municipalities are committed.

He suggested closer consultation might result in a more selective arrangement, "but was not prepared to say whether this might involve a federal lending agency.

WROTE BALL SONG

"Say, how'd you get that swelling on your nose?"

"Bent down to small a brose in my garden."

WOMEN PROTEST USE OF BILINGUAL SIGNS IN OTTAWA

Claim It Is Violation Of Constitution

OTTAWA (CP) — The president of a Protestant women's group in the capital says her organization feels that Quebec is forcing bilingualism on other provinces.

Mrs. J. M. Hitsman, president of the Ottawa branch of the Protestant Women's Federation of Canada, made the statement Thursday after it was disclosed the branch had protested city plans to erect bilingual street signs.

A letter sent to Ottawa board of control signed on behalf of Mrs. Catherine E. Grace, the branch's corresponding secretary, says:

"It has been instructed to protest to you against the use of bilingual signs, which it regards as the official use of the French language is illegal and a violation of the constitution."

The letter said that since a by-law legalizing the erection of the bilingual signs had been approved three weeks ago, the branch feels English be placed first on these street signs."

The signs will be erected only in Ottawa's predominantly-French Lower Town area and at main city entrances.

Ottawa has a population of 221,000 of which 28 per cent are French-speaking.

GROUP STRESSES ACT

Mrs. Hitsman said in an interview that the general council of the national federation has just completed a study of the British North America Act—the constitution itself—apparently referred to it Mrs. Grace's letter.

She said the constitution gives Quebec province the use of the two languages — English and French — but not the rest of the country.

"We feel that the province of Quebec is forcing bilingualism on other provinces," she said.

"The excellent Canadian constitutional authority in Ottawa said he is aware of no law which declares English or French as Canada's official language. It has said English and French are recognized by custom as Canada's two official languages.

Six Nations, Including U.S., Named to Run Suez Group

LONDON (AP) — Six countries were named today to run the new Suez Canal Users Association in short ways for a peaceful settlement of the crisis with Egypt. The countries named are the United States, Britain, France, Italy, Norway and Iran. A seventh country will be appointed to the association executive committee when the full membership of SCUA—now made up of 15 countries—is completed.

This was announced in a communique following the winding up of SCUA's inaugural session.

The association was inaugurated today to promote the interests of the main users of the canal following Egypt's rejection of the earlier 18-country plan for internationalizing the canal.

Three countries — Pakistan, Japan and Ethiopia—attended the conference, which opened Monday, as observers. They have not decided whether to join.

SCUA also announced that the six members of the executive will meet in London early next week.

The executive will tackle these immediate jobs, listed in the communique:

1. The choice of an administrator, expected to be either a Scandinavian or a Netherlander.

2. Financial matters, including a preliminary and permanent budget.

3. A program of operations in line with SCUA's stated purpose to seek day-to-day arrangements with Egypt on the running of Suez pending a final settlement.

Commercial and U.S. Sources Of Salk Vaccine Foreseen

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian supplies of Salk polio vaccine may eventually be supplied by commercial sources with large shipments coming from United States firms.

Federal health authorities emphasized Thursday that this would not take place for two years or more.

At present all of Canada's Salk polio vaccine supply originates at the Connaught Connaught Laboratories. However, fairly large commercial shipments are expected from the U.S. shortly.

Health Minister Martin announced that the Eli Lilly Company of Indianapolis has been licensed to ship vaccine to Canada. Officials of his department said they also are studying import applications from other U.S. firms.

It also appears likely that when sufficient supplies of vaccine are available from commercial sources, such subsidized producers as the Connaught Laboratories and the Montreal Institute of Microbiology may switch to other medical research. The Montreal institute is expected to begin supplying vaccine late this fall.

Early this year Canada imported small amounts of American vaccine. The shipments were stopped when the U.S. discovered some defective American supplies had entered the market.

Since then Connaught Laboratories has been Canada's only source of vaccine. Polio shots are distributed free by schoolchildren under a three-year provincial immunization program.

First of the fall shots in schools likely will begin later this month.

Hungarians Here to Negotiate Trade Agreement With Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — A five-man delegation from Hungary is expected here tonight or Saturday to negotiate a most-favored-nation trade agreement with Canada.

Trade between the two countries since the Second World War has been small.

Informed quarters hinted the trade pact—fourth with an Iron Curtain country — may be patterned on a Russia-Canada agreement whereby the Soviet Union agreed earlier this year to buy 400,000 tons of wheat a year for a three-year period.

The negotiations will start next week between Thomas Barabash, a leading official of the Hungarian ministry of foreign trade, and the delegation, and Mitchell Sharpe, associate deputy trade minister, head of the Canadian negotiators.

Canada now has most-favored-nation trade agreements with Russia, Poland and Czechoslovakia, extending to these countries the same tariff treatment it gives to fellow members of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Canada likely will approach the Hungarian delegation on the question of high customs duties placed on the items Canadian lans should not raise their hopes too high.

He was replying to John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative M.P. for Prince Albert, who charged the Communist government of Hungary collected between $500,000 and $1,000,000 a year on high customs duties on gifts of food to Hungarians.

He said similar inquiries — which had discouraged the sending of gifts—had been partly eliminated as a result of trade agreements with Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Last year, Canada exported $165,000 worth of goods to Hungary, mainly clover seeds, skins and woollens. This was an increase from $35,000 in 1954.

Trade Minister Howe to Inspect Japan's Industries

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe is going to make a personal inspection of Japan's teeming industrial centres.

The 70-year-old trade minister will fly to Japan from Vancouver Oct. 21 and likely will return about Nov. 5. Before making the one-week goodwill tour he will make several speeches in the United States, including one at Cleveland.

Mr. Howe will be making his first trip to Japan, one of Canada's best customers, since 1947 when he has toured South America, Australia, New Zealand.

Dr. Koto Matsudaira, Japanese ambassador here, said in an interview that Mr. Howe will be taken everywhere in Japan and will see everything.

The trade minister is not expected to negotiate any trade agreement with the Japanese government.

However, Mr. Matsudaira said Japan industry is anxious to promote greater two-way trade with Canada. He said the trip, planned at the invitation of the Japanese government, may lead to "deeper understanding of the problems".

Mr. Howe will be accompanied by Mitchell Sharp, associate deputy trade minister. They will visit Japanese textile mills, aluminum plants, iron and steel mills and cement factories.

Canada's chief export to Japan is wheat. In the last two years sales have doubled with shipments in the last crop year increasing to some 30,000,000 bushels. Dr. Matsudaira forecast that in less than 20 years Japan will be Canada's main wheat customer, surpersoding the United Kingdom.

DeMille's Ten Commandments Ready After Five Years of Hard Labor

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Hollywood has had a preview look at the most expensive movie ever made — The Ten Commandments — and it'll take a bigger and better adjective than colossal to describe it.

DeMille spent 12 hours a day for five years, plus $1,500,000 of Paramount's money, to put the life of Moses on the screen. The budget more than triples the amount spent on Gone with the Wind.

The latter picture, which grossed $25,000,000, is the all-time box office champion, but Paramount expects The Ten Commandments to bring in $100,000,000 over the next 20 years.

Much of the big cost was due to DeMille's insistence on shooting such scenes as the parting of the actual locale—Egypt's Sinai Valley.

The only DeMille, with characteristic lavishness, would build pyramids and 60 sphinxes less than five miles from the real ones. That cut Pharaoh's pal bill $350,000 alone.

But the old man knew what he was doing. The result is more a religious experience than a movie. It's an armchair pilgrimage.

The picture has all the famed DeMille ingredients—sex, bathing scenes, dancing girls and racing chariots, plus his second splitting of the Red Sea.

He did it before in a silent version of The Ten Commandments, made in 1923.

Berra's Grand Slam Homer, Duke Snider's 3-Run Swat Pace Big Second Frames

Takes Over Hour and Half To Play First 3 Innings

FLASH
Dodgers lead Yankees 11-7 going into the seventh.

BROOKLYN (AP) — Don Bessent, third Brooklyn pitcher, singled home Gil Hodges in the third inning of the second world series game today and the Dodgers led the Yankees 7-6 after three innings of wild baseball that required an hour and 36 minutes to play.

The Yankees and Dodgers waged a battle of home runs in the second inning and at the end of that frame the score was tied at 5-5.

Yogi Berra hit a grandslammer in the top half of the second as New York took a 6-0 lead, but Duke Snider's blast over the scoreboard with two aboard knotted the count. Both starting pitchers, Don Newcombe and Johnny Kucks in front of bullpen.

Reese singled over Martin's head, scoring Amoros and Furillo, Gilliam stopping at second. Tom Byrne replaced Kucks on the mound.

Snider hit a home run over the scoreboard in right centerfield, scoring Gilliam and Reese in front of him, tying the score at 6-6.

It was his 10th homer in world series competition, bettering his own record by a National League batter. Lou Gehrig also had 10 and Babe Ruth had 15, the all-time record.

Robinson struck out.

THIRD INNING

Yankees: Bessent was the new Dodger pitcher. Bauer beat out a slow roller to Gilliam. Gilliam stopping at second. Bauer popped to Gilliam.

One run, two hits, no errors, two left.

Dodgers: Gilliam walked. Bessent got on a hit and run play, popped to McDougald behind third and Gilliam had to scamper back to avoid being doubled up at first. Snider walked. Robinson grounded to Martin who stepped on third and threw to Collins doubling up Robinson.

SECOND INNING

Yankees: Martin beat out a scratch single to Bessent. Mantle walked. Newcombe to Hodges. Larsen singled over Robinson's head, scoring Martin. McDougald singled, Larsen stopping at second. Slaughter struck out. Dougald. Berra hit a grandslammer to Gilliam, Larsen stopping at third. Mantle walked on three pitches to load the bases. Berra hit a grand slam home run over the right field screen.

It was Berra's seventh world series homer, the third grand slammer in world series history, two of them by Berra. The last previous grand slammer was hit by Mantle at Ebbets Field Oct. 4, 1953.

That was all for Newcombe and he was relieved by Don Bessent.

Colling went out, Gilliam to Hodges.

Seven runs, four hits, no errors, none left.

FIFTH INNING

Dodgers: Gilliam struck out, but had to be tagged out when Berra dropped the third strike. Reese flied to Bauer. Snider walked. Robinson hit a ball grounder took a bad bounce over McDougald's head, Snider stopping at second on the single. Hodges doubled to the left centerfield wall past the diving Slaughter, scoring Snider and Robinson. That was all for Morgan. Bob Turley became the sixth Yankee pitcher to equal a world series record held by six other clubs. This is the most runs Brooklyn has ever scored in a world series game. Amoros was called out on strikes.

Two runs, two hits, no errors, one left.

Princess Given Exultant Welcome On Island of Romance and Intrigue

ZANZIBAR (AP) — Princess Margaret stepped ashore today to an exultant welcome on Zanzibar, Indian Ocean island of romance and intrigue.

She is the first member of the Royal Family to visit the East African protectorate for 30 years.

As the royal yacht Britannia dropped anchor in the harbor, the dipping sails of dhows and catamarans darted out to form a colorful escort.

Thousands on shore cheered the arrival of the princess. Sleek-hulled white launches ripped off the veiling, and a battery of two-pounder guns roared out a salute to open the day's ceremonial.

The princess will be guest of Sultan Seyyid Sir Khalifa Bin Harub. Officials emphasized this today and explained that she is not here officially as a member of the Royal Family visiting a British possession.

"All the people will therefore welcome her," a senior police official said. "Extra police will be offending the sultan. They might not be unwilling to offend the Sultan."

The sultan is strongly pro-British. He is 77 and has ruled over the protectorate for 45 years. The island, 50 miles long and 24 wide, lies off the east coast of Tanganyika.

Beneath the surface are political intrigues. Infiltrators from Asia are aiming to integrate Zanzibar with the Arab League.

An official commented: "With a pro-British sultan, there is no trouble, but an unco-operative sultan would be quite another matter. Zanzibar's sultan is a real ruler, not a puppet."

Manly Macdonald Demonstrates Art Of Quick Painting

An amazing demonstration of quick painting was given by the noted Canadian landscape artist, Manly Macdonald at the Belleville Arts and Crafts Club last night.

She indicated that the club will have outstanding speakers with a view to extending its scope and encouraging more people to participate. Painting is being made for a children's art class.

Charles Lockwood, Suspended Police Chief of Marmora, Elects Trial on Theft Charge by Jury

Charles Lockwood, police chief of the one-man Marmora force, charged with theft from the mails elected trial by judge and jury when he appeared before Magistrate T.Y. Wills here Thursday.

Lockwood was arrested in uniform by O.P.P. Const. Lockwood Sears, of the Madoc detachment, on August 29 and was turned over to inspector Robert Wardell and Vern Whitley. He was charged with theft of the mails.

His arrest brought to an end a two-week investigation into the disappearance of a shipment of $2,500 in U.S. currency from the Marmora post office on August 15. Most of the money was recovered later.

Police Chief Lockwood was represented at court by Peterborough lawyer Arthur Pain. Acting for the prosecution was Crown Attorney Alec Hall, of Oshawa.

Nine Crown witnesses were called before Magistrate Wills adjourned the preliminary hearing to October 30.

LEAD TO MONEY

Corporal Sears testified that on August 15 he and Lockwood had gone before Magistrate Wills for remand that, the chief volunteered to lead police to some of the money. He was removed from the O.P.P. cruiser in which they had been lodged since his arrest, and taken to his office at the Marmora post office, where he took several packages from a desk and revealed a hidden cache. The size of the compartment in the desk Lockwood produced the box, which contained $5,000 in American currency. Present at the partial recovery were Corporal Sears, Inspector Whitley, John A. Pringle and O.P.P. Inspectors Whitley and Wannamet.

Lockwood then took the serial numbers of five $50 bills with a list of 100 $20 bills and quickly drawn up and they tallied.

The corporal further stated that about 30 minutes after Lockwood had been turned over to the inspectors he was asked by Lockwood to search warrant on the chief's apartment, which is situated directly over the post office.

LOCATED SOME BILLS

In the apartment, accompanied by Mr. W. F. Turnbull of the Post Office Department at Ottawa, and Const. Constable W. Lummiss of the Madoc detachment, Corporal Sears located seven U.S. $10 bills in a wallet in an inside pocket of one of Lockwood's jackets.

Marmora Postmaster Warren J. Hickey told the court that he had received a parcel, which he understood to contain money, from Mr. Robert Ward, postmaster of the Marmora branch of the Toronto-Dominion bank where the shipment originated, and Chief Charles Lockwood at about 10:20 a.m., on Wednesday, August 15. Because of the mid-week noon closing of the local office Mr. Hickey said he left the premises shortly after 12:15 p.m. and returned at about 1:30 p.m. after the afternoon mail.

Mr. Redner stated that he had requested Chief Lockwood to escort him and the parcel from the bank, which is diagonally across the street from the post office, at about 1:00 p.m., August 15. The chief complied with his request and the package, addressed to the cashier at the Marmora Trust Company of New York in Buffalo, was delivered to the post office and properly registered.

Two bank tellers Miss Ina Rose and Mr. Coulthard, testified that they were connected with the counting the serial numbers of 26 bills in the shipment the previous evening and that they seen the parcel wrapped, sealed and deposited in the bank vault overnight. Heldeman man had a combination to the vault.

James Heath, mail courier, said he picked up two bags of mail from the post office shortly after 1:30 p.m., on August 15, and with a friend, George Shaw, drove about five miles to the railway station at Bonarlaw where he threw the bags on to a platform truck. Leaving Mr. Shaw and Bonarlaw Postmaster Gaye sitting on the truck, he went into the station to talk with the agent. At about 1:45, when the eastbound train arrived, he threw his mail bags into the mail car then, with Mr. Shaw, returned to Marmora.

FOUND SLIT IN BAG

Mail Clerk W. T. Cooper said that he was in charge of the mail car on the Toronto-Montreal train on August 15, but didn't know anything was amiss until his assistant, W. H. Kroush, told him there was no registered mail in the Marmora bag and at the same time discovered a slit up a seam of one of the bags. About an hour later Mr. Kroush left the train at Kaladar to catch a westbound train back to Toronto. The empty mail bags were removed at Montreal, where Mr. Cooper got off.

The caretaker of the Marmora post office, Stanley Arnott, told the court that Lockwood had approached him one day he could not remember the date, and asked to borrow the key to the village fire hall in case a bottle of pyrene so he could re-charge his spent fire extinguisher. He said the relationship of the key to the ring, which contained a key to the work room in the post office, but got them back in the early afternoon of the same day.

DID NOT GET MONEY

At about 3 p.m., that day he spoke with Lockwood again who said that he did not find the pyrene.

On Saturday, August 18, Mr. Snider encountered the police chief on the street and was informed of the missing shipment of money. "But," he said, "Lockwood told me he did not consider any of the postal employees with its disappearance."

Mr. Snider added that he had gone, with his son, to the post office in the afternoon at about 15 to sweep up after the employees had left but took his son home shortly after his arrival.

Mrs. Snider corroborated the statements made by her husband.

After the three-hour preliminary hearing Lockwood, said he has lost 20 pounds, was returned to his cell. Twice when he appeared for remand Magistrate Wills refused to lower, at Lockwood's request, bail which had been set at $20,000 property or $10,000 cash to $8,000 property or $4,000 cash.

City and District Breeding Centre for Sporting Dogs

The call of the hunting season is a reminder, if any were needed, that dogs are indeed man's best friend.

Dogs are, in fact, such a vital part of bird and game shooting, that the successful hunting hours are as particular about getting the right dog as they are in their choice of a gun.

While veteran sportsmen of this community are well informed on the best breeds for specific forms of hunting and where these especially trained dogs may be purchased, further information is presented for the benefit of newcomers who may not be so well informed.

Local hunters are fortunate in being able to obtain leading sporting breeds from district breeders at well under the asking price in the larger centres.

The Labrador Retriever, either black or golden, is generally recognized as the best retriever. This hardy breed, which was first discovered in its native Labrador is by heritage inured to the cold of either air or water. The sturdy coat provides for limited protection of the C.P.R. bridge was water cold enough to paralyze a man's limbs, and he was found dead morning as John Moon, 25 Wragg Street, Trenton.

Inspector J. Clair Hayes said the man appeared to be about 30 to 35 years of age.

When found, Mr. Moon was fully clothed except for his shoes. He wore a grey coat, a faded yellow T-shirt, brown shoes and diamond socks.

Mac McKay at Holway's service station, noticed what he thought was a body floating in the roadway leading to the park and notified the police just before seven o'clock.

Coroner Dr. J. Russell Scott was called and the body was removed to Belleville General Hospital where an autopsy is scheduled for this afternoon.

hunter. These persistent fellows often refuse to return to the hunter at the end of the day, take a leading place for themselves in the bush and take up the chase again at daybreak if they have had a rest. They may or three days later they may or may not return to their master completely famished and exhausted.

Like the Labrador, these larger hounds instinctively take to hunting as a sport with the idea of gastronomyconlay rather than attacking the quarry.

GREAT DOG LOVERS

His original pack of Walker and Red Bone hounds is one of the finest in the province.

Although all these sporting breeds have above average in strength and hardiness, their playfulness and friendly nature also make them excellent pets and house dogs.

The Labrador was recently declared the most popular breed in the United States, the Labrador Retriever is well-suited to the role for reliability with children and the family pet. They are also trusty, affectionate companions around the home.

Many of the new sporting breeds in this district is the German Short Haired Pointer, introduced by breeder Glen Patterson of Tweed. This is a versatile type of working dog which can both "point" and retrieve partridge and other types of birds from water when necessary.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP)—Choice slaughter steers were fully 50 cents lower this week at the Ontario public stockyards. Good steers were $1 a hundredweight lower. Good and choice heifers and dry-fed yearlings were steady. Common and medium steers and heifers were sharply lower. Cows and bulls were steady. Top grades of calves were fully steady, lower grades as much as $2 a hundredweight lower. Hogs were 25 cents a hundredweight higher. Lambs closed $1.50 a hundredweight lower, sheep were unchanged.

Receipts of cattle were comparable to last week and 800 head fewer than the same week in 1955. Western cattle receipts totalled 1,281 head compared with 2,258 head last week. Stock calves totalled 481 head.

Shipments to eastern Canadian slaughterers were only two cars, loads 432 lbs. were no exports to the U.S. An estimated 4,000 cattle will be on offer at the close, including 3,500 replacement cattle.

Prices

Choice steers $21-21.50, sales to $2, one load of 25 herefords realized at $22.10; good steers $18.50-20.50; medium $16-18; common $12-15; good heifers $18-18.50; choice to $19; medium $15-17; common $12-16; boner steers and heifers $15-18; choice dryfed yearlings $22-24, yearlings $22.24, sales to $24.50; good fed yearlings $22-22; medium $17-21; good cows mostly $11, odd tops to $12.50; medium $10-11; common $9-10; canner and cutter cows $7-8; good heavy bologna bulls $13; common and medium light bulls down to $8.

Replacement cattle? This class was extremely slow with the demand centred around the good quality. Lower grades were at a practical standstill. Good stockers, feeders and stocking a $18-20; medium $16-18; common $14-16; stock heifers $13-15; stock heifer calves to $18.

Calves: Common and medium grades in this class were far too numerous resulting in a $2 loss for these kinds. However, light receipts of good and choice grades sold at a premium. Good vealers $2-25, choice to an extreme top of $27.75; medium $16-21; common $10-15; grass calves sold for slaughter $9-12.25.

Hogs: Grade A $30.50; sows $18; stags $12 on a dressed-weight basis.

Sheep and lambs: Lambs closed $1.50 a hundredweight lower on a careful sort as to weight and quality. Lambs weighing over 100 lbs. were sharply discounted. Choice wool and shorn lambs $15-18; feeder lambs $16-18; sheep $3-9 a hundredweight according to quality.

Thailand Wants More Power Given Agency

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) Thailand proposed Thursday that the new atoms-for-peace agency be given the power to inspect a country's atomic energy program if the country invited it to do so.

The proposal was endorsed by U.S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth, who said he agrees the constitution for the new agency should be extended to cover national activities in the field of atomic energy as well as agency projects and international arrangements—if the nations involved request it.

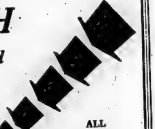
The positions were outlined in the 82-nation United Nations conference here to draft a constitution for the agency that is proposed to be set up.

STUDY EACH POINT

The conference is now sitting as a committee of the whole to weigh each article of the proposed constitution as drafted by a group of 12 nations earlier in the year. It also has 60 amendments to consider.

Wednesday, the committee approved without objection the first article calling for establishment of the agency.

The U.S. has been opposed to any amendments that would limit power of the agency to control distribution of fissionable material and to safeguard its peaceful use thereafter.



The aim is to prevent atoms-for-peace byproducts from being converted for military uses.

Young Ottawa Couple Escape Injury in Crash

A young Ottawa honeymoon couple escaped injury here on the four lane highway east of the city late Thursday afternoon when their car was involved in an accident, struck a tree and rolled over. In the car were Garnet Corrigan, 19, and his bride.

The accident occurred as Corrigan pulled out to pass another car and then was forced to slam on his brakes to avoid hitting a truck making a turn onto the highway. At 2.30 p.m. the young cars driven by Lockie Morrison, of Eagle Lake, and Joseph A. Calvert, RR 3 Belleville, were in collision on No. 14 highway north of the new 401 road. No one was injured but details of the accident were not available at press time.

3 Refrigerators Still in Crates Taken From Store

TRENTON (Special)—Thieves were busy at work here over the mid-week holiday and made off with three brand new refrigerators belonging to Bailey Hardware. The missing merchandise, still in crates, was delivered to the warehouse at the rear of the store earlier that day. Value of the articles stolen was placed at $1,000.

Constable Max Gainforth checking property 11.00 p.m. Wednesday night found the warehouse door had been forced. Further investigation uncovered the brazen piece of crime had been perpetrated in the open in a section of town where a great number of people pass even on a Wednesday afternoon. It was established the robbery took place between 12 noon Wednesday and 11 p.m. the same day.

FISHING GOOD

Mrs. B. Whitman To Occupy Low Rental Bungalow

TRENTON (Special) — A spokesman for the Quinte Disabled Persons' Club announced that Mrs. Bessie Whitman of 206 Queen Street, Trenton, was chosen from a number of applicants to move into the club's new low rental bungalow on East Ramsay Street. Mrs. Whitman, a widow partially paralyzed by a stroke is a pensioner and qualified. She expects to take possession of the place at the end of the month.

The bungalow, the first in a proposed four-house project, rents for $10 a month. In contrast, Mrs. Whitman has been paying $27.50 monthly for living quarters out of her allowance of $40.

The individual homes for disabled people living on small incomes was the brainchild of the United Handicap Group of Ontario and introduced here by club president Miss Eve Morris-son. Ex-Mayor R. E. Whitley and nurse Mrs. Marion Dickson pitched in to help make the dream come true. Industry and merchants in the district supplied most of the materials and furnishings without charge.

The first tenant, a staunch member of the Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion, Trenton Branch 110, learned the printing trade in Trenton early in life and worked five years as a printer for a local newspaper. She has lived alone since her husband died several years ago, and their family grew up and moved away.

There will be a key-handing-over ceremony later this month, before Mrs. Whitman moves in.

Ten Poles Die Trapped Inside Capsized Vessel

LONDON (Reuters)—The Polish fishing trawler Cyranka sank in the North Sea Thursday night, carrying with her some 10 crew members. Rescued after the ship capsized, had been kept alive in a giant air bubble which also kept the overturned ship afloat.

For seven hours the desperate men hammered on the steel hull of the ship as other members of the fishing fleet hovered helplessly about her.

The Morska Vola, "mother ship" of the fleet, earlier had saved seven of the crew who managed to scramble up on the overturned hull.

The British coast guard tried today to resume radio contact with the Morska Vola for more details of the sinking.

"They are having difficulty in establishing the exact number of men lost," a spokesman for the coast guard said today. "There were believed to be 17 or 18 men aboard, and seven survivors have been picked up."

As the gale-battered boats bobbed helplessly around the doomed ship, they sent frantic radio messages for help. They reported her slowly sinking inch by inch as the trapped men beat with hammers and fists on the hull.

ROCK AROUND THE CLOCK

Now that the country is beginning to recover from the ravages of setting clocks and watches ahead instead of backward, we pause to appraise some reactions, which vary from timely to untimely according to the viewpoint.

The most notable of these sentiments is the widely divergent views of city and farming people in this "rock around the clock."

Starting to rock from "daylight" we find the majority of farming folk anti-daylight and pro-standard. Their case was well presented by a veteran farmer who said: "Daylight time is used during the most important part of our working year. We can't start cutting before the dew has dried, anywhere between nine and 10 a.m. according to the strength of the sun. This isn't too bad for us had the hired men, especially extra hands at threshing time, expect to quit before supper. That makes for a shorter working day. It's true that most of us ignore daylight time and work on standard time but the hired help like to be on the same time as their friends. Then, too, the shorter hours of light before breakfast, especially during the latter part of August on, force us to milk before sun up. Actually, this used to be a greater handicap than it is now that most of us have lighted barns. When school starts, the children have to go and come from school according to daylight time throughout September."

City people are almost unanimously in favor of daylight time in the summer because it gives them an extra hour to enjoy the fleeting beauty of the season and many forms of recreation such as motoring, gardening, sports and simple relaxation during the long sunsets on lawns, gardens and verandahs.

Many parents tear their hair out by the roots because they have to wait up for their children to go to bed but the other sex of daylight saving time so outweighs the disadvantages that there is no question of us not continuing to enjoy the extra hour of sunlight from May until October.

While rural people welcome the return to standard time with wholehearted approval there is a growing movement on the part of many urban dwellers to extend daylight time throughout the year. A small majority would even go one step further in advocating the system of double daylight time from October until May, citing its satisfactory employment in Great Britain during the war.

Those who would maintain daylight time throughout the year argue that most of the points ruralites criticize about daylight time cease to exist in the winter. They emphasize that the constantly growing majority of citizens who are employed in offices from nine to five leave work just before daylight when standard time prevails. Not only do these indoor workers fail to receive sufficient light for maximum health but their hours for outdoor recreation at the most appropriate time of the day for relaxation are also eliminated.

A PROBLEM FOR EDITORS

Is television news?

There is no question that the development of television to its present status as a widely enjoyed means of entertainment was meteoric. So, too, would be the rise of any industry of comparable stature in such a comparatively brief period of time.

That is not the issue. Whether the question is whether the happenings on television shows are news-worthy. For instance, Steve Allen and Ed. Sullivan are feuding. That fact is certainly worthy of mention in any column dealing with gossip. But is it worthy of a place on the news pages? Was the fact that Randolph Church, ill could not answer a comparatively easy question on the origin of a common English word, boycott, worthy of a news story?

Newspaper editors who attempt to answer these questions have one precedent. Look at the sports pages. They acknowledge that the doings of professional entertainers are news, when enough people are interested in them. With this example before them, editors are going to find it hard to justify ignoring happenings of television shows, which probably interest more people than do most sport events. Yet what may prove an irresistible trend will not be followed without misgivings by many newspapers. One of the sharpest misgivings will be about a disturbing tendency for statesmen to reserve important announcements for television shows.

Not long ago Premier Frederick Gordon Foster Dulles was interviewed on TV, arrangements for this interview having been made long enough in advance for his scheduled appearance to be publicized through a magazine which specializes in listing programs.

On the occasion of his appearance, Mr. Dulles made some observations with regard to the Suez crisis which no editor could censor. Nevertheless, there were no new repetitions of previously announced decisions or a review of policies already made public to the world. They were distinctly news.

Many editors, and perhaps many citizens, too, must have wondered whether a television program of this nature was the place to announce policies which may influence the lives of millions. If one thing, to believe that the secret diplomacy of the past has been outmoded. It is another to crowd an announcement of foreign policy into a regularly scheduled TV show.

TV May Use Up Quarter Of St. Lawrence Power

By H. L. MacPherson in the Windsor Star

Dr. Otto Holden, chief engineer of the Ontario Hydro, foresees a possibility of Ontario's 1,000,000 h.p. allocation of the total of the 3,100,000 h.p. this province is to get from the St. Lawrence River power development program.

"After some of the programs I've seen on TV lately," Dr. Holden said, "I wonder if it's worth all the work involved."

Whether it is or isn't the chief engineer's plaint points up the rising demands for power in Ont., and one of the reasons is TV. There are others — dozens of them — some postwar phenomena, most of them developments of the past 25 years. Many are voracious power consumers.

A list of appliances and their wattages published by the National Adequate Wiring Bureau of the U.S. shows that a 1,000-watt iron is basic with Dr. Holden's example, operated on 305 watts, or a little more than 30 per cent of the total. Such consumers, all at the same time, consume the remaining 65 percent of the St. Lawrence's Ontario quota for that period, Four hundred watts represent the TV set.

It will be worse if Ontario homes ever get air conditioning. Nevertheless, a possibility that can't be written off as fantastic. A half ton conditioner, 3,000 watts, operates for 850 watts, a three-quarter ton 1,253 watts, and a one ton job 1,540 watts.

One million half ton conditioners therefore, all cerating on a 90-degree day, could use Ontario's entire share of the St. Lawrence output.

Ranges, of course, make heavy demands on power, and although only for relatively short periods in most instances, they help create peaks. Wattages up to 12,200 for ranges are listed by the N.A.W.B.

Washers take from 280 to 400 watts, and room coppers and broilers warmers run to 440. An electric clock is the most economical of all domestic units, demanding only two watts, and a razor needs 12. If, but a clothes dryer is a hog of the household, requiring 4,760. A specialized appliance, however, its hours of weekly use are not numerous.

Automatic heating equipment is listed as requiring 320 watts for the blower fan and 220 for the oil burner motor. Vacuum cleaners make varying demands: 310 for the hand variety, 540 for the tank, 555 for tank, and 750 for the canister types.

A heating pad uses 60 watts, but an electric blanket takes 176. A refrigerator is modest in its demands at 330. Size is a factor, of course, so of necessity these figures are averages.

Other familiar domestic power consumers, out of the list entering 65, are record players 50, dishwashers 1,235, deep fryers 1,360, broilers 1,400 steam irons 1,040, roasters 1,330, toasters 1,130, and mowers 1,455.

Never wonder where all the power produced power is going in Ontario. The home is no less demanding than industry. If the public responsible is not giving a sufficiency of Hydro power sometimes have a harried look and wonder what's the use of all the rush to keep ahead of demand, there's a reason.

Why Not Stone Them?

By Harold Weir in the Vancouver Sun

The difficulty experienced by Salvation Army in finding a location for its home for unmarried mothers reveals an incidence of moral delinquency that few would expect to find in a city as generous and enlightened as Vancouver.

It wouldn't be hard to understand a neighborhood's objection to being invaded by a hospital, a boiler factory or a fish reduction plant. Anyone can readily see a color of right to reject a liquor store, a dance hall or even persons with such a sloppy standard of living that they create slum conditions wherever they settle. No one quarrels with any house-holder's desire to maintain the value of his property.

But just how a quiet and well-ordered home for unmarried mothers would constitute a nuisance or depreciate property values is hard to be explained. In point of fact, it can't be explained except in terms of the grossest moral delinquency.

The mental difference between a citizen who can't abide the proximity of a home for unmarried mothers and the righteous who, in Christ's time, stoned to death by a rain of stones is only a matter of degree.

It's true that a home for unmarried mothers is no great social asset as such institutions are commonly measured. The citizen whose property is enhanced by the proximity of a home for unmarried mother doesn't feel that fine social glow experienced by the citizen whose property rubs shoulders with a home for unwed mothers.

But in a very real and more substantial sense, the adjacency of a home for unmarried mothers confers a distinction on a neighborhood. It's not a social distinction, a distinction on a neighborhood. Each is engaged in a holy work. For the business of succoring and caring for these unfortunate girls is the business of the whole frame of Christ. Without being extravagant or oratorical about it, one has to say that the Christ's specifiable citizens, so observed by their conformity to society that they drive such a home away, are somehow turning Him from their door.

There is no intent here to minimize the gravity of these unfortunate and illicit adventures in sex which land an unhappy child in a home for unmarried mothers. Chastity is still to be admired and reverenced. But it should be remembered that the recklessness and excitement that might lead one girl to break a window is neither more nor less than the recklessness and excitement that will lead another into sexual misbehavior.

One of the few qualities that tend to diminish the heroic stature of Charles Dickens was his habit of making pariahs out of wayward girls. With all his genius social convictions, it didn't occur to Dickens, apparently, to condemn the hounding and ostracism of the wretched Martha in "David Copperfield." This omission is all the more remarkable since Dickens himself, if some biographies are to be believed, was not averse to amatory trifling.

But perhaps that's the clue to this strange horror and contempt which so many "good people" regard the unmarried mother. No one deplores immorality so loudly and bitterly as, (a) the fellow who has had a secret thing at it or, (b), the fellow who would like to have a secret fling at it. Certainly it all the family skeletons in all the family closets could be exposed and to end, they would grin and chatter horribly at the idea of any neighborhood anywhere turning up its community nose at the proximity of a home for unmarried mothers.

G. K. Chesterton wrote somewhere that of all dangerous men the most dangerous is the man who has nothing but his respectability because he will commit any crime and perpetrate any cruelty to preserve that respectability.

Whether or not the Salvation Army's application in this case, only the conscience of those who have objected to this home can say.

Over a news story about black smoke puffed from the volcanic crater of Mount Etna in Sicily, an eastern editor set the caption "Etna belches." This seems unfair to a subject that is already "hot cause me" even if it wanted to.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

There being no longer any room in my room, the family decided to move me into a much larger room where there would be ample space for all my junk, desks, books, ornaments, pictures, treasures.

But there was no more room in the big room than in the smaller. It is a very curious thing. In our modern way of life, no matter how we quite large enough. Sitting here cramped in my new room, with everything looking just about the way it did before I was joined by little room, I was interested to entertain a young relative who, eight years ago, as a baby, married after the war, bought one of those darling little suburban button boxes of homes that even then were being packaged up in the outskirts of town.

In no time at all, li was hopelessly crowded, like a compartment on the train or a room on a ship; and when his three children arrived, one on top of the other, the little bungalow was no longer a home but a sort of storage place, a staging camp en route to some place else.

And some place else they bought, a month ago. Instead of an ample all small, the new home is a ranch style bungalow in the very latest tradition, with picture windows large, and full of cupboards, storage space, trick built-in fixtures that vanish in walls and which you would hardly expect to see in real life but only in the slick magazines.

Do you know something? They could hardly get their furniture in. Before the moving vans were half empty, my young relative and his wife were going through a very strange and mysterious experience, They were finding out that no matter how big their new home is, there is never enough room. What little new stuff they bought in the way of furniture took up all available space without any of the collection that they brought with them years in the built box.

"The new place," he said, mystified, "looks more crowded than the old."

It stands to reason of course. All you have to do is go for a walk through the streets and see the thousand and thousands of people all buying. Buying furniture, appliances, great big stereo radios. Where does it all go? Surely new houses aren't being built fast enough to accommodate all the tons of merchandise that pours into and out of the big stores and the small stores every day of the week.

How about books? Look at all the book stores, drug stores, supermarkets, ladies fancy goods stores pouring out books by the ton.

Where on earth do all the books go?

Newspapers, fortunately, can be thrown out.

We could not let 1956 go by without once more acknowledging our debt of gratitude to your newspaper for its generous coverage and sympathetic support given to The Salvation Army Red Shield Appeal.

Owing to delayed campaigns the national objective has not been reached until late Fall, but returns to date indicate that the objective will be exceeded.

Now Johnny Comes Home With The CRI Again, Kree, That Is

The C R I is any of the Common Respiratory Infections — such as measles, grip, sore throat, scarlet fever, infantile paralysis, whooping cough, meningitis, acute sinusitis — that begins with sneezing and/or stuffiness of the nose, maybe some chilliness and feverishness. Ignorant folk never call it C R I. They call it "cold" and they are always willing to share it with you if you come within range.

If you can manage to keep the feet from the face of a talker with the C R I you are not likely to catch it. But this is not always easy. They want to get closer to you, and if they get as close as two or three feet you are in range for whatever they spray or spatter ih your direction.

Most people today are aware that the Common Respiratory Infections are communicable via cough and sneeze spray. Knowing this, and knowing how prevalent the C R I is in the season of artificial heat, the practice of being coughed or sneezed upon by an unmuzzled boor, few are aware that quite conversational spray may be just as dangerous. Although the droplets of moisture are mostly too fine to be palpable as they strike the face, yet not too small to contain bacteria. Thus the only difference between a cough or sneeze spray and conversational spray is the former carries fewer and heavier fect, the latter less than five feet.

Best protection against the C R I, other than a mouth spray, whether it be cough, sneeze, or conversation spray, is a suitable face mask—gauze or cheesecloth mask, but a Silvers mask.

Doctors and folks who persist in calling C R I "cold" are not likely to take precautions against spread of whatever they may have. Unfortunately for national well-being so many doctors and folks still believe drafts, wet feet, chilling or weather, and even dampness the cause of such illness, that the prevention of respiratory infection remains primarily a personal problem. That is why, in any circumstance you must decide for yourself whether to remain isolated, wear a mask or keep out of sprav range of the ignoramus who comes to work, school, or the party in spite of an alleged you know what.

Empyema, mastoiditis, and pneumonia are frequently called inflammatory rheumatism are frequently familiar complications or sequels of C R I. These and many other complications make respiratory infection accountable for about three-fourths of the work the family doctor has around. This is not just my estimate. It is the conclusion reached by the Ontario Medical Association after a vice, from a survey conducted by officers in various urban and rural communities some thirty years ago.

HEAVEN

What does the Bible teach about heaven?

The Hebrew word for heaven means "heaved-up, shiny"—like space above us and the accumulated clouds. The Greek word for heaven is the Greek word "ouranos," which means sky, or air. Later Jewish teaching pictured seven heavens. Paul tells of being caught up, into the third heaven (II Cor. 12: 2-4). He called this Paradise, and there he 'heard unspeakable words which it is not lawful for a man to utter." In other words, St. Paul says that his experience transcended the power of words to describe.

In heaven God's immediate presence is manifested. The redeemed are there. To heaven Christ ascended after the resurrection, and there He reigns in power. Heaven is pictured in the Bible as a place of peace, joy, and life so abundant that the very river of the water of life flows out of the throne of God established on the banks of the river is the tree of life, "bearing twelve manner of fruits, yielding her fruit every month: and the leaves of the tree are for the healing of the nations."

In heaven tears shall be wiped from all eyes, death shall be no more, neither shall there be mourning, nor crying, nor pain any more. It will be there that God's people shall see his (God's) face, and his name shall be on their foreheads." Heaven will be a place of eternal light, vibrant living, joy, and freedom, and all the hassles we know and we are bound on earth.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

IT'S WHAT LOVE DECIDES

Happy that man or woman should be if he or she can make a decision to do the one thing loved and believed in regardless of the most fiery compensation or fame resulting therefrom. Robert Louis Stevenson put it in these words: "If a man love the labor of any trade, apart from any question of success or fame, the gods have called him."

All too many have followed the God of Money only to learn late in life that they followed the road to a dead end. To do the thing in life you must want to do is merely following out the will of God as that's wise destiny has selected for you—leaving regardless of what others may say, the decision is one of courage and character. I have a friend who is a natural artist, but his father sent him to a well-known college in the East and insisted that he should become a lawyer, a thing that he found he'd be kept up his art work, loving it more and more, and it was not until his father died that he went to work happily at what he apparently was born to do.

How can anyone excel at anything into which he cannot put his heart and enthusiasm? Love begets love, and there is no end to much, and do that much exceedingly well! The story of Lincoln is an inspiring one, but don't think he came upon that marvelous technique in his playful years or overnight. It took him years of patient questing for the greatest advantage is that he loves his work with a passion that amounts to worship of the thing done.

It is interesting to watch a painter at work, or a scientist who puts himself into the flowers that he attends. Dr. George Washington Carver was playful as much that it is said he talked with them. Love for your work makes all the difference in the world as to your happiness and efficiency. Love begets love, but it also loves and godes aright.

Change of Command Parade Held at Artillery School

PICTON — The air strip at the Royal Canadian School of Artillery here was the scene of a colorful ceremony, Thursday afternoon, when a Change of Command parade was held. Lt. Col. G. R. A. Griffin turned over command of the 1st Light Anti-Aircraft Regiment, R.C.A., (AA) to Lt. Col. W. D. H. Frink. It is the first time there has been a change of command ceremony since the unit was formed.

With brilliant sunshine prevailing, and a great variety of army equipment forming a background, the regiment was inspected by Major General J. M. Rockingham, General Officer Commanding 1 Cdn. Infantry Division. He was accompanied by Brigadier R. H. Bishop, Commanding Officer, Roy. 31 Artillery.

During the early part of the inspection, the troops were under the command of Lt.-Col. Coffin, who then handed over command to Lt.-Col. Frink who then commanded the regiment for the remainder of the inspection.

Other officers in attendance included Brig. T. B. Snow, Commander, Eastern Ontario Area, Major R. Cummings, GSO 3 HQ and Major George Falland, DAAG HQ of the Eastern Ontario Command, Major A. Robinson, acting commandant of the camp, represented the Lt. Col. G. L. Vansent who is away on a course.

Lt.-Col. Coffin has been appointed to the Canadian Army Staff College at Kingston.

Canadian Legion Branch Receives High Honor

PICTON — Branch 78 of the Canadian Legion received a high honor at its hall here Wednesday night when the VanSomeren trophy was presented at an open meeting. The trophy is emblematic of the best Legion branch in Ontario last year and was recently awarded. The presentation was made by Major Harold Telgey of Sault Ste. Marie, the immediate past president of the Provincial Command of the Legion. He remarked on the local branch having tripled its membership last year and pointed out that the award also made for service rendered veterans and dependents, community service and public relations. There are 70,000 Legion members in Ontario and 200,000 in Canada, said the speaker who pointed out that this gave the Legion a strong voice when presenting demands to governments.

Accepting the trophy, President L. J. Foley said the record had been accomplished by team work.

Mayor H. J. McFarland extended the town's congratulations. W. S. (Scotty) Broughton, District Commander pointed out that every member has a duty to remember the widows and dependents and the veterans in hospital. The good work of the Legion has won the support of the public, he said.

Others present included W. Bailey, Zone Commander, Pat Bigg, secretary of the Provincial Command, Norris Whitney, MPP and County Warden Clifford Wilson.

Use of More Dogs By Duck Hunters Is Recommended

The use of more dogs by duck hunters to recover cripples in swamps where otherwise they might never be found, is recommended by conservation officers according to the weekly report from the Tweed district of the Lands and Forests department.

Commenting on the success of the noon opening of the duck hunt last Saturday it was noted that two conservation officers using dogs to recover cripples from heavy bags on Sunday had met with some success.

"It is hoped that more dogs will be brought into use next year, the report read.

The noon opening of the duck hunt was said to be a success insofar as the Tweed district was concerned and the majority of hunters checked were in favor of the noon opening. Fewer ducks were lost as compared to the pre-daylight shooting of past years.

Many of the "city — by — night" hunters stayed at home and the true ardent duck hunter was able to enjoy himself with no one spoiling his hunt by blasting away while it was still dark.

While there were a few reports of pre-noon shooting in general hunters abided by the noon opening.

A check of 195 hunters on Saturday revealed a total of 520 birds or 2.7 ducks per hunter. Hunters reported 187 ducks lost with only six cripples being recovered.

Amherst Island hunters had the least lost birds with a recovery rate up over 30 per cent from last year as a result of the increased use of dogs.

On October 2nd 71 hunters were checked having a total of 90 ducks or 1.3 birds per hunter. Twenty four ducks were lost with only three cripples recovered.

CBC Impartiality Said Impossible Under System

OTTAWA (CP)—Private broadcasters say they can't get an even break from the CBC under Canada's broadcasting setup.

They have told the royal commission on broadcasting that impartiality by the CBC is decidedly affecting them is impossible under the present system.

The commission heard Thursday from the private operators that "undue weight" is placed upon the CBC board of governors in judging issues affecting the government corporation and the non-CBC stations.

The private stations, through the Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters, want an independent board established to regulate both the CBC and the other stations. The CBC governors now do this.

"Impartiality is impossible in the present atmosphere," CARTB council Gordon Henderson said to the commission yesterday.

While the motives of the governors might be proper, they would find "direct themselves from the inherent disabilities of the structure."

QUESTIONS CLAIM

But the CART Bran into a challenge from commission Chairman R. M. Fowler on its claim that the new law is "unfair bias" in voting the CBC as against the private broadcasters.

"I fail to see it," Mr. Fowler said.

Mr. Henderson said the reference to bias was in the legal sense of the possibility of bias. By the nature of the setup, the CBC governors in adjudicating cases "have to veer one way or another because they can't be absolutely impartial."

This would not be the case with an independent board.

Council Discusses Prospects For Building New Armoury

TRENTON (Special) — The possibility of the Federal government building a permanent Armoury in Trenton came up for discussion again at a regular meeting of council last night.

Councillor Grant Gooding introduced the question with the comment. "With election coming on next year it seems to be a good time to write Mr. Frank Follwell and get his views."

Mayor Ross Burt explained that there was an understanding existing for a number of years that the project would be pushed ahead when steel was off the priority list, "There is no priority on steel now". "There is no priority on steel now". "It is hoped the new M.P. will be in favor of the CBC as against the private broadcasters.

Councillor Gooding offered. Mr. Gooding continued saying he had nothing against the Armoury but if the town had to have a civil defence centre a nice large site could be made available there. "It seems if they are not going to build an Armoury we can at least get the land back," he said. Councillor Claude Graham, chairman of the local civil defence committee agreed that the Armoury property could be used advantageously for defence headquarters.

Early in the discussion councillor J. MacDonald informed his colleagues that army officers from Kingston had told him 2 years ago Trenton was still on the list of places where the government plans to erect Armouries.

Council decided to have Clerk-treasurer O. W. Larry write Mr. Follwell, M.P., seeking his latest information on the subject.

The Armoury property comprises three acres of land on Dundas Street north of Dixon Drive. It was sold by the town to the Federal government for $1. A frame styled "H" but building on the premises is occupied by "A" Company Headquarters (reserve) of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

Trenton is out to get the Lion's Club International Oratorical Contest for 1957. Council approved a resolution asking the town be given consideration. The 1953 meet auditorium in the new high school in Trenton a favorable setting for the much - sought - after speaking contest.

Approval of accounts closed another brief session with tax collector A. Weaver substituting for clerk-treasurer O. W. Larry away in Toronto attending the Municipal Industrial Development conference.

Theatre Guild

At a meeting of the Belleville Theatre Guild on Wednesday president E. Rickards announced that the executive had arranged to present the first public production, "The White Sheep of the Family" at the Quick Theatre, formerly the Capitol Theatre. Although rental charges will be higher than for the Collegiate, it was felt that this would be offset by the larger seating capacity.

The audience would have the benefit of a comfortably re-decorated theatre, comfortable spacious seating capacity, with an excellent view of the stage from any seat in the house. The stage, originally designed for the legitimate theatre, is highly adaptable for set erection and the Guild would also have the use of the "Park" staff and advertising facilities. It is hoped that Guild members will respond to the challenge by a very vigorous campaign for ticket sales.

WILL GIVE INSTRUCTION

In response to a request from the Dramatic Club of the Picton High School, Nicki Thomas, Winnona Lewis and Mary Doyle will travel to Picton to give instruction in make-up technique. The president also reported that Charles Sloan had agreed to adjudicate the first two workshop productions. After the formal adjudication time will be allowed for an open discussion between the adjudicator and the director or any member present. Mr. Rickards then called for volunteers for a work night Wednesday Oct. 10 at 8 p.m. in the property room. This work night to be supervised by Stuart Robb will be used to repair flats or other stage equipment.

It was moved by Sydney Ross and Mary Moult that the telephoning committee be re-organized to inform members about the meetings.

Mr. Joe MacKay provided the entertainment for the evening with a most enjoyable showing of his collection of colored slides of previous Theatre Guild productions. These pictures provoked many memories of past achievements and the enjoyment that accompanied these successful plays.

Opening Night Of So-Ed Club Held at 'Y'

The So-Ed Club of the Belleville Y.M.C.A. held its first meeting of the fall '56 session at the 'Y' on Campbell Street on Wednesday night.

Registration for this session had started on Tuesday night and continued on Wednesday. The total registration to date has reached the 100 mark and there is still room for the late comers.

Last night was the first meeting, no speaker was featured. President Bert Hiles welcomed the group and gave a brief description of So-Ed, where it started and its aims. The committee was then introduced to the group. Mr. Bren Neal, chairman of interest activities, gave a brief summary of the different classes and where the class would be located.

The So-Ed Club members have received an invitation to visit the Toronto Colleges Inter-'Ed (Central Y.M.C.A.) for an evening in the Lawlor Lounge on December 7.

The members are looking forward with enthusiasm to this event.

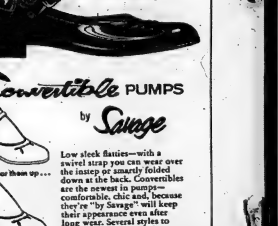
The October issue of the "So-Ed Scene" magazine was published and distributed. Many were disappointed that the New York trip was not to take place on Thanksgiving weekend but were pleased to hear that plans for this trip would be revived in the spring.

The theme of the evening was "Welcome" and was carried out with the decorating of the huge red letter spelling out "Welcome" which were strung across the ceiling. Red, white and blue streamers completed the decor. Several social games were played along the same line with many members and members in getting acquainted.

Refreshments consisting of coffee and doughnuts were then served. After refreshments the meeting was dismissed.

Make stuffing sticks by pressing dressing into a rectangular shape about one inch thick and six inches wide on a greased baking sheet. Bake in refrigerator an an hour, cut in half lengthwise and into one-inch strips crosswise. Bake 20 minutes at 350 degrees fahrenheit and serve criss-cross on platter.

BONES HOLD SHAPE



"There's no reason why the dressing should fall apart around the bird," Miss Trerice says. "A turkey's bones are strong enough to hold their shape while cooking."

For a moist-in-the-mouth holiday turkey the experts advise that it should be uncovered and roasted slowly in a moderate oven (325 degrees fahrenheit. Cooking times should vary from 3½ hours for a nine- to eight-pound bird to five to 7½ to nine hours for a 20- to 24-pound stuffed bird.

The best method is to insert a meat thermometer between the first and second ribs of the turkey so that it penetrates to the center of the dressing.

When the temperature reaches 185 degrees—inserted in the drumstick the thermometer will register 180 to 200 degrees—the bird should be removed from the oven and let stand for 20 to 30 minutes before carving.

GOOD MANNERS

TODAY'S HINT FOR GOOD TABLE MANNERS

Bring food up to your mouth. . . Don't bring your mouth down to food!

GOOD NEWS FOR THE BRIDE TO BE MARRIED IN RECTORY

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I am to be married in about five months and, as my groom-to-be and I are of different faiths, we are to be married in the rectory of the church. Only the attendants and the members of the two families and three very intimate friends are to be present at the ceremony. Like most brides, I have always dreamed of being "dressed like a real bride," wearing a beautiful long wedding dress and a bridal veil. But I have been told by several married and close friends that this wedding costume is not at all correct to wear for a rectory wedding, and that I should wear either an afternoon dress or dressmaker suit or some gay new costume.

When my mother thinks that wearing traditional bridal costume would not be correct for me, I'm afraid she will feel disappointed about this, Mrs. Beeckman. As a matter of fact, I had even thought it might be correct for me to wear this bridal attire and then have a quite large reception after the ceremony, inviting all relatives and friends of both families. If I do wear my "real bride" costume as this reception, please do tell me what you advise. — Ursula R.

I'm so happy that you wrote me. So you give me the happy opportunity to reassure you that of course since (as I judge) it is your first marriage, it is entirely correct for you to wear the "real bride" costume you have always dreamed of wearing . . . formal white, long wedding dress and bridal veil . . . at the ceremony in the Rectory. It makes no difference that so few guests will be at the ceremony. And yes also . . . you may have the large reception you would like to have after the ceremony, invite as many relatives and friends as you wish to, and plan all details as for the customary reception, including the romantic Wedding Cake to be cut first by you and your bridegroom, and all the other wonderful and memorable procedures. And you, the bride, wearing that dream costume! Every good wish to you.

SHOULD SHE BE INVITED TO PRE-WEDDING PARTIES FOR ATTENDANTS?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter and I have a question we would appreciate your answering. She is engaged, and her fiance is to be best man in a wedding to take place in about two months. She and I would like to know if she is supposed to be included in showers and other parties which will be given for the wedding party? I should think she would be included, just as it is customary to include a wife of a member of the wedding party. But she is not sure, and doesn't want to "get her hopes up" . — Mother.

If your daughter's engagement has been announced, you are right in thinking she would be included in these parties. But if the engagement is not announced (you didn't say) she would not necessarily be invited, unless she herself is a very intimate friend of the bride-to-be.

DON'T BE A MEANIE . . . JUST LISTEN PRETTY

If your husband or your wife or your brother or your sister of your Aunt Margaret or your Uncle Jim or a friend tells a joke or a story or an incident you've heard them tell before, possibly several times before, don't be a meanie and make sour or icy remarks about it, or sneer at its age. You'll distress and humiliate the teller. You'll embarrass the person or the persons who are listening, or trying to listen over your discourteous comments. And you'll show that you are mean as well as rude. You'd better throw away this disagreeable habit, and be the pleasant and cooperative human being you should be, the good listener you should discipline yourself to be.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

ENERGY IS A PRECIOUS COMMODITY—CONSERVE IT

You can put off polishing the silver, but don't put off needed rest and relaxation.

Late demands so much more of us women today than it did of our grandmothers. Most of all it demands energy. That mid-Victorian clinging vine who fainted at the drop of a hat has given way to the woman who is expected to be top in everything. You must be a poised and charming hostess, an informed, intelligent and amusing companion to your husband and children. You must go places, travel distances and do things your grandmother never dreamed of being in her horse and buggy days.

Moreover you are expected to keep the home fires burning as well, if not better than grandma ever did. Imagine grandma bothering to worry about calories and nutrition! True, you have the modern devices to wash your dishes, cook your food and clean your house but you still have to run the gadgets and grandma could rest or relax or visit. She had a maid to do everything.

Not long ago I talked with a housewife from India who has been in this country.

"American women work so hard," she said. "Over there, you have all the modern electrical devices for helping you. We don't have those in India but we do have servants who shop for the food, prepare it, cook and serve it for us and who do all the household tasks. We may not have as much freedom nor as many new gadgets as you but we do not work as hard as you do."

When it's hopping for Paris for a weekend, driving 100 miles to a party or dashing to a P.T.A. or a woman's club meeting, sandwiching in, of course, the smooth running of a household, the thing life demands most of women these days is energy. So today's woman must regard energy as one of her most precious commodities and learn to conserve it.

One of the best ways of saving energy is by keeping calm. If you are under stress, learn to sit quietly and meditate for at least 10 minutes. Jealousy, envy, self-pity and hatred eat up an immense amount of energy and destroy happiness. Learn to never let them take hold in your mind.

Train yourself, too, to eliminate all unnecessary energy consuming activities. Ask yourself "Is this necessary?" of everything you do that requires time and energy.

Conserve your energy, also, by resting whenever you can. When you find a free half hour use it to relax and rest. Don't remind yourself of the silver that must be polished or the socks that must be darned. They can wait. After all, you can't run a car with a run-down battery. Use that half hour to recharge your energy. You'll live a healthier and happier life if you do.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

PERHAPS YOU WILL JUST HAVE TO ACCEPT THE CONSEQUENCES

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'm 19 years old and very much in love with a girl who will soon be 17. It's not just puppy love, but honest-to-goodness love. I've known her for three years and have loved her since the day we met.

For about a year I was unable to see her, because her parents didn't approve of me. I couldn't figure out why they didn't like me because I've never done anything to be ashamed of.

Then, about a year and a half ago, we started to go steady, but because of her parents, my girl had to meet me around the corner, instead of my being able to come to her home.

About two and a half months ago we eloped, but we were unable to get married for certain reasons. When we got back, we went to her parents and told them what we had done. At first they seemed to be very understanding, but when we asked them if we could have their blessing on our marriage, they said no. Right then and there I left, telling her that if she would forget me, they'd let her come back home. Of course she can't forget me.

Now she's written and told me she is going to have a baby. She said that her parents would never speak to her again and that they have threatened to put her in a Home. If they did put her in a Home, could they keep her there after she became 18, and could they get her there even if she's going to have a baby? If she does go to a Home, I'll wait for her because I love her that much.

Her parents haven't said anything to me about this and I've written so many letters to my girl and received no reply. She claims her parents won't let her write to anyone, and when she gets out, someone always goes with her. I know we're very young, but I know we could be happy if her parents would only give us a chance. I have a good job and I'm the steady worker and can provide for a wife and child.

Is there anything I can do about my problem? I'm so worried that I can hardly work. — H.L.T.

Dear H.L.T.:

Your letter seems rather confused and inconsistent on several points, but I shall answer it to the best of my ability.

In the first place, let me ask you a question:

Even allowing for the fact that the attitude of this girl's parents drove the two of you to distraction, do you honestly think you showed true love when you took a girl not yet 17 away and had intimate relations with her? Don't you think by doing this you gave her parents a very good reason to believe that you were not a young man to whom they would like to trust their daughter?

Yes, I know all the arguments you would put up about why you did this. But now, but for a young man who has wanted a girl's parents' consent to approve of him, you couldn't possibly, of course, have gone about things in a worse way. And now, I'm afraid, what you've done may have ruined any chance you might ever have had of eventually changing the parents' feelings toward you.

Frankly, I don't see that there is anything you can do now but to wait for the girl knew you intend to stand by and wait until something develops that may give you a opportunity to step into the situation, or unless she tells you herself. In the meantime, that she doesn't care to have you do this. I suggest also that you write a letter to the parents—since, I assume, they would refuse to let you come to see them—and tell them that you're prepared to pay any expenses that may arise in connection with this girl's pregnancy. And, also, that you'd expect to send money to support the child after it was born unless, of course, it were decided that the baby must be adopted.

And I think you'll have to remember this:

That a girl who is not yet 17 is not ready to decide about marrying anyone. No matter what you say about "real honest-to-goodness love," it's not possible for a girl as young as this one to know what real honest-to-goodness love" is. I doubt if you know yourself.

I wish I could hold out more hope to you that things will eventually straighten out, but from what I've suggested, I think you can only await a move on the girl's part. It's unfortunate any time that she has you very much in her thoughts, and I'd advise her friendship with you if it becomes possible, then you can keep hoping for the best. But there are too many factors against this, including her extreme youth, to hold any sound reason for a happy outcome. You made reckless and disastrous mistakes. All that may be left for you to do is to accept the consequences with all the manliness you can summon up, and thereby gain maturity and wisdom that will make a better thing of your future.

Reader's Friday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

NOTE TO READERS:

I love to hear from you. I do my best to answer your letters whether you are asking for a baked bean recipe for 500 people or pheasantry breasts prepared the two!

But I do like you to enclose a stamped envelope. That way I can answer through the column or by mail. Allow me plenty of time to answer, for there are quite a few of you asking for one thing or another.—M. M.

QUESTION:

I am writing to ask if you will be so kind as to give a recipe for putting stuffing in green peppers —hamburg—my husband says it is very good but I don't know how to make it.—Mrs. Arthur W.

ANSWER:

Our family likes them too.

STUFFED BAKED GREEN PEPPERS

To serve six cut 6 green peppers in halves lengthwise and remove seeds and stem. Parboil, covered, in very small amount of water five minutes. Drain. Combine 1 or 1-4 lbs. minced beef with 1 egg, 2 slices stale whole wheat bread soaked in 1-3 cup boiling water, 1 tablespoon diced onion, 1-3 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon catsup, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1-8 teaspoon pepper. Mix well and fill peppers with this. If desired a little grated cheese mixed with some dry breadcrumbs may be sprinkled over top. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 35 to 40 minutes.

QUESTION:

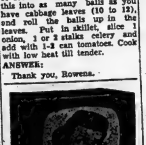
I enjoy your column very much . . . I wonder if you can solve my two problems: (1) During . . . a trip to Colorado we stopped at a restaurant where I liked the French Dressing . . . we bought a bottle at their counter . . . reddish in color, sweet, does not separate . . . ingredient listed are oil, vinegar, sugar, tomato juice, eggs and paprika. . . . Per night I make such a delicious dressing!—M. Y.

ANSWER:

My non-separating French dressing that resembles that goes as follows:

NON-SEPARATING FRENCH DRESSING

In a cold bowl mix together three tablespoons vinegar, tablespoon each lemon juice and tomato juice and paprika, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon garlic salt (or 2 or 3 slices from garlic clove), 2 tablespoons sugar and 1 large egg. Mix very well. Slowly start adding while beating constantly, 1 cup cold salad oil, in an extremely fine stream. An electric beater on low speed is excellent. Do not hurry when adding the oil, and do beat constantly, until thick. Store covered.



GOLUMKIE

(Courtesy Rowena W.)

These are Polish Cabbage Rolls. Take the large outside leaves from a big head of cabbage and cook in boiling water until limp. Cool. Mix 1 lb. minced beef and pork, mixed half and half, 1 finely chopped garlic clove, 2 medium onions chopped, 1 or 1 1-3 cups of cooked rice and 1 egg. Form into as many balls as you have cabbage leaves (10 to 12), and roll the balls up in the leaves. Put in skillet, slice 1 onion, 1 or 2 stalks celery and add with 1-3 can tomatoes. Cook with low heat till tender.

Sunday School Lesson

Judge by Our Question

By ROY L. SMITH

We have so many ways of judging men—by their clothes, their bank accounts, their business associates, or their political opinions. All these standards have value in assessing any man's worth, of course. But one of the most exact ways of judging any man is by the questions he asks.

GENESIS CONTAINS ANSWERS

One of the ways by which man is distinguished from the brutes is by measuring the questions he asks. A boy and an ox, for example, will watch an automobile go down the road, and both ask questions. The ox is concerned solely with the matter of his danger. When the threat is past, he returns to his grass with never another thought. The boy begins asking deep questions the moment he sees it appearing far down the highway. "What kind is it?" "Who is driving?" "What makes it go?" "Why is it driven in the way it is?" Then, long after the car has gone by, he asks, "Why is it that one man can own an automobile and ride in luxury while another man has to walk?" Such a question never enters the mind of an ox.

The Uniform Sunday school lesson for October 7: "The Creation Story," Genesis 1:1 —2:3.

In the book of Genesis we have the answers to a long list of the deep questions with which every person has wrestled, at one time or another. "How did it all begin?" "Who made it?" "What does it mean?" "What are the differences that really count?" At least we have the answers that have inspired a great people through many centuries, to have faith in life.

ONLY TWO ANSWERS

In any attempt to find a solution for such problems, he is restricted to but two possible answers. Either (1) this universe is the product of a blind chance, or (2) it has been designed.

Each of these answers must be judged by the way it provides an explanation of the universe that lies stretched out before our eyes.

The unreligious man—the unbeliever—has not escaped any questions by the simple expedient of saying, "I do-not believe in God." All he has accomplished is that he has ruled out of consideration any hope of finding an explanation for the universe in terms of a personal Creator. He has but one other possible way to go. He must explain the mysteries on the basis of blind chance.

It is true, of course, that the religious man who lives by faith continues to be confronted by questions. No one has ever yet found answers to all the problems and puzzles. But instead of giving up, as does the agnostic who says "I don't know," the religious man goes out into the unknown saying, "I believe."

This generation must stand judged by the questions it asks, and when we ask a few of them, our superficiality stands out like a tragic indictment. "How much does it cost?" "What do I get out of it?" "Where do we go from here?" "Who cares?" "What will people think?" "So what?" "What are the Russians up to?" "When do we eat?" "What was the final score?" "How many miles do you get to the gallon?" "How will the Negroes vote?"

A rather successful young businessman was engaged in a vigorous argument with an elderly man, in the course of which he had betrayed his intense interest only in the present tense. "If these things are not important what is?" he demanded, just a little testily. "Ask me that question a hundred years from now," the older man asked. And suddenly the conversation became very silent.

The citizens of Wellington are all real proud of their pee-wee baseball team and really showed it on Sunday when they welcomed home the kids on their return from Wheat y, where they had won the Ontario Pee-wee "C" championship. About 50 carloads of enthusiastic citizens went as far as Trenton to meet them, while others w led at Hilller with the fire truck where the boys all left the cars to ride home in triumph on the big red truck. Others lined the streets waving as they went by.

The kids will never forget the homecoming they received that day. One citizen of Wheatley, an elderly lady, who said she had never missed a baseball game this season in Wheatley (and they have three teams playing), told some of the Wellington men that the game on Saturday was the best game she had seen all summer.

Last Friday afternoon the office of the Canners Seeds was the scene of a presentation to Mr. W. G. Wilson who is retiring after many years of service. He was presented with a tan leather travelling bag by the men of the plant and the ladies of the pitting room.

Mr. Wilson entered the employ of Canadian Canners in 1921, transferred to Canners Seeds in 1925, was appointed manager in 1928 and was president in 1952 and 1953.

Solved my IRRIGULARITY problem

Writes M. Brocelle, Windsor, Ont., "Since 1941 I've eaten Kellogg's All-Bran every day. I'm grateful for the way it keeps me regular. By adding hot tea or coffee, milk and sugar it becomes a flavorful hot cereal."

Good-tasting Kellogg's All-Bran has helped millions. Why not you? All-Bran contains the two common causes of constipation: lack of bulk in the diet. Try a bowl a day. About half a cup supplies all the natural laxative bulk you need daily. Kellogg's—the original ready-to-eat whole bran. Nutritious and laxpreative. For gentle, natural regularity.

WOMEN PROTEST

The authority said the BNA Act states that either language may be used in debates in Parliament, the Quebec legislative council and legislature and in any court established under federal statute or in Quebec courts.

He said under federal statutes English is no more official than French and French is no more official than English. However, he said provincial governments have the right to declare a language official in a province.

NO LEGAL RIGHT

In Montreal, Senator Thomas Vien, a Liberal, said bilingual street signs in Ottawa may be permissible by custom, practice and courtesy, but that French-speaking Ottawa citizens cannot claim them as a "constitutional right."

He said the terms of the BNA Act allow French - speaking citizens "no constitutional right" to claim French as an official language in provincial or municipal affairs other than in Quebec province.

Mrs. Hitsman said the federal government had let bilingualism creep into its affairs starting as far back as 1927, when the post office department started issuing stamps in both languages. Bilingual money orders and currency came in 1936.

Mrs. Hitsman, also a vice-president of the national federation's general council said Parliament should either make French an official language nationally or stop using it nationally.

GERMAN, TOO?

"Well it's legal, we're against using it," she said. She added, "If we're going to make French legal (nationally), I'd personally like to see German legal, too."

Mrs. Hitsman said she is from the Kitchener district and her parents were German-speaking.

Meanwhile the by-law is awaiting approval of the Ontario highways department. Mrs. Hitsman said the Ottawa branch also is protesting to the provincial department.

Alderman J. Clem Aubin, who sponsored the bilingual signs, said it is fitting that the capital city should recognize the two languages. There also was a safety factor in having bilingual signs in the lowertown area where there was a large number of French-speaking citizens.

SAAR ADDS PROVISO

SAARBRUECKEN (AP) — The Saar cabinet Tuesday night voted approval of the French-German agreement to hand the Saarland over to the Bonn Republic by next Jan. 1. Anniversary services were celebrated at Scott's church on Sunday with the Rev. W. G. Dovey, Redneraville, as guest speaker at both services. In the morning service the new hall was dedicated and the key handed over to Mr. F. Moon, chairman of the building committee. Mr. Dovey gave some pertinent advice as to why one should attend church.

In the evening service he asked the question "Who is Jesus Christ" and showed Him compared to Elijah for power; Jeremiah for pathos and compassion, and John the Baptist for spiritual grandeur. "We should be most concerned about what Jesus thinks of us and our attitude towards Him. He has power to heal men and to raise up those dead in sin. We must relate our lives to Christ in our every day life if we want to be a vital force for good. What will you do with Jesus? and why? will He do with you?

Scotty W.A. held an anniversary turkey supper in the new hall on Monday evening with a good crowd in attendance. Many compliments were passed out regarding both quality and quantity of the fare served.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lawrence, Port Credit, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Carr.

It takes money to make good gasoline

Gasoline quality has risen tremendously in the past few years. Two gallons of today's gasoline do the work of three in the '20s.

Finding new techniques to make these improved gasolines, and new equipment to put these techniques to work, has cost a lot of money.

Imperial, with by far Canada's most extensive oil research facilities, has spent 20 million dollars over the past ten years on research alone.

Imperial spent 65 million in the same period directly on new equipment to improve gasoline quality.

It's costing more and more money to make the gasolines required by today's more powerful cars.

Prediction Made 3,100 Will Die on Canadian Roads This Year as Result of Accidents

QUEBEC (CP)—Antoine Rivard, provincial solicitor - general and transport minister, predicted Thursday night that 3,100 persons will die on Canadian roads this year as a result of traffic accidents.

Mr. Rivard, who recently was appointed general chairman of the Canadian highway safety conference, said one person is killed every three hours in traffic accidents. The Quebec cabinet minister was the main speaker at the closing banquet of the Canadian Good Roads Association's annual convention.

Mr. Rivard also touched on provincial autonomy. He said the decentralization of legislative and fiscal powers is essential to the preservation of responsible government in Canada.

In one of the final study sessions of the three-day convention, delegates heard that irritation caused by traffic jams is responsible for many accidents.

Jacques Barriere, traffic engineer with the Montreal traffic department, said if a motorist is unduly delayed, the successive "stops and starts" play on his nerves and he is liable to commit "imprudences."

Mr. Barriere said measures should be taken to insure speed uniform and maintain it at a fair level.

"By applying this rule we may expect that 50 per cent of our accidents on our roads will be avoided," he said.

A. J. Freedman, of the Ontario highways department said new standards exist in Ontario for design and location of construction signs. His department is planning publication of a construction sign manual to remedy the situation.

Effects of the St. Lawrence Seaway on traffic planning in the Montreal area were outlined by C. E. Campeau, director of Montreal city planning department. He said there is a "unique opportunity" to put to work a regional traffic and development planning authority in the Montreal area.

Montreal has to face "intensive competition" from other Canadian urban centres that will gain navigation facilities and hydro-electric power through the seaway. This means Montreal must offer better conditions and facilities "by an appropriate program of industrial expansion and long-term planning."

The seaway would have the effect of intensifying traffic problems created by the "stop and go" nerves and he is liable to commit "imprudences."

P. A Gaglardi, British Columbia highways minister, was re-elected president of the association.

Supreme Court Has Ticklish Point to Decide

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada reserved judgment Thursday as to whether the Ontario Court of Appeal rightly ordered a new trial for a 21-year-old Toronto mail truck driver convicted of murder and sentenced to death for the sex-slaying of a young girl.

Some fine legal points are involved in the appeal brought before the high court by the Ontario attorney-general, W. B. Common, provincial director of public prosecutions, contended the Ontario Appeal Court "exceeded" its authority" on at least one point in its majority decision ordering the new trial.

Central figure in the case is Robert Fitton, father of two children, who was convicted last April for the January slaying of 13 year-old Linda Lampkin of Toronto. Medical evidence was that the girl had been sexually attacked and strangled with her own scarf.

In June, less than a month before Fitton was scheduled to be hanged, the Ontario Appeal Court in a split decision ordered a new trial. One consideration in the decision was admissibility of a signed statement by Fitton admitting he strangled the girl but saying "I didn't mean to do it."

HEARING OBJECTED

Fitton's statement said "she had started kibbitzing around and I grabbed her by the scarf and she didn't breathe no more."

Defence Kellock asked defence counsel D. G. Humphrey what was meant by the phrase "kibbitzing around." Mr. Humphrey said he did not know.

He amplified his reply by saying the defence's theory, based on Fitton's statement, was that there had been sexual relations, that the girl had "wanted more" and that Fitton had then grabbed her by the scarf to "quieten her" after she started "kibbitzing around."

Mr. Common contended that the appeal court decision, in questioning the statements' propriety and admissibility as evidence — whether it had been given voluntarily without cross-examination—had overstepped its legal mark by "invading the realm of fact."

LIZ TO SHED WILDING

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Elizabeth Taylor said Wednesday she will file for a Nevada divorce from British actor Michael Wilding. She declined comment on whether the divorce will be followed by a wedding to producer Michael Todd. 48. Wilding is 20 years older than the 24-year-old Miss Taylor. They have two children.

U.S. Govt. Deeply Concerned Over Tito's Journey to Russia

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States government is reported to be still completely in the dark — and deeply concerned — about the purpose of Yugoslav President Tito's talks with Russian leaders.

In this uncertain situation, state department officials are considering Communist Yugoslavia's urgent request for emergency American wheat shipments to meet a severe shortage.

There is reason to believe the wheat request may be separated from the broader problem confronting President Eisenhower, who faces a decision by Oct. 15 on whether or not Yugoslavia is still eligible for general economic and military assistance from the U.S.

The best available information is that Eisenhower may announce soon that he is without sufficient information to rule on the broad question but that he believes Yugoslavia to be qualified for U.S. wheat shipments.

On the whole Yugoslav aid program, Congress specified that such help be halted entirely unless Eisenhower determines by Oct. 15 not only that Yugoslavia is following an independent foreign policy but that continuing economic and arms aid to her would be in the American national interest.

There is hope at the state department that before the deadline there will be some word from Tito. Conveyed by the U.S. ambassador to Belgrade, James W. Riddleberger.

Dispatches from both Belgrade and Moscow indicated Tito might return home today.

Officials here tend to discount the general speculation from Belgrade and elsewhere in Europe that Tito suddenly flew to the Crimea with Soviet Communist Party Chief Nikita Khrushchev to help defend Khrushchev against colleagues critical of the program to discredit Stalin. Authorities here do not believe that either Khrushchev or Tito would feel that the Yugoslav leader could have any influence on people whom Khrushchev himself could not influence.

There is considerable belief here that at the Crimea meeting the Russians have put the strongest possible pressures on Tito to stop trying to promote greater independence for the satellite countries, and to mesh his policies more closely with those of Moscow.

Most officials here say they think Tito is determined to retain the independence of action he staked out for himself when he broke with Moscow in 1948.

Appeal Court Turns Down $50,000 Suit

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario Court of Appeal Thursday expressed sympathy in the case of French teacher Merita Lacarte, but it turned down her $50,000 libel suit against the Toronto board of education.

The court, in an oral judgment delivered by Mr. Justice Wilfred D. Roach, dismissed her appeal by unanimous decision. However, the court said it was "sympathetic."

Miss Lacarte was dismissed eight years ago by the board of education for what it called "lack of co-operation." Since then, she said, the case has cost her $25,000 in litigation and lost income.

She said the letter of dismissal, which passed through several hands, contained the libel and as a result she has been unable to get a teaching job in or out of Toronto.

Mr. Justice D. C. Wells originally dismissed the case and she appealed on the grounds that he did not let the case go to the jury.

Stevenson Mixes Vote-Seeking With Recreation by Taking Day off to See Ball Game

NEW YORK (AP)—Democrat Adlai Stevenson mixed vote-seeking with recreation today as he arranged to take in a world series game between campaign speeches.

Meantime, there were indications that President Eisenhower may be planning to broaden his political activities still further in the remaining month of the presidential battle.

Stevenson expected to be at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn for the second series game between the Dodgers and the Yankees. Eisenhower was at the opener Wednesday.

Stevenson ran into weather troubles Thursday in West Virginia, but he made it to New York for sidewalk rallies. The Democratic presidential candidate, was heartened by the big crowds that turned out to hear and cheer him in Harlem, where the population is chiefly Negro and Puerto Rican.

On the school segregation issue, Stevenson said that when Eisenhower "was presented with an opportunity for great national leadership in this field, he was virtually silent." Stevenson referred to his support of the United States Supreme Court decision banning segregation of white and Negro pupils in public schools.

Earlier, he told a sidewalk rally in the east side, where the inhabitants largely are Jewish, that it was time Eisenhower "moved in and took command" of American policy toward the Middle East.

"Israel is imperilled," Stevenson said.

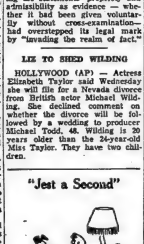
In Washington, the White House announced Eisenhower will spend an extra day in the Pacific northwest states, and that he may widen his electioneering activity in the Pittsburgh area next week.

Eisenhower is scheduled to make a major talk in Pittsburgh next Tuesday.

Vice-President Nixon, who conferred with the president Thursday said in a coast-to-coast television interview at night that the Republicans will not "hold out any false hopes" for an early end to compulsory military service.

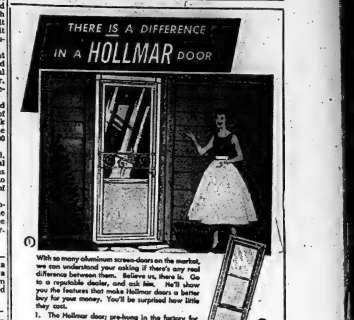
He thus hammered again at Stevenson's call for halting conscription "at the earliest possible moment consistent with the national safety."

Senator Estes Kefauver, the Democratic vice - presidential nominee, headed for stops today in Tucson and Phoenix, Ariz., and Pueblo, Colo.



During a combined automobile-helicopter push through the Los Angeles area Thursday, Kefauver said Nixon hasn't indulged in "vituperation and name-calling so far in this campaign, but it is not clear whether this is election measles or a genuine change."

"If it is genuine, he should apologize to the people he has damaged, and he has not done so."



SUBWAY TO CNE?

TORONTO (CP)—Board of Control has asked the Toronto Transit Commission to make a study of a possible extension of the existing Yonge Street subway west from the Union Station to the Canadian National Exhibition grounds. The proposed 1½-mile westward extension to the exhibition grounds would be mainly open cut, following existing railway lines.

Had No Case Against Staples Says Garson

MONTREAL (CP) — Justice Minister Garson says the government "never ever" set out to "get" James Stanley Staples under the Official Secrets Act.

However, under law officers, after examining the case, "expressed the opinion that no action in law lay against him."

Staples, 30, was hired as a poor security risk after he had been at work at the RCAF Rockcliffe station here last winter. Recently, after contact with Gouzenko Popov, second secretary at the Russian Embassy here, Popov was expelled from Canada July 13 on orders of the Canadian government for attempting to obtain information from Staples on the RCAF's new supersonic jet fighter, the CF-105.

In a letter to the Montreal Gazette, published Thursday, Mr. Garson says:

"In the early part of 1955 it was observed that Mr. Staples was having numerous social contacts with members of the staff of the Soviet Embassy.

WARNED OFF

"He was interviewed by the RCAF security authorities and was warned of the possible danger of such contacts and was requested to break them off.

"At this interview Mr. Staples volunteered the statement that he had already ceased these associations. At the same time arrangements were made by the RCAF to deny Mr. Staples access to classified information.

"Despite the warning, Mr. Staples later resumed his association with Mr. Popov and it was eventually decided that Staples was not a suitable person to be employed by the RCAF. . . .

"I would like to point out that, since the law officers of the Crown, having examined the case with a view to determining whether a prosecution under the Official Secrets Act could be made against Mr. Staples, expressed the opinion that no action in law lay against him, the government made every endeavor to protect his anonymity."

ANSWERS COLUMNIST

Mr. Garson was taking issue with an editorial page column by Arthur Blakely, The Gazette's Ottawa correspondent, and published in The Gazette Oct. 2.

Mr. Blakely criticized the government's security system and contended that "official sources" had "leaked" the announcement that Staples had been fired as a security risk.

Mr. Garson says Staples' name first became known to the public when Pat Walsh, secretary-treasurer of the "Pan-Canadian Anti-Communist League," released a brief to newspapers Sept. 24.

Mr. Garson says Mr. Walsh did not get his information from a government source.

Kingston Presbyterial Holds 23rd Mission Band Rally in Belleville

IVANHOE — The 23rd Mission Band rally of the Kingston Presbyterial of the Presbyterian Church in Canada was held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville, on the afternoon of Sept. 26.

This annual event is eagerly anticipated by the members of the Mission Band and Explorer groups. This year the fine weather made it possible a good attendance and an interesting and instructive program was carried out.

The Presbyterial secretary of The Children's department, Miss Bessie Fleming, presided and gave the call to worship. Following the singing of "Jesus Bids Us Shine," Stirling Mission Band led in the devotions, in keeping with the theme, "Let Your Light Be Shine."

Those taking part were; Kenneth Fargey, Robert Russell; Sharon Johnston and Rosalyn Rodgers.

Linda Marmer, Belleville, rendered the violin solo and Alleen Beaton, of Madoc, replied.

The minutes of the last rally were read by Mrs. D. I. Fleming, secretary protem and approved.

There were 41 children and 12 leaders present. The following groups were represented; Bells-ville; Trenton; Kingston; and Strathcona Park Explorer; Madoc; Stirling and West Huntingdon Mission Bands.

The offering was presented by David Fleming and Grant Thompson, of West Huntingdon, and Miss Fleming led in the offertory prayer.

Leslie Button, Rosemary Button, and Shirley Port, Trenton Explorers, sang "Birds Are Singing", accompanied by Isobel Williamson.

Children's Department secretary gave a full report of the year's work as of Dec. 1955. There are five Explorer groups and six Mission Bands with a total membership of 205. Total contribution to missions are $17.98. The group recorded much activity, mission and Bible Study.

HANVER AWARDED

Mrs. John Craig gave the decision of the judges and awarded the Banner to the Strathcona Park Explorers. This group organized in December, 1954 with a membership of 4 increased to 31 in 1955 and carried out a full course of study and exploration. Mrs. Craig commended not only the children in this group, but every child present for the work and study accomplished in the past year. The banner was accepted by the leader, Mrs. D. Kay.

Under the new church curriculum, the 6-8 age groups in the church will no longer be called Mission Bands, but will be known as "Children of the Church," or C.O.C.

An invitation, extended by Mrs. H. Fanham to hold the 1957 Rally in Kingston St. Andrew's Church was accepted.

Kingston Explorers sang the Explorer's Hymn, "This Is My Faith, This My World."

The Children's Department was then given the theme to have as their guest speaker Miss Agnes Gollen, B.A., who returned in August from the mission field in Nigeria, West Africa.

Miss Gollen, by use of a large map, told of the country. Nigeria, about the size of Ontario, with a population of 30,000,000. Farming is the main occupation although there do not have much machinery.

The guest speaker showed native costumes modelled by a small boy and girl. The rich material was beautifully woven in bright colors. Also on display were pictures the church school and native children; Miss Gollen's dog, Charley, with a native.

Led by Miss Gollen, the children learned a song in the Ibo language, then the chorus of "Jesus Loves Me."

After thanking the children for all efforts put forth in the past she urged them to continue their work.

Mrs. Harry Benson president of West Huntingdon W.M.S. thanked Miss Gollen the session of St. Andrew's and all who had contributed to the program.

Greetings from Kingston Presbytery were brought by the Rev. R. D. McLean, pastor of St. Andrew's.

The children's department is grateful to the large number of W.M.S. members, synodical and presbyterial officers, to mission leaders and their wives who by their presence inspired interest and brought encouragement.

Following the hymn, "The Wise May Bring Their Learning", Mr. MacLean closed with prayer.

Mrs. Ross Fleming, on behalf of the gathering, moved a vote of thanks for the delicious refreshments served by the members of St. Andrew's W.M.S.

Australia Studies British Trade Proposal

CANBERRA (Reuters) — Australia is actively considering Britain's proposal to join in a partial free trade area in Western Europe, Trade Minister John Mc-Ewen told the House of Representatives last night.

He said Britain has asked the Australian government for its reaction to the suggested participation and added that the government is considering the implication for Australian trade with Britain and Europe.

The proposal was discussed in Washington last week between Harold Macmillan, Britain's chancellor of the exchequer, and Commonwealth finance ministers.

It envisages a gradual reduction of trade barriers within a common market area and the drawing up of a common external tariff no higher than the average of existing tariffs.

McEwen said the British decision to exclude agricultural products from participation in the plan meant that Australia's major trade with the United Kingdom would be protected.

Strengthening Of NATO Seen Prime Need

BERLIN (Reuters) — Robert Murphy, United States deputy under-secretary of state, said Thursday the United States believes strengthening the Atlantic community remains of the greatest importance despite shifts in Russian policy.

Addressing delegates of the Ernest Reuter Society and the Congress of Cultural Freedom here, Murphy urged closer European co-operation and strengthening of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Murphy said despite the variety of changes that had taken place in Russia, "the main elements that make the Soviet Union a threat to our security remain unaltered."

He suggested "the political functions of NATO should be appropriately broadened" and said military strength must be maintained and developed.

Murphy said contradictions in the Russian cycle m"thod and not strict" Soviet choices of action.

"For our part," he said, "our essential condition mustbe met: the Soviet Leaders must be deprived of victories.

"The Free World must be resolute and skilful in preventing further Soviet conquests by force or by trickery. Only in this way will they be induced to advance further toward a responsible participation in international affairs."

Kidnapped Babe's Mother Enters State Asylum

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. (AP) — The frail, young mother of kidnapped and murdered Cynthia Ruotolo entered a state mental institution here Thursday night.

State's attorney Abraham S. Ullman, who is heading the investigation into the six-weeks-old baby's death, said he understood 33-year-old Mrs. Eleanor Ruotolo had asked to be admitted to the Connecticut Valley Hospital. But he said he did not know why.

Dr. Egnard Yerbury, superintendent at the hospital, told reporters this morning that Mrs. Ruotolo, wife of an 880-a-week paint salesman, was a "voluntary patient." He said she was not committed to the institution, but entered of her own accord.

Cynthia disappeared from her carriage left by Mrs. Ruotolo in the foyer of a department store in Hamden, Conn., Sept. 1.

The infant's body turned up five days later in a lake, about a mile from the store. It was stuffed in an airtight plastic bag and weighted down with a stone.

Mrs. Ruotolo collapsed in her husband's arms during graveside services for the baby and had to be taken away in a police car.

Cynthia was the third infant Mrs. Ruotolo and her husband, Stephen, had lost to death. One child died of pneumonia and a second died in an accident.

Massey Visits Moose Factory

MOOSONEE (CP) — Governor-General Massey was scheduled to leave today for Moose Factory Island, the oldest Hudson Bay Company post in Ontario.

His canoe journey four miles upriver from this James Bay community to the island was to show him a settlement established in 1725 by the Hudson's Bay Company and in continuous operation since that time.

Moosonee is the most northerly point reached by the Ontario Northland Railway.

For more than the first 100 years of its life the trading post on the island was the seat of the territory's only government. All surrounding land was then owned by the company.

CUSTOMS PROBLEM

VIENNA (Reuters) — A man wrote to a Hungarian newspaper saying Hungarian customs officials ordered him to open every can of sardines he had brought to Hungary to feed his family. When he complained, they agreed he need not open all the cans provided those unopened were given as a gift to the state. He said the officials feared spies might bring back messages from abroad in sealed sardine cans.

Assisted Woman Who Then Takes Month-Old Baby

CHICAGO (AP)—Police hunted today for a month-old baby boy who, his mother told police, was kidnapped Thursday night from his crib by a young woman she had befriended.

Mrs. Lois Bucher, 21, told police she had met the woman, described as about the same age and an expectant mother, in a store near her southwest side home Thursday.

She said the woman, a stranger, admired her baby, Ronald Joseph, when they met in the store and expressed hope that hers would be as beautiful. When Mrs. Bucher started to leave the store, she said, the woman told her she was feeling ill and Mrs. Bucher invited her to her home "to rest until you feel better."

Later the woman asked Mrs. Bucher if she would go to the drug store and telephone for a cab to take her home.

Mrs. Bucher said she was gone about five or six minutes, and when she returned the stranger and the baby were gone.

Newcombe And Larsen Given Chance To Win First World Series Game

Postponement of Second Game For Day Forces Bookies to Make Series Even Money Affair

BROOKLYN (AP) — Their chance to win their first world series game delayed 24 hours by rain, Don Newcombe, Brooklyn's biggest winner in 32 years and Don Larsen, New York's hottest pitcher in September, tried it again at Ebbets Field today as the Dodgers and Yankees squared off in the second game of the 1956 series. Pleasant weather was forecast.

The postponement, first since 1951, failed to dim the enthusiasm of the baseball-hungry fans, who were expected to join the scheduled 34,000-seat park just as they did Wednesday when 34,479, including President Eisenhower, saw Sal Maglie pitch the Dodgers to a 6-3 triumph in the series opener.

Scheduled to be among the spectators was Adlai Stevenson, Democratic candidate for president. Stevenson was to have appeared at Yankee Stadium for the third game but after Thursday's postponement, he was invited to come to Brooklyn instead.

Although neither manager felt his team had gained any particular advantage by the postponement, the circumstances thought differently. Latest odds made today's game as well as the series an even money affair. First game been played Thursday, the Yankees would be 6-5 as the favorite. That's the way it was for the series, too.

The price for today's game dropped because the extra day's rest figures to help Newcombe, a pitcher-maker explained. "By the same token, the series price dropped," Sal Maglie will be able to get another day's rest."

Thursday's postponement came at 10:03 a.m. came after Commissioner Ford Frick learned a long, heavy rain was forecast.

"No world series game ever has been stopped short of nine innings," he said, "and we don't want that ever to happen. It is my responsibility to the players and fans that no game has to be called because of adverse weather conditions."

Casey Stengel, Yankee manager, did not like the postponement but, surprisingly, neither did Walter Alston, the Dodger skipper.

"It could be better for Maglie," Alston said. "I was thinking of using Sal again Sunday for the fifth game but first I was going to talk with him to find out about his arm. Now the fifth game will be on Monday so it will enable Maglie to get another day of rest.

"Newcombe would simply prefer to have played as scheduled. He's on a winning wave. We're hitting. We have the momentum. A day off might hurt. And another day of rest for Newcombe might not be good. I think he is at his best pitching every fourth day. A longer rest affects his pinpoint control."

Newcombe was inclined to agree with his manager.

"I don't particularly like the postponement," said the Dodgers' 27-game winner. "I've been pitching real well with only three days' rest and I'm much better that way than pitching with four days' rest. The extra day affects my control."

Larsen, a 20-game winner this year, was Stengel's choice over Tom Sturdivant because of his last four September performances, all of them low-hit affairs. The big righthander last read in his last series start, lasted only four innings and was charged with the defeat. Newcombe has started three world series games against the Yankees and lost them all. One was a 1-0 decision in the 1949 opener.

Stengel juggled his lineup for today's game, shifting Billy Martin to third base in place of Andy Carey and playing Jerry Coleman at second. His explanation was that more double plays might result. The old man also replaced first baseman Bill Skowron with Joe Collins, to employ more lefthanded hitting against the righthanded Newcombe.

Alston went with his same lineup but elevated Gino Cimoli hitting Sandy Amoros from eighth to sixth, dropping Carl Furillo to seventh and Roy Campanella to eighth in the batting order.

Rumors persisted that Mickey Mantle, Yankee slugger, is far from recovered from his groin injury Mickey himself insisted he was all right.

Quinte Team Plays 15-15 Tie With Trenton

BY MAC HAIG

In a hard hitting but clean game Quinte Secondary School's team played to a 15-15 draw with Trenton's Seniors. It was the second game of the schedule for Quinte, having been defeated previously by R.C.I. & V.S. 23-13.

The Quinte team, weakened by injuries, dressed only 18 players, but what they lacked in quantity they made up for in quality. The two teams were evenly matched, with any Trenton advantage being along the line. Quinte's line is made up of a group of players that includes six new players, and they are improving tremendously. Mr. Sisson was obviously very pleased with the team's performance.

Fullback Dean Kemp led the way with two touchdowns, with halfback Ross Walmsley getting the other. Ross is blocking is particularly by end Jim Green, enabled Kemp, Walmsley and Black Pearce to pick up many first downs along the ground.

Quarterback Don Musgrove played an exceptionally strong game. He and Walmsley shared the passing duties and each did a fair success.

Trenton kicked off and Quinte scrimmaged on the 10 yard line. Walmsley immediately ran 40 yards around end, and then drove down, with the ball on Trenton's 10 yard line. Kemp passed from punt formation to Green, who was stopped on the 1 yard line. Kemp plunged over for the first score.

Doug Cantrell ran Kemp's kick off back to his own 43 yard line. Cantrell, Harry Scott and Gary Holmes carried the ball to the 2-yard line and Holmes went over for the score.

The first quarter ended in a 5-5 tie.

Emulating Trenton's performance, Quinte marched back from the kick-off to a touchdown. They marched 55 yards on successive runs by Walmsley for 5 yards, Pearce for 9 yards, Kemp for 6, a 20-yard pass from Walmsley to Green, a 9-yard run by Walmsley and Kemp going 5 more for the T.D.

This ended the scoring, with the first half ending 10-5 in Quinte's favor.

Quinte kicked off to start the second half and Trenton marched for a touchdown, scored by Cantrell on a 46-yard run around the end.

The football shifted back and forth for the halfway point in the half, when Quinte marched 63 yards for their third touchdown. In this march Kemp carried the ball 3 times for 16 yards, Pearce carried once for 10 yards and completed a 25-yard passplay from Musgrove and Walmsley carried twice for 14 yards and scoring the touchdown on his second try.

As mentioned above it was a clean game. Quinte lost 30 yards on penalties, Trenton lost 15.

There were 6 fumbles, 3 by each team recovered, Trenton covered two of its fumbles. Eric Moody recovered a Trenton fumble for Quinte. John McLaurin intercepted a Trenton pass. Bob Kidd, Quinte, failed to break into the statistics, played his useful strong game in the backfield.

Due to the shortage in manpower the players had to play more than usual and were very tired by the end of the game. Some of them, Moody, Walmsley, Green and Eric Nappeppa, played the full 60 minutes.

This is proving to be an interesting football season for the high class football, and local sports enthusiasts who enjoy football would be well advised to come out and see some high school football.

following public denunciation of coaching methods and his handling of men by Skipper Sid Smith, Sam Baker and guard Mike Falls. The latest came when Falls, formerly with the University of Minnesota Gophers, charged he had trouble. Also the Argonauts "because I had an overdose of Bill Swiacki."

This was a surprise mid-season announcement Tuesday that Falls had left the club to return to return to Minnesota to work in his master's degree.

Falls was quoted by a Toronto columnist as saying Swiacki had treated him "like a high school player."

"I've yet to see a pro football player who can't think he was unfairly treated after he was cut by a club," Swiacki said.

Berra Not Mantle Most Feared By Dodgers Says Robinson

BY WILL GRIMSLEY

BROOKLYN (AP)—The Yankee most feared by the Dodgers is not Mickey Mantle—it's Yogi Berra, says Brooklyn's Jackie Robinson.

"That's the man who hurts us most," added the veteran second baseker today in tribute to the batting New York catcher. "Yogi's a lot rather have Mantle up there in a tight spot than Berra."

Although Mantle is the American League's triple offence champion—batting leader at .353, home run king with 33 and tops in runs batted-in with 130—the Dodgers, says Jackie, are more afraid of Yogi's ability to come through in a clutch.

"We figure that if we can stop Berra, we can stop the Yankees. If Berra is hot, we figure we've had trouble. This is a fighter—he'll try to whip you with a tooth-pick."

ENJOY DARKENING HALO

Robinson said the Dodgers get particular kick out of beating the Yankees because of the "aura of invincibility" they've been built up around them."

"We don't look on them as a bunch of pinstriped demons," added the Brooklyn third baseman. "We respect them as great baseball players. We know they're good and we just try to prove we're better."

Robinson said if the Dodgers had to vote on the second most feared man on the Yankees, it would surely be Whitey Ford, the pitcher who lost the opening game 6-3.

"Whitey doesn't like it against us in that first game," Jackie said, "but he's a fighter. He wasn't because he was a left-hander against our righthand power in a small park. He was just that he didn't have his stuff."

MAGLIE NOT WORRIED

Then Jackie's fierce team pride came to the fore and he added: "But it'll be a different story when (the Dodgers' name for Maglie), is my book, I'm gonna be a mean fighter I ever saw in baseball."

A writer interrupted: "That's not what you said when he was a New York Giant, Jackie."

"Oh, yes, it is," Jackie rebutted. "When he was a Giant I called him every name I could think of—and meant it. But I wasn't sore at Maglie. I was just sore because he wasn't a Dodger."

Meeker Calling Leafs to Finish In Second Place

NORANDA, Que. (CP) — Coach Howie Meeker of the Toronto Maple Leafs is confident his hockey crystal ball, calling his team to finish in second place in the forthcoming National Hockey League race despite its dismal performance in pre-season play.

Leafs have managed two exhibition wins and a pair of ties with the Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League. Only once, when they won 5-1 at Sudbury, did they indicate any definite superiority over the minor leaguers.

Experts who have seen Leafs in Sudbury, North Bay, Timmins and here think Meeker's second-place prediction could stand revising. Some go as far as to say they'll finish out of the playoffs.

Meeker admits he has been disappointed in the individual performers.

The secret of a second-place finish lies in "yes" answers to a couple of question marks: Will rookie goaltender Jim Bradwick stand up to NHL shooting; and will the predominantly veteran line of Brian and Barry Cullen and Bob Pulford keep up their present high-scoring pace?

"CONDITIONING" TROUBLE

The Cullen line has been the constant target of criticism, after a sensational start has been scored upon fairly easily lately. But Meeker doesn't blame Chadwick for the goals. He says they resulted from general indifference by most of the other players, stemming, he says from a lack of proper mental and physical conditioning.

In an effort to correct the situation he drove the team through an exhausting skating workout Thursday.

"Some of these fellows have been fooling me long enough," he said after the session. "Especially the "They're loafing and they know it. They've got to get away with it any longer."

Boston Bruins Had Hard Time Beating Aces

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins were the only National Hockey League club to have scoring troubles against minor league competition in exhibition games Thursday night.

They beat Quebec Aces of the Quebec Hockey League 3-1 thanks to two goals scored in the first period when the Aces were shorthanded.

Detroit Red Wings blanked Winnipeg Warriors of the Western Hockey League 5-0 in Winnipeg and Montreal Canadiens swamped the untried OHA Greyhounds 10-1 at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

Boston had a man advantage when Aces' Floyd Hillman was penalized after 27 seconds of play. They capitalized on it when Allan Stanley drove in a shot that left teminder Al Millar could not handle. Then Leo Labine shoved the puck past Millar after a wild scramble.

Marcel Bonin, former Boston forward, scored the lone Quebec goal with Ivan Irwin a man short in the second period.

Johnny Pierson wrapped up the game for the NHL squad in the final period.

BIG CROWDS

Record crowd of 5,920 saw Canadiens in action.

Maurice Richard led the visiting sharpshooters with two goals. Dickie Moore, Jean Beliveau, Floyd Curry, Bert Olmstead, Bernie Geoffrion, Jack Dennett and Henri Richard scored one each.

In the last few minutes of the game, Gary Jarvis, a 16-year-old from Flyers paced the Wings with four goals. Red Kelly, Ted Lindsay, Lorne Ferguson and Alex Delvecchio added singles.

Albert College To Play Cobourg On Holiday

On Monday as a holiday attraction the Albert College Juniors entertain the Cobourg C.I. rugby team in an exhibition game which will get under way on the college field at 1.30 p.m.

Cobourg is returning a visit made by the Albert squad last year when the homesters won by a close score.

Both teams have a couple of games under their belts, Cobourg having lost to St. Peter's of Peterborough and Lakefield Prep School First, while Albert have dropped one to O.S.D. and pulled out in tight one from the East Northumberland boys of Brighton.

Battle for First

Ottawa Rough Riders Could Tie Als by Winning Two

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If it were an Ottawa team, it might be brushed off as pardonable exuberance, but the man speaking was Frank Clair, not given to undue optimism.

He said Ottawa might win both its weekend encounters with Montreal Alouettes.

"I hope to get at least a split in games," Clair said after Thursday night's workout in the capital. "but if we can win the one here on Saturday we'll have a good chance of winning in Montreal Monday."

If his Rough Riders back up Clair's prediction, they'll find themselves in a tie with the Als on top of the Big Four Football Union. Otherwise, the standings could undergo considerable juggling in the four-game Thanksgiving Day weekend.

Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton Tiger-Cats also have a home-and-home program on tap, at Hamilton Saturday and Toronto Monday. With four points each, just two behind the Riders, either could move into second place by grabbing a double win should Ottawa drop both games to Montreal.

Elsewhere on the action-packed holiday agenda Intercollegiate and Senior circuit opens its 1956 campaign with Queen's Golden Gaels, last year's champions, against University of Toronto Blues in Varsity Stadium while McGill Redmen meet the University of Western Ontario Mustangs at London.

Injuries bedevil the Gaels and Redmen. A pulled leg muscle probably will keep Halfback Bill Surphlis out of the Queen's lineup while Redmen will be looking for Jack Behrman, a highly-rated offensive player. The Redmen earlier this week lost halfback Wally Butchart through ineligibility.

All-star halfback Ron Stewart will be the only offensive backfield holdover in action for Queen's today. Jackie Cunningham, perhaps the best lookover in the league, will handle the kicking duties.

Western coach Johnny Metras will have two of last year's starting backs in action after injuries. They are John Girvin and Kirkland Lake product Adam Telfer.

In the Ontario Rugby Football Union senior series, Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen and Toronto Beaches, tied for the leadership with five points each, meet tonight in Kitchener. Sarnia Bears, two points back, meet the winless Rockets at Rochester Sunday while London Lords, with four points, are at Toronto.

RIDERS' ROMAINE HIGH

If morale counts for anything, Ottawa will make plenty of trouble for the Als when they're already whipped once this season. The Riders have fired up all year and they never looked better than in their 43-22 walkaway over Montreal in the capital.

One explanation of it all came from Gary Schreiber, Rider rookie halfback from Queen's.

"We are scrappy but I think this comes from our coaches—Clair and Bill Smith. The team wants to win for Clair. He's popular with the players. He is good to work for although he can be tough if anyone starts fooling."

The Ottawa lineup probably will be unchanged but Montreal's Alouettes announced a fullback George Romaine out for two points, are at Toronto.

"Many people don't understand professional athletes," he said in an interview Thursday. "They think we have to keep players for sentimental reasons. It's not that way at all. If the players aren't doing the job a coach has to be imperative but to get someone who can."

Any One of 3 Teams Could Be On Top After Holiday Fixtures

By RUSSELL KIMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Any one of three teams could gain undisputed possession of first place in the Western Interprovincial Football Union this weekend.

By Monday night, when the key Thanksgiving holiday fixtures are over, Edmonton, Saskatchewan or Winnipeg could rule the roost.

The Eskimos, until recently runaway favorites to top the league for the third successive year, now share first place with the red-hot Roughriders but the third-place Bombers, two points behind, could conceivably jump ahead of both.

Wins against Edmonton in Winnipeg Saturday and against Saskatchewan in Regina Monday, combined with an Edmonton defeat at Calgary Monday, would give the revitalized Blue Bombers sole possession of first place.

Double victories for Edmonton, however, would give the Eskimos a top billing no matter what happens in the Saskatchewan-Winnipeg game. A single win would assure them of at least staying in a tie for first place.

Saskatchewan, riding high on a string of four successive wins against every team in the league, would be league leaders if Edmonton loses twice and Rider defeat Winnipeg. Riders are a title Saturday.

While the top three teams hold the spotlight, another Saturday encounter—between the fifth-place Stampeders and the fourth-place British Columbia Lions at Vancouver — may prove a major crowd-puller with the possible first appearance in the West of controversial Ronnie Knox.

Stampeder coach Otis Douglas says he plans to press for former UCLA star, who signed with Calgary this week after a brief career with Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four. The flashy quarterback will draw the largest crowds of the season at Hamilton and Toronto.

Line-backer John Jankans, out for a month with a broken ligament, is an almost certain Vancouver starter against Calgary. Coach Annis Stukus and Jerry Gustafson and Primo Villanueva will share quarterback duties, with Tony Teresa sitting out another game. Villanueva also may see action as a halfback. The Lions are idle Monday.

Saskatchewan, fresh from their 33-7 trouncing of the Eskimos will seek a repeat of their 24-7 win against Winnipeg two Saturdays ago. Spearheads of their attack will be Ken Carpenter, with five touchdowns in the last two games, and Bobby Marlow, leading ball-toter and Frank Tripucka's quarterbacking.

Fullbacks Johnny Bright and Cleo Lindley will be back in the Eskimo lineup for the Winnipeg game. The return of Bright, who suffered a shoulder dislocation three weeks ago, has resulted in the release of former Maryland tackle Bob Dean, a star on Edmonton's Grey Cup teams in 1954 and 1955.

Bright, one of the club's strongest two-way performers, will wear a special nylon harness which will limit the movement of his injured arm.

Dean's release will mean that quarterback Jackie Parker, who does the punting, or end Joe Mosley will take over the place-kicking chores.

Edmonton Flyers Strong, Fast Team Says Coach Bud Poile

Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP) — Norman (Bud) Poile, who has never missed the playoffs in his four years coaching Edmonton Flyers of the Western Club, thinks he has a club this season that will "yell real quickly."

"We have a lot of good kids," said Poile, mentioning that seven of his young players are seasoned pros.

"For instance centre Jerry Melnyk is only 23 and he has had three years' professional experience," Poile added. Melnyk was second in the scoring race last season.

TO BE MORE RUGGED

The young coach led Edmonton, a farm club of Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, in 1954 when the club was in the playoff final and last spring Flyers were classified as the first round of the playoffs.

Poile, 33 and an NHL veteran, says the 1958-59 edition will be "quite a bit more rugged" than last season's team.

In goal Flyers have Dennis Riggin, a rookie who finished the season with Flyers after goalie Giles Boisvert was hurt.

Poile says the young puck blocker is as well advanced for his age as was Glen Hall, when initiated from Flyers and in his rookie season with Detroit last year won the Calder Trophy.

On defence Flyers have three sophomore pros up from their farm club, Edmonton Junior Oil Kings. They are Lloyd Gluck, last season with Flyers, Gord Strate, who spent the 1956-58 season with Brandon Regals, and Frank Roggeveen, who joins after a season with New Westminster Royals.

The Edmonton rearguard also includes Al Arbour, whom Poile considers the best defenceman in the WHL, and Hugh Coflin, a 27-year - old veteran from Blaine Lake, Sask., who will be out two weeks with a bad ankle cut.

STRONG AT CENTRE

At centre Flyers are believed stronger than last season with Melnyk, and rookie Les Lunde, described by Poile as possibly the best junior in western Canada last year.

Flyers' third centre is Bill McFarland who spent four years at the University of Michigan, which last season won the United States intercollegiate title.

For right wing the club has scrappy little Eddie Stankiewicz, Chuck Holmes, Cummy Burton and Tony Leswick.

Stankiewicz, a doubtful starter in Flyers' first schedule game next Tuesday at Winnipeg, underwent an operation six weeks ago to repair cartilage trouble.

CAPTAIN IN FIRST YEAR

Melnyk is in his second year with the WHL club after being plucked from Oil Kings. Rather, a rookie who combines speed and ruggedness.

Leswick, an NHL veteran who learned his hockey at Saskatoon, is team captain although in his first season with Flyers after being brought back into the Detroit organization from Chicago Black Hawks.

At left wing Edmonton has Bill McCreary, Art Hart, and Don Poile, brother of the coach. Bud Poile says Flyers probably will get another left-winger from Detroit.

HAVE BOXER, TOO

McCreary, who went on a point-making binge for Saskatoon Quakers at the tail-end of last season, was acquired from New York Rangers by Red Wings.

Hart, a topnotch amateur boxer, was with Vernon Canadians when they won the Allan Cup last spring.

Coach Poile says the team plans to carry 18 players, at least early in the season.

Don Hogan Wants To Quit Trappers

NORTH BAY (CP)—North Bay Trappers have picked up old campaigner Walt Alanas to strengthen the squad for the coming Northern Ontario Hockey Association season.

Trappers still have not completed a deal for rightwinger Don Hogan, who wants to leave the club. Manager Pete Palangio is trying to negotiate with Sudbury Wolves for a centre in return for Hogan.

Four Players Fined

WINNIPEG (CP)—Four players and a coach were fined Thursday by Commissioner L. Sydney Hall of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Jack Lamb of Calgary Stampeders and Calvin Jones of Winnipeg Blue Bombers were fined $25 apiece for conduct resulting in match penalties in a league game at Calgary Sept. 20.

Steve Palmer of British Columbia Lions was assessed $25 and Buddy Tinsley of Bombers $50 for match penalties here Sept. 6.

Coach Al Sherman of Bombers was fined $25 for publicly arguing with and criticizing officials at Winnipeg Oct. 1.

World Series Notes

BROOKLYN (AP) — Brooks President Walter O'Malley should know plenty of presidential secrets. After entertaining President Eisenhower in the opener, he was host to Democratic candidate Adlai Stevenson today. If Stevenson follows Ike's system, he will root for the Dodgers.

The one-day series postponement posed a big problem for hotels which already were filled. It also was a boon to speculators who had been having a hard time disposing of tickets to Ebbets Field. Many out-of-towners who came in for the weekend set at the Yankee Stadium were in the market for tickets for the second game here.

Brooklyn manager Walter Alston still was non-committal about his pitcher rotation. "I'm not trying to hold anything back," he said. "It's just that I really don't know myself. I'll probably think from day to day just like I did during the regular season when I used Roger Craig, Carl Erskine or even young Don Drysdale."

One of the happiest members of either team is Brooklyn first baseman Gil Hodges, who got a home run and a single in the first game. Hodges can't forget the '52 series when he went 0-for-21.

Yanks' Mickey Mantle says his three-year-old son is a Dodger fan. . . . Cincinnati manager Birdie Tebbetts, who picked the Yanks before the series opened, has switched to the Dodgers.

Warwick Brothers To Play in Trail

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP) — The Warwick brothers will play for Trail in the Western International Hockey League this year.

Dick and Warwick said Thursday that Grant had been signed as playing coach and that he and Bill will also play for Trail. All have one-year contracts.

"Grant will leave today to make preliminary arrangements to get the Smoke Eaters organized and Bill and I will leave Sunday," Dick said.

Dick said that the brothers look on Penticton as home but the lure of the cafe empire in March.

"We feel we must look around for a new location or possibly sell our equipment," he added.

still occupies the same office and plans to produce 30 films in the next five to seven years, some to be produced by others under his guidance.

Despite a few years of hard times in Hollywood, Zanuck had lost none of his hopes for the film industry.

"Why, there's no limit to what a good picture can do these days," he said. "Look at pictures like The Ring and I. It has done between four and five million gross in the country in its first five weeks of release. It should rack up a 10 million domestic gross.

"I think the outlook for theatrical films is very good. But perhaps our greatest potential will be realized from our No. 1 competitor, television.

"Did you know that in New York last week all feature films were playing on television?"

"Eventually I feel that the movie industry and television will have to meet. How that will be brought about, I don't know. But it will bring the greatest prosperity Hollywood has ever known."

Gypsy Rose Lee Will Make Debut as Dramatic Actress

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — When a maid lets you into the Manhattan home of Gypsy Rose Lee, she leads you down a long hall, past a beautiful interior court and into a large drawing room.

On the walls are many paintings, some of ladies more nude than Miss Lee ever has been on any stage. Currently there stands in the living room an interior decorator, a young fellow who talks to himself or you or anyone of the problems of interior decoration. Then the maid opens a private elevator and you rise four storeys to a large sunny room.

In this room Miss Lee, quick, graceful and lovely as ever, is presently involved in four projects, not necessarily in this order: She is stringing some of her famous beads on some of her famous dresses for her approaching appearance in Las Vegas. She is working on a volume of her memoirs, to be published in the spring. She is scolding three of her five famous Siamese cats for having dragged a roast of lamb from the dining room table and consumed it to the bone.

And she is studying lines for her debut as a dramatic actress on television. Next Wednesday, on United States Steel Hour (CBS-TV), she plays the role of a lady novelist in a comedy entitled Sauce for the Goose. Apart from other well-known qualifications, Miss Lee certainly is entitled to portray the author of two successful mystery novels.

She is not necessarily seeking more dramatic roles on television, "but if I'm good I imagine other roles will be offered to me."

AT THE McCARTHY — Deep Freeze — For Marilyn Monroe only, when caught in these situations she's not shocked. A fur coat, perhaps, but definitely not the cake herself bouncing through the wintry Ozarks. Get-up and situation spark the rollicking comedy based on the Rosemary Ill, "Bus Stop". Now at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

Darryl Zanuck Stepped Down To Be Independent Producer

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The film world was surprised when Darryl F. Zanuck stepped down as head of 20th Century-Fox studios to become an independent producer. Today he tells why he did it:

"Throughout my career, first as a writer, then an editor, then a producer and finally as studio head, I considered myself essentially a writer. It was the creative end that really interested me.

"Until a few years ago I was able to devote myself to the creative end entirely. I didn't have to talk to actors; I had people to handle the business matters.

"But this business has changed. Three or four years ago I found myself devoting 60 per cent of my time talking to Garson or Ida's agent or Gregory Peck or some other star. I found I had less and less time to work on stories.

"So I told Mr. Skouras (company head Spyros Skouras) that as soon as I could find someone to take over for me I'd like to step out and devote myself to the active job of creating.

He found his successor in able, aggressive Buddy Adler, who now heads studio production. Zanuck

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

For Saturday, Oct. 6, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — This can be a very constructive and beneficial period if you wisely use all the resources at your command. Take care that you do not start more jobs than you can reasonably finish.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Back up your good ideas, plans for change or improvement with hard work and an earnest yet happy disposition. Abundant gains possible this day; make the most of it.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Advertising, promotion work, anything in the mechanical line, legal matters are especially favored now. This is the time to make headway in all honest fields of work.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — You born today have many favorable aspects. Help yourself along by combining sincere effort with hard work, plus generality. Cheerful frankness especially important now.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — The sun in very good position today. Further your goals by improved management; also keep financial matters under close scrutiny.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Your planet Mercury is going into an excellent configuration tomorrow; prepare by finishing incompleted tasks; get some rest. Keep emotions in check; avoid overwork, straining.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Romantic affairs and attachments are among top interests today. But don't let these matters consume more time than they should.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Your planet Mars is in excellent position. Get others to aid you today. Realize the worth of your activities, and stand to them in proper order. Diplomacy!

November 23 to December 21 — (Sagittarius) — Your Jupiter is now in the best position it will be until the end of the month. Make the most of this good day with a soundly forceful, systematic drive. Welfare work especially honored.

December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — Work with plastics, dyes, chemicals and electricity highly favored today. Experimenting, solving difficult problems also sponsored.

January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — An "in-between" day but heading for a dandy one tomorrow. Take things in stride; don't be disappointed at reverses. Patience, hard work and a will to succeed will overcome obstacles.

February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Simplify work as much as possible today. Try not to become involved in highly technical tasks. This does not mean you should put off any essentials; just be sensible.

You born today are well balanced, logical and considerate of others. You may be too self-opinionated at times. This is usually because you have a rare insight into things and wish them to come out absolutely right. Reason patiently rather than force people to see your way — even though you are right. Keep developing your fine talents and general ability and use them for self and family betterment, for religious and community interests. You can ably handle a profession, religious life, or trade. Signal your preference and stay with it. Birthdate: Jenny Lind, famed singer.

DENTAL DRILL PAINLESS

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—The day may soon come when dentists will be using an almost painless super-speed drill "like a paint brush with a feather touch" on patients. This new cutting instrument, which rotates at speeds above 150,000 revolutions a minute, was described Tuesday at the annual meeting of the American Dental Association. Dr. Roderick A. McEwen said patients often will not even feel it.

MARSH HILL

Harmony Club Enjoys Fine Program

MARSH HILL — Marsh Hill Harmony Club held its recent September meeting in the school house with a good attendance. The president, Mr. Ivan Clare, opened the meeting. Mrs. Albert Clare read Psalm 1; reading by Mrs. Harry Conniffe; the Fluke sisters sang "'Tis Not Far to Jesus"; reading by Mrs. Charlie Mayrell, "Lifters and Leaners". Mr. Fred Campbell favored with a solo, "Somebody Did a Golden Deed"; reading by Mrs. Bartindale, "The Beautiful Life."

Mrs. Fred Campbell gave a paper on the "Importance of Little Things in Abilities." "Sir, you are capable was given five who was capable was given two talents and each did his best with what he had been given. The one-talent man did not live up to his responsibilities. Each man will be judged by what he did with his talent and each one has a talent and it is the responsibility of all that talent be used to the best of one's ability.

"It is the little things in life that add up to the big things. Out of little things God can make big things grow.

"The home, the factory, the store, the office, the school, the place of play, are the places where characters are made and the quality of religious connections and moral principles are discovered.

"There is nothing in God's universe abundant enough to be wasted—not even time.

"Only the doers, not the hearers, only the users, not the wasters, are laying up treasure for the future here and hereafter." Mrs. Campbell quoted this verse: "His lamp am I to shine, where He shall say and lamps are not for sunny rooms, nor for the light of day, but for dark places of the earth. Where shame and wrong and crime have birth or where the lamp of faith grows dim and souls are groping after Him. So may I shine, His love the flame that men may glorify His name."

The Rev. R. F. Darke closed the meeting with prayer.

Mrs. Bartindale took charge of the recreation after which refreshments were served by the lunch committee.

Eight Convicted For Taking Part In Brink's Robbery

Obtained Largest Cash Haul In U.S. Criminal History

BOSTON (AP) — Eight men were convicted today of taking part in the $1,219,899 Brink's robbery—the largest cash haul in United States criminal history.

All face a maximum of life imprisonment.

The Suffolk jury deliberated three hours and 27 minutes before convicting seven of the eight defendants of armed robbery—meaning they actually participated in the Jan. 17, 1950 holdup.

The eighth—Joseph F. McGinnis, 33, termed by the prosecution as the "brains" was convicted as an accessory before the fact of armed robbery and accessory to breaking and entering, which carry the same penalty.

McGinnis was acquitted of armed robbery and breaking and entering charges by direction of the case went to the jury.

Convicted after the nine-week trial as participants were Anthony Pino, 48; Vincent J. Costa, 44; Michael V. Geagan, 47; Adolph (Jazz) Maffie, 44; Henry Baker, 46; James L. Faherty, 44; and Thomas F. Richardson, 46. All are from Greater Boston.

SENTENCING TUESDAY

Tuesday morning was fixed for sentencing.

Judge Felix Forte told the jurors:

"I'm sure the community is proud of your courage."

Edward P. Leonard, District Attorney Garrett H. Byrne referred to the defendants as "professional thieves, who would destroy everything that is decent."

He said Joseph J. (Specs) O'Keefe, the state's star witness who previously pleaded guilty to participating in the robbery, "came here without fear or promises . . . he may be anything you want to call him but he came in here and he didn't have to."

Chief defense counsel Paul T. Smith castigated O'Keefe as a "liar . . . a perjurer . . . a storm . . . the Roxbury songbird."

THE O'KEEFE STORY

The prosecution's case was pegged largely on the story of O'Keefe, 48, Boston hoodlum with a record of 70 arrests. He claimed other gang members had cheated him out of most of his share of the loot.

His story went like this:

He first met Pino in 1947. Pino if he wanted to get in on a big "score" — a robbery — and that's when he learned who was in on the deal he agreed.

Brink's was selected two years before the crime. All defendants in the box were known as having been visited Brink's plant several times before the actual robbery.

METICULOUS PLANNING

Not a detail was overlooked. Locks were taken from five doors in the Brink's office. Keys were made and the locks put back in place.

Many meetings were held in Pino's home discussing the robbery and the getaway. Each one time or another.

After the robbers the gang went directly to the home of Maffie's parents and dumped the money on the table. It was counted and divided either that night or the next day. Only $80,000 had been recovered.

McGinnis was not at the robbery but stayed behind in his Roxbury liquor store to establish an alibi.

That is what O'Keefe told the jury.

Nicosia Curfew Finally Lifted After Eight Days

NICOSIA (AP)—Governor Sir John Harding today lifted the rigid curfew imposed eight days ago on the troubled Greek quarter of Nicosia.

Police vehicles toured the streets and announced over loudspeakers that the curfew was over.

Greek Cypriots flocked into the streets and shops opened for the one opening early.

Greek Cypriots inside the curfew area have been compelled to remain indoors day and night since a curfew Friday night set for two hours daily when they were permitted to go out to buy food.

The curfew was imposed after two Greek Cypriot sergeants were murdered and a third wounded by EOKA gunmen on the main shopping street in Nicosia.

On the same day a British serviceman and British reservist were slain by union-with-Greece terrorists.

Today's Chuckle

He was quarreling with his wife and not doing too well.

"You don't have a rag on your back when I married you," he said.

"Anyway," she replied, "I have plenty now."

HEALTH EXPERTS PROBE SUSPECTED TYPHOID OUTBREAK

Mass Immunization Planned at Metcalfe

OTTAWA (CP) — A specialist from the department of health arrived today to begin investigation of a suspected outbreak of typhoid fever a few miles south of the capital.

Two men from the village of Metcalfe, Ont., suspected of having the disease, were sent to hospital following a Sept. 9 dinner at Winchester, Metcalfe is about 25 miles east of Ottawa. Winchester about 30. One of the men is the principal of the Metcalfe school.

Reeve John Bolland said in an interview Friday that all children in the area will be inoculated against typhoid fever. The police board of health planned to meet today to decide what further action to take.

He said authorities in the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry, where Winchester is located, have been co-operating well at the hotel where the dinner was held.

EIGHT LIGHTLY AFFECTED

The other eight more of the 35 persons who attended the dinner complain of the disease but apparently recovered. Typhoid's symptoms include a rise in chest and abdomen, internal upset and fever.

Typhoid specialist from Toronto was expected to make a definite diagnosis of the illness back for its source and advise the board how to prevent its spread. It said it will not likely be possible to immunize villagers before Monday when school reopens after Thanksgiving week-end.

Dr. L. Morrow, medical officer of health for Osgoode Township here getting in touch with parents, whose approval must be obtained, and preparing a clinic for mass immunization.

He said he did not believe there would be an epidemic. If one was started it would have shown itself before this.

Can Build Planes Too Fast For Men To Fly Them

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Research aircraft can be built too fast for man to fly them, a scientist for Bell Aircraft Corporation said Friday.

The scientist told members of the Society of Automotive Engineers "it appears we have already built the limit of theoretical knowledge and the system of conceptions now available."

"It is possible," Schiitt said, "to build flying planes at extreme speeds, but not to control them with any degree of safety. The planes are too complex for man and the electronic and electronic controls too unreliable."

HUNGARY LOWERS GATES

VIENNA (Reuters) — Hungary will soon grant more press visas to United States correspondents, the press chief of the Hungarian foreign ministry announced today.

The press chief, Peter Rubin, said Hungary was considering "a complete removal of existing travel restrictions imposed on the staff of the American legation."

Belgrade New Mecca of Red World, Everybody Wants to Chat With Tito

BELGRADE (AP)—The first of a string of Communist delegations met with Yugoslav Communist leaders today on the heels of President Tito's return from the Soviet Union.

Tito arrived home without fanfare Friday from his eight-day visit with Nikita Khrushchev, Communist party chief, at Yalta. In his trip as "purely private" in character and intended for rest," but added that Soviet-Yugoslav relations were discussed.

Shortly after Tito's return, the official Yugoslav news agency Tanjug announced that Red Hungary's Communist party boss, Erno Gerce, who was also a guest at Khrushchev's Yalta villa, and other Hungarian leaders will visit here Oct. 15.

Visits of three other Communist party delegations already have been scheduled.

Tito's visit would say today whether the comings and goings are linked.

When Tito went to Yalta, Communist sources in Belgrade said his purpose was to support Khrushchev's policy of downgrading Stalin and plug for continued liberalizing of the Communist regime of the Soviet satellites since the said former Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and other old Stalinists opposed the Khrushchev liberalization policy.

Brooklyn Fans Think Bums Can Take Yanks in 4 Straight

By GEORGE H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

BROOKLYN, N.Y.—Eisenhower bearded the political lion in its den here in Democrat Flatbush.

He was accorded a tremendous ovation from the packed stands as his motorcade of shining Cadillacs slowly drove past the first and third base lines.

As a president Ike was OK with the Brooklyn faithful. As a baseball fan he had them guessing.

Naturally, Eisenhower used tact and diplomacy. He "rooted" for both clubs, though in different mannerisms.

As the players of both teams paraded past and shook hands with him, Ike said a few words to Mickey Mantle, then patted him on the shoulder.

Bald Brooklynese swear "Ike" asked Mickey to clout a homer for him.

This could be true.

Mantle in his first time at bat looked over at the presidential box and nodded his head.

Then he socked Sal Maglie's third pitch far over the centrefield barrier for a two-run homer.

He stood up and applauded that one. He did not rise when McDougald out-parked the ball later in the game.

There were roars of laughter and boos when Duke Snider was introduced to Ike. Casey was talking before the handshake, during it and had to be gently urged away by Dodger president Walter O'Malley.

You could see the wide Eisenhower grin plainly from the press box as the president stood up in his black bubbletop limousine with the plastic top rolled back.

WENT TO DUGOUT

After the team introductions Ike went to the Dodger dugout where he lobbed a new ball to wide-smiling catcher Roy Campanella. The game was on.

Like every other series this one has its incidents, humorous and otherwise. Fans slept outside Ebbets Field all night before the opener. One was operated on by a barber on the sidewalk.

Hear the Times building in Times Square a shoe-shine boy shouted his wares, "Everybody shined heah, everybody shined heah."

A blind accordion-playing negro sat in the stands, applauding Dodger plays through the eyes of a friend.

And those friendless ones, the four umpires, thought they had drained the cup when they got the Yankees-Dodgers home series. Then the last Dodger play, apparently not seeing the men in blue. They walked dejectedly away and lined up in rear of the Yankees. This time they were special bus.

The Yankees arrived at the press gate at 11 a.m. Wednesday by They only rated curious stares from the packed Dodger fans. Even Mantle, roughly attired in a sweater, was not feted. They hurried through the gate, faces solemn and looking straight ahead.

Only four times in history has the world series been won by a club in four straight games.

LOTS OF CONFIDENCE

The Flatbush faithful won't predict that this year. But they are confident the Dodgers will take it. Consensus says the series will go seven games.

Peewee Reese said: "We did it before, we can do it again. We have found out they are not too hard to beat."

The Dodger fans decry the Yankee opinions about lack of Dodger pitching. They point now to Maglie's magnificent victory—and the blasting of the Yanks on Whitey Ford.

They claim the Yankees can't match Maglie, Newcombe, Craig, Loes, Labine, Erskine and company. What's more, up to this time of writing (Thursday morning) the Dodgers have been rolling along at a merry clip.

The whole situation may have changed by the time this piece reaches your front porch, but at the moment the sun is shining brightly in Brooklyn, dimmed only by Dodger hopes that their beloved Bums will again come through with a world series pennant.

As the Brooklynese gentleman behind the bar in an Ebbets Field cocktail lounge said, "We have the greatest respect for the Yankees. We'll treat does jokks wit' da greatest of Brooklyn hospitality, da bums."

Official Quarters Uneasy Over European Trade Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — Britain's plan to promote a partner in a revolutionary European "partial free trade area" has produced a touch of uneasiness and cynicism in some official quarters here.

There are doubts the plan will work; fear it will mean translation of temporary into permanent import quotas on Canadian manufactured goods into permanent tariff curbs, and concern it may drive Canada deeper into the United States trading orbit.

The plan, as recently outlined by U.K. authorities, is still under study here and official Canadian view may not be conveyed to the U.K. government for some weeks.

As seen here, the scheme would be "designed to eliminate tariffs among the European countries to provide a potential common market of 250,000,000 persons—some 90,000,000 greater than the U.S. market.

This would have the tendency of whittling away Commonwealth tariff preferences Canada enjoys in the British market in relation to European competitors.

Nevertheless if the scheme worked, it would provide advantages of large - scale economic production, lowering costs by producer specialization and making their selling prices more competitive with those outside the area. dollar area, such as the U.S.

In the long run, this would tend to strengthen the European economy and thereby make it a bigger market for some Canadian products, perhaps such as wheat and other raw materials.

But one tariff authority said the economic drive of some European countries is not strong enough to undergo the necessary economic adjustments" to make way for the common market. The plan might override into one where goods from outside the area might be restricted without any real strengthening of economies within the area.

One official said he therefore was cynical of the whole thing. He thinks translation "into permanent quotas on manufactured goods from Canada would be bad for some countries. It could be argued, he said, that since Canada has no market in the U.K. for manufactured goods, she would not be losing one.

But this hard core of U.K. restrictions is supposed to be temporary and the eventual hope that the market there might be restored to pre-war freedom from fear, he said, is that the curbs under the plan may be translated into permanent tariff restrictions.

The U.K. plan, of course, would be in the nature of an experiment. No one could be too sure how the pattern of trade might finally shape up. But from an initial, cursory view, it appeared that Canada's trade might have to be concentrated more and more in the U.S. market.

WOMAN POSED AS PREGNANT TO EXPLAIN BABY

Padded Self for Month Before Stealing Child

CHICAGO (AP) — A young woman who padded herself with blankets to carry out a fantasy of being pregnant and then stole an infant to make it appear that she had given birth, has been charged with kidnapping.

Police said the month-old baby girl was returned unharmed Friday to his mother, Lois Buckner, 21, 14 hours after he was taken by Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Downer, 24. The attendant publicity disclosed that the child's father, Tom, had deserted his first wife and their five children.

After photographs appeared in newspapers of the father and mother of the abducted baby, another woman told authorities that Tom Buckner was a bigamist and that he had deserted her and their five children 22 months ago.

He was charged with non-support, adultery and child abandonment.

Authorities said that Mrs. Bynum, who had been charged with kidnapping Ronald Bucher, started getting maternity clothes and friends a month ago that she was going to have a baby.

Police Lieut. Joseph Warren, was a witness to last night's accident in which Mr. Walloghby was injured.

Mr. Downer was driving north when he saw the parked Woodcox car and stopped to see if he could give assistance. Then the hit-and-run car sped past. Mr. Downer moved to the centre of the road and passed between the two stopped cars, striking Mr. Woodcox.

Police were immediately notified and road blocks were set up, resulting in the arrest of the Crookston youth.

Father of ten children, Mr. Woodcox was on his way from Bancroft to visit a daughter, Mrs. Thomas Kovak, who lives near Halloway.

A neighbor passing by the scene learned the name of the accident victim, and notified it was the same as Mrs. Kovak's maiden name, another of the family of the fatality.

Coroner Dr. A E. Carleton of Stirling attended at the scene.

Provincial Police Corporal Gordon Stout and Constable Kenneth Williamson investigated.

Must Deny Egypt Opportunity to Extract Tribute

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass. (AP) State Secretary Dulles today urged a just as well as peaceful settlement of the Suez Canal dispute which would deny Egypt any opportunity "to extract tribute" from other countries.

Egypt, he said, should be required to live under an economic sword of Damocles," he said in an address on the problems of peace presented at a special convocation at Williams College.

Dulles said the Suez Canal "is in a sense a utility—a sense a lifeline" to many countries.

Without spelling out what a settlement should provide, Dulles stressed that there should be "no risk of over-all economic domination" in any solution against these countries whose ships travel through the waterway.

Thanksgiving Day Regarded by Many As Most Heartening Holiday of Year

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Thanksgiving Day holiday on Monday will be regarded by many Canadians as the most heartening holiday of the year. The last holiday weekend before winter sets in, it is also a day which by long tradition is associated with the harvest.

With the people in cities and towns, the farmers can reflect and the splendor of autumn and the rewards of the spring and summer seedtime. The harvest thanksgiving holiday has been celebrated in many parts of Canada for centuries.

This will be the 48th official annual Thanksgiving Day in Canada but the holiday is a few years older than that in this nation. Canada's first Thanksgiving Day was April 11, 1872, proclaimed by the governor-general as a day of thanksgiving for an abundant harvest.

It's been a harvest celebration nearly since then, with a few exceptions. Thanksgiving Day in 1897 was held on June 24, marking the 50th anniversary of Queen Victoria's accession to the throne. In 1897 it was held on June date, on Victoria's diamond jubilee, and in 1901 it was held on the day of coronation day for Edward VII.

For a little more than 20 years now the date has remained unchanged—the second Monday in October.

Before 1936, the holiday date was still changing. Parliament fixed the holiday's date as Armistice Day or First World War. This practice was dropped in 1931. The 1931 Thanksgiving Day was delayed until Oct. 24, because a general election was held on Oct. 14.

The first such Thanksgiving feasts in Canada consisted of simple fare. Such observances were held in the autumn of 1578 and 1579 by explorer Martin Frobisher in the first Thanksgiving day was observed by the Pilgrim Fathers in 1621 after their first harvest in 1621.

Nowadays the holiday is still best described best in the words of the first proclamation issued by the Marquess of Lorne, governor-general of Canada from 1878 to 1883. It set aside the day, Nov. 6 in 1878, as an annual expression of "gratitude for an abundant harvest and other blessings."

Poppy Day Committee Makes Campaign Plans

A meeting of the Belleville Poppy Committee was held in the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans hall on Thursday night with the chairman, Les. Digby presiding. Present were representatives from Branch 99 Canadian Legion, Unit 301 Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada, No. 418 Wing Royal Canadian Air Force Association and their respective Ladies' Auxiliaries.

The business of the meeting was to plan the forthcoming Poppy campaign. Committee chairmen were appointed as follows: Industries and organizations — Everett Liddle; wreath sales west side of Front street and west hill — Bill Heasman; wreath sales east side of Front street and east hill — Henry Drury; out-of-town sales — Bill Bailey; poppy street sales — Les Digby.

Everett Liddle informed the meeting that a letter had been mailed to each wreath sales prospect and canvassers were asked to cover their territory as soon as possible so wreaths could be secured in plenty of time.

Les Digby stated that the street sales would be held on the evening of Friday 9th November and on Saturday 10th November. The Poppy Day headquarters would be in the Armouries by kind permission of the Commanding Officer, Lt. Col. Fairman. He requested all organizations to ensure that as many of their members as possible turn out to assist with the sale of poppies, stating that the more money that was collected the more assistance the Poppy Fund would be able to render to needy veterans and their dependents next year.

"Belleville has a most enviable record in the results of past poppy campaigns and with the active cooperation of all veterans and their wives the campaign this year could be the best yet," he said.

Rotary Club Doing Marvellous Work With Crippled Children

In a city the size of Belleville a few children are bound to have been crippled by some freakish twist of nature and some children are afflicted at an early age with such cripplers as polio, arthritis and rheumatism. The hope with these crippling maladies holding back a number of Belleville and district children, the Belleville Rotary Club a few years ago decided to sponsor a Crippled Children's Committee as a community service.

Since its organization the committee has helped dozens of youngsters enjoy a near-normal life through the purchase of braces, wheel chairs, artificial limbs and crutches. Also it has been responsible for providing them with expert medical attention which otherwise they could not receive except at overwhelming costs to their parents.

For example, take the case of an 11-year-old Shannonville boy who contracted polio when he was six.

Over the past five years the Crippled Children's Committee has spent $1,200 for his crutches, braces, boots and hospitalization.

Early this year the lad spent almost seven weeks in Kingston General Hospital undergoing constructive surgery. In June he had a week of intensive physiotherapy in the same hospital and after his discharge continued physiotherapy under the direction of Miss Phyllis Carleton, organizer of the Arthritic and Rheumatic mobile clinic — another community service offered by the Belleville Rotary.

On September 12 the boy walked into the clinic without the use of crutches.

Another case is that of a five-year-old girl who is suffering from cerebral palsy. She has received treatment from the committee but now faces hospitalization and plastic casts.

Under consideration by the committee are the cases of two little boys and three small girls.

One of the boys, a five-year-old, is badly in need of leg splints as a result of severe burns. The other boy, who is six, has an outstanding physiotherapy bill which was not covered by a hospital insurance plan. The seven-year-old girl polio victim requires a new brace. Two other girls are being considered for wheel chairs.

Pencil Tag Day Brings $1,092 To Committee

PICTON. — The sum of $1,092.72 was collected by the public in the recent pencil tag day, according to a report presented to the Cancer-Polio-Tuberculosis committee of the Odd Fellows and Rebekah lodges, on Thursday night. He expressed thanks to canvassers and taggers with special mention being given to Mrs. Evelyn Dulmage and Mrs. Rodney Dulmage for their work.

Evidence of the worthy work done by this committee was reflected in donations made to aid a Picton family who lost their home by fire and to donations to purchase drugs for two cancer patients, and a donation to a cancer lady receiving treatment for cancer.

It was decided to purchase McIntosh apples to be distributed to patients on Thanksgiving Day.

A letter from the Kingston Cancer Clinic offered co-operation in treating the Prince Edward lady for cancer and the committee plans to meet and co-operate with the clinic which is directed by a Prince Edward native, Dr. Lyle Creighton.

Tribune Editor Talks Straight To Americans

MINNEAPOLIS (CP)—Americans were urged Friday by the editor-in-chief of the Winnipeg Tribune to take a great interest in Canadian affairs.

Speaking to about 100 Minnesota newspaper editors at a University of Minnesota short course, G. Carlyle Allison said there should be more international co-operation on both sides of the border.

He said the preference of Canadians for the Democratic over the Republican party is because the Republican party has had a reputation in Canada as the party of isolationism and high tariffs.

He noted that, to Canadian minds, John Foster Dulles, U.S. secretary of state, "has a genius for saying the wrong thing at the wrong time in the wrong place."

A Lift for Living

All We Have to Spend Is Time

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

One thing we all have to spend is time. But no one knows how much he has. Some 3,000 years ago the Psalmist sought to arouse his people to the need of rationing their time. He saw how men were wasting their time as if their years were inexhaustible. And he wrote the noblest passage in all literature on the brevity of life. It is the Nineteenth Psalm. In it he said, "So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom."

We are familiar with this passage because it is frequently read at funeral services. But I do not with these words to be somber and funereal. I wish to suggest the possibilities of life rather than the proximity of death. The late President Pounce of Brown University once gave a chapel talk to the students on the interesting subject "The Pleasure of Economics." He pointed out that in all times it spends the pleasure is found in the rigid limitations imposed, or rather in demonstrating what can be done within the limitations.

In baseball, for instance, the player is allowed three strikes and only three. If we allowed the batter all he wanted or even a dozen, the game would be too dull for the players or the spectators. In golf a man is allowed one little ball. If he were permitted to play a half-dozen balls, he would become bored and disgusted. Some of us become so even with one. It is the limitations and the hazards which keep the players keen and eager. The zest of life consists in making the most of small means.

TIME-CONSCIOUS PEOPLE

Hence when we hear the Psalmist pray, "So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom," let us be concerned not with the doleful thought of life's shortness but rather with life's possibilities. Let us pace the floor like prisoners. Whatever our right hand findeth to do, our left hand usually carries a wrist watch to show how long we are in doing it. We consult the calendar with feverish anxiety.

Yet with all our efforts to save time, what do we do with the time we save? How often we just kill it. This past summer I saw many persons who were restlessly trying to kill time. Some of us waste too much time in sleep because we are not interested enough to keep awake. We are all disturbing how automation is lessening the need of man power. The question is now, have we enough mind power to use the time our machines are saving us?

Duke of Nazareth was master of the art of spending time. He never let time master Him. He did not give the impression of talking about Palestine trying to save time and keep to a schedule. He knew that His earthly working days were short. He said so. There was an air of urgency about Him but there was no feverish hurrying. He had time to sit and talk with individuals along the way. He seemed to play with little children. He took time off to spend whole hours in prayer. But was it taking time off? Off from what?

POINT TO WATCH

Here is the point to watch. What is our main business from which we "take time off"? Is it to fill our pockets with money? Or to fill our bodies with thrills? Or to feed our pride with worldly honors? If so, then we live by the law of subtraction, for these lessen while we "fill."

But if we live, as Jesus taught, not to fill our lives with earthly things but to fulfill our lives by growing ever more into the things that last—things like love and understanding and helpfulness and self-forgetfulness—then we escape the clutches of the calendar and the dread of leaving this world.

Lord Byron, who ran the gamut of all worldly pleasures, wrote in his thirties that his "years were in the yellow leaf, the flowers and fruits of love were gone." Jesus of Nazareth, dying at 33, said to his friends, "Be of good cheer, I have overcome the world." Two different ways of spending time.

CROSS BURNS IN SOUTH

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—A six-foot cross was burned Thursday night in front of a vacant home near a white section where a Negro's house was damaged by fire recently. The house is in an area where white and Negro sections meet. A white resident told reporters there had been no trouble in the neighborhood.

NEW BARRIER

NANIMO, B. C. (CP)—Hulks of 12 vessels including a wooden sailing ship and three old U. S. destroyers are being moved from their graveyard off the northern shore of Vancouver Island. The hulks which have formed a protective barrier for lumber plants since 1940 are being replaced by a $100,000 breakwater.

World-Wide Communion

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER

Sunday, Oct. 7—Today, for the 17th time, Protestants around the world join in the demonstration of Christian unity known as World-Wide Communion. In every country, Christians will go to their churches today to receive the sacrament of Holy Communion.

This does not mean "joint" or "mass" services. Nor does it mean that all Christians must have the same beliefs about the sacrament. That is not the point. The point is that on this one day each in his own church—cathedral or country chapel—and each according to his own forms and doctrines will be responding to the Lord's invitation "Do this in remembrance of me." Before such unanimity of purpose differences fade, barriers are wiped out, and Christians both see and show to others their oneness in a worldwide fellowship.

In every participating church an effort will be made to enable every member to receive the communion. For the sick, aged, and for all who are confined to their homes or to institutions, plans will be made to take the sacrament to them wherever they are.

The National Council of Churches, sponsoring body in America, regards World-Wide Communion Sunday as one of the spiritual high points of the year in the local church, ranking it along with Easter in importance. It is observed each year on the first Sunday in October.

THE CHRISTIAN COURTESAN

Monday, Oct. 8—The legend of Thais, the beautiful courtesan, has produced both a great novel and a great opera. The story is that in the fourth century in Egypt there was a most attractive woman named Thais, who, though she had been brought up a Christian, drifted away from the faith and engaged in a life of prostitution, an occupation that brought her both wealth and renown. An aged hermit by the name of Paphnutius, having heard of the wayward lady, went to talk with her. So effective were his admonitions that Thais burst into tears of repentance and stored for three hours in which to settle her affairs. After this, she said, she would be willing to obey whatever orders the old man might give for her.

She then spent the three hours selling all her wealth, clothing, and jewelry in the street and burning it up, all the while inviting the crowd that gathered around (many of whom were clients of hers) to join her in penitence. Paphnutius then sent to a convent and sealed her in a cell never to be opened, where she existed for three years on bread and water. After three years Paphnutius deemed that her penance was sufficient and he allowed her to come out and mingle with the nuns. She died, however, within 15 days.

That legend has satisfied the Greek church, which honors Thais in its calendar today, but the Roman church has never canonized her.

In the novel "Thais," by Anatole France, Paphnutius is represented as a young man who converts Thais and sends her to the convent, but at the same time falls in love with her and is miserable without her. The opera, by Massenet, follows much the same line.

COLUMBUS DAY

Friday, Oct. 12—The religious implications of Columbus Day are quite secondary, and yet they cannot and should not be disregarded. Today is, of course, the anniversary (the 464th) of the landing of Christopher Columbus on the West Indian island of San Salvador and the opening of the New World.

There was nothing of a religious character about that landing. The commemoration of it has from the first contained a highly spiritual element—partly, one supposes, because Columbus Day celebrations are especially dear to the Italians in America, and Italian festivals are always flavored with the life of the church; partly because today is a big day for the Catholic men's Knights of Columbus. The day, with its masses and processions, has come to have, by reflection, the status of a church day.

Columbus Day was first observed in 1792—the 300th anniversary of the landing—by The Columbian Society (Tammany) at New York. It is now a legal holiday in more than two-thirds of the states.

Thanksgiving

The common things of every day,
The sunrise and the morning dew,
The south wind whispering on its way,
The fleecy clouds in sky of blue,
The singing streams, the limpid lake,
The autumn trees in radiant dress—
All these, in thoughtful hearts awake
A spirit of true thankfulness.

For God has made the mountains high,
The streams that sing unto the sea,
And every wind that wanders by
Proclaims His matchless Majesty;
His glory, too, the skies declare,
The morning stars sing for His praise,
Then for His love and wondrous care
Let us our thankful voices raise.

For strength to do the daily task,
—For love of home and kindred, too,
For gifts beyond we think or ask
We bring to Him our thanks anew;
And for the days when we have been
Beneath His wise and chastening rod,
For all life's lessons He has sent
We humbly give our thanks to God.

CANADA'S POOR FIRE RECORD

Everybody is worrying about the cost of living. But if it had increased by almost thirty per cent in ten years, it would be a deafening roar of indignation from the Canadian people. Yet one of our most unpleasant, and partially avoidable, costs of living has risen by that percentage and practically nobody seems concerned about it. It is the cost of replacing the property we burn up every year, much of it as the direct result of carelessness.

Next week being Fire Prevention Week, this seems like the appropriate time to consider some disturbing statistics. According to the Dominion Fire Commissioner's office, Canada's per capita fire loss was $6.86 in 1952. By 1954 our per capita fire loss had climbed to $6.01. Last year it jumped to $7.60, an increase of over 26 per cent in a single year.

Should we be doing something about this?

Perhaps some may feel that Canada's 1952 per capita loss was exceptionally low and that we could not expect to continue to enjoy such a record. The reverse is true. In the year that fires cost Canada $5.86 per capita, Italy's fire loss was only 32 cents. Somebody may suggest that Italy is a poverty-stricken country and that the low fire loss can be explained by the fact that its per capita wrath is low. That may be a partial answer. But is Canada five times richer than United Kingdom? The per capita fire loss there was only $1.10 in 1952? Or is Canada richer than the United States, where the per capita loss was $4.56? Does someone suggest that neither the United Kingdom or the United States have as cold a climate as Canada and this may be a factor? In that case, how does one explain Norway's per capita loss of $2.44?

Make excuses as we may, there is no escaping the conclusion that Canada's per capita fire loss is high because too many Canadians are careless.—In the last few years fires in Canada have claimed 4,856 lives, have seriously injured 16,000 persons and have resulted in property damage estimated at $900,000,000.

The only way to reduce this terrible toll in lives and this costly damage to property is for all of us to be careful where fire is concerned. The first and most important rule is not to play with matches. But if a fire does start it can often be fought successfully by the average householder if he keeps his head. The first thing to do, of course, is to notify the fire department. Once that is done, the householder may be able to do much to keep the flames within bounds until the professional firefighters arrive. Here are some hints, released by the joint fire prevention publicity committee, sponsored by the Association of Canadian Fire Marshals and the Canadian Association of Fire Chiefs:

"Stay near a door or a window so any sudden bursts of flame can't trap you. If you are fighting a fire with a hose or any type of water stream, always aim at the object that is burning, never at the stream or flame. If the fire is spread out over the floor or ground, start at the end nearest you and sweep it out completely as you advance. If the fire is travelling up a wall, put out the fire at the bottom first and then move it up.

"When fighting a fire due to an electrical cause, first turn off the power. You should know the location of the main house switch and a simple pull of the handle cuts off power throughout the house. That prevents the fire from being re-ignited and also avoids the possibility of giving yourself a severe electrical shock."

COST OF U.S. ELECTION

This year's U.S. presidential campaign will, it is estimated, cost the party organizations, local and national, close to $100,000,000. Some idea of the costs involved may be gleaned from the fact that the Democrats paid $200,000 for a half hour broadcast on three television networks for the "kick-off" campaign speech of Adlai Stevenson. THE FUTURE

One has to live for many years
And go through weeks of work and sport
Before to him the truth appears:
However long, his life is short.

There's much that we shall never do,
There's much that we shall never learn;
And there are volumes old and new
Whose pages we shall never turn.

And wise it is that this is so.
No bitterer fate for man could be
Than learning all there is to know
And solving every mystery.

'Tis not the long established truth
That keeps men happy and content;
There must be something left for youth
To find and master and invent.

Secret of Condensed Milk

By W. W. Baker in the Kansas City Times

Mix a batch of condensed Egg, a land schooner, some neat biscuits and an old Shaker canning recipe. Doesn't sound like the formula for success, does it?

You add the catalytic agent, the leaven which means money in the pocket and not just another loaf, when you try a little of the ambition and perseverance of a man like Gail Borden. The result:

One hundred years ago August 19 the United States Patent office granted Patent No. 18533. At 54, graying, penniless Gail Borden had found the secret for condensing milk. Thus he revolutionized the dairy industry and took a huge stride forward toward the modern methods of food processing that go so well with the laziness of push-button living.

* * *

But there was a thin thread of fate running through all this. Had Borden given up, no man could have blamed him. But the setbacks of years had gone happily enough. He had worked with Sam Houston in the cause of Texas, editing a newspaper, the Telegram and Texas Register. Editorially Gail warned Santa Anna, and headlined the tragedy of the young republic. "Remember the Alamo!" At the last moment he closed his print shop and fled to Galveston, there to learn that Houston, military victory and independence, had closed in for the kill.

So Gail settled down with his family and became secretary and general agent for the Galveston company. But he was such a strange man, neighbors said, inventor, writer and both he carted into his barn, the sound of kettles rattling in the night. Sometimes it was he up to? The minister arrived to find Gail feeding a land schooner. He asked the question:

"What are you cooking?"

"I'm condensing figs. I have an idea that you can preserve food by removing the water." Heat water, half a hogshead of sugar and a few figs, and Gail was ready "to condense and preserve it in containers."

* * *

Gail invited friends to a party one summer evening. They sat down to a meal of concentrated soup, concentrated beef and tur-nips, and concentrated fruit fruit extracts. Gail enjoyed the flavor, the guests seemed content, and they left politely. They might not have done that, had Gail been aboard the land schooner.

After dinner they were taken to the barn and saw a strange contraption on wheels but topped with a stove. Gail showed them to the beach, the horses were unhitched and Gail explained the operation of the land schooner, which harnessed the wind just as ships did. Borden would sit in and it was anchors—or brakes evenish. Suffice to say, the cupids in the fleet, frightened, soaked but polite. And Gail Borden looked for other fields to conquer.

* * *

That would be the meat biscuit, which was just the thing for prospectors journeying to the Klondike gold fields. Hadn't the Indians concentrated meat into pemmican? Gail mixed it tasted like shoe leather but Gail would be the first to give a biscuit to a boiled to ten pounds. And flour, mold it, bake it. The gold prospector set off with 600 pounds of the new product. Gail went to the Arctic with Stella Kent Kane and to Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas, proud of the 1st dragoons he tested it.

Gail then tried the "Meat Biscuit" and find it all, and more, than the inventor had claimed. It lasted over dozen it entirely, lot several consecutive days, and felt no ounces a day."

Fugitives from C and X rations may recall a familiar if not pleasant taste at this moment, so perhaps Gail Borden was the certain of obscurity over the meat biscuit. Suffice to say, Borden established several agencies. He won a prize at a London exhibition and then the British do have strange tastes. However, pollities kept the meat biscuits out of the army which is probably just as well. And the public taste kept them off the tables. Borden, with his biscuit recipe, cooked up more debts than sales.

* * *

Now to significant events. While Borden had been trying to market his biscuits, he left his mother-less children with friends in a Shaker religious colony in New Lebanon, N.Y. Check that for future reference. He also returned from England in 1857 on board a ship which carried two cows to provide milk for children. Both animals became ill and several babies died as a result of drinking their milk.

Borden meditated on that. He had condensed fruits and meat. Couldn't he apply the same process to milk?

The first effort in an ordinary kettle resulted in a horrible, burned mess. Then he remembered the Shakers used a vacuum pan to preserve fruit extracts. It kept out the air and evaporation proceeded at a slower rate so the milk would not burn. Gail went to New Lebanon and there, as the Shakers looked on, discovered the formula for the first successful condensed milk. From the borrowed kettle he went on to his own specially-designed vacuum pan, which looked very like a balloon on three legs.

* * *

Now only the reluctance of the patent office need be overcome, and that was no easy job after the reluctant patent commissioner pointed out that similar though unnecessful processes had been discovered. But Borden had added the vacuum principle, and finally affidavits of scientists convinced the government that it was the open sesame to success of condensing milk.

At first there were moments of failure, but finally he went to New York, where he began teaching people to like the flavor of the new milk. First samples were passed door to door, then condensed milk was sold from push-carts on the streets of the city. Later Gail canned milk, and in cans it kept indefinitely. The door was open to a multi-millionth dollar industry. Gail Borden could return to Texas and there, in the little town of Borden which grew up around his home, he died January 11, 1874.

Pineau Pens Fairy Tales

Christian Science Monitor

Reflecting on the inventiveness, humaneness, and wisdom of modern masters of fairy tales and poems, Christian Science Monitor Editor Andersen and even the Thurber of "Many Moons" — some folk have wished such men could have ruled nations as well as written fairy songs.

All things come to those who wait, including Christian Pineau, writer of fairy tales, and now foreign minister of France. His fairy tales he thinks of Pineau, bear "with green paws" who spreads the message of "peace among the land. This, his third book of such stories, is reported as showing Calm as a basic and delicate author.

Very likely just the kind of writer of whom readers a generation hence would say, "Now if lately a man like that could have set steer the affairs of state." But that is just what he has been doing and with no more visible success than a mere statesman! That is not bad, of course, by political standards. But for a writer of fairy tales.....?

Unwanted Industries

Windsor Star

Most communities in Canada are desirous of attracting new industries, and there is keen competition for them. Some have industries and strength to a community. But there is a limit to what communities should find, to attract industries.

Mr. Elgin E. Crull, city manager of Dallas, Texas (an unusually fast-growing city) addressed a staff at the International City Managers' Association conference at Banff. He said some prospective buyers were unanimous in rejecting especially objectionable industries.

If an industry needs special tax or other concessions, it is an uncertain one which has little stability rather than an asset. If an industry doesn't operate without expensations, it shouldn't get them. Otherwise other taxpayers will be subsidizing an enterprise quite capable of paying its way. Many communities have had unhappy experience with subsidized industries.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

For Canadians in the north and the west, it is hard to believe that there is not a limit to what timber is growing up in the older parts of Canada. Lumber companies mention lots. A good ideal more than half of Canada's lumbering is now done on the farms. Many farmers permanent lumber mills, involving hundreds of thousands of dollars, are located in fixed locations; and apparently little enough good of the timber is brought to them.

But today, in the east, in the old settled regions where farm woodlots survive despite the insatiable axe-wielding of the city, the value of lumber has occasioned some serious thinking, and, in response, a new kind of wisdom is growing up in the older parts of Canada in respect of farm woodl

The Week's News

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The week's news

At London airport last Monday, a distinguished group gathered in mist and driving rain to welcome home the "Mighty Rat". The Vulcan, world's largest delta-winged bomber, was being "talked in" to a landing after a test flight to Australia.

The four-jet atom-bomb carrier headed in through the murk. Then suddenly it attempted to gain altitude—and plunged into the earth scarcely 100 yards away from the welcoming committee.

Flection seats carried to safety the pilot and his high-ranking copilot, Air Marshal Sir Harry Broadhurst. Four others aboard, not provided with ejection seats, were killed.

It was another hard blow to British aviation, which has had a string of bad luck with new jet types.

NEWFOUNDLAND POLL

It used to be days before the result of a Newfoundland election became known. Last Tuesday night, the voters' decision was clear less than two hours after the polls closed. Premier Joseph Smallwood's Liberal government was elected for a third time, with 32 of 36 seats in the legislature. The Progressive Conservatives held the remaining four, a loss of one.

TORY LEADERSHIP

or the fifth time since 1927, the Progressive Conservative party soon will meet to choose a new leader. The party's national executive met on Tuesday and selected Ottawa as the scene of a national convention the week of Dec. 10 to pick a successor to George Drew, who resigned because of ill health.

NEW ORPHANS

Early last Sunday morning, in American Falls, Idaho, two married couples were driving home. The car crashed into a tree. All four were killed. Each couple had five young children asleep at home. The town of American Falls (pop. 1,800) mobilized to take care of the 10 new orphans. "I've never seen a community so affected by anything," said a local lawyer.

MANITOBA CRASH

Western Canada also had a terrible auto accident. A mother and her four children, and five oil company employees—a total of 10 —were killed near Virden, Man., in a head - on collision on the Trans-Canada Highway Thursday night.

BRITISH TRADE

Britain is toying with the idea of teaming up with West Europe in a free trade agreement. It would give Britain and the continental countries a common market of 250,000,000 people, enabling them to compete on more equal terms with the mass-production methods of the United States and Russia.

UN TACKLES SUEZ

The United Nations Security Council took up the Suez problem Friday. British and French hopes of getting backing for a plan of international control were dimmed by indications State Secretary Dulles of the U.S. has wavered on a united front.

Dulles said Wednesday the U.S. was thinking in terms of a "long dependent" course and wasn't going to be identified "100 per cent" with Britain and France on the colonialism issue. This linking of Suez and "colonialism" shocked London and Paris, and Dulles himself later edited the printed version of his remarks to soften their impact.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON
AGILITY

Have you ever tried to photograph a wild bird? Members of the warbler group are the hardest to snap, and Wilson's Warbler probably the most impossible.

Agility personified, this tiny bird hides its olive green coat in the depths of the foliage; then suddenly darts out, flycatcher fashion, after some flying object, returning to peer under the leaves at the end of a branch by remaining underneath, poised in air almost like a hummingbird. Always busy and restless, it snatches at the insects, twitching its tail in the manner of a catbird.

We seldom have the opportunity of seeing this little sprite with its banana yellow underparts, even though it usually stays within 10 feet of the ground. The male always wears a small, round, jet black cap; his mate may or may not have an indication of the headgear, but the children go bareheaded, their identity shown only by their green top sides, yellow under sides, and a distinctive yellow eyebrow. Possibly our attention may be attracted by a short "zip," but like the majority of birds the Wilson Warbler felt its song behind at its breeding grounds. Our next opportunity of hearing the bubbling song, similar to a water-thrush's, will be next May.

LARGE RANGE

Our chance of finding Wilson's Warbler this season runs from the last week of August until the third week of September. Its range is unusually large, reaching from the northern tree limit to the southern United States, and (counting the western variety) from the Pacific coast to Newfoundland. But it seldom favors us with its presence. Avoiding settlements, it nests in swampy areas, along streams and ponds surrounded by alders and willows. These birds are actually rather scarce, and the majority make their summer homes north of civilization. Nevertheless, there are certain districts, one being not far from Ottawa, where they are fairly common.

Now in migration, Wilson's Blackcaps (as they are sometimes called), are to be looked for in the same kind of country as before — bogs and swampy land near their favorite alders and willows. Those that nested near the Arctic are certainly by this date on the way to their winter quarters, but many stops must be made for rest and food before their goal is reached. Then for the winter months all those that were spread out over North America for the summer will be packed into a narrow space, reaching from Mexico down into Panama. Think of all the flying insects that will be needed!

Mr. Frank M. Hatashita, 3rd Dan, President of the Hatashita Judo Club of Toronto, the largest Judo Club in North America. His Judo Club will be giving an exhibition at the YMCA Saturday evening, October 6th, at 8 p.m. Two girl judoists will be participating in this exhibition.

None of Tenders for Proposed New Hospital Were Accepted

PICTON — None of the tenders for the proposed Prince Edward County Memorial hospital at Picton were accepted as the lowest was far above the amount of money the hospital board has available. This was for a proposed 50-bed hospital.

At a meeting of the Board Thursday night, it was decided to proceed with the intention of building a new hospital through securing a revised proposal from architects, Dreever and Smith, to bring the cost within the money which is in hand as a building fund.

The architects are to be asked to prepare new plans involving an expenditure of $550,000, including the architects' fees, but less the furnishings.

There would be an additional $113,790. required for equipment, bringing the total cost to $663,-790., which would make it necessary to raise an additional $50,-000. for furnishings.

Originally, the Board had been advised that the estimated cost would be $473,000. The lowest tender received was that of the McFarland Construction Co., of $749,252. Other tenders were T.A. Andre and Son $792,500.; T. L. Smith Construction Co., $787,500.; M. Sullivan and Son, $779,337.

A committee appointed at a previous meeting when tenders were opened, reported on having investigated the possibility of revising plans so that a new hospital could be built with the money which is available.

Greener Thumbs

By JOYCE SMITH

Have you taken your soil's pH lately? pH is merely a symbol representing a scale for measuring acidity or alkalinity of soil. It ranges from 4 to 9, with 7 as neutral. Low numbers are very acid-high, very alkaline. Make a simple soil test (not with thermometer, of course) by mixing one tablespoon each of soil and ammonia with eight ounces rain water. Shake and let stand several hours. Dark mixture indicates acidity — clear, alkaline. This test is general, does not show soil's exact condition.

The Face on the Stamp

Pioneer of the Silk Industry

By NICHOLAS MIKA

Silk has an interesting and exciting story of its own. From the first precious silkworms that were smuggled to Europe in the hollow walking sticks of some monks from China to the famous industry that flourishes around Lyon in France. But had it not been for one man who was born in Lyon, the silk-weavers of France might well have starved to death. He not only saved the silk industry of his country and made the miserable lots of the weavers happy and prosperous, but with his invention he became one of the great pioneers of our modern textile manufacture.

His parents were silk-weavers and so poor that he often had to go to bed without a supper. Growing up among looms and watching the hard and painstaking work of men and women, he began to think about a machine that would do their jobs faster and better. But he just dreamed about it, until one day he read that the English Society of Arts offered a prize for the invention of a lace making machine. This gave him the spark he started to build a machine. Not only for lace making, but a machine that would weave any pattern that a fanciful designer might request. But when he had finished his model, he was so disappointed in his invention that he didn't even bother to try it out, and he pushed it carelessly into a corner of his workshop. Had not a friend borrowed it for a few days, he probably would have forgotten all about it.

Three weeks went by and his friend did not return the model. Instead he received a sealed letter ordering him to come to Paris at once.

Napoleon who was then first consul wanted to see him. "Are you the man who tries to do things God cannot do?" he asked the trembling inventor. The poor man from Lyon could only shake his head and stammer: "I merely do what God teaches me to do." And he felt very relieved when he was asked to explain his miraculous machine.

But the people of his hometown did not like his invention. "Down with the devil's machine!" they yelled when he showed his model in public. A raving mob of silk-weavers destroyed his loom and called its inventor a dangerous enemy of every honest, hardworking man. They even tried to kill him, and three times he barely escaped.

When he saw that his own people rejected him in their blindness, he brought his invention to England. And while the English industry began to bloom and prosper, the silk-weavers of France were starving. In their distress they called him back and pleaded for his help. He was a kind-hearted man and did not return evil for evil. Instead he installed his pattern weaving looms all over France, improved them and taught others how to escape poverty and misery and with the aid of machines become prosperous in a fast developing new era. His pattern weaving looms became known all over the world. We call it Jacquard after its inventor, Joseph Marie Jacquard.

Cara, Greg Butler to Play Two-Piano Recital

TWO TALENTED YOUNG STARS, A BRILLIANT MUSICAL FUTURE PREDICTED FOR THEM, WILL APPEAR IN A TWO PIANO RECITAL, FRIDAY, OCT. 12, IN THE BELLEVILLE COLLEGIATE AUDITORIUM.

Cara and Greg began to study under Misses Mary and Mrs. E. Ormonde Butler. Displaying signs of exceptional promise, the young pianists have attracted widespread attention every where they have appeared.

Showing an early bending towards musical things, Cara and Grey began to study under Miss Leona Riggs. They remained under her gifted tutelage until she retired from teaching. Then they studied under Mr. William Connor of this city for a year and a half. In September, 1951, Miss Mona Bates, noted Canadian pianist and pedagogue, heard Cara and Greg in audition and accepted them as her pupils. It is rare to find artists so equally at home in solo and ensemble work. Greg has been called "a master of the piano." Cara has been termed "exquisite", one is astonished at her great full tone from such a slender frame. As a two piano team them have received unusual praise from some of the province's most demanding music critics.

The Key Club and its young members are to be congratulated for bringing these young artists before the Belleville public again.

Their Recital Will Be On Friday, October 12, At The Belleville Collegiate Auditorium

General Guy Simonds Discusses Canada's Civil Defence Problem

Last evening the Women's Canadian Club were privileged to have as their guest speaker, Lieutenant-General Guy Simonds, Canada's most brilliant soldier, who addressed the large assembly on the subject of "Canadian Defence Problems."

General Simonds has had an outstanding military career. In the late war he was in command of the Second Canadian Corps of Northwest Europe, and First Canadian Army during the battle of the Scheldt. He is a graduate of the Ashbury Military College, and the Royal Military College of Kingston. At present he is retired, and engaged in writing his memoirs, which, when completed will be a valuable adjunct to Canadian history.

In being introduced by the president of the club, Mrs. D. I. MacKinnon, General Simonds said he was most happy to accept the club's invitation to come to Belleville, and had chosen for his last talk the outstanding topic of today, that of Civil Defence, its policy, and the problems connected with it.

"The apathy and indifference shown across Canada today as regarding her defence is one of great seriousness." There is much talk but little constructive action along the right lines.

Regarding the topic of nuclear weapons, the policy has been expressed in having security and defence in massive retaliation power. To have security in the threat of striking massive power contains the disadvantage of being both wrong, and most dangerous. Because the effects of mass bomber raids were bad; but with the use of rocket the scale were increased, and the attacker had to desist. With nuclear power, the attrition rate could devastate the northland of North America.

The western world has had a rude awakening as to aeronautics. There is no certainty that aeronautics are in favour. We have to face the superiority of the offensive; because that might be the only real defence is the threat of retaliation in kind, and the use of thermonuclear war. Are we would bring in the final destruction of civilization as we know it—so neither side dare use it.

National defence can be destroyed by the gradual eating away of military strength, which is as bad as a sudden thrust in the heart. According to General Gunter of the U.S. there are some advantages in a mass of technological leadership: the ring of bases, places Russia closer to us, and power has been a gradual narrowing of the perimeter since 1945.

In the years we were attacked, everyone would have to take his part in the mobilization. Here we taken steps which lets everyone know what to do in an emergency is done.

To have effective military power, the system must be effective. The Distant Early Warning bases give the United States warning of practically any enemy air borne. DEW warning line is an effective weapon when combines with seronautics, but it will eventually wipe out civilization, there are risks, if these two weapons fall into madmen's hands, but it is better to have this system even if it is not used. It can warn of attacking forces, and also direct them where to attack.

COLLECTIVE SECURITY

In speaking of collective security which is the pooling of state resources to discourage the aggressor, Canada's total strength now is only enough to absorb the first shock. To gain time to get into arms the nation must be organized to spring to arms quickly. Canada is not prepared to face the issue. Her political leaders are to blame for not having the means and the finances to back up her forces. There is no organization of the Canadian Defence Problems."

In summing up, General Simonds said that every Canadian has got to ask himself a definite question and make his decision on the answer and support his decision to the political leaders. "Are we prepared for an emergency? As a nation should we subscribe to massive retaliation power or to limited conventional weapons. Do we present to an aggressive country that we are ready to do our part, intelligently?"

The speaker was thanked for his fine address by the president, and a period of questions and answers brought out much valuable information along the situation as it exists today.

Coffee was served following the discourse.

SEA.

Over the still blue line and there, Wonder of wonders, we're in the Far West, Colorado. Spanish names, Pueblo, La Junta, reminding us from road signs and then, in the distance, the Rockies appear over the Spanish-sounding town, commanding and majestic.

San Juanita knows the air is so dry and clear it's never cold enough or warm enough to bother you, whatever the temperature. Cautiously around the curves and grades of U.S. 24 through the Rockies' other terminus, Salt Lake City, where symmetrical streets stand straight at each end of the main streets, clearly visible from the mountains, is one of the friendliest people in the world.

West across Utah, non-stopping to Reno, with its two hilarious major industries, gambling and divorcing, and on to Sacramento, the real old California and old gold.

There'll be San Francisco, the spectacular climbing, curving cosmopolis and the Bay, with an air of aliveness unlike any other place in the world, even possibly Hong Marin County with a combination of scenery and outstanding residential property surpassing any other single place; down through the grotesque Hollywood, unforgettable Monterey Peninsula, generally by-passed by all but the most imaginative tourists.

Perhaps inland to fertile Imperial Valley, maybe down to the coast, but soon there's Santa Barbara and Ventura and the expensive old Spanish-Mexico-Hollywood, where entertainment is more of an industry than fun, and the people work at it instead of play at it, which is a fascinating thought if you've had more to do with show business than buying a ticket to a performance.

Come along? There's room in the back seat, if you can put up with the kids. If you can't, we'll be telling you about it in this space as it happens.

Going Places

Cross Country by Motor Everyone's Dream Trip

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

The airplanes are so fast nowadays you don't hear them 'til they're gone. The buses now have upstairs and downstairs, and the trains have lounges, observation, stenographers and as many bars and restaurants as the Waldorf-Astoria. But, somehow, nothing like they're winnowed up yet can quite match the thrill of piling the family in the car and going out to see the world's most beautiful continent at eye level, sans schedules, connections, reservations and tickets.

Motoring is fast becoming a lost a spirit of delicious anticipation. Shortly after this is written and perhaps before you read it, we will be departing on everyone's dream trip, a motor trip by auto.

We've lost track of the number of times we've been across country and via ocean liner to Europe, but to DC-7, but this is the first time that we've ever undertaken straight through. It's also the first time for Claudia, now, and Jonathan, 2½.

To them California is defined as "Disneyland with a few motels on the way," but we hope they can at least half appreciate the inconceivable treat between the motels.

Our route will take us across the Ohio Turnpike, the new Pennsylvania Turnpike, the superhighway laboriously carved out of and through the formidable-looking Alleghenies which in turn suddenly level off into the endless flatlands of Ohio and Indiana.

Then come the fabulous metropolises of the Midwest—Columbus, where Ohio State football will be the major topic of conversation until winter; Indianapolis and the Hoosier heartland, straightest streets in the country; stately, tree-shaded St. Louis and its Old World dignity; then suddenly, at the mouth of Missouri, its direct opposite, Kansas City, with its bright-lights-big-city air of the Southwest, where men wear ten-gallon hats and the cattle, handlebored in residential sections rise impressively from the plains. Then across the Missouri now we're really on our way—through Topeka and across Kansas.

Women's Activities

FRONT ROAD W.A.

The October meeting of the Front Road W.A. was held in the church with ten ladies and five children present.

The president, Mrs. Clinton Brown, took charge of the meeting. Mrs. Hugh McMullen was pianist.

Mrs. Pearl Clazie took charge of the devotional. Psalm 65 was read. Mrs. Clazie prepared an inspiring devotional program which opened with a poem, "Prayer in the Autumntime". The theme was Thanksgiving, and she told of the first Thanksgiving, and also discussed the Psalms. She also reminded that one should be thankful for food, home and good health.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Geddes Bradshaw.

Plans for anniversary Sunday were discussed and also the need of an oil burner for the church hall.

Plans were also made for the bazaar which is to be held the last of this month.

The meeting was closed with prayer and the ladies retired to the hall, where they served refreshments for the hostess and conveners.

The November meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Glenn Bradshaw, one week later than the usual date.

This — and That

Thanksgiving.

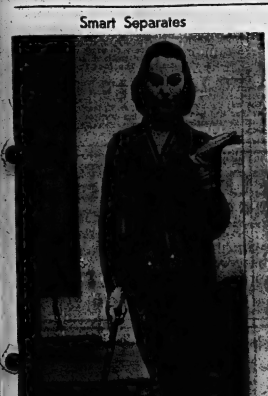
"Said old Gentleman Gay, "Oh a Thanksgiving Day,

If you want a good time, then give something away."

For this very special Canadian weekend, Marian Douglas hands on to us a simple thought, an uncomplicated ideal. Albert Schweitzer writes in the "power of ideals is incalculable" and "ideals are thoughts." We think if it is possible to give thanks, or if there would be much to be grateful for, if no men or women had existed or now live without ideals.

It might be argued of course that ideals have little to do with the bounty of nature. Indeed, the garden of Eden was there "in the beginning" and harvest combines, a bounty of scientific man, waited millenniums to serve the greater bounty of humanity. Canada has great bounty to be thankful for this weekend. But if is a reality (and being realistic is a favorite word of the materialist) that the people of some countries have too little of the bounty we take for granted.

T & T does neither presume nor pretend to say kind of a big treatise is within its orbit, but old Gentleman Gay offers a simple thought in the simple thanksgiving in a simple practical way. Schweitzer also had a conception that kindness is the "furthest reaching and most effective of all forces." Of course, we cannot shut kindness with a price tag or interest charge or exploitation motivation, loses much of its force.



It is surely not very naive to render thanks to Somebody for all our bounty; the generosity of nature, the intensity of science, the keenness to worship, the freedom to respect our fellow man regardless of race, creed or colour, the belief in peace, be it ever so precarious in a seething and restless age, our standard of life from the practical realities of material well-being, and so much more lasting, our practical opportunities to join with old Gentleman Gay to have "good time" by first giving away a way to the less fortunate throughout a less blessed world. Our reserve stocks of coal or iron or oil may dwindle but we can preserve and increase our reserve capital of tolerance, of sincerity, of integrity, of kindness, and so build a base of strength in impregnable depth for which Canada and our fellow men will always desire to give Thanksgiving.

T and T wishes all its readers a Gentleman Gay's good time for this 1956 Thanksgiving.

Smart Separates

By TRACY ADRIAN

Young women who are going places and doing things will find separates like these an indispensible part of their wardrobes for fall and winter.

The jacket is cut along blazer lines and is made of a combination of imported Australian wool and a modern blend of Vicara. It comes in a variety of colors and white with the vertical stripes set off by either a navy or black background. It has two pockets and self covered buttons. With the coat is worn a slender wool skirt with an elasticized waist.

Readers' Saturday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

NOTE TO READERS FROM M.M.:

Please allow two or three weeks to pass before expecting a reply to your letter to me— unless you be in a very great hurry. If so say so. Always enclose stamped self-addressed envelope, so I can write to you when I do not have space for your letter in the column.— M.M.

QUESTION:

Would you please send me the recipe for "Bread and Butter" Pickles? You use ice cubes in the first step. I have seen my children and they all love to eat them. I wouldn't want to be without your 100 per cent whole wheat bread recipe. . . I believe that is what is making them grow so fast.—Mae H.

ANSWER:

I thought that too Mae, but a fuller explanation of the phenomenal growth of children is their all-round well-balanced diet that includes whole wheat bread.

BREAD AND BUTTER PICKLES

Six quarts sliced cucumbers, 6 cups thinly sliced onions, 6 cups vinegar, 3 1-2 cups granulated sugar, 1-2-cup each mustard seed and mixed pickling spices, 1-4 cup each celery seed and olive or salad oil. Slice the cucumbers and onions not more than 1-16 inch thick and let stand overnight in weak brine in proportions of 1-4 cup salt to each 4 cups water. Cover the surface of the bowl or crock or pan with ice cubes. Drain very well in morning. Mix all other ingredients and bring to boil. Add the drained cucumber and onion slices and again bring just to boil, but do not actually boil. Seal in small sterile jars. This pickle keeps much better in sealed jars than in an open crock.

QUESTION:

The Ladies' Auxiliary are putting on a Spaghetti Dinner for 50. As I am going to be the sauce maker would you help me as to the ingredients to use and amounts?—B. R. McP.

ANSWER:

I will give you the amount of sauce needed for 50. I want to add though that this is the way Canadians like it. Italians would make only half this amount for 50 and toss it with forks through the cooked spaghetti.

SPAGHETTI, ITALIAN STYLE, FOR 50

Six or 8 lbs. ground beef or a pan beef and pork, 3-4 cup hot olive oil. Cook these two together until lightly browned, then add and simmer slowly 3 1-2 quarts tomatoes (canned or raw) or their equivalent in tomato paste, juice and water, 8 cloves garlic finely chopped, 4 bay-leaves crumbled, 1 tablespoon oregano, 2 tablespoons salt, 1 teaspoon black pepper. (The addition of celery, onions, vinegar and sugar are optional) Simmer slowly at least 1 hour.

Note—1 lb. spaghetti will serve eight generously. Sprinkle individual servings with grated old of Parmesan cheese.

ADVICE To the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DON'T RUSH INTO A SECOND MARRIAGE

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'm a 21-year-old girl and a very mixed-up person.

My mother and I have never got along, and for as long as I can remember, even when I was going to grammar school, she showed no love for me. She has as much as told me I was an unwanted child and just in her way.

At the age of 17, I ran away and got married to get away from her. But my marriage didn't work out, and now I have a two-and-a-half year old daughter and am waiting for my divorce. I'm living with my parents again because I had nowhere else to go, but my mother and I still don't get along and she makes life miserable for me. I'm awfully afraid she will treat my child just the way she has treated me and, I don't want my child to grow up in this kind of atmosphere. She might feel just the same as I do when she gets older and I certainly want to avoid that.

I hate to move away from my father, because he centers his life about the baby, but I can't stand much more of this continual bickering. My mother thinks anything she does for me is going out of her way, and she is always yelling about how her children don't appreciate her. I only make $35 a week, and after I give her $20, it makes it really hard for me to buy anything for my baby or clothes for myself.

I have a boy friend who is 28 years old. He loves my daughter and wants to pay for my divorce so we can be married. He and my doctor have both advised me to leave my parents' home before I have a nervous breakdown.

I can't decide what to do. I don't want my parents to hate me, and I've tried my best to be friends with my mother, but she simply doesn't care as long as she has her own way.

Please tell me what to do. —Sal

Dear Sal

I completely agree that you should move from your parents's home as soon as possible, but I'm not at all sure that to marry again as soon as your divorce becomes final would be the wisest thing for you to do.

What would seem better to me, if you can arrange it, and I believe that, with thought it could be arranged—would be for you to take the baby and go to an answering service by yourself and wait long enough, before considering a second marriage, to be sure the second would be a happy one. You don't say you're in love with this young man who wants to marry you, and perhaps the appeal to you is only, or largely, because it would solve the problem of your support. But it would be a hazardous thing to marry again solely for economic security. Experience has good reason to believe that the marriage would be successful in any other case, too, you might be running the risk of another broken marriage which would only mean more insecurity for you and your child. You say you do want your child to grow up in the atmosphere of your parents' home, but would you want her to grow up in a home where there was uncertainty about whether or not the marriage was working out?

So don't be in a hurry to rush into another marriage, but give yourself ample time to make sure that this time you know exactly what you're doing.

Now let's consider how you'd take care of yourself and your child if you did leave your parents' home.

The very best way for you to make specific plans would be for you to consult with the Family Service Association in your city. Look up this name in your local telephone book, call them up or write them a letter and ask for an appointment to see someone, then go and tell them all the details of your situation. Do this, of course, before taking any definite steps on your own. You need have no hesitation in talking with the people at the Family Service Association, because their whole purpose is to help people who have serious family problems.

Don't worry about taking the child away from your father. He could come and see her as much as he wished to and the three of you would, I should think, enjoy living together without your mother's presence.

Will you do as I suggest and let me know what happens?

GOOD GROOMING AIDS FOR GADGET-MINDED MEN

A tube of shower shampoo hung conveniently over the shower handle appeals to men who like gadgets.

Every now and then some wife speaks right out loud on the subject of grooming for men. Women's lives are filled with advice on good grooming. They're constantly being reminded that soap and water, creams, lotions, proper make-up and perfumes have a lot to do with gaining and holding a man's romantic interest. But a wife asked the other day why men, too, aren't reminded that personal cleanliness and good grooming are important to the success of marriage.

She pointed out that many a marriage has literally gone on the rocks because either husband or wife began to neglect the personal grooming aspects of life but that men were generally more guilty than women, simply because women are more conditioned to cleanliness in relation to beauty.

Well, we agreed with her, of course. Men should be reminded. And it's up to their wives to do the reminding. Besides keeping husbands on their grooming toes in the obvious ways, such as reminding their baths for them, seeing that clean shirts, handkerchiefs, socks and underwear are laid out for them, making sure that suits and ties are always well pressed and there are many subtle ways in which a smart wife can get her husband to take more of an interest in his appearance.

One of them is to keep a sharp lookout, while shopping, for the newest and latest items in men's toiletry line—especially if they smack of gadgetry. After all, most men are gadget-minded and something that's a little "different" is bound to appeal to this side of his nature.

Consider for instance, a new shower shampoo which was designed exclusively for men. It comes in an unbreakable tube with an attached plastic cap to eliminate fumbling for a loose one. For added convenience, a cord loops through the cap so that the tube can be hung over the shower handle within easy reach. Men will also like this new shampoo since, while it lathers freely, it leaves no olive suds, so necessary to longer feminine hair, but so annoying to the average man, have been cut down considerably.

Another gadget men love is a corded shower-bath soap. The soap itself is a fine one but what intrigues the man-of-the-house is the cord which slips through it so that he hangs it about his neck while in the shower or on the soap dish when he takes a tub bath.

Most men use after-shave lotions but, if he hasn't used a pre-shave lotion before, the man in your house might be interested in a new one—especially if he uses an electric razor. Applied immediately before shaving, this unique new lotion helps make the skin taut, enabling the electric razor to slide smoothly over the face for a quick, close shave. Its emollient property also helps to reduce electric razor burn and is especially recommended for men who shave more than once a day.

QUESTIONS ABOUT FIFTH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My husband and I are planning an informal party to observe our fifth wedding anniversary. Is it proper to say on an informal invitation (or an invitation via telephone) that the party is to observe our wedding anniversary?

2. If so and if any of the guests bring presents, is it proper to open them or would this embarrass those who did not bring gifts?

R.M.

1. No matter how the invitation is given . . . by cards, informal notes, by word-of-mouth or by telephone . . . it is entirely proper to mention the fact that the party is to celebrate your fifth wedding anniversary. This is proper, but it is not necessary, and depends entirely on the wishes of the hosts. Occasionally no mention is made of the anniversary-motif of the party, but guests won't feel that gifts are expected, and the fact that it is a wedding anniversary is not announced until the Wedding Anniversary Cake is brought in, or perhaps the man who was best man at the wedding rises to propose a toast "To the Bride and Groom." Personally I think that the guests should be told about the anniversary-idea when they are invited . . . why not? It's fun for the guests to know.

2. If any guest brings a gift, it should be opened at once when it is handed to the hostess, and the hostess and host should express fine appreciation of the guest's thoughtfulness and for the gift itself. No secret features.

HOW UNMARRIED WOMAN SIGNS HOTEL REGISTER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am in my late-thirties, unmarried, and have just started in a position where I will have quite a bit of traveling to do for the company. Should I sign "Miss" before my name in the hotel register—I am traveling on business, just my name without the "Miss"?

Sign your name with the title . . . Miss Jessica Smith.

SERVING DISHES TO BE PASSED TO RIGHT OR LEFT?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please settle a-point of table-service about which our family is having quite a discussion. It is this: in a house where there is no service, and the serving dishes are put on the dinner-table to be passed, should they be passed to the right or to the left?—E.L.D.

When a serving dish is passed it is passed to-the-left. It is the most convenient, passed to the right so that each person may help himself (or herself) from the left . . . that is, holding the serving dish in the left hand in order to help himself with his right hand.

GIFT TO HOUSEWARMING WHEN YOU CANNOT ATTEND!

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A friend is having invited us to a House-warming. I cannot attend. What is the proper thing for me to do with a gift? Should I send one, or isn't it necessary to give a gift unless you attend? —L.

Since you cannot attend the housewarming, it is not really necessary for you to send a gift. However, it would of course be proper and generous for you to send one if your devotion to the new homeowners inclines you to want to send one.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

THE GATE AJAR

There is a gate that stands ajar,
And through its portals gleams
ing,
A radiance from the Cross afar,
The Saviour's love revealing.
Oh, depths of mercy! can it be
That gate was left ajar for me?

That gate ajar stands free for all
Who seek through it salvation;
The rich and poor, the great and small,
Of every tribe and nation.

Press onward then, tho' foes may frown,
While mercy's gate is open;
Accept the cross, and win the crown,
Love's everlasting token.

Beyond 'the river's brink we'll lay
The cross that here is given,
And bear the crown of life away,
And love Him more in heaven.

When "favorite hymns" were called for in the Sunday school days of our grandparents, there were sure to be requests for Dr. Baxter's song, "The Gate Ajar".

Mrs. Baxter, who was born in Petersburg, New York in 1809, was nearly 50 years old before she discovered her hymn-writing talent. Then, she gave herself enthusiastically to the writing of hymns for children and her poems appeared frequently over songs used in Sunday schools and evangelistic services.

She was a pioneer in the gospel hymn-writing field and the first of her hymn verses appeared in 1855 in a small volume entitled "Gems By The Wayside". "The Gate Ajar" was one of her best compositions, but her hymn, "Take The Name Of Jesus With You", is equally popular.

For years, Mrs. Baxter was an invalid and during those years she never left her room of illness. But she bore her cross of physical pain with Christian courage and she never permitted her invalidism to conquer her sunny spirit. How did she manage it? Perhaps she has given us her own answer in her verses. She wrote:

"Take the name of Jesus with you,
Child of sorrow and of woe;
It will joy and comfort give you,
Take it, then, where'er you go.
O the precious name of Jesus!
How it thrills our souls with joy,
When His loving arms receive us,
And His songs our tongues employ!"

HANDSOME HOUSEDRESS

By VERA WINSTON

Easy to come upon are housedresses such as this one, pretty enough to wear at the beach or for either working or lounging at home—which certainly makes it pretty versatile. Of orange colored cotton, the drip-dry variety, it is back-wrapped with a bow-tied sash in front. White piping decorates the V neck and the short cap sleeves, and for extra ornamentation, coarse white cotton lace insertion with a novelty cotton fringe border forms a panel effect on the skirt.

To remove mildew on washable cloth, sodium perborate is a safe bleach. Sponge the mildew spot with a solution made with one tablespoon of sodium perborate to one pint of lukewarm water, or sprinkle the powder directly on the dampened stain; let stand a minute and then rinse well.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK in BELLEVILLE

FIREMEN CAN PUT OUT FIRES . . . BUT ONLY YOU CAN PREVENT THEM. CHECK YOUR HOME FOR FIRE HAZARDS NOW . . . TOMORROW MAY BE TOO LATE. FIRE IS NO RESPECTER OF PERSONS . . . REMEMBER A LITTLE CARE NOW MAY SAVE A LOT OF DAMAGE LATER.

'Act Fire-Safe Year Round' Urges Fire Chief G. Vance

Fire Prevention Week has been proclaimed by Governor General Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey for the period October 7-13 this year, and with many organizations such as the Association of Canadian Fire Marshalls, the Canadian Association of Fire Chiefs, the Chamber of Commerce and others all co-operating, efforts are being made to reduce Canada's fire loss — one of the heaviest in the world.

"Don't Give Fire A Place To Start," is the slogan adopted for the drive which, while being emphasized during the week, will, it is hoped, bring home to the residents of Belleville and all Canadians a lesson for the future.

"Our aim during Fire Prevention Week," said Chief Gerald Vance, "will be to sell everyone on the idea that fire prevention is a life and death matter; that each individual owes it to himself, to his family and his community to think and act fire-safe every minute of the day the year 'round."

"In the last ten years fires in Canada have taken a toll of 4,856 lives, and have seriously injured 16,000 persons. The financial loss of 623,223 fires in the decade has been $800,000,000, and according to the latest available comparative international record of per capita fire losses, according to the office of the Dominion Fire Commissioner, Canada has the largest loss, being $5.85, followed by the U.S.A. with $4.56.

"Fire inspections and city ordinances, while being a very necessary part of fire prevention, are not sufficient in themselves to accomplish this objective. We must have the full support of every man, woman and child in the city in the fight to prevent the loss of life and property through fire.

"Belleville's Fire Prevention Week program will consist of inspections, school fire drills, a poster and essay contest, parade, etc.

"These co-operation from the citizens of Belleville and surrounding district in this campaign will do much to ensure its success and help to make Belleville a better and safer place in which to live."

Smoke, Fumes Take More Lives Than Do Flames

More people are killed by smoke and poisonous fumes given off by fire than by actual flames. Many fires occur at night and by the time you are aware of them they will have gained a strong foothold. If you awaken to the smell of smoke and the sound of fire, do not rush out into the hall. Feel the door first. If it is hot do not attempt to open it as the hall is probably full of fire that will burst in. Brace the door as firmly as possible. If you are able to do so, throw water on it to keep it cool. Open your window and attempt to attract attention and assistance from outside. Never jump unless it is absolutely impossible to wait. Wait for the firemen to take you down with ladders. The wait may be long, but the average city fire department is on the job within minutes of an alarm.

Deadly smoke and gases as well as actual flames tend to rise. Open stairways and open doors assist their progress. As a result, upper floors are usually the most dangerous. Investigation has shown that people are overcome much more quickly while sleeping on upper floors than those sleeping on ground floors.

Don't give a fire a place to start. But if one does come, use your head and you'll probably save it.

Hints to Guard Your Children From Fire Risk

All Canada has been horrified by the number of child victims of fire, with one out of every five killed from this cause being under five years of age. The tragic toll may be greatly reduced by a few simple precautions taken by parents. During Fire Prevention Week, organizations throughout the country are attempting to emphasize fire safety.

Never leave children home alone. They're helpless to escape fire that they themselves often start when left untended. By the same token, always keep matches and lighters far out of the reach of youngsters. These fire-builders are listed as two of the major causes of child fire deaths.

Be sure there are no fire hazards around the house which might ignite the children's clothing. Do not allow them to play around stoves where there are open flames; nor should they be allowed to play near the furnace. Outdoors, be wary of bonfires and field fires for this reason. For the child's sake, be sure party costumes and decorations are flameproofed. You can make such material fire-retardant simply enough by adding nine ounces of borax and four ounces of boracic acid to one gallon of water. The protection lasts for six to twelve months.

Never give children candles; give them flashlights for Hallowe'en and other occasions. Teach your child to do the right thing if his clothes should ever catch fire; tell him not to run but to lie down at once and roll over slowly to smother the flames — in a rug, blanket or coat.

Make Certain Baby Sitters Are Capable

Be absolutely certain your baby sitter is trained and capable of protecting your children in the face of an emergency. That is the warning of the Association of Canadian Fire Marshalls and the Canadian Association of Fire Chiefs. And it goes without saying that they warn parents not to leave young children alone. Scores of youngsters die each year in Canada because parents "just went next door for a minute," or "we knew they'd be all right; we've left them for a couple of hours before."

A few minutes chat with the baby sitter may save her life and that of your children. The fire experts know this may be difficult; that parents may be rushed and "haven't time to stop right now." But the lives of your children are more important than a slight delay in your arrival at the party.

Baby sitters should be thoroughly fire conscious. Be sure they have the telephone numbers of the fire and police departments. Be sure, too, that the sitter knows the location of front and back exits, stairs and porches and the most direct route from the children's rooms to the outside. If you're in a one-storey bungalow, explain to the sitter that in an emergency it's quite all right for her to break windows using chairs or other objects, to get the children out.

MUST BE ALERT

If the sitter seems sleepy when she arrives, it's better to send her home and get someone else — or to stay home yourself. A sitter who is fast asleep when fire breaks out is worthless.

If your home is heated by oil, coal or wood stoves, make sure the fires are made up before you leave. Don't leave it to the baby sitter unless she is an adult.

She should know that at the first whiff of gas or smoke, she shouldn't waste time investigating. The best and safest thing she can do is get the children out of the house first of all. Tell her not to waste time dressing them but to wrap them up in a blanket and get them out at once.

If she cannot reach your telephone safely and easily then tell her to call the fire department by using the telephone in a neighboring house.

Be sure the baby sitter knows where you are going, and how you may be reached in an emergency. Even if you are going to the theatre, the box office there will reach you.

Last winter, more than fifty Canadian children died in home fires — when their parents were out. In some cases, baby sitters died too. In one case, parents had left four children in the care of a 15-year-old who was mentally defective. In several others, parents were charged and convicted of criminal negligence when it was proved they had spent hours in beverage rooms, leaving the children to fend for themselves.

A PROCLAMATION...

Whereas authoritative statistics compiled and published by the Dominion Fire Commissioner show that during the past ten years, 623,223 fires in Canada have destroyed property valued at eight hundred million dollars and that during the same period, four thousand one hundred and fifty-six persons have lost their lives and it is estimated that at least sixteen thousand others have been seriously injured as the result of fire;

And Whereas such losses are increasing year by year; And Whereas humanitarian and economic considerations imperatively demand that human life and material resources in Canada be so far as possible conserved in order that national prosperity may be maintained; And Whereas it is desirable that the attention of the Public be directed to the extent and underlying causes of the preventable loss of life and property by fire and to the best and most practicable means for its control and that a specified period of the year be set apart and properly designated for the dissemination of such information;

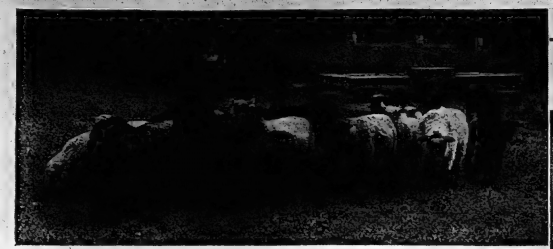
Therefore I designate the week commencing Sunday the Seventh of October and ending on Saturday the Thirteenth of October

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

In the City of Belleville and do recommend that at sometime during that week:

1—All dwellings, public buildings, stores, warehouses, factories, farms and forests be carefully inspected by their occupants and all conditions likely to cause or promote the spread of fire be removed.

2—All theatres, hotels, hospitals and other institutional buildings be inspected and provisions made for all changes necessary to protect the occupants in case of fire.



3—Fire drills be held for the children in all schools, for the inmates of all institutions, and for the employees in all factories, in order that a greater degree of safety be ensured by acquainting the occupants with the best and most expeditious mode of exit in time of danger.

4—Special instructions on the subject of fire prevention be given by the teachers and by municipal officials in the schools and that such appropriate literature as may be made available be distributed to the pupils.

Cowichan Reserve, B.C.

Fleece with a future!

These sheep may not be aware of it but a celebrated fate awaits their fleece. Knit into weatherproof pullovers by women of the Salish Indian tribe on the Cowichan reserve, Cowichan sweaters grace the wardrobes of such famous people as Prime Minister St. Laurent, Harry Truman, Lord Alexander and Bing Crosby.

Parts of a discarded sewing machine are converted into a handy spinning wheel. The heavy wool must be smoothly spun and of uniform thickness, a job that calls for experienced spinners.

Carding is done with a cylindrical comb on a hand-operated machine. Indian women fleece the sheep, prepare the wool and then let their imagination dictate the intricate patterns they use on pullovers.

Mrs. Pat Charlie has been using the same short, stout maple wood needles for over 25 years. Needles longer than 9 or 10 inches would break under the 5-pound weight of a size 40 sweater. Tightly knit, with undyed yarn, so that the natural oils are retained, Cowichan sweaters are wind and rain repellent.

Buster Mathews' store in the small village of Koksilah, B.C., is the only wholesale outlet of Cowichan sweaters in America. Since the Indian women knit only when they feel like it, the store is never overstock

Black sheep, scorned elsewhere in the wool industry, are highly prized in the Cowichan herds for the undyed fleece is used to form the bold and distinctive designs on the popular pullovers.

Imports Again Outpace Exports During August

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's bulging foreign trade continued to swell in August but imports again outpaced exports, boosting the January-August foreign trade deficit to a record $643,500,000, more than triple the $204,200,000 a year ago.

Both exports and imports rose by roughly 10 per cent in August with the emphasis mainly on United States trade, the bureau of statistics reported in a preliminary statement today.

However, the adverse balances —excess of imports over exports —edged ahead only slightly , to $68,600,000 from $62,300,000 last year and the bureau observed that this was the smallest monthly deficit since last January.

AUGUST IMPORTS $45,500,000

Exports in August increased by $39,250,000 to $426,700,000 from $387,500,000 last year. Imports rose by $43,200,000 to $475, 300,000 from $429,800,000.

This boosted export figures for the first eight months of 1956 to $3,161,20 000, up $353,500,000 from $2,807,700,000 a year ago. In contrast, imports soared by $793,200-000 to $3,805,100 000 from $3,011,-900,000.

As in previous months, the main emphasis in August was in trade with the U.S. While exports to Britain edged ahead to $68,100,000 from $63,400,000—a gain of $5,700,-000, shipments to the U.S. increased by $24,200,000 to $267,200,-000 from $243,300,000.

August imports from Britain slipped to $42,900,000 from $45,-400,000 while those from the U.S. rose by some $31,000,000 to $332,-600,000 from $301,700,000.

FRENCH FREE TROOPS

PARIS (Reuters)—Nearly 200,-000 French reserve troops called back to the colors to serve in Algeria will be discharged and sent home in the next six months, Army Minister Max Lejeune announced today. He said this was possible because the intake into the armed forces had been sufficient to keep the forces in Algeria at the required level.

Using Pitchfork Wife Rescues Man From Bull

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Margaret Hunter, 39, held an enraged bull at bay with a pitchfork Thursday while her husband crawled to safety after the animal had battered him five times against a barn wall at nearby Unionville.

Donald Hunter was admitted to Toronto East General Hospital suffering broken ribs, a fractured pelvis and undetermined internal injuries.

He had been clipping the bull before showing it at the Markham fair Saturday when the animal became nervous. He was leading it to its stall when it broke away and charged Hunter.

The bull drove him against the wall five times and was preparing to charge again when Mrs. Hunter appeared, grabbed the fork and distracted the animal.

CIRCUS STARS THROW TANTRUM ON TV

Ever heard of a temperamental elephant? Well, seen above are two of them. Producers of a Toronto TV program were trying to lure into a frenzy when their "big stars," borrowed from the Shriner's circus, for the evening, to help create a circus-like atmosphere, suddenly "went their minds at the last minute and refused to let zingers Joe Hahn, seen above, and a mate star ride them in front of the cameras. And, as if they realized they had spoiled their chance of reaching TV stardom, the two elephants stood glumly in the background throughout the entire show. Il looks as if television's loss is Riverdale zoo's gain. (Central Press Canadian).

U.S. Endorses Compromise Suez Proposal

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (CP) Britain and France have been assured United States support in their appeal to the United Nations Security Council urging negotiations for international control of the Suez Canal.

The proposal—a sort of happy medium between the tough policies advanced earlier in Britain and France and the softer U. S. stand—was outlined at an emergency session Friday.

The negotiations, the Anglo-French resolution said, should be based on proposals approved by 18 of the 22 nations who met in London after Egyptian Premier Nasser nationalized the waterway July 26.

URGES CO-OPERATION

It also urged Egypt to co-operate with the new canal users association until such time as a "just and peaceful" solution can be reached. The association was formed by 19 nations during a second London conference.

However, Egypt and Russia are expected to hit back next week at the Western proposals. Diplomats of the two countries declined comment Friday but there was widespread belief in UN circles that Russia would use its veto when the issue comes to a vote.

Egypt already has said she will not agree to international control of the canal and Russia has supported Egypt's nationalization of the waterway.

CLOSED SESSIONS

The debate appeared headed for closed-door sessions as soon as Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov, Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi, U. S. State Secretary Dulles and others have made opening statements.

The next council meeting will be Monday, when Fawzi is expected to lead off. The opening round probably will end Thursday night and then, a French spokesman predicted, there will be two or three days of private sessions.

Also before the council is an Egyptian complaint charging Britain and France with acts which threaten world peace, a reference to the massing of troops in the eastern Mediterranean.

The closed meetings are intended to make it easy for frank talks with Egypt.

Commission Chairman Scolds Private Broadcasters for Some Words Used in Briefs Presented

OTTAWA (CP) — A minor spanking has been applied to spokesmen for private broadcasters by the chairman of the royal commission on broadcasting.

Chairman R. M. Fowler used tough language with the broadcasters Friday, mainly on the terminology they employed in sections of some 20 briefs of around 100,000 words they have placed before the commission.

However, Mr. Fowler told them that he thinks the private stations have made a good case for themselves on questions of local and community service. National issues were "less clear".

As the private operators ended four days of final submissions through the Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters, Mr. Fowler did some sharpshooting at the wording of parts of their submissions.

He taxed them with "foolish language" at one spot, with a "false" statement at another, and with looking for headlines at a third.

On Tuesday, Mr. Fowler's three man commission turns its attention to the CBC in this last series of hearings before it begins working on the report that may chart the course of Canadian TV and radio for the next several years.

CBC board Chairman A. D. Dunton will go on the stand Tuesday morning and is expected to be under examination for two or three days. Presentation of the CBC CASE—in rebuttal of private broadcasters' evidence taken over the last few months — will close out public hearings of the royal commission.

After that, the commissioners plan to visit New York and Chicago to study United States broadcasting techniques.

In Friday's hearings, Chairman Fowler roughed up lawyers for CARTB which speaks for most of the non-CBC station operators.

He took exception to a CARTB view that Canadian royal commissions—the Aird body of the 1930s and the 1951 Massey commission—have attempted to "try to emulate European ideas" to this continent without examining them in relation to the Canadian geography and economy.

Mr. Fowler called this statement "extravagant" and suggested the association was making a statement "obviously false."

In reply, CARTB counsel H. W. Exley said the contention of the private broadcasters is that the commissions did not reason out the facts to logical conclusions. There had been a jumping to the conclusion that, as in Europe, state ownership of broadcasting was the answer to the problem.

SAID FOOLISH

On another point, Mr. Fowler tangled with the CARTB lawyer on the association's declaration in a brief that private operators are "bound in the web of a powerful monopoly"—CBC.

CARTB counsel Gordon Henderson said the language was strong.

"I don't agree it's strong language," Mr. Fowler said. "I think it's foolish language."

The chairman also hit the private broadcasters on their declaration that the CBC team competition. CARTB based this statement on the fact that six major cities are reserved for exclusive CBC-TC operations.

Mr. Fowler said it could be argued that the single channel policy had outlived its usefulness, but he suggested the accusation of fear was "a built-in headline."

Commissioner Bouchard also took exception to a CARTB statement that opposition of a separate regulatory body on broadcasting were opposing socialist principles.

CARTB rebuttal brief included this statement: "The great majority of the people who opposed a separate regulatory body in earlier briefs to the commission indicated their opposition as a matter of dogma and principle applicable to all industries alike."

Asked to explain, Mr. Henderson said it was intended to cover the public utilities and political principles.

Mr. Fowler asked if CARTB regarded a London, Ont., radio and TV station as socialist. They had opposed a separate board.

Mr. Fowler also questioned the broadcasters' claim that "these socialistic characters" included the Canadian Federation of Agriculture and the Canadian Radio and Television League.

Vancouver Man Allegedly Forged $936,000 Will

VANCOUVER — Gilbert Campbell, 50-year-old fireman, charged with forging a $936,000 will, was released on $80,000 bail Friday a few hours after his arrest. He was remanded a week.

Campbell, named as a $600,000 beneficiary in the will and a lieutenant at No. 3 firehall, was taken into custody while on duty.

He is charged with forgery, conspiracy and attempting to cheat the heirs of James Thomson, pioneer hotel man, who died here in December, 1953.

The courts ruled the will a forgery in 1951. The day court proceedings opened Campbell dropped his claim to any part of the estate.

WILL FOUND YEAR LATER

No will was found at the time of Mr. Thompson's death, but a year later the will naming Carlos Bell, a friend of Mr. Thomson, and Treasury Trust Co. as trustee, to amassed hundreds of exhibits, placing his report before the Interrogatories.

Under court distribution Mrs. Margaret Millen of Edmonton, was to get half of the $900,000 estate and the other half was to go to the five children of the late Mrs. Ann Jane Thomson Wilson of Calgary. For 30 years, Mrs. Wilson were cousins of Mr. Thomson.

The will declared a forgery left bequests to several of the Ivanhoe hotel employees, to charitable and hospital institutions.

Negro Voters, With Balance Of Power in Key Congressional Seats, Big Prize in Campaign

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Negro vote, representing the balance of power in a number of key congressional seats, is one of the big prizes in this 1956 United States election campaign.

It was traditionally Republican from the days of the civil war when Republican president Abraham Lincoln freed the slaves until the mid-1930s when Democratic president Franklin D. Roosevelt wooed the Negro into the Democratic camp. He has stayed there since.

Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee, made the first shot in the campaign for the Negro vote when he moved into New York's Harlem district Thursday night and on a street corner rally challenged President Ike can claims that they had stopped discrimination in employment of government contractors and ended segregation in the U. S. armed forces.

CLAIMS SOME CREDIT

The first steps toward lifting racial barriers in the armed forces began in 1941 when he was assistant to the secretary of the navy, Stevenson asserted. Job was completed in 1948 when former Democratic president Harry S. Truman issued an order forbidding segregation in any branch of the armed forces.

The combined voting strength of both northern and southern Negroes represents the balance of power in 14 districts which elected Democrats to the House of Representatives in the off-year 1954 elections. At least two Senate seats in New York and Missouri are similarly vulnerable.

However, the major issue in campaigning Friday was not racial but atomic.

President Eisenhower issued a White House statement saying that Stevenson's repeated proposals to halt or limit U. S. H-bomb tests "can only lead to confusion at home and misunderstanding abroad."

REKETS BOMB ISSUE

In an obvious reply to Stevenson—but without mentioning him by name — Eisenhower issued a statement expressing regret that the U. S. nuclear testing program has become a campaign issue.

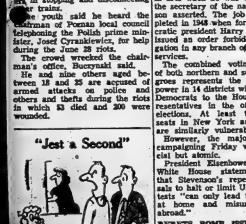
Stevenson, meanwhile, told a cheering Yale University audience he expects to win the presidency without the "soft-soap slogans, gimmicks," and other "infernal machines of modern high pressure politics."

Pole Tells Court Police Joined In Poznan Riots

POZNAN, Poland (Reuters)—A Polish youth charged with taking part in rioting here last June testified in court today that government police and railroad workers joined in the disturbances.

Roman Bulczynski, 19, said he climbed up on a truck loaded with policemen and told them they too should go on strike too because they were earning as little is he was.

"Without any further persuasion, the policemen got down," he told the court.



Later, he said, he went with a crowd of strikers to the railroad station and pulled the emergency brake on a train that was leaving for Warsaw. He said government rail workers then joined the strikers in disengaging and disconnecting other trains.

The youth said he heard the chairman of Poznan local council telephoning the Polish prime minister, Josef Cyrankiewicz, for help during the June 28 riots.

The crowd wrecked the chairman's office, Buczynski said.

He said nine workers aged between 18 and 35 are accused of armed attacks on police and others and thefts during the riots in which 53 died and 200 were wounded.

Russians Learn Few New Tricks About Forestry

TORONTO (CP) — A Russian forestry delegation visited a large Ontario experimental station Friday and learned of some new mechanical tricks.

G. M. Orlow, Russia's forest industries minister, headed the eight-man delegation that viewed the nearby Maple research station on the first stage of their three-week tour of Ontario and British Columbia lumber operations.

The big attraction for the visitors was a pack tractor invented by the Ontario department of lands and forests to haul equipment in the bush. They expressed surprise when the 650-pound vehicle was broken down into 10 pieces and reassembled by one man in 10 minutes.

SHIPPING ONE ROUTE

Meanwhile, trade arrangements to obtain one of the tractor-bread vehicles for Russia was completed in 1948 when former Democratic president Harry S. Truman issued an order forbidding segregation in any branch of the armed forces.

W. J. Leclair, secretary of the Canadian Lumberman's Association, who along with the department of external affairs, are sponsoring the tour, said the exchange was "all he all to our benefit."

"They started forest management 100 years before us . . . They have spent millions where we have spent dollars."

The Russians showed interest in the conifer still, where the forestry department is carrying out experiments in extracting oils from conifer needles. The oils are used in medications, soap and perfumes.

OPEN THAMES CHURCH

LONDON (AP)—United States Ambassador Winthrop Aldrich Friday ceremonially opened the new Pilgrim Fathers Memorial Congregational Church in Southwark on the south bank of the Thames. The first church on the site, according to tradition, was founded by Puritans and the Pilgrims worshipped there and gave it its name before sailing to America. The second church built on the site was destroyed by bombs during the war.

Judge Pays Child's Fine

TORONTO (CP)—Irene Pyrancyzo, 13, skipped afternoon school classes Friday to appear in court and show cops why her pet dog should not be destroyed for being vicious.

She told Judge W. W. McKeown she loved the dog, Zena. She pleaded with him not to destroy it. destroyed. The judge reduced the charge to having a dog at large and fined her the minimum of $1.

Irene said she had only 75 cents. Replied the judge:

"All right, dear, I'll pay it for you."

Irene, who said she didn't tell her parents or teachers of the summons because she didn't want to bother them, thought the judge was "a very nice man; everyone was nice."

She was driven home by a man who had been listening to Zena.

"She didn't really bite him," Irene said. "She just tore his trousers a bit."

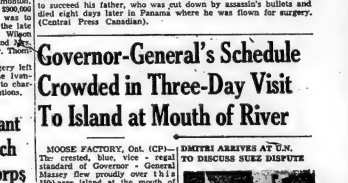
Sudbury Girl, 15, Dies in Accident

SUDBURY (CP)—A 15-year-old girl was killed Friday night and four other persons were injured, one severely, when three vehicles were involved in an accident 12 miles northwest of here.

Dead is Lynda Lois Hollard of Sudbury. She was riding with two other passengers, Gerry Pilon, 17, and Gloria Anderson, 15, in a car driven by Raymond Lalonde, 18.

Pilon suffered multiple fractures of the left leg and Miss Hollard a skull fracture when the car rammed the rear of a loaded thirty-ton gravel truck, police said. He is in hospital here, along with Lalonde and Miss Anderson, both suffering lesser injuries.



The half-ton truck following the other vehicles swung wide to avoid the wreck and landed in a ditch. Its driver, Gaston Lajoinie, 18, was taken to Sudbury General Hospital with head cuts and chest injuries.

Governor-General's Schedule Crowded in Three-Day Visit To Island at Mouth of River

DMITRI ARRIVES AT U.N. TO DISCUSS SUEZ DISPUTE

MOOSE FACTORY, Ont. (CP)—The crested, blue, lace - regal standard of Governor - General Massey flew proudly over this 1500-acre island at the mouth of the Moose River today as he began the second day of his three-day visit at the settlement.

His schedule was crowded. First a visit to the Roman Catholic mission then to the department of health and welfare hospital, where he was to have lunch before touring the ward, filled with Indian and Eskimo patients, mostly children recuperating from tuberculosis.

In the afternoon he was to visit the Indian residential school, one of three schools on the island, and meet the Girl Guide and Brownie troops, before driving through the Indian reserve.

While on the island Mr. Massey is staying with Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Wood, manager of the Hudson's Bay Company post there, the oldest on the old coldest in Canada.

The cluster of red roofed, white painted buildings are nearly all more than 100-years-old, vastly unlike the new, prefabricated buildings which are found in most Canadian settlements.

Mr. Massey landed here Friday after a four-mile canoe trip along the muddy, swampy banks of the Moose River from his railway car at Moosonee, on James Bay. His visit is part of his eight-day tour of Northern Ontario and Northwestern Quebec.

FIRE SALUTE

As he stepped onto the narrow jetty, an honor guard of Cree Indian veterans, snapped to attention, and shotguns cracked a salute.

At the settlement school, black eyed children bowed low and shyly murmured a welcome, then sang "O Canada", perhaps out of alizing the special significance here of the phrase "the true North strong and free."

At both schools, as is his custom, Mr. Massey asked that the pupils be given a special holiday.

At the Hudson's Bay post manager-cold house, he said, he will stay his visit. Mr. Massey stood to attention as the HBC flag, which has flown over the island since 1735, was lowered and replaced by his own standard.

Before returning to the mainland Sunday, Mr. Massey will tour the historic post, visit the Roman Catholic and Anglican churches and the hospital which cares for tubercular Indian and Eskimo patients from the settlements around Hudson Bay.

Marine Sergeant In Death March To Stay in Corps

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. (AP)—Staff Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon greeted his courtmartial sentence review with the calm declaration that "I'll try to be the very best private in the marine corps".

The 31-year-old ex-drill instructor who marched six marine recruits to their death in a tidal creek here last April 8 enters the Parris Island brig today. His nine-month prison sentence was cut to three months Friday by Navy Secretary Charles Thomas.

However, McKeon will only have to serve until Nov. 4 because two months already have elapsed since he was sentenced by general courtmartial here.

"I've always been taken off my back," said McKeon, is the badconduct discharge which Thomas set aside.

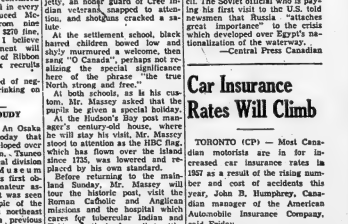
McKEON SATISFIED

McKeon's sentence, as approved by the navy secretary, is the prison term and reduction in grade. Of this McKeon said:

"I believe it is a very just sentence. I'm very fair satisfied and I will try to be the very best private in the marine corps."

Thomas' cancellation of the bad-conduct discharge and the other punishments of McKeon on Aug. 3 after a court martial conviction.

Thomas said he is convinced McKeon got a "fair trial in every respect." He said he approved McKeon's confinement from nine months to three months after saying that "for him I believe that the real punishment will always be the memories of Bloody Creek," where the six recruits died.



McKeon was convicted of negligent homicide and drinking on duty

MARS AGAIN CLOUDY

TOKYO (Reuters) — An Osaka astronomer reported today that yellow clouds have developed over the planet Mars again. Thanzo Sacki of the Osaka Municipal division of the Osaka Science Museum said the new cloud was first observed by a Tokyo amateur astronomer Friday night. It was seen near the southern tropic of the planet about 4,000 miles northeast from a spot where a previous cloud originated in August, Saeki said.

Car Insurance Rates Will Climb

TORONTO (CP) — Most Canadian motorists are in for increased car insurance rates in 1957 as a result of the rising number and cost of accidents this year, John B. Humphrey, Canadian manager of the American Automobile Insurance Company, said Friday.

Mr. Humphrey said the amount of increase would be determined only after detailed study of a general survey of Canadian car insurance firms, recently completed.

"It is safe to say the increase will average 10 per cent over last year's rates across Canada," he said. "But the individual increases will vary — some much more than 10 per cent and others less."

Find Leaks Before all Is Lost

By EUGENE MILMOE

A quick check-over every fall and spring is always good insurance against seasonal coolant leaks which bring on overheating or deprive the system of antifreeze protection during cold weather.

Examine radiator seams, corners and core for telltale white (lime) stains or rust streaks. Make sure hose clamps are not too loose, and when checking the hose itself for deterioration, don't rely on exterior appearance alone. A loose hose, for example, may rot on the inside so that it collapses and causes water loss through the engine's interior overflow. Water pump leaks suggest several possibilities—in most cases, the cause is either a worn shaft seal, loose pump or a faulty gasket. Other sources worth inspecting for signs of seepage are pet cocks, expansion plugs, head bolts and thermostat housing.

Mrs. L. T. writes: "My 1954 car purchased new is equipped with power steering. After the car is used in hot weather, I've always found it a bit more difficult than usual to park. What is wrong?"

(A) This doesn't indicate trouble. Resistance will be greater when gasoline boil in the system after hot after hard usage or in warm weather.

From M. K.: "When the dealer changed the oil in my new 1956 engine for the first time, I asked him to refill with high detergent oil. He refused saying it did not recommended for a new car—but after 30 or 40 thousand miles, detergent oil would be the thing to use. Is this wrong?"

(A) High detergent oil is not recommended for brand-new engines because it is not best for quick, easy breaking in. But after the engine has been run one or two thousand miles it may be used. As a matter of fact, in engines equipped with hydraulic valve lifters, car manufacturers specify nothing but high detergent oil after parts are properly seated.

B. L. writes: "Distributor points just don't seem to last very long on our 1954 car, and we can't discover the reason. The condenser was replaced, and both the coil and distributor were checked several times. Except for a new battery, this has been our only trouble, but a constant one, since we bought the car a year ago."

(A) Check up on the generator and the regulator. Either could be responsible for an excessively high generator output which would not only burn ignition points but also endanger other parts of the electrical and ignition systems.

T. W. asks: "I went around the valves and installed new guides in my 1949 engine. My problem is that when I drive at fairly high speed and then stop quickly, oil smoke will spurt out of the exhaust. It did this before I worked on it and I thought it was the guides, but apparently it's something else. Please explain."

(A) Even with a new engine, you might expect this to some degree. Sudden closing of the throttle causes engine vacuum to suck up oil past the piston rings into the combustion chambers. Of course, if rings are worn, more oil will be drawn up and burned off.

SAFETY IS NO ACCIDENT

Be careful about your driving—be sure about your car.

Duff Scores Four To Beat Wolves

SUDBURY (CP) — Dick Duff scored four goals Friday night to lead Toronto Maple Leafs to a 9-3 victory over Sudbury Wolves of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association southern group senior circuit, in an exhibition hockey game here. Other Leaf marksmen were George Armstrong, Tod Sloan, Rudy Migay, Ron Stewart and Tim Horton.

Ted Kennedy, League Leafs lent Wolves five players—Jerry James Gamble, Harry Harris, Jerry Baun and Al MacNeil. James scored twice for Wolves, with the other marksmen being Taffett Mc Lellan.

BID SMITH AGREES

The Leafs announced they had reached contract agreements with Bob Solinger and Terry Sid Smith, who scored only four goals last season after making the all-star team at left wing the year before, has agreed to terms. Leafs are announced to include a bonus clause which will give Smith a chance to reach his old salary if he has a big year.

Leafs play another exhibition here tonight and meet the American League Bisons in Buffalo Sunday night. Final decision on the all-star team will be made Sunday night.

Leafs share sponsorship of the two clubs with Montreal Canadiens and General Manager Hap Day said: "I want to see how Canadiens are providing before I commit myself."

Tony Anthony Had Trouble With Hinnant

WASHINGTON (AP)—Clarence Hinnant of Washington, loser of a 10-round split decision Friday night to high-ranking light heavyweight Tony Anthony, said today he thought a rematch was in order—but Anthony wasn't interested.

"We've got that under our belt," said Ernie Bracco, manager of the 21-year-old Anthony, and the New York fighter agreed.

Anthony, rated No. 7 light heavyweight contender by Ring magazine, got a piece of what he "caught good" by a hard right that staggered him for an emphatic eight-count in the second round of the TV fight. But Bracco said: "We thought we won the fight."

Anthony outweighted Hinnant 171½ to 170.

London Lords Sign Two More

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Heading for the last half of the Ontario Hockey League season scheduled, London Lords Friday night announced the signing of two more experienced players.

They are quarterback Jim Hoss, from the University of Missouri, who was signed by Saskatchewan Roughriders but never saw any action with that club, and tackle Wenty Young, a Montrealer who played with the British Columbia Lions last season. Both will be in uniform Wednesday when Lords are host to Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen.

At the same time, Lords officials announced import Jack Conway who has been in camp out with an injured knee would finish the season as an assistant coach and scout.

Lords are in fourth place in the five-team loop.

This is the last spread I show you in a series reporting the winter nationals results. You now have a good enough idea of what the greatest masters do unfrazzled hands.

Here is deal number 26:

This is how rule bidding should go:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♠	Double	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
4 ♥	Pass	Pass	Pass

The next piece you see here will explain in some detail the ways and means of the south and north bids. For today, let me spend your time telling what the masters did in the play.

Of the 48 tables, 26 were in four hearts with either south or north as declarer. The opponents can take only two spades and a trick in trumps. So, four hearts is on wheels.

Some of these game contracts in hearts were permitted to take 11 tricks. This happened when west did not cash the ace of spades and north bids. For today, let me spend your time telling what the masters did in the play.

One table got to five hearts and went down one. Three stopped at three hearts and made an extra trick. Four got into three notrump, one which made. One landed in two clubs.

An even dozen let west play it in two or three or four spades. Some of these spade bids were doubled. Undoubled or not, the loss although vulnerable) was less than four hearts would yield.

A great many of modern players should make a better record with such cards. They are assumed to know how to handle hands of this style, which are supposed to be easy for experts.

Times are when you cannot tell a master from a canaster.

League May Operate Team At Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—It was reported here Friday that the Pacific International league would operate Vancouver' Mounties baseball franchise in 1957.

The report could take over the franchise if owner Brick Laws doesn't find a buyer for the club. There has been still no sale to Coley Hall, local sportsman and owner of the Vancouver Canucks in the Western Hockey League.

Hall heads a group of Vancouver men who have sought to gain a controlling interest in the Mounties since July.

Hall returned from Oakland, Calif., where he conferred with Laws and said, "I've made my final offer. It's up to Laws now." Hall said one of the sore points here is the working agreement with Baltimore Orioles of the American League.

"Mounties are in a bad way for players," he said. "And unless Baltimore is repared to supply us with proven players it's foolish to take over."

Not too Late to Move 'Mums

By FLORA M. RAVILLE

The chrysanthemums are late in blooming this year due to an unusually sunny September. By now even the late ones are in bud. You may be wishing that you had planted a few of them nearer the street, or among the foundation plantings for late color. It is not too late to move them, even if they are in bloom.

Take these few precautions. Soak the plants well the night before you move and allow them to take up as much moisture as they will. In the early evening prepare their new setting by digging up the soil and loosening the soil around the area. If you have some humus such as peat moss or good compost it is a good idea to add a few handfuls and work it in.

When you dig the plants take up as much soil as will cling to the roots. Push the spade down six to eight inches on all sides, and about six inches out from the plant. It will open up easily to lift the mum with a good ball of earth. Set it in its new place at the same level as before and firm the soil down well around it to prevent air pockets. All broken root end must be in contact with soil to prevent rapid moisture loss. Water well after each plant or so of weak liquid plant food. Use instant plant food or some such chemical fertilizer.

NO SHOCK TO PLANTS

If this plan is followed there will be no shock and the plants will not wilt, or slow down. They will bloom as happily in their new setting as if they had been there all summer.

This is the time to pot up some chrysanthemums for indoor blooms. They will bloom for weeks after the outdoor plants have been killed off by the frost.

Florists are able to make mums bloom the year round by controlling the light hours. You can make your mums bloom earlier by covering them a few hours night and morning with light weight black cloth. To slow up a few pots for late bloom indoors put them in the room where they will receive the most daylight and supplement this with artificial light (electric).

When the plant reaches more than nine hours of light it goes on growing and refuses to set bloom buds. If the light is reduced to less than nine hours a day it prepares its self to bloom. Six weeks to two months are needed from bud to bloom.

All through the summer the plants should have the soil loosened about them. The roots are shallow so make the hoeing very close to the surface. One thorough soaking a week is sufficient in dry periods. Feed with liquid plant food, or work in a balanced plant food about the time the buds set. Spray or spray with an all round insecticide every two weeks during the growing season to discourage mildew, aphis, rust and blight.

After the frost has killed off the tops cut back and dig the six inches of stock to mark the place. New shoots will form at the base of the stock. Tender types should be wintered over in the cold frame, or potted up and kept just moist enough to keep them alive in a cool section of the basement.

After Four Seasons Eve Arden Saying Goodbye to Miss Brooks

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — With a mixture of joy and regret, Eve Arden is saying farewell to her Miss Brooks.

After four successful seasons, Our Miss Brooks has faded from Friday night television. But she is coming back on re - runs, appearing five times weekly on CBS-TV daytimers.

Eve is shedding no tears over the passing of her schoolteacher character.

"After four years I've had it," she sighed. "I think we went about as far as we could go with the show—perhaps even a little farther.

"I might have been more enthusiastic about going on if we hadn't had such a hassle last season. It was a mess. First of all, they started to change the format. I argued against it, but they went ahead anyway.

"Much of the time we didn't know what we were doing. The casting didn't work out right. There were last-minute changes. We lost our writer, Al Lewis, because of an argument with another writer.

FOND OF 'MISS BROOKS'

"One night I got my costume for a harem sequence at 6:15. At 7:15 I had to go before the audience. Luckily it fit, but I wish I'd even had a chance to rehearse in it."

Despite all this, she admitted some regrets about leaving the show.

"I grew rather fond of Miss Brooks," she reflected. "After all, she has been very good to me."

Eve will be able to keep her ranch in chickens for a long time hence, since she'll be collecting on the re-runs of the show. But she won't remain idle.

"I'm still under exclusive contract to CBS," she said. "I have three months to come up with the pilot film for a new series. I have several under consideration, but it's largely a matter of finding the right writers and then the right casting."

AT THE BELLE — Deborah Kerr as a Red Cross worker, William Holden as a Marine Raider's Colonel in "The Proud and Profane", the unusually candid and powerful new story, playing today for the last times at the Belle. Thelma Ritter and Dewey Martin, co-star.

Dodger Hitters Maul Yankee Hurlers For 13-8 Win In Second Game

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

NEW YORK — It was morning in Times Square. The heartbeat of Gotham was almost inaudible. Giant sky-scrapers probed steel-cement spearheads into the blue. It was a normal day in New York.

Nightclubs had disgorged their celebrants a few hours previous. It was the breath-regaining pause for a new mad-race day for Gotham's eight millions.

My beat was the Brooklyn-Yankee opener in Ebbets field. Life at this hour, 7 a.m., was under the surface aloof and correct. I shoe-horned with others into the sardine-atmosphere of a subway express to the home of the Dodgers and the Flatbush faithful.

The express surfaced over the East River. "Miss Liberty" waved at us, and the world from Bedloe Island. The Empire State Building, misted in the morning haze, towered behind us.

Then Brooklyn and Ebbets Field. The crowd poured from the express to the surface. Yankee fans and Dodger fans from the Bronx, Manhattan and Queens, mingled with the "outsiders" in a converging mass on the home of the "Bums."

Here they milled, quiet and orderly, proved ticket-holders walking serenely past the turnstiles. Non-ticket holders stood in groups, hoping and waiting. I saw no sign of scalpers.

New York's finest was out in force. Two dozen mounted policemen trotted in cavalry formation along the field, then dispersed to take their posts. The New York fire department members were posted at various points.

There was rush and bustle, but all orderly. Groups of police were standing quietly awaiting any emergency.

There was more rush and bustle at the press gate. The major television networks' trucks disgorged equipment and operators. Radio engineers, technicians and announcer Mel Allen and company passed through the turnstiles.

Sportswriters and photographers of the major newspapers of North and Central America arrived singly and in groups.

I talked with Oriel Dia of the Panama Star Herald and Rogelio Orestes of the Panama Nation: Daley of the Times, Williams, Dan Parker and other famous columnists showed their badges.

There were newspapermen there from Alaska to Venezuela, Iceland to Japan. There was a low bedlam of tongues in Press Row before the game.

Far below the top row of the augmented press box in the second tier where we sat, Ebbets Field looked a perfect setting for the opening of the famous classic.

Overhead golden sunshine streamed warmly from a cloud-less sky. The grass of the infield was a lush green against the white of the base lines.

The crowd slowly filled the 31,000 capacity stadium. A huge negro woman paraded past wearing a sandwich board carrying the words: "Ike and Nixon are the best team, the Dodgers next."

Later in the game when the Yankees purposely walked Duke Snider, she did a war dance, "Yuh dam bandits, yuh dam Yankees, yuh scared of him."

Then the roar of the Brooklyn multitude as President Eisenhower entered the stadium in a four-car motorcade. The stadium rocked to the cheers as the world's steady mediator. Twelve secret service men hovered around him.

The Flatbush faithful probably have never packaged so many celebrities as on opening day.

Near Ike in his box at Jackie Gleason and Toots Shore. The Duke of Windsor sat nearby. The movies, television, baseball and other sports and walks of life sent their glittering topnotchers.

It was a great day for Brooklyn. For on its famed Ebbets Field was enacted a sports drama that was heard and seen by more people than the combined population of Britain, France and Austria. More than 200 television and 81 radio stations carry the series. The play-by-play will be beamed round the world by an estimated audience in excess of 100,000,000.

The public address announcer ejected some laughs in his airings. He announced the nationalities of the press representing some 13 countries and Jersey City.

He announced the various celebrities present and a minute later made a special announcement: "We have with us," he said, "the American third-party presidential candidate, Joseph Cotterwell. He is sitting in the bleachers. His vice-president is with him—but the president does not know his name."

In press row they told the story of how Billy Martin, Yankee infielder, told reporters: "Wednesday we'll separate the men from the boys." Wednesday night editions here referred to him as "Young Billy Martin."

After Wednesday's game the Flatbush faithful who had paid like his due homage, lauded Sal the Mag-nificent to the skies. The jam-jawed Bronx fans were somewhat down, "What, wit' ten whiffs agin those Yankee jerks, dat guy's tops." He was the talk of the town and New York sportswriters were consistent in their lead stories. They had one angle, Maglie.

And adding to their cup of joy was the fact their beloved Bums had driven the Yankee Ford to the shower garage after three innings.

Mickey Mantle's blast towered high over the centrefield fence into Bedford Avenue where it sunk a dent in the top of a used car. "He reported the dealer upped the price $240 on the spot.

First Time in Quarter Century Famed Bombers Have Lost In First Two Games of Series

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Shocked by their worst mauling in a quarter of a century of world series competition, the pitching-poor New York Yankees banked their chopped-up championship hopes today on the left arm of their mound ace, Whitey Ford, and the return to their own park, spacious Yankee Stadium.

Brooklyn's devastating 13 - 8 slaughter Friday of a record series number of seven Yankee pitchers marked the first time since 1922 that any team has swept the first two games from the haughty Yankees. In that year the Giants won four straight from the Yanks, one game ending in a 3-3 tie because of darkness.

Should righthander Roger Craig, rookie Walter Alston's pitching nominee for the third game, carry on the Dodgers' streak, the latter could complete another four-game sweep will engulf the Yankees. For Sal Maglie, the Cinderalle Man, may have his 39-year-old arm all oiled up on three days rest.

YANKEES' LAST HOPE

Ford appears to be Casey Stengel's last real hope. The little lefty, who was battered by the Brooks in the series opener that also defeated the Dodgers twice last year—both times in Yankee Stadium—could be the key man to get the Yankees back in the running. Stengel knows this better than anyone. That's why he decided to pitch his No. 1 man despite only a two-day rest.

"No use holding Ford back any longer," Stengel muttered in the quiet of the losers' clubhouse after they had suffered their worst humiliation in the fall Classic. "He should be ready. He didn't pitch much in the first game and he got that day of rain."

Whitey, 19-6 during the regular season, lasted only three innings Wednesday, allowing six hits and five runs, including two home runs.

Afterwards, Robinson said of the southpaw: "No one can tell me there's nothing wrong with Ford. He didn't look right. He had no fast ball at all."

Ford had some back trouble during the season, but says the condition has cleared.

ROAD WON'T DO 1955

Craig started the fifth series game in 1955 and was credited with the victory although he lasted only six innings. His 1956 season record was 13-11.

A banner crowd of some 64,000 was expected to attend the first game in the American League club's park. The weatherman predicted a sunny afternoon with the temperature about 65 degrees.

Brooklyn's two convincing triumphs have caused the price-makers to make a switch in the odds. The Dodgers are now 13 to 5 favorite to win the series. The Yankees had opened as 8 to 5 choices. For today's game, the Yankees rule a 7 to 5 choice.

An Ebbets Field throng of 33,217 saw something happen in a series game that never had happened before. The Yankees blew an early 6-0 lead after tagging Erskine winning Don Newcombe. Brooklyn's biggest winner since Dazzy Vance rolled up 28 victories in 1924. Newk's grand slam homer was the big blow.

Not since the 1929 Philadelphia Athletics came from behind an 8-0 deficit to defeat Chicago White Cubs 10-8 did any club drop such a huge lead.

The seemingly-beaten Brooks, led by Pee Wee Reese, Duke Snider and Gil Hodges, not only stormed back with a six-run tying outburst in the second, but continued to hammer away with a run in the third and two more in each of the fourth, fifth and eighth innings to roll up the biggest run total ever perpetrated on the Yankees in series history.

HODGES TERRIFIC

Hodges, whose three-run homer proved the difference in the first game, batted in four more with a pair of doubles and a single off loser Tom Morgan to raise his RBI total to seven, two under Lou Gehrig's 1928 record.

Snider contributed a three-run homer in the six-run frame, increasing his series homer total to 10. That deadlocked Gehrig for runner-up honors, second only to Babe Ruth's 15.

Reese's two-run single was a key blow in the big inning, set up by Joe Collina' boot of Sandy Amoros' grounder. All six runs in the inning became unearned because of the first baseman's misCue.

Only Bob Turley of the seven Yankee pitchers was spared as the Dodgers cracked 12 hits came as the Yankees. Don Larsen, the starter, permitted only one hit but walked four and failed to last through the second inning.

NEWCOMBE HELPLESS

Newcombe was rocked for six runs and six hits in less than two innings. Don Bessent, Brooklyn pitcher (enabling the two teams to tie a record for total pitchers used) limited the Yankees to six hits and runs in seven 1-3 relief innings to receive credit for the victory.

Alston, naturally delighted with the Dodger victory, said he would make no lineup change with the exhausted Ford going for the Yankees.

"Gilliam will go to left field in place of Sandy Amoros and Charley Neal will play second," he said. "Neal will bat eighth, Furillo and Campanella will bat sixth and seventh, respectively.

Dodgers Not Worried About Yankee Stadium

NEW YORK (AP)—There was a time when New York Yankees felt secure in their massive stadium—that big ball yard in the Bronx, where a triple in any other park looks like a pop fly.

But as the world series shifts to that impressive, triple-decked, grassy grand canyon today, Dodger manager Walt Alston insisted "it doesn't mean a thing." And even Yankee manager Casey Stengel has his doubts.

"It's our pitching, not that park of theirs (Ebbets Field) that has caused us trouble," said Stengel, who used a series record total of seven hurlers Friday in losing the second game to Brooklyn 13-8.

"It isn't the park that beats you," said Alston. "It's those fine hitters over on the field.

"If we keep hitting like this . . . well, who knows what we can do?"

Dodger shortstop Pewwee Reese approached and chirped:

"If we keep hitting like this," said Pewwee, "we could beat those guys in a ploughed field."

Wirkowski May Be on Sidelines In TiCat Game

HAMILTON (CP)—There was a strong possibility quarterback Jerry Wirkowski would be on the sidelines today when Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton Tiger-Cats clashed here in a Big Four game.

Tiger coach Jim Trimble said Friday night he might bench the 27-year-old Wirkowski and use tackle Bob Golic, formerly of Montreal Alouettes, as his 12th territorial import.

Wirkowski suffered bruised ribs and other minor injuries when Hamilton lost two games to the Als in the last two weeks. Tony Ciarelli is available for duty.

There was speculation also that Wirkowski may be on the verge of being cut, by the Hamilton team. Club officials would not comment on the report. Wirkowski joined Ticats last season after he was fired by Argonauts. He was kept by Tiger-Cats this year despite the signing of former UCLA quarterback Donnie Knox. Knox left Hamilton and joined Calgary Stampeders of the Western Conference.

Hamilton picked up Golic this week for the $750 waiver price.

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Chicago Black Hawks and Buffalo Bisons played to their fourth pre-season exhibition tie here Friday night in the two hitting game watched by a few hundred fans.

Eddie Litzenberger led the Black Hawks attack with three goals. Other Hawk goals went to Ed Litzenberger and Harry Watson. Ed Mazur, Larry Sullivan, Ken Wharram, Lou Jankowski and Al Dewsbury replied for Buffalo.

Hank Bassen played the entire game in the Hawk nets with Al Rollins going for Chicago.

Don Bessent Hurled Seven Perfect Innings in Relief

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Don Bessent, the kid pitcher the New York Yankees forgot about—and doctors advised should never play ball again, took his place today alongside Sal Maglie, Gil Hodges and Duke Snider as one of Brooklyn's brightest world series stars.

Were it not for a serious back injury that required a delicate fusion operation, Bessent might have been wearing a Yankee uniform in this series.

But as a Dodger, the bespectacled Fla., righthander turned back the Yankees with six hits and only two runs in seven relief innings Friday to win his first world series game.

Five years ago Bessent was one of the most promising pitching prospects in the Yankee chain. He won 22 games at La Grange, Ga., in 1950, and 11 out of 13 for Norfolk, Va., in a half season in 1951.

But in the playoffs in 1951 Bessent slipped off the mound, injured his back and was sent home. Two weeks later, trying to get out of bed, he threw one leg over the other—and they locked. His manager and sister had to help him off the bed.

Bessent underwent an operation that required 3½ hours. He was flat on his back for seven weeks and a convalescent for 10 months.

"I never thought I'd pitch again," said Bessent as he recalled those agonizing months in bed. "But I had enough determination to give it a battle."

The following summer he had more back troubles and was told to give up pitching. He refused.

SAME SCOUT, NEW TEAM

On the recommendation of Leon Hamilton, the scout who originally had signed him for the Yankees to the Dodgers, the Brocks decided to take a gamble on Don. For $4,500 they drafted him for their St. Paul farm.

"I can understand why the Yankees wouldn't want to take a chance on me," said Bessent. "Doctors had grafted a piece of bone, taken from my pelvis, into my spine and I guess that scared the Yankees. Only last spring, I went through another operation, this time to strengthen my stomach muscles."

Accused of Folding

Newcombe Tangles With Fan In Parking Lot Near Stadium

BROOKLYN (AP) — Brooklyn Dodgers' pitcher Don Newcombe was involved in a fight with a parking lot attendant after being knocked out of the box by New York Yankees Friday.

The attendant, Michael Brown, 21, said he asked the big pitcher:

"Why is it when things get tough you always fold up?"

According to the police, Newcombe let go with a left to Brown's stomach. Patrolman Ross Earnbach, on duty for the series at Ebbets Field, broke up the fracas and started to take both men to the police station a few blocks away.

Patrolman Earnbach said both men cooled off on the way and apologized to each other.

After Newcombe left for his New N. J., home, however, Brown appeared at the station with attorney Sidney S. Levitt. He was referred to magistrate's court, where the case was set until Monday. Levitt said he would ask that a summons be issued for Newcombe's arrest.

NEWK CLAIMS UP

The big pitcher, who was blasted for a bases-loaded home run by Yogi Berra in the second inning of Friday's 13-8 Brooklyn victory, refused to discuss the incident.

Brown, however, gave his version of the fracas:

"Newcombe and his brother were coming out of the ball park and got towards their station wagon. I hollered to him: 'What's the matter, newsk? A fan can't petition you much for you? Do you feel ugly?'

"He called me a couple of foul names and with that he punched me. Then another guy jumped in. He accused me of razzing him all season and I didn't. I hit him twice before. He said my voice sounded like the same fellow. I told him he wrong."

The "fold-up" charge is one which Newcombe is familiar with and it rankles him. Only two days ago, someone in a crowd wailing in front of Ebbets Field used the same remark at him. He stopped and asked it to be repeated. No one said anything.

Newcombe has lost three world series starts against the Yankees.

K-W Dutchmen Defeat Beaches In Tough Game

KITCHENER (CP) — Fleet-footed Billy Graham went on a scoring rampage Friday night and led Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen to a 17-9 win over Toronto Beaches in an Ontario Rugby Football Union senior game.

The win shot Dutchmen into first place, two points ahead of Toronto.

Graham, who scored all the Kitchener points, has amassed 111 points in seven games.

A spectacular passing duel between Gene Roszel, Toronto's veteran quarterback, and Bob Celeri almost passed unnoticed as Graham reeled off big chunks of yardage.

Toronto held single-point leads early in the game but each time Graham and company came back. Finally, Graham, who broke open in the fourth quarter after playing defensive ball most of the game.

Graham kicked a field goal, converted two touchdowns and kicked two converts. Roszel scored the lone Toronto touchdown, connected with Urowitz. Don Robison and Nayland Moll kicked singles.

He was not involved in Friday's decision because the Dodgers made up the deficit after he was knocked out.

"It's a shame they accuse him of such things," said teammate Jackie Robinson. "He's a good pitcher and has won plenty of ballgames for us."

Birdie Tebbetts, Cincinnati Redlegs' manager, called Brown, too.

"When you win 27 games as Newcombe did this year, some of them have to be mighty important ones."

He wouldn't talk about his fight with Brown, Newcombe said he wanted to win for obvious reasons. I had good stuff, the fellows got me a few runs to work with me on that. But I wasn't sharp. Then when I had to come into Berra, that was it."

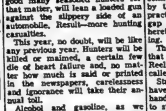
Hunting Casualties Dismal Reading

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT,
Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solmar Tables.



Every year during the hunting season the inevitable reports appear in the newspapers of the country, outlining the distressing details of hunting accidents. These, as you know, make dismal reading.

Unfortunately, the very high majority of all shooting accidents can be chalked up to two general causes—carelessness and ignorance. Men who evidently are not too familiar with the mechanical safeties for gun handling do the most insane things with firearms.

Certainly no sensible man places a loaded gun inside an automobile, yet a great many people are hurt or killed that way each year. When guns are not in use, either the breech or the action should be open—yet the beginner, and a good many seasoned hunters fail in that matter, will lean a loaded gun against the door, window or in the automobile. Result—more hunting casualties.

This year, no doubt, will be like any previous year. Hunters will be killed or injured, sometimes the die of heart failure and, no matter how much is said in the interests of safety, carelessness and ignorance will take their annual toll.

Alcohol and gasoline, as we know, should not be mixed. Unfortunately, however, this is true of pools and gunpowder.

UNSCRUPULOUS HUNTERS

Most hunters, particularly those who enjoy wing shooting, are fair sportsmen and law-abiding. Only a very small percentage of hunters are guilty of the crime of search of small game as be classified as being in the unscrupulous category. Regrettably, it is this small minority that makes things tough for the rest of us.

These outdoor hoodlums are the men who shoot deer, moose and even shoot farmers' livestock. Thus, we have an annual increase in open season shooting. They ignore their legal limits and have little or no respect for the law. When caught, then, can blame the wardens for being sometimes too edgy and suspicious.

One of the things these outlaws do is shoot at anything that moves more than any other brefeh of the game laws. Farmers are the principal shooting rare and fully protected birds, such as prairie chicken, pheasants, wild geese and whooping cranes.

To be sure, in states where it is legal to shoot hen pheasants, there may be some excuse for a hunter who shoots a prairie chicken by mistake. A fellow who has never seen one of either bird, however well mistake it for a hen pheasant.

But there is simply no possible excuse for a man who takes a shot at a whooping crane, or a trumpeter swan. The one and only alibi for such behavior is that he claim that he was mistaken for a snow goose. Shucks! A whooping crane is twice the size of and looks like a snow goose as I look like a Chinese laundryman. As for the trumpeter swan, by but that some of these rare birds are knocked down each year, it is a reflection on their own welfare—and stomachs—in mind.

In connection, I recall the remark of a no-account duck guide to a sportsman friend of mine. "Listen, he said, "one of those white angels (the whooping crane) or white swan) carries 17 pounds of good, red meat. Any time I can bring a sportsman in close with a shotgun shell, I'll make the trade to hell with the game wardens."

That, unfortunately, is the attitude of many duck hunters. Thus, our rare birds are shot and, such being the case, it is small wonder it is little that can be done about it, barring a lucky break once in a while in the form of a warden.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service would do well, for instance, if could about trumpeter swans and gualfre, so that they can be used in a fluorescope. Thirteen of these birds were carrying lead pellets in their bodies.

Meanwhile, right-thinking sportsmen, the Audubon Society, and the Arrow, National Wildlife Refuge Service are doing their best to provide excellent duck shooting. It is extremely important to shooting in the effort to protect 27 whooping cranes which are the property of only members of this species now living.

As I say, the misdeeds of a very few can make things tough for all of us. I'm willing to bet you see a big white bird with a seven-foot wing spread in range of your gun, you'll refrain. Don't shoot first and find out later that you have made a mistake.

All of us, who go afield with rod and gun, know that the number of sportsmen, and sportswomen, increases each year. Putting the figures on accurate national figures on license sales is a big job. Usually the count is somewhere in the fall is completed about six months after the licences actually are sold.

During the fiscal year which ended on June 30th, 1955, a new record of licenses sales was established. In that year there were 33,304,-26 fishing and hunting licenses sold, an increase of 392,162 over the previous year.

To avail themselves of the enjoyment to be found while hunting and fishing, the sportsmen of the nation sent nearly $97,000,000, for all types of hunting and fishing licences, permits, tags, trout stamps and Federal duck stamps.

No doubt about it, hunting and fishing have moved collectively into the classification of "big business."

Every now and then a new item of tackle or equipment shows up on the market that deserves comment. In order to rate mention by this reporter, the item must be unique. It must fill a real gap in our outdoor needs which heretofore, has badly needed filling.

This time it is the new pistol grip, starless drag on City Rod & Reel Company has developed, and "Starless Drag" is the name.

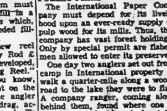
Star-drag reels, as you know, have a "star" adjustment on the handle which enables the angler to stiffen or soften the drag, according to his mammdate needs. To change the tension of the drag requires manual manipulation and this is done with the hand. Speed must be removed from the handle momentarily.

With the "starless drag," no manual manipulation is necessary. When you start fishing, the drag is set according to your requirements and the braking strength is there all line. From there on, the drag can be set full-on or released simply by turning the handle.

My son, Dick, sports reporter on the Camden City, Long Island, Newsday, gave one of these reels a thorough workout, recommend fishing for big bluefish and fluke off Montauk, Long Island. This is what he has to say about the reel.

"The Starless-drag reel is a dandy. I fished it on bottom (for big fluke) and top fish (big bluez). Has a positive-action drag which can be increased or decreased by handle control. Drag stays even and does not oscillate even when under full pressure and does not tend to lag like some drags will. Standard drag will. It will stop a big blue in his tracks."

Congratulations to Montague-Ocean City! This sounds like the reel we have been needing for a long, long time.



BIRD BANDING

Many sportsmen and most folks are familiar with the fact that ornithologists, both professional, and amateur, band and release migratory birds. Most of the banding is done in the fall, but it is done any time there by any means. Just about every species of migratory game birds, even down to the tiny song birds, is banded in the hope that somehow they'll bands may be found and returned to the Fish and Wildlife Service, banding headquarters, Maryland.

The purpose of banding is to get something of the migratory habits and flight lanes of the various species. During the moulting and early spring season most of the banding is done, when the birds are easy to capture. Then, when a bird is shot, the hunter, if he happens to be a good fellow and willing to send a band, sends the band to Fish and Wildlife.

Each band has its own serial number and that number shown in the F. and W. files where the bird was banded. The returned band completes the record. In all, more than 800 species have been banded in North America since the work was begun at the turn of the century. To date, about 7,000,-000 bands have been used and indexed.

So, if you happen to shoot a bird with a band on its leg this fall, send a helping hand and send the band to U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service returned band helps the work of migratory research more than you could imagine.

FOREST FIRES

The International Paper Company is interested in the livelihood upon an ever-ready supply of pulp wood for its mills. Thus, this company has vast forest holdings. Only by special permit are fisherman allowed to enter the forests.

One day two anglers set out from the International property to walk a quarter-mile along a woods road to the lake they were to fish. Every now and then, walking along behind them, found where one of them had been. They knocked the contents of his pipe out onto the road. There it lay, the spark still glowing.

Regardless of the fact that obtaining these men was a New York banker and the other a well-known lawyer, both they and their guides were banished from the property at once and told not to come back. Forest fires are a menace to property can, and sometimes do, cost millions of dollars.

In this state officials cannot be as strict as those of private corporations, much as they would like to be. Consequently, forest fires in our area are common. To them their annual toll of the nation's timber supply. Most of these fires—the majority—are man-made disasters.

So this year, stick to the rules of safety in the woods.

Crush your cigaret and make sure that it is completely out.

Never throw away a match after you have used it.

Extinguish your camp fire with water and then scatter the ashes. Cover these with dirt.

Leaked about fire—a cigaret stub or pipe ashes—from your car. In the State of Maine, a recently displayed beside Route 1, is a sign. Here's what it says.

This is God's country
Don't set it on fire... ...
Or we'll make you like hell
That's good advice. Keep it in mind this fall.

The State of Wisconsin officials wanted to learn more about the deer herd they must depend on. Therefore, compared to that of native birds, which shoots a prairie chicken by mistake. A fellow who has never seen one of either bird, however well mistake it for a hen pheasant.

But there is simply no possible excuse for a man who takes a shot at a whooping crane, or a trumpeter swan. The one and only alibi for such behavior is that he claim that he was mistaken for a snow goose. Shucks! Lumley Leaves Training Camp Of Black Hawks

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Goaltender Harry Lumley, a veteran of 12 seasons in the National Hockey League, left Chicago Black Hawks training camp Friday night because of a contract dispute.

Lumley, traded to Hawks earlier this year by Toronto Maple Leafs, said there was "no personal disagreement with club officials involved, if you are pertinent what you want. You then have full choice of colors and sometimes set your own delivery date. In the spring you may have to wait your turn.

LOWER PRICES

Used boat buying in the fall has become something of a joke. If the buyer proceeds properly, he can come by some real bargains and gain advantage in the process. Usually the seller is willing to let a boat go at a lower price so that he will not have to worry about it over the winter, and the old supply-and-demand psychology still applies. Fewer people are looking for boats in the fall, keeping the pressure off prices.

When you go used boat searching in the fall, here are some factors to remember. You see the boat as the seller is, with the motor and equipment in season-end shape so that its true condition can be evaluated more easily. Very often

Boat buying in the autumn makes sense from a lot of angles. Many, however, prefer to spend the winter thinking and browsing, attending boat shows, reading newspaper and magazine ads and articles and studying all the industry has to offer. They are still in the majority when it comes to spring buying, but the autumnal boat seekers are gaining in numbers.

The most obvious advantage of fall buying is a lowered price for used boats or for still-unsold 1956 models. There is even an advantage to buying a new 1957 model in the autumn of 1956 for payment over contract. He returned to his home in Owen Sound.

Al Rollins, Chicago Hawks for the last four seasons, was in goal Friday night when Kingston tied the Eastern League Buffalo Bisons 5-5 in an exhibition game.

LEAGUE LEADER

Tommy Ivan, Chicago coach and general manager, said the difference was a matter "of salary." One Hawk spokesman said Lumley refused to sign because the contract contained a minor league clause.

Lumley and Rollins had been wearing a close fight for the Chicago goaltending job, the loser, presumably, would be sent to the minors.

"Lumley told me this afternoon that he was leaving," Ivan said. "That's his privilege. We have no reason to go after him. We've fulfilled our obligations in the matter."

Lumley, 29, won the Vezina trophy, top goaltending award, while with Leafs in the 1953 - 54 season. He was with Detroit Red Wings before being traded to Toronto in 1952.

Senators Want New Stadium At Washington

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senators are seriously considering a shift to Los Angeles or San Francisco but are likely to stay put if Washington builds a major league new stadium.

This appeared to be the situation Friday as club president Calvin Griffith, in New York for the baseball league meetings, reiterated periodically denied in the past that the American League team was thinking of transferring its franchise to the west coast.

Twice this season Griffith said the Senators did not plan to leave after 56 years in the capital. He now is pictured as desiring to stay in Washington but is dissatisfied with prospects for the future.

He encountered an old theme from the White House. President Eisenhower told his press conference Friday that he was "agin" the move. Eisenhower said he'd like to see the capital get a new stadium.

Congress has been tinkering with the proposal for 10 years—so far, so, but nothing has crystalized.

The Senators own the 30,500-capacity Griffith Stadium. For the last three seasons Washington has drawn the lowest attendance in either league—431,647 paid in 1956.

After Quarterback

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions have placed a Georgia Tech quarterback on their negotiation list for the 1957 Western Intergrovincial Football Union season, it was learned Friday.

Club officials declined to say which player they have in mind, but believed to be either Peppy Vann or Wade Mitchell.

Power and Sail

By BILL ROBINSON

Lark, are already available to the boatman who knows what he wants now. There are also advantages to used boat buying in the fall.

by spring the seller will have slapped a carelessly applied coat of paint over trouble spots. It may look all right in the yard, but it will soon start to peel and crack and become an extra headache.

You take on the problem of winter storage, but you gain a several months' interval that can be used in getting the boat exactly the way you want her. Instead of putting through agonizing choice of sickly green until it wears off, you can start from scratch, properly prepare the surface and then do a good paint job of your own choice. Through the winter all gear can be checked over for wear and usability, and replacements can be spaced out at your pocketbook's convenience rather than given an extra shock on top of the boat purchase.

Then there are easy your Christmas list will be if you buy a boat in the fall!

FEET AFLOAT

The best way to survey a boat before buying is to test her afloat for performance and engine condition and then have her hauled out for an underwater inspection. Much can be learned from a boat afloat, this is much easier to accomplish in the fall, when the boat is still in commission.

Used boat buying is always something of a gamble, but the risks are generally less at this time of year. And if the weather stays nice, you might even slip in a few weekends of operation as a little dividend before you have to lay up.

Yankee Pitchers Take Beating From Power Hitters of Bums

NEW YORK (AP)—What has happened to Yankee pitching?

The once-proud mound staff which has played a big role in the Yankees' one-sided conquest of the American League has crumbled before the Dodgers' heavy artillery like the targets of a shore battery.

In the first two games of the world series, lost -3 and 13-8, seven of manager Casey Stengel's 10-man pitching staff have been hurling line. And only Bob Turley escaped unscathed.

"We're getting the runs, but we can't hold them other fellows," Stengel said. "Our fellows are too hot — they can't put the ball where they want it."

The Yankee hurlers have issued 13 bases on balls, 11 of them in Friday's game, and a world series game record. Along with the walks have come 21 Dodger hits in 18 runs. The combined earned run average of the eight pitchers is 6.75—not exactly what you would expect from a championship club.

Only Bob Grim, who never has measured up to the promise he showed as a freshman in 1954 and the seldom-used Rip Coleman, a southpaw, have not been used by Stengel. Turley impressed Stengel enough in pitching relieve ball for 1 1-3 innings in two games that he may get the call in Sunday's game.

World Series Notes

By ED CORRIGAN

innings — 3.26 old record 3.19, I'm still glad to have Sal Maglie world series lead before today's game. Brooklyn's Sandy Koufax of Alston could be pardoned for being glib an optimistic mood. Says Alston, "our hitting is at its peak right now, and that's the only thing we lacked all year."

When Lew Fossects, the—film director for both leagues, asked Yankee Billy Martin to pose for some pictures, Billy gagged: "Waddaya making, horror pictures?"

Will Harridge, president of the American League, has one record none of the players can match—he's seen every world series game since 1912.

Alston is not one to overlook a good luck charm. Mrs. Maisie Chen, who won a TV quiz show with the Dodgers as her subject, sent the Flatbush pilot a small Buddha harp with instructions for answering the questions. "It might help," said Alston.

Johnny Podres, hero of Brooks' series victory last year, was rewarded with a $500 present by the team. He's serving in the navy.

If the Dodgers win the series they'll split their part of the purse into 31 shares. And if the Yankees should rally to win they'll divide the winner's portion into 26 shares. Each player's share probably will be in the neighborhood of $700,-000. Every share only in the first four games.

McGill, Western Teams Ready To Bid Seriously for '56 Title

By CHARLES BABIN

The weak sisters of the Senior Intercollegiate Football Union last season may be the bad stuff brothers this year.

The 1956 college grid season opens Saturday. Defending champion Queen's Golden Gaels, who won their title in 11 of 12 years by whipping Varsity Blues 18-0 in a playoff fall, visit the Blues in Toronto in one game.

But the hottest noises may come from London where McGill's talent - packed Redmen tangle with University of Western Ontario Mustangs.

The season ends Nov. 10 when the same play reverse engagements. A sudden-death playoff for the title, if necessary, is set for Nov. 17.

Exhibition performances in third and fourth respectively last year, are ready to bid seriously for the IFU championship.

Five instance Redmen had no trouble routing McMaster Marauders 46-0, as quarterback quarterback star Dick Carr at the helm, while Varsity had to hustle to edge finally edging the same Marauders 17-8.

Western too has displayed power and may be a contender. Coach Jeff Nicklin has built a team to western Canada two weeks ago and Mustangs defeated UBC Thunderbirds 27-7 in the fourth annual paraplegic game.

Queen's and Varsity were less spectacular in the pre - schedule play. Blues held Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen of the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union to an 8-7 win, spanking on defense but a still lacking a strong offensive punch.

Gaels showed to even worse advantage, bowing 25 - 0 to Toronto Beaches of the ORFU.

The Queen's gridders obviously missed the mark, but may lack of the 1955 title, quarterback Gus Bracuis who was drafted by the U. S. Army.

Without Bracuis, Oaels showed little explosive strength, despite the presence of three 1955 all-stars—halfback Ron Stewart, captain and centre Gary Lane and tackle Jim Hughes.

Also from the Kingston campus is all-star and Lou Bruce and half Gary Schrieber, now with Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four.

Stewart has worked out at quarter this fall, and may see action as signal caller against Western. John Moschelle of Clayton, N. Y., has not fully recovered from an injury to his passing arm.

Moschelle, a U. S. army veteran who played two years at Syracuse United States Teachers College, is interested in the Canadian game. Freshman Bob Dow of Woodstock, Ont., handled quarterbacking chores in the exhibition game, but coach Frank Tindall may pass him up because of lack of experience.

Larry Sullivan's McGill gridders are loaded.

At least two newcomers are proven players who should help the support in the season of the 1955 team, which spurted dangerously late in the season after a dismal start.

Carr, scoring champion Johnny Evans and guard Buster Brown, all-stars in 1955, are reported in top shape.

Acquired during the off-season were two-way fullback Jack Lee, a 1955 star a year veteran from Wake Forest University, and halfback Jan Sandalnik from Quebec shore Flyers of the Quebec Rugby Football Union.

Western, described by UBC coach Frank Gnup as the best eastern squad he has seen to "put out west," had to rebuild from the ground up this year after graduation and injuries claimed a flock of regulars.

Gone are two all-stars, halfback Ralph Simmons who graduated, and tackle Ted Roman, ineligible this year.

Rookies, notably quarterback Frank Cosentino, have been impressive in drills and exhibition and may make Mustangs dangerous.

Varsity goes to the post under a new coach. Former assistant coach Dalt White became head man after last season when Bob Masterson moved into professional ranks as general manager of Calgary Stampeders.

White will probably field a good defensive club, but may lack offensive power both in the air and on the ground. This was a common ailment with recent editions of the Blues.

Particularly missed will be three 1955 all-stars: flying wing Gerry Lansky, who suffered a serious eye injury last season, halfback Phil Minard and centre Bob Waugh. Captain and first string quarterback is big Ed Skrzypek.

"A poor pass defence beat us last year," says White. That problem seems to be solved. The Blues feeded off Kitchener-Waterloo passing master Bob Celeri in the exhibition game.

Rookies Tim Judd and the McIntyre brothers, Bill and Dave are White's new offensive boons.

A band in which temperatures are expected to be close to seasonal averages runs across Canada from the Maritime Provinces, through central Quebec and Northern Ontario, Manitoba and parts of Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. Above-normal temperatures are expected in Newfoundland, northern Quebec and a triangular section covering parts of Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. (CP Photo).

Says Ballerina Prevented From Leaving Russia

LONDON (AP)—Soviet officials were reported today to have prevented prima ballerina Galina Ulanova's successor from coming to London with the Bolshoi Bauet troupe because they feared she might seek asylum in the West.

The rising star in the Russian ballet world is 23-year-old Maya Plisetskaya. Ulanova is 47.

A well-informed source said a report had reached here that Miss Plisetskaya had made uncomplimentary remarks about the Communist regime.

"She was therefore regarded as politically unreliable," said the source, "and some officials thought if Plisetskaya were given a visa to visit Britain she might choose to remain in the West."

The Daily Mail says it learned that Communist party officials also had warned Ulanova and the rest of the ballet in London "to be careful to whom they talk and on what subjects."

The Bolshoi troupe opened a London season at the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, two nights ago. It is the first appearance in the West for the 180-year-old company.

BRO'TECTION

LILLOOET, B. C. (CP) — A pelican with a seven-foot wingspan was electrocuted when it tangled with a power line near here. There was speculation that the bird, which bore no tag, may have been Pete, a pelican which deserted from Vancouver's Stanley Park zoo earlier this year.

Tito Returns To Homeland

BELGRADE (AP) — President Tito returned to Yugoslavia Fri. from his eight-day "private" visit to Russia, but his talks there with party chief Nikita Khrushchev and other Soviet leaders remained veiled by secrecy.

No advance notice had been issued on his return by air. A convoy of automobiles which brought Tito and his party from the airport to his residence in downtown Belgrade made it public that he had come back.

British Reserve Troops' Unrest Said Justified

LONDON (Reuters) —Reports of unrest among British reserve troops called up because of the Suez crisis has attracted growing public attention, with one high official agreeing many of them have cause for anxiety over domestic problems.

Lt.-Gen. Sir Reginald Denning, chairman of the Soldiers', Sailors' and Airmen's Families Association, told the annual meeting of the welfare group Thursday that some of the 20,000 reservists called up were sent abroad without their domestic difficulties being known to army authorities.

Lt.-Gen. C. F. C. Coleman, general officer commanding-in-chief, eastern command, said that in one corps of 3,500 men no fewer than 375 have domestic troubles. A common difficulty was that they had no savings and left their families to face heavy instalment buying commitments.

These comments came shortly after the arrest in Cyprus of 21 army reservists charged with creating a disturbance at a meeting in the island military base. Unofficial reports say they were clamoring for an assurance they would be "home by Christmas."

Wellington on the Lake

THE LURE OF AUTUMN

When gorgeous Autumn haunts the wood and plain
And flaunts her robes on every hill of flame,
I like to roam where hybrid might the sunlight streams
Through crimson leaves where nature idly dreams;
I like to follow where with trespings gay
She leads her train o'er an enchanted way,
And dream with her beside the silent shore
Where summer trails her robes of light no more.

I fain would follow where the silence broods
O'er field and plain and wooded solitudes,
Where purple grapes adorn the clambering vine
Where shadows lengthen in the day's decline,
And where the nuts drop one by one to earth
The sound conducive to the chipmunk's mirth—
Where autumn's spirit thrills us as we pass
And fairy footprints mark the greening grass.

—Helen B. Anderson

WELLINGTON — The brilliant foliage of the maples is spreading abroad the fact that Autumn is here. What a beautiful sight is this land in October! A drive over the countryside is a delight. All hail to the broad-leaved maple

In her fair and beauteous dress,
A type of our young country

In its pride and loveliness;
Whether in spring or summer,

Or in the dreary fall,
Mid nature's forest children
She's the fairest of them all.
Mid the dark-browed firs and cedars

Her loveller colors shine
Like the dawn of a brighter future

On the settler's hut of pine.

UNITED CHURCH B.A.

The Evening Auxiliary of the Wellington United Church was held in the Sunday School rooms on Tuesday evening with the president, Mrs. Percy Elliott in the chair. In the discussion of business it was affirmed that the sum of $250 was sent in with $12.27 on hand.

Miss Gladys Lumb with Mrs. Harry Carley, Miss Mary Lumb and Mrs. Mabel Bell motored to Picton on Saturday.

Mrs. Leona Whyte has closed her summer cottage near Bath. With her son, Arthur Whyte of Montreal, she called on Mrs. Anderson and Miss M. Blakely on Sunday en route to Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Mantel are enjoying a holiday motor trip in the States.

Labor Rejects Nationalization Policy Plank

BLACKPOOL, Eng. (Reuters)—The Labor party Friday rejected a demand that all basic industries should be nationalized in order to speed development of automation.

But the 1,300 delegates at the party's annual conference here forced the hand of their leaders by making them accept a motion calling for a policy statement on automation within the next six months.

Use Helicopter To Blow Pecans Off the Trees

ALBANY, Ga. (AP)—A helicopter and a harvester will be used in a tree-shaking, pecan-picking experiment next week.

The helicopter will blow the nuts from the trees and then the harvester will move along the ground and suck up the pecans.

That's the idea. Whether it will work is still to be determined.

If the two machines do what they're supposed to do, the experiment may bring about a considerable reduction in pecan harvesting time.

BELLS UNWANTED

VANCOUVER (CP)—City board of administration recommended that council reject a proposal to install a carillon in the city hall tower at a cost of $4,500. The chimes would peal every 15 minutes, but Ald. Ernest Adams asked "Who wants bells in the city hall?"

Little Benny's Notebook

Uy fellows were throwing bread crums to mind sparrows and pidgins to see how close they would come, not being very close, and Shorty Judge's grandpa Mr. Peevy was watching us in his sailor hat and his blue coat with the brass buttons, and he said, If Sandy Lotts was here he would have those herds perched all over him. Sandy could tame anything he said.

Even snakes? I said, and Mr. Peevy said, Yes, even snakes. I'll never forget the hoo constricter he tamed while we were cruising up the Amazon. We spent our shore leave strolling through the jungles, and that's where Sandy Lotts met this 40 foot boe constricter and tamed him. First he taught him to squeeze a rabbit without even mussing its fur. It was a complicated trick, because first Sandy had to train the rabbit not to be scared of snakes, he said.

Gi, how? Sid Hunt said, and Mr. Peevy said, By feeding him carrots cut in the shape of snakes till he got used to the idea of being around snakes, which was only a step from the idea of snakes being around him. Then came a still harder trick. Sandy dined his pockits with wild herds eggs and taught that boa constricter to wind around him in 8 coils without breaking a single egg.

Boy, it would of made me nervius just to watch, I said, and Mr. Peevy said, I admit I was always scared some accident would happen, I had to promise Sandy my brother's allotment of chewing tobacco to send the boa constricter back into the jungles, where for all I know he's still making pitiful efforts to make friends with rabbits. Well, goodbye now, he said.

And he kept on going smoking his short pipe.

"I'll promise a quick divorce one minute after 8 p.m.' Oct. 8," he added.

"Sorry, no alimony seekers."

Britain, France Look To UN Meet For Suez Plan

Egypt and Russia Against Anglo-French Agreement

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) —Britain and France, obviously disappointed by rejection of their plan for international control of the Suez Canal, now look to secret sessions of the United Nations Security Council to produce some basis for agreement.

Egypt and Russia Monday told the emergency council session there could never be agreement on the basis of the Anglo-French plan submitted Friday. Instead, they suggested the committee be appointed to set up a treaty or agreement under which Egypt would guarantee free passage in all ships but still retain control of the waterway.

The plan outlined by British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd urged international control of the canal on the basis of decisions made in London after Premier Nasser nationalized the canal July 26. It also advised Egypt to co-operate with the Suez Canal Users Association, set up at a second London conference, until such time as a "reasonable and just" agreement can be negotiated.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi told the council Egypt is willing to negotiate but not under the terms of the Anglo-French plan. Egypt is a guest in the session and has no vote.

Russia, which with its veto power in the council, also opposed the plan—and in much harsher terms.

Britain and France had hoped Fawzi would come up with a definite plan which would at least provide a start in negotiations.

But his lengthy speech was vague. He said Egypt was "willing to negotiate" but carried no clear-cut basis for talks.

Russia was more definite. Fast talking Foreign Minister Dmitri T. Shepilov, with a number of cutting remarks about British and French "colonialism," reiterated a plan which the Soviet had already turned down.

It called for a UN committee of five more countries to negotiate a scheme under which Egypt would control the canal but would guarantee free use of the waterway to all countries and report frequently to the UN on the canal's operation.

But the Soviet Big Three have already indicated they are not willing to accept Nasser's word that he will provide passage through the canal to all ships.

The American plan for the situation was to be outlined today by Secretary Dulles. Britain and France had been irked by Dulles' cool attitude to their tough stand for dealing with Nasser. On Friday Dulles said he will back the Anglo-French plan and fight any attempted amendments.

Star Says Govt. Planning Aid In Many Forms

TORONTO (CP) — The Star says today in a special dispatch from Ottawa that the federal government is planning a new formula of financial aid under which it will pay more for municipal services.

The dispatch says the Dominion government also is planning a broad system of scholarships to assist Canadians to obtain university education.

The budget will provide tax cuts and is expected to contain plans for increased pensions, such as family allowances, old age benefits, assistance to the blind and other such federal aid the story says.

Boy May Have Climbed Aboard Circus Train

TORONTO (CP) — Police seeking Gary Morris, 9, missing from his east-central home since Saturday, today may have climbed aboard a circus train in search of adventure.

Gary was allowed to go to a movie alone for the first time on Saturday, he never returned.

Police, assisted by members of the Scouts movement, scoured backalleys, gardens and deserted lots during the Thanksgiving weekend.

Today they said they found no trace of the boy. But there was still some ground to be covered and the search was continuing.

A train left here Saturday night carrying a circus company. Police said there is a possibility the young .star may have slipped aboard.

LEAVES GIVEN RESERVISTS

LONDON (AP) — The war office, worried by unrest among troops called up in the Suez crisis, has told British reservists in Germany and the United Kingdom eligible for seven-day furloughs have followed numerous indications that resentment among the 20,000 men recalled in the 10-week-old canal dispute has approached the explosion point.

FIND 7 CASES TYPHOID FEVER IN OTTAWA AREA

MHO Orders Bacterial Test of All Wells

OTTAWA (CP)—Seven cases of typhoid fever have been diagnosed in this district, Dr. C. E. L. Morrow, Ongoote township medical health officer, said today.

Two men previously diagnosed as typhoid patients are confined to hospital here. One man is from Metcalf, Ont., about 15 miles south of here, and the other is from the Winchester area, about 30 miles south of here.

In addition, typhoid has been diagnosed in two residents of Hawkesbury, Ont., about 26 miles to south of here, where they are in hospital. Four others with typhoid are in hospital at Winchester.

The outbreak, first in this district in 20 years, was reported last week. Dr. Morrow said then that Typhoid symptoms first were noticed among a group of men who attended a dance at a hotel in Winchester Sept. 9.

He suggested that many wells in the district may have become contaminated due to heavy rains. Rains and surface water from septic tanks of which there are many in the area could contaminate drinking communities.

Dr. R. F. Hershman, of the Ontario health department, has ordered a bacterial test of all wells in the Winchester area.

Barge With 13 Aboard Drifts Hours on Lake

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) The barge Delkote from Owen Sound, with 13 men aboard drifted in storm-tossed Lake Superior for almost nine hours Sunday before the engines started functioning again a tow line.

The Delkote broke away from the towing vessel, the George Hindman of Owen Sound, Sault Ste. Marie about 3:30 a.m. Twenty-foot waves, churned up by 50-mile gales buffeted the powerless craft.

Jim Hindman, commanded by J. M. Watson of Owen Sound, was off Point Iroquois when the barge broke away from the tug. The Delkote is a 200-foot steel barge. The C. D. Secord of the Mohawk Transportation Company of Montreal was towing the barge about 9 a.m. in answer to a distress call and more than three hours later succeeded in picking up the barge, commanded by Captain Richard of Collingwood.

All three vessels took shelter in the lee of Michipicoten Island until the storm abated. The Hindman and Delkote were en route to Fort William.

The United States Coast Guard cutters from Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., went to the rescue when the Hindman lost power. Secord picked up the barge. The cutters were unable to make only six miles an hour in the heavy seas.

Mother Faces Task of Telling Son, Aged 5, His Remaining Eye Removed

ATLANTA (AP)—A plucky little boy who liked to play cowboy lay in a hospital bed early today and doodled a picture while his lamb.

Five-year-old Johnny Pair kept reasking for the lamb. It felt warm and familiar in a strange dark world, and there was some comfort in that.

Johnny is blind, but he doesn't know it. And his mother doesn't know how to tell him, thinking of the times he has come home with a boy suit and skinned the guns at imaginary targets.

The lamb was the last thing Johnny saw Monday before he was wheeled to the operating room to have his cancerous right eye removed. The left eye was taken out two years ago.

Doctors reported the 30-minute operation a success and said the "chances of cure from the growth are now reasonably good."

Mrs. Sessie Pair said her son knew he was going to be operated on, but he didn't know the eye would be taken out.

"The doctors wanted it that way. I don't know what we'll tell him later."

The operation ended a month-long debate between Mrs. Pair and divorced parents on whether it should be performed. Mrs. Pair wanted the surgery but Arnold Pair, 23, maintained that the youngster should have his sight as long as he could.

Pair said Monday, however, that the "doctors finally convinced me that removal of Johnny's eye was the only chance of saving the boy's life."

"I cried myself to sleep most every night since I decided."

Troops on Malta March to Mess With Complaints

VALLETTA, Malta (Reuters)—A member of the 37th Heavy Anti-Aircraft Regiment, Royal Artillery, told Reuters news agency in a statement today that artillerymen marched on the regiment's officers' mess Monday night with a list of hardship complaints.

Telephoning from near the British Army camp at Mcondi, where a unit of the Grenadier Guards staged a similar demonstration Sunday night, a British serviceman spokesman told Reuters that a group of reservists had gathered in orderly fashion from the canteen to the officers' mess.

"There was no suggestion that we wanted to mutiny or anything else," he said, "but we just wanted to give our legitimate complaints to the commanding officer personally.

The spokesman said that when they reached the officers' mess their regimental sergeant-major met them and offered to forward their complaints.

SHOUTED DOWN

He was shouted down, the spokesman said, as the men wanted to give their complaints to the commanding officer personally.

This morning some 300 reservists were paraded before the commanding officer.

The latter, called up during the Suez crisis, have been complaining that they are being kept in service while there no longer is a need for them.

HAMILTON (CP) — Lorne A. Kelly, 34, of Toronto was killed early today when his car crashed into a tree on Highway 7, 10 miles southeast of here.

Ready to Double College Grants Says St. Laurent

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said today he is prepared to ask parliament to double federal grants to universities to $16,000,000 from $8,000,000.

He told reporters that he will await reaction of the universities to the proposal before he goes on making the grants. If the reaction is favorable, he will ask parliament at a resolution to Parliament to have the payments doubled.

Earlier in the day he said, for the federal government to negotiate directly with Quebec on the grants increases as recommended.

The new formula was designed to overcome Quebec's opposition to the present scheme. University grants in the provinces except Quebec accept the federal aid, distributed on a per capita basis, and then add a person in the province and shared by the provinces on the basis of student numbers.

Quebec has rejected the grants, arguing it would lead to federal encroachment in the field of education. Such responsibility is allocated to the provinces under the Constitution.

The federal government hopes to get around this criticism by including the National Conference of Canadian Universities distribute the funds.

"NO-LIMIT" HIGHWAY

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP)—The Kansas turnpike, a 236-mile four-lane toll highway to be opened Oct. 25, will have no speed limit. However, drivers will be "hailed down" if they exceed 80 miles an hour. It will be illegal to drive less than 40 miles an hour on the new road unless bad weather or other factors make it advisable to go slower.

CANADA ASSAILS NEW U.S. TWIST IN WHEAT SALES

Objects to Policy Aimed at Future Trade

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has fired a new verbal blast at the United States for allegedly attempting to cut deeper into Canada's potential foreign wheat markets through a new twist in the American wheat giveaway program.

A trade department spokesman said Monday a "strong" note was sent to the U.S. state department when it became apparent that the U.S., in addition to selling local currencies, was forcing importers to agree to buy additional fixed quantities at premium wheat at some future time.

The U.S., he said, is attempting to tie up the importing country for a long period of time. This could prove extremely damaging to Canada's export program.

Aided by huge sums voted by congress, the U.S. government, in attempting to rid itself of surplus wheat, has given away and bartered other amounts and has also sold wheat for currencies used mostly for defence and development works in the importing country.

Canada sells wheat for dollars and other convertible currencies. Prairie suggestions that the Canadian government compete against the U.S. by using local currencies which could not be converted into dollars were rejected by the federal government.

The main government argument is that if it ever attempted to compete against the American treasury, Canada would be bound to lose. The Canadian federal treasury could not match the huge sums available for export subsidy in the U.S.

Canada has been at odds with the U.S. over wheat policy ever since the American giveaway started. Canadian protests were based on the argument that the American program would eat into traditional Canadian wheat markets.

The U.S. agreed to the establishment of a joint committee of experts to give Canada an opportunity to discuss the American sales negotiations. Apparently it was at one of these relatively recent committee meetings that Canada learned of a big deal under which Brazil would be permitted to buy fixed amounts from the U.S. in the future for a current payment in cruzeiros.

Canadian officials knew of some previous trade deals with Brazil futures tie-up but apparently let the matter slide until the Brazil deal came to light. Complaints to opposite committee members brought no action, so an official protest was filed.

Two Gunmen Get $12,000

TORONTO (CP)—Two gunmen Monday robbed a bank here of $12,000 in cash and cheques.

The bank watchman Morris Baur told police he was making the rounds when confronted by the men, who wore silk stockings as masks. They put a shopping bag in Baur's hand, tied his hands and bound him.

The bandits said he heard the men hammering the safe. Later, he wriggled free and called police. The gunmen escaped in a car with $7,576 in cash, $5,212 in cheques.

Form Human Chain Around Princess As Africans Battle to Touch Clothes

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanganyika (AP) — A [illegible] mob broke through police cordons today and surged at Princess Margaret before a Scotland Yard bodyguard stepped from her car to watch tribal dances here.

Members of her party joined regular police and special constables in forming a human chain around the princess to fight off hundreds of excited Africans struggling to get close to her.

The mob completely overran the dancers lined up to meet the princess.

Wives of British officials joined in protecting the princess. Linking hands with them were administrative officers in ceremonial white dress uniforms with dress swords and white pith helmets.

Screaming African women in multi-colored headcloths were in the fore in the frenzied crowds.

The cordon protecting the princess slowly fought its way back to the royal car and Princess Margaret slipped inside.

Then the car forced its through the crowd with hundreds of Africans chasing wildly behind it.

One of those who pursued a cordon round the princess said she was "just trying to touch her clothes."

The governor of Tanganyika, Sir Edward Twining, who was with the princess, advised her to return to her car. At first she declined to do so.

Eventually she did, mob closed in behind her. Then the cordon took over to get the princess safely back to her car.

Thieves Prefer Presley Platters To Stradivarius

NOTTINGHAM, Eng. (Reuters)—Police here have few clues so far about thieves who broke into a local music store Monday—but they know the robbers are lowbrows.

The thieves picked up 200 long-playing popular records—ignoring a valuable collection of long-hair music—and passed up a $5,500 Stradivarius violin on display.

Pope Innocent Beatified 267 Years After Death

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Innocent XI, a 17th century prelate who dared oppose the mightiest ruler of Europe, has been beatified 267 years after his death.

Pope Pius XII proclaimed his predecessor "blessed" and entitled to public religious honor in a glittering ceremony Sunday in St. Peter's Basilica.

Beatification is the church's second degree of nearness, and usually is a step toward canonization.

Pius XII called Innocent XI "reformer of the Church, defender of the rights of the Church and of Christianity."

Innocent's pontificate from 1676 to 1689 was marked by his efforts to stop the Turkish tide threatening Europe and also by a bitter feud with "Sun King" Louis XIV of France over papal prerogatives.

KESWICK POTATO WEIGHS 2 LBS., 5 OZ.

One of the largest potatoes reported in this district weighed in at 2 pounds 5 ounces at Bishop Feed Ltd. today.

The overgrown specimen, grown by W. A. Dempsey on his property at Redeersville is a Canadian variety. Known as the Keswick, it has been developed by the Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Dempsey said he had several other potatoes almost as big but these were an abnormal size. He said that a late season, plenty of rain and the abundant use of fertilizer had contributed to this condition.

The owner of the oversize potato remarked that giant potatoes are not desirable in that housewives are showing a growing preference for the smaller variety.

Two teen aged boys appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills here this morning charged with carrying a concealed weapon.

William Cronk, 18, and Frederick John Cody, of Victoria, Ont., hired a Belleville taxi on Friday night to take them to Trenton. Reaching their destination, the cab driver asked for the fare, so one of the youths proffered a $22 cheque which the cabbie could not cash.

The taxi returned them to Belleville where the boys were handed over to city police. A routine search of their clothing revealed two starting pistols which firebullets, a spring knife and a hunting knife.

They were remanded to Friday so that their parents can be notified.

Judo Demonstration Staged By Toronto Group at Y Here

Those people who did not attend the judo demonstration at the Belleville Y.M.C.A. on Saturday night really missed something. The 90-minute performance by far outclassed, telecasts of professional wrestling for one very good reason: the judo experts were out "to do" their opponents in.

Frank Hatashita, 3rd Dan, and eight men and women from Toronto, holders of various belts, put on a demonstration which chilled onlookers' blood. They demonstrated various throws, holds and groundwork and self defence.

Two petite performers, Miss Joy Howe and Miss Elaine McCrossan, both green belt holders, showed that they knew how to handle themselves. The girls, weighing 100 pounds (if that much), easily threw their heavier male opponents and applied appropriate strangle-holds and choke holds. Misses Howe and McCrossan put on an exhibit of self defence with the help of Mr. Hatashita, who played the part of the attacker.

CLUB TO OPERATE HERE

Next week it is hoped that the Hatashita Judo Club of Belleville will swing into activity with Jim Driscoll and Barney Parsons, both orange belts, instructing with periodic visits from Mr. Hatashita. The Belleville club will work out at the "Y" and will be under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. here.

Judo is increasing in popularity in Canada. Therefore, the club is being formed to stimulate interest in the art. But the most important aspect of judo is that it instills in the hearts of club members a true spirit of amateurism and sportsmanship conduct. No one need fear being hurt on purpose by his opponent. Anger is extremely rare in a contest and if someone begins to show anger the referee immediately calls a halt to the proceedings before somebody gets hurt. Part of judo training is designed to reduce the chances of a person "blowing his top".

Judoists in the Belleville club will be afforded the opportunity to work toward a high rank through competition with other judoists and members of other judo clubs throughout the province.

Judo, in form, is a system of unarmed combat, developed on the principle of maximum efficiency and minimum effort, especially related to the use of the mechanism of the human body. This means then, that weight and strength do not mean much, as a 75-lb. person trained in judo, is quite capable of engaging a 250-pounder in battle and still standing a very good chance of coming out on top.

The value of judo applied to every day life, apart from the physical attainments which the training produces, is found in the fact that progress in skill promotes spontaneous development of a sense of balance and poise, self-confidence, self-reliance, calm alertness and the principle of non-resistance.

RECOGNIZED AS SPORT

Contrary to popular belief, judo is not merely a form of self-defence, though it may be applied as such; but is recognized by the National A.A.U., as an amateur competitive sport. Judo consists of throwing, grappling, strangling and striking of vital points.

So, if there are any boys, girls, men or women, of all ages, who would like to learn this art for self-defence or would like to develop co-ordination between mind and body, or for the fellowship it offers, they are just drop in to the YMCA on Campbell St., and fill out an application.

But don't think that overnight you will become proficient in the art.

Those participating in Saturday night's demonstration by the Hatashita Judo Club of Toronto were Misses Joy Howe and Elaine McCrossan and Bob Haynes, green belts; Vern Fagan, 1st Dan; Frank Hatashita, 3rd Dan; Jim Driscoll, Jack Leitch and Bud Moore, orange belts.

Prior to the demonstration Mr. Hatashita presented Jim Driscoll and Barney Parsons both of Belleville, with orange belts. Mr. Parsons was unable to stay and participate in the exhibition.

McFarlands Start Practice In Memorial Arena Tonight

Belleville hockey fans will get their first chance to witness the Belleville McFarlands of the Eastern Ontario OHA Senior "A" hockey league tonight when the club will hold its initial workout at Memorial Arena. The team worked out at Bowmanville all last week.

Manager Drury Denyes yesterday announced the signing of five more players from the Northern Quebec League.

Heading the list is Lucien Gilbert, high-scoring left - winger. Gilbert is 26 years old and played last year for Amos. He had 40 goals and 30 assists and the year before that compiled a 30-30 record. In 1953-54, Gilbert played for the Malarie Recrocks and had his best year in a scoring capacity. He fired 50 goals and 31 assists for 81 points. The left-winger is said to possess a terrific shot.

Maurice Benoit, also with Amos last season, will handle one of the defence positions tonight. He is 26 years old. Benoit was with the Pembroke Lumbermgs for two years before his stint with Amos.

Willy Menard, 20 - year old brother of Drury Menard, who signed earlier with the McFarlands, has also inked his contract. Willy played last year with Val d'Or and picked up 29 goals and 24 assists from his centre-ice position. He played two years of junior "A" hockey with Timmins.

Another highly - rated centre, Paul Payette, has also signed. Paul is 26 and a brother of Pete Payette of the Cornwall Chawies. He was with Val d'Or last season and was sought by several other clubs in this league according to manager Denyes. Although his scoring record is not available, it was stated that Payette was the second high scorer in the Northern Quebec league last winter.

Reale Laroche was the fifth player signed over the weekend. Laroche is also a left-winger, born 21 years ago. He played for Amos and Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan, last season.

Tonight's practice gets underway at 7:00 p.m. with the general public urged to attend. The team will work out every night this week in preparing for their exhibition game with the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen here this Friday night. They play a return game in Kitchener on Saturday.

U.S. POLITICS A MILD BREW?

We are informed by The Associated Press that "Democratic and Republican campaigners got rough" last Wednesday night.

One of the "rough" campaigners was supposed to have been the Democratic nominee for president, Adlai Stevenson. Judging from what we saw and heard of his speech on television, we can only say that if this is considered to be a fiery speech in the U.S., there's a holocaust in Hastings every election campaign.

Canadians are unquestionably suffer from an inferiority complex. Just because New York is bigger than Montreal, the Empire State building is higher than the Royal York, Chicago has more gangsters than Vancouver and the corn is higher in Iowa than in Ontario, we jump to the conclusion that Americans are better than Canadians in everything.

We have been told that Stevenson, by U.S. standards, is a most effective public speaker. That he is a pleasing one, with appeal to the voter who likes a closely reasoned argument, we shall not attempt to deny. Listening to him, though, we could not help thinking what several Canadian politicians, past and present, would have done with the material with which he was working.

Our own Senator W. A. Fraser would have had the picture tube in the TV set throwing off sparks under the heat of denunciation of President Eisenhower's "misrepresentations."

The late Gordon Graydon would have sat down for a little chat with his friends the voters and convinced them that it hurt him more than it did Eisenhower to be forced to spank the president publicly.

The late Agnes Macphail's tongue would have bitten like a lash on the flesh of Ike's every sentence.

Mitchell F. Hepburn would have had his audience helpless with laughter, and then sobered them up just in time to realize that this was a serious matter after all and, by god, they had better do something about it with their votes.

As for Prime Minister St. Laurent or Premier Leslie Frost, we couldn't make a choice of tactics. They might choose the grandfatherly and fatherly rebuke, respectively, or flare up with their rare, but doubly effective, outbursts of righteous indignation.

Unless there is something about television which dilutes the impact of a political speech, we think that Stevenson is lucky that he is only in the minors.

He is using a rough speech by U.S. standards, then we've heard some Rotary club addresses which were nothing short of mayhem.

APPLAUSE IS EARNED

The Peterborough Examiner deserves a cheer from all parents.

In Toronto a committee has proposed that school pupils be "mobilized" to get their parents to vote in the municipal elections and a prize be awarded for the most successful group of children.

The Examiner commends the aim but condemns the means.

"At best," says the Peterborough paper, "the entire proposal is a distasteful form of moral compulsion, at worst it is blackmail. - - - A child's feeling of shame, or being let down, may be hurtful enough when his parents do not attend a Home and School meeting and therefore his class loses the attendance pennant. How intense would be his humiliation if his parents did not vote! These are Communist Nazi methods."

The paper, while criticizing the move, did not bother to state what it may have regarded as self-evident—that while it is desirable that a high percentage of voters as possible exercise their franchise, there are legitimate reasons for failure to do so.

A voter may, for instance, be honestly at a loss to judge between two candidates and may consider that the fairest thing to do is not to cast a vote at all.

The most important objection to the plan, however, has a much wider application than merely this one instance.

"The State," declares the Examiner, "has no right thus to interfere with the family and to shame the child or to undermine his confidence in his parents."

"The business of the schools," it says, "is not to force parents to vote, but to educate children." It might have added that the proper way to get rid of corrupt organizations which are all too eager to ordeavor to force the schools into projects which are none of their business.

A DANGEROUS TIME OF YEAR

There is no question about the most dangerous day of the whole year for motorists. It is the day of the first snowfall. Drivers accustomed to the easy traction of concrete, asphalt or gravel suddenly discover that snow and ice are more slippery than they remembered.

That snowfall hazard is, we will hope, well in the future. However, Allan G. MacNab, Ontario Registrar of Motor Vehicles, has pointed to a somewhat similar situation, which exists right now.

"The rush hour, early-week traffic is always the most dangerous time of the day, throughout the year," he says. "In October with the changeover from daylight saving time to standard time, light conditions are just as good and keep getting poorer through the winter. On the other hand, summer driving habits and speeds are carried over into October, when they should not be."

That, of course, is exactly the same thing which happens at the time of the first snowfall.

Mr. MacNab's warning is a timely one and we pass on his advice to "slow down at sundown."

SIMPLE GAINS

Little matters more than these:
Peace beneath the roof above,
Fire beside to sit at ease,
Greeting and farewell of love;
Faith whatever be the test
That will serve "I did my best."

Sorrow's tears and pleasure's smiles,
These are strung along the miles.

Run life over, child to age,
There are simple joys and great
Strides down on memory's page

None receives a guarantee
Health will last and strength remain;
Life is seldom trouble free,
Age is reached through care and pain.

Age of Transition

By Bertha Gaster in UNESCO Features

About three months ago a kingsize bomb let on three French headlines. That bomb, as one might suppose, H-bombs or taxes or strikes or a term for any of the million and one political problems a great country has to face. It was not even the name of a film star, or the winner of the Tour de France. It was a simple little abstract term — and a thoroughly unabstract term — and hardly a practically every newspaper in France went to town on it, and the articles and essays were followed by hosts of letters from keen partisan readers.

"Adaptation" was the word, and it was not, the newspapers demanded to know, a word that an eleven-year-old could be expected to understand". Was it, or was it not, a reasonable test for such an exam? And come to that, cried the angry readers, why all the indignant, what about that stupid little anecdote of Andre Gide as a child, when he let his first perfect grammar exercise be returned to him with the comment: "Good, but I see you have no mind! How should they know! Were they supposed to be psychologists at eleven?

At first sight the casual reader might be inclined to dismiss it as a sort of "silly season" correspondence, but when the minister of Education took a hand, and more and more letters began to arrive, laden cancelling the results of the exam, and holding another examination, the length and breadth of France, the casual reader was compelled to be impressed. What was it all about?

It was in fact the educational future of thousands and thousands of children which was at stake; and thousands and thousands of French parents were acutely conscious of it. It was part of a widespread problem that is a worry not only to parents and others, parents, and children alike.
